It has not yet been sufficiently impressed upon them that the encouragement of extravagant importation is injurious to the public good. To impress this vital truth upon the women of the Union, we have entered into this solemn covenant, not only pledging ourselves to a general system of economy in our persons, but holding it as a duty to impress upon others how unwomanly it is to make outward display a paramount subject of thought, when the nation is in the throes of the Rebellion, such as the world never saw. Gathered here in the center of the nation, a handful of women intent on a single object, anxious only for the good of the country, we appeal to the patriotism and intelligence of our sister women throughout the land. Let it be well understood that every [illegible] of gold that goes from the country detracts from the pay of the soldier that is fighting [illegible] and diminishes the wages of [illegible] women [illegible] a [illegible] pittance that scarcely suffices to keep them from starvation. The precious metal that flows [illegible] this country to Europe for the luxuries we do not need increases the price of gold here, depreciates the value of our national currency, and helps to sweep the necessaries of life beyond the reach of the working man.

It is a matter of truth, [illegible] the [illegible] of [illegible] manufactured in Europe have been [illegible] at any time in the history of our country. The importations [illegible] at the New York Custom House alone amounted to $5,[illegible] all that week—which will [illegible] its ignoble record in history—the streets of Washington were blocked up with weary soldiers, marching through mud, rain, or dust, down to the Army of the Potomac, which now lies with hated courage waiting for the carnival of death, which is almost flinging its crimson shadow over us.

For the good of our country and the honor of our sex let us redeem ourselves from reproach of want or extravagance. Let us prove by cheerful retrenchment, that the women of the country are not so wedded to luxurious self indulgence that they cannot fill a glorious page in the history of this war, and yet retain all that is retiring and beautiful in womanhood. In all humane works they have proved themselves charitable, kind and munificent. Let these comprehend that self-abnegation will accomplish more than works of charity, and they will not be less earnest to sacrifice than they have been to act.

It must not be said of us that we have been willing to give up our husbands sons and brothers to [illegible] or die for the Union, and yet refuse to renounce our laces, silks, velvets and diamonds. That thought would cover us with shame before the nations of the earth. Not one woman of the Union only lack knowledge of the means by which they can prove themselves true helpmates of the heroes who are fighting our battles.

Impress it upon them that by discouraging excessive importations and adopting goods manufactured at home they keep gold in the country, reduce the rates of exchange and establish confidence in the Government and they will prove how far patriotism can rise above feminine vanity in the hearts of American women.

In order to invoke this spirit of sel[illegible] important [illegible] great object of [illegible] mode should be [illegible] and [illegible] discourages profligate expenditures of any kind, recommends the use of domestic fabrics wherever they can be substituted for those of foreign make and advises simplicity of attire, both as a matter of policy and good taste. It asks the great sisterhood of American women to aid in this reform before it is too late. Thank God, our [illegible] has given us the means of [illegible] thousands on [illegible] single [illegible] We [illegible] make this covenant, the thought that thrills our hearts may tremble in one along the telegraph, and awake kindred inspiration throughout the entire land. By every means of communication in our power, let us urge the necessity of prompt action. In every town and village throughout the Union, some woman who loves her country is implored to establish an auxiliary society and forward the names of the ladies invited to act for the State in which her duty lies. We ask simultaneous action of our sister women. With their ardent help a work will be accomplished so important in its results, that the women who shares in it may, hereafter, leave the emblem of our object as the richest jewel that she can leave to posterity.

Hints to Mothers and Daughters.

The following from the Boston Cultivator, will, we fear, be attributed by our lady readers, to the pen of some curiosity old bachelor. It will, however do them no harm to read it:

GOOD ADVISE.—To marriageable young ladies a word of advice: a man is better pleased when he has a good dinner upon his table, than when his wife talks good French.—Boston Journal.

Will the girls approaching that interesting epoch in life, termed, "marriageable," by our contemporary, make a note of this as should their mothers, also and see that the education of all who are approaching this interesting and important era in their lives, be directed as is befitting those who are to become wives and perchance mothers? Let every "marriageable young lady" (in respect to age,) keep in mind that [illegible] speak with the tongue of a man, and is possessed with the [illegible] prophecy, and understands [illegible] all languages, and [illegible] physical and metaphysical [illegible] and musical, [illegible] to keep house [illegible] a wife and a [illegible] girls [illegible] to keep [illegible] goods [illegible] to set [illegible] out side [illegible] how [illegible] to find one who [illegible] the culinary arts, [illegible] without which all [illegible] of [illegible] the wifery [illegible] absence of all [illegible] for [illegible] a gentlewoman.

We would not have the reader [illegible] low esteem [illegible] woman's literary attainments [illegible]. Far otherwise [illegible] every "[illegible] woman," especially liberally educated in the largest sense of that phrase, that is to say, she should be [illegible] in the mysteries of housewifery as well as in the arts, sciences, [illegible] and all aesthetic [illegible] But a "blue" who knows nothing of house-keeping, is not a help meet for any man who has a stomach as well as a soul to [illegible] during his sojourn on earth [illegible] stomach has about as [illegible] in the formation of the [illegible] a man's his creed. Hence the [illegible] is about as essential to the success of intellectual, moral, and [illegible] culture, as the curate.

Country Meetin' Talk.

A down east editor, who sometimes has an attack of phonography, recently attended a 'country meetin',' where he took down the different topics of conversation:

Parson Brownlow's Grape-vine from Hell.

The Richmond Whig lately announces that Parson Brownlow had died and descended into hell—probably to 'preach to the spirits in prison.' Whereupon the Parson gets up this characteristic article:

'The Richmond Whig, a leading rebel organ' announces the death of the editor of this paper, and gives the details as regards our reception in hell, and the treatment given by the Prince of Darkness. The Whig states that the excessive cold wether of January was caused by our arrival below, our presence creating the demand for all the heat and withdrawing it from the earth! The Whig must have received its details from John B. Floyd and Wm. L. Yancey, resident reporters of the Rebel Associated Press, who went below some time in advance of the false rumor that we had gone down. Both of these men when on earth knew us personally, and therefore could not have mistaken us for the rebel Congressmen who died about that time, although we resemble each other in several points in our personal appearance! The truth is that these men were so accustomed to dispatching lies upon the rebel wires, while here on earth, that they can't break off from their old habits, even in sending back news from the fountain of falsehoods.

This tale about myriads of Yankees having gone to hell in three years, may do to tell the deluded people of the South, who are not allowed to read or see loyal papers, but all well informed men, North and South, know that there is no country of equal population and extent, on the face of God's green earth, that is as largely represented in hell, as is the so called Southern Confedracy! They have gone from their army, from the ranks of the clergy, from the civil list, and from among the politicians, at a fearful rate! Our latest grape-vine from that Confederate Depot is, that upon the recent arrival there of several distinguished leaders of the rebellion, the Devil called hastily for more fuel, as the fire was about to be extinguished! Floyd and Yancey are said to have come forward and filled the 'furnace' with Confederate money—whereupon the Devil threatened to kick them out of hell. He said he favored rebellion; he favored lying, and all sorts of swindling, but he would not degrade himself and scandalize hell by recognizing such a currency as that is not fit for any purpose.

FAULT-FINDING WITH YOUR CHILDREN.—It is at times necessary to censure and punish; but very much more may be done by encouraging children when they do well. Be, therefore, more careful to express your approbation of good conduct than you disapprobation of bad. Nothing can more discourage a child than a spirit of incessant fault finding on the part of its parents; and hardly anything can exert a more injurious influence upon the disposition both of the parent and child. There are two great motives influencing human action—hope and fear. Both of these are at times necessary. But who would not prefer to have her child influenced to good conduct by a desire of pleasing rather than by the fear of offending? If a mother never expresses her gratification when her children do well, and is always censuring them when she sees anything amiss, they are discouraged and unhappy, their dispositions become [illegible] by this ceaseless fretting, and at last, finding that [illegible] well or ill they are equally [illegible] fault with, they relinquish all efforts to please, and become heedless of reproaches.

THE PROFESSOR'S TEA CADDY.—A learned Cambridge professor finding that his college bed-maker was continually abstracting his tea, and being aware what weight of evidence some females can resist, determined to let her know that he had found her peccadillo out without the chances of contradiction. He bought two pounds of tea, placing one in his caddy, and secreting the other in a drawer; he drew from the latter store so much as was necessary for use, but never touched the former. The contents of the caddy decreased daily and in greater proportion, and at last, while he had still a little left, Mrs. Brown declared his tea to be out. "Well," exclaimed the professor, producing his remnant in great triumph, "I declare Mrs Brown your pound has not lasted so long as mine has."

THE California Democratic State Convention, now in session in San Francisco, has passed resolutions declaring that the war is conducted for Abolition purposes and to revolutionize the Government, and urging the National Democratic Convention to pledge the party to the restoration of peace up just and honorably terms. An effort was made to condemn the war or any purpose, but failed. Ex-Governors Bigler, Downey and Weller have been elected delegates to the Chicago Convention.

Take Care of the Boys.

A correspondent from Young America, Ill. writes thus sensibly upon this subject:

The great scarcity of men, and high wages, will naturally call from home and school many a boy to the field and other places of hard work. Boys will be expected 'to make a hand' in the corn or harvest field, whose age and habits do not fit them for the task, But I say take care of the boys. Don't overtask them. It is right, especially now, that they should learn to work, and to earn something. It is too often the case that parents and guardians are over-anxious to realize from boys' service, Hence they are put out at high rates of pay—even mens' wages. Employers require service corresponding with the amount paid, and are quite liable to overdo them, and thus to injure them for life. When a boy loses relish for sport and play, he has probably worked harder than his strength would justify. To gambol and play is but an instinctive effort of nature to strengthen and develop its own faculties. Where this disposition is absent, you may be assured nature is suffering. Yet how often we hear the remark 'I guess he has not worked very hard, or he would not kick up his heels so!' Parents don't be too anxious about high wages. If your boys must go abroad to work, be more careful to procure suitable places for them where they will be duly cared for. Farmers don't hire, where duty and interest must conflict to save from pecuniary loss. Take care of the boys.

Time.

Ninety years hence, not a single man or woman, now twenty years of age, will be alive. Ninety years! Alas! how many of the lively actors at present on the stage of life will make their exit long ere ninety years shall have rolled away! And could we be sure of ninety years, what are they? 'A tale that is told;' a dream; an empty sound, that passeth on the wings of the wind away, and is forgotten. Years shorten as man advances in age. Like the degrees in Longitude, man's life declines as he travels towards the frozen pole, until it dwindles to a point and vanishes forever. It is possible that life is of so short duration! Will ninety years erase all the golden names over the doors in town and country, and substitute others in their stead? Will all the new, blooming beauties fade and disappear, all the pride and passion, the love hope and joy, pass away in ninety years and be forgotten? 'Ninety years' says Death! 'do you think I shall wait ninety years? Behold, to-day and to-morrow, and every day is mine. When ninety years are past, this generation will have mingled with the dust and be remembered not!'

PASS IT ALONG.—Yes, pass it along, wheather you believe it or not—that one sided whisper against the character of a virtuous female. You say you don't believe it, but you will use influence to bear up a false report and pass it on as current. Strange creatures are mankind! How many reputations have been lost by a surmise; how many hearts have bled by a whisper! How many benevolent deeds have been chilled by the shrug of the shoulder! How many individuals have been shunned by a gentle, mysterious hint? How many bosoms have been wrung by a single nod. How many early graves have been dug by a false report. Yet you will pass the slander along, you will pass it above the waters by a wag of the tongue, when you might sink it forever. Destroy the passion for telling a tale, we pray you, lisp not a word that may destroy the character of another, and as far as you are concerned, the slander will die. But tell it once, and it may go on the wings of the wind, increasing with every breadth till it has circulated through the State and brought to the grave one who might have lived and been a blessing to the world.

THE KING OF THE POOR.—At Creto a small town in the Tyrol, there exists the custom of choosing a king of the poor. The individual on whom this dignity is usually confered is some honest, hardworking man, without debt, but also without any savings. The monarch in question having recently died, a popular festival took place on the nomination of his successor. The king elect was was conveyed in an old cart to the spot where the ceremony of enthronization was to take place, there an old and worm-eaten chair and table had been placed on a platform; the new sovereign was gravely placed there, and after being served with a very meagre repast, accompanied with some brandy, the last will of his predecessor, which was drawn up in humorous terms, was read aloud; he was then led followed by a procession of people almost in rags, into all the liquor shops, where drink was given gratis.—Galignani.

The Weekly Union.

United States Official Paper.

Mankato, Friday, June 3, 1864.

Address to the Women of America.

On our first page will be found an interesting address to the women of America, urging them to obtain from the use or purchase of any imported article of apparel for three years or during the war.

A large number of prominent ladies of Washington assembled together on the 2nd of May, and organized a society, adopted a constitution and pledge. The pledge reads as follows: "For three years or for the war, we pledge ourselves to each other, and the country, to purchase no imported articles of apperal. The ladies of Mankato, we understand have taken measures to organize a branch society here. We commend the address to the careful attention of all.

From Grant's Army.

Grant's reconnoissance on Wednesday showed the rebels in full force and holding a powerful position in our immediate front, somewhat in advance of Little River. The ground was also very favorable to him and he had occupied every hour in fortifying. If driven back from here even he had an eliborately prepared line of the South Anna to fall back upon. Grant therefore determined to recross the North Anna, swinging round to the left over the Pamunky, and leave Lee to enjoy his position.

A cavalry demonstration made a strong diversion on the enemy, while Grant's movement took place, which proved successful. When this was accomplished the rebels were taken completely by surprise.

The Heralds correspondent says a wounded rebel officer says their loss in the late battles will reach 30,000.

The Inquirer has a dispatch dated "Headquarters Army of the Potomac en route to Richmond, Hanover Ferry, May 27 6 A. M., stating the whole Army is again in motion, Hancock in advance, followed by the right Gen Warren is just joining us, having brought up the rear on our former right wing over the North Anna. Burnside will cross at County Ridge, and bring up our rear.

The army moves with a celerity never known before. We will make twenty miles before night,

Sheridan is ahead scouring the country. Lee evidently thought we were endeavoring to turn his left and give battle on the north side of the South Anna; but he is out generaled, and by night we will be within four hours march of Richmond. Once getting Lee in his works we go round his flanks and into his rear. The whole country hereabouts is planted with corn. Pasture is very fine. We sweep all before us Horses, cattle, mules and contrabands all fall into our train.

Bound to Win.—The Buffalo Express is responsible for the following:—"A chap, who some time since caught the oil infection, put for Tidioute, and commenced to bore a well. After he had reached a depth of some three hundred feet, without even getting a "show," some of his more fortunate neighbors took it upon themselves to ridicule him on account of his poor success—an operation while he bore very patiently. The next day some of the party having occasion to visit his engine-house were rather startled from their propriety at seeing a shingle nailed up in a conspicuous place, upon which was inscribed the motto, Oil, hell, or China! It is needless to say his neighbors discontinued their ridicule from that moment—and we add that it was not long before the persistent fellow "struck ile."

Since the commencement of the late battles in Virginia, the Government has made several requistions upon the Springfield armory, to make good to drain upon the Washington arsenal. Orders have been received and filled for 144 boxes of artillery harness, each box containing two complete sets, and 500 extra collars and traces. They have also been forwarded 7,000 sets of cavalry, and as many infantry accoutrements, besides twenty-four caissons. These orders have about exhausted the supply of accoutrements on hand, but more will soon come in from the manufactories. Meanwhile the accumulation of guns goes on, and has reached 240,000.

A letter from Plymouth, written to a friend by ex President Pierce, from the house where Mr. Hawthorne, died last week, thus speaks of the deceased: "He lies upon his side, his position so perfectly natural and easy, his eyes closed, that is is difficult to realize, while looking upon his noble face, that this is death. He must have passed from natural slumber to that from which there is no waking, without the slightest movement."

The Danish Blockade.—It is estimated that there are now lying blockaded in the Baltic ports of Germany no less than eight hundred vessels; and the whole grain traffic of the North of Germany has been thrown into complete disorder. A fall of 70 per cent, in the price of grain has taken place in consequence of this condition of things.

Major General Wallace announces the result of the court martial recently convened in Baltimore for the trial of Major George Thistleton, of the First Maryland Cavalry, that he was found guilty of the charge of 'being in the habit of associating intimately and publicly with infamous women and prostitutes during the past winter and spring, so as to bring disgrace upon himself and the service, and to subject his encampment to scenes disgusting and disreputable to his regiment," and that the sentence of the court is that he "be dismissed from the service."

A Pennsylvania editor thus exposes some one; "Somebody brought one bottle of sour water into our office, with the request to notice it as lemon beer. If Esau was foolish enough to sell his birthright for a mess of pottage, it does not prove that we'll tell a four-shilling lie for five cents."

TELEGRAPH NEWS.

The War in Virginia.

New York, May 28.—The war correspondent of the Richmond Examiner tells why Lee left Spottsylvania C. H.

He says a reconnoissance made an assault upon the Union works as ordered, when their occupants were driven from them. It was not discovered, he says, that the enemy were rapidly moving the whole army on our right flank, and had been daybreak, the force in our front being a mere handful who had been left to keep up appearances. Soon after this reconnoissance was over, everything and everybody was on the move with us.

Near Hanover Junction }
May 26—9 A. M. }

[Tribune's Special]—There has been no general engagement thus far, although our advance beyond the possession of the south bank of the North Anna has been retarded by the presence of the enemy. Skirmishing continued throughout the entire day, and there was hardly an interval during which artillery was not engaged on either side.

Hancock, long before night, had thrown his entire corps across the river on the left, near the railroad, and our position was taken a mile and a half in advance of the river along Bull Marsh Creek.

The 9th army corps commenced to cross late in the day, and all were over last night.

Preperations were made for an assault on the enemy's works towards evening, but the sky was rapidly darkening with clouds which gathered and burst in a most furious storm of thunder and lightening, and rain. A most sublime discharge of heaven's artillery thus supersed the attack which was to have been made. This morning the sky was clear and weather warm.

Warren holds a position along the Gurdonsiville road on the right. We have several lines of the enemy's works which they seem to have abandoned without very obstinate resistance, but their present position is a very strong one. It is impossible to tell, without a reconnoisance in force or battle, how strong the enemy is in front, but it is generally believed that after opposing us long enough to gain time, they will fall back again towards Richmond.

The enemy destroyed during yesterday morning, a large railroad trestle bridge across the North Anna.

Why has the Mankato mail recently been so often behind time? Is it by design of the proprietors, or do they do it on purpose? The people of Blue Earth City would like to know whats the matter. The Algona stage runs the same distance two hours in advance of Mankato stage.—Blue Earth City Advocate.

What do you call "behind time" If you will refer to the Schedule you will find that the mail is not required to arrive at your place until 8 o'clock P. M. and we venture to say that the stage has not been behind time since the roads became good. The people of Blue Earth are better pleased with Masons stage line than they are with you that's "what's the matter."

It has been well remarked that the whistle of Union locomotives follows the retreating columns of the enemy, almost as closely as the whistle of the Union Minnie balls. Cars are again running from Aquia Creek to Fredericksburg, and as Gen. Grant moves "on to Richmond," he will be closely followed by the track-layers.

The New York State Union Republican Convention at Syracuse on the 26th inst., passed, unanimously and by acclamation, a resolution in favor of the renomination of Mr. Lincoln.

The Kentucky and Illinois Republican State Convention have done the same.

An army correspondent relates the following incident of late movements upon Richmond:

"Far down the plank road where Hancock fought beyond the thickest rebel dead, lay a boy severely wounded, perhaps not less a soldier than he was but a boy. He had fallen the day [illegible] when [illegible] and [illegible] remained [illegible] within the [illegible] They had not removed [illegible] he was [illegible] with the dead, when [illegible]. The poor fellow was [illegible] eating violets, [illegible] unable to stand [illegible] resist the temp[illegible] already [illegible] Having caused a stretcher to be sent for, I saw him taken tenderly and borne away, wearing a brave, sweet, touching smile.

Why he was Rejected.—A few days since a recruiting agent carried a finely-porportioned man to the surgeon for examination, telling the man to return to the ward room as soon as he had been passed. In due time the man arrived, bringing his own rejection. There was indignation among the recruiting committee who immediately began to feel of the muscles of his splendid specimen of a man, and point out the beauties of his structure. Loud were the complaints and bitter their denunciation of Dr. H——, and what over act they might have committed it would be impossible to tell, had not a bystander asked the man what cause the doctor gave for rejecting him.

'Well, I believe,' says the man, 'that he said I had the itch.'

The ward room was clear in a moment.

The Washington correspondent of the Chicago Times speaking of Potomac matters:

"Gen. Lee, who was aware that the movement of the Valley was going on, had directed Gen. Imboden to employ his cavalry in watching it and to adopt such measures as would keep Sigel's forces in the Valley, and prevent them from effecting a junction with Grant, if that should be attempted."

There is no reason to doubt that this correspondent is as well posted as he professes to be, but exactly how he knows what directions Lee gave to Imboden it might interest the public to be acquainted.

Gen. Hooker it seems was not wounded in the recent battles at and near Reseca. The sufferer was Brig. Gen. Harker.

An affray occurred on Wednesday at the National Hotel, between Senator Chandler of Michigan and Hon. D. W. Voorhees of Indiana, in which the latter slapped the former's face. A tussel ensued, when Mr. Hannegan a friend of Voorhees interfered, and was in turn assailed by Mr. Chandler. Hannegan struck Chandler with a pitcher, and dragging him to the floor by the hair, cuffed him until the affair was stopped by the interference of the bystanders. The fight originated in Mr. Chandler denouncing Democrats in such a manner that Mr. Voorhees construed the remarks as personal to himself.

Sheridan,s cavalry have been heard from and they have made a most excellent report of themselves. They have been circuiting around Richmond destroying a vast amount of property and rendered useless for some distance the Danville Railroad The enemy's cavalry were entirely unable to offer them any opposition.

BUMPY THOUGHTS ON A BUMPY SUBJECT.—The town is all running to bumps, and it's the darnationest bumpiest place we ever saw. Every individual has suddenly discovered that they know something, or ought to know something. The morality of the town has gone up two thousand per cent since the arrival of Prof. Powers. We had no kind of an "idee" that we lived in such a good, moral, virtuous, and upright community, where every family was a little world, every individual a perfect paragon of excellence, where mean men and gossiping women do not, and cannot live. But it's a fact, yes siree, it's a fact. Figures don't lie, and bumps are figures. There's no denying that, sir. Bumps are figures. Because 7 is a very large bump; 6 is a large bump, 5 is a full bump, 4 an average bump, and 3 a moderate one. There are no 3 and 4 bumps here. We have looked in vain for them. Yesterday we thought we had a no. 3 one sure. But it proved to be a delinquent subscriber, who came in and paid us $1.50. We examined his chart, and found his Conscientiousness marked so large that it took two charts to hold it. The bump weighed a pound and a half, and was carried around in a market basket. It is an incontestible truth that every advance paying subscriber to a newspaper has the organ of Conscientiousness largely developed.

Have you had your head examined? says one. Yes. Well, what does it contain? It contains a great deal I can tell you. It has itched terribly for a long time, and I was about to purchase a fine tooth comb, but my chart says I need not do it, as the bumps are only developing themselves, and must take their course (Not a coarse comb) by all means.

Have you had your character delineated? says another. I should say I had. He gave you a good chart, didn't he. A good one! Humph! I thought I was somebody before I went there; but he made me out a darned fool. Look at this chart. He said I loved the girls too much. Now you know I don't. He's marked Amativeness 7 and would have marked it 8, if I hadn't said I wouldn't pay him. My Conscientiousness is marked 2, Self-Esteem 7, and my Ideality No 1. Said I never had an idea in my life, and that my forehead sloped too much. I did slope mighty quick after that. Talk about h-u-m-bugs! I say h-e-r-m-bugs to you.

We might cite numerous instances where good charts like the above were given, but our respect for a modest community being full we forbear. Our reporter states that five hundred and fourteen characters and a half were delineated, which are classified as follows:

43 would some day become Presidents; 73 eminent Literary writers, 19 good house keepers, 25 poets and poetesses, 100 nice young men, 78 nice young women, 176 fools, and 2 editors, honest but poor. Phrenology is a science.

SUMMER CLOTHING.—There is no better place in town to buy a good hat, a pair of pants, vest, or any article of gentlemen's dress goods than at Randall's Clothing Emporium. He has a good assortment of clothing, and can sell it cheaper than the cheapest. He has some very neat and fashionable neck ties, and a lot of other articles that are bound to sell.

GONE EAST AFTER GOODS.—O. [illegible] Esq., started for Chicago this week for the purpose of adding to his already large stock of dry goods. His establishment, during his absence, is in charge of N. Sargent, with whom our town and county readers are well acquainted, and whose large experience in the mercantile business, and whose accommodation and genial manner in showing goods makes it a pleasure to trade with him.

A meeting of the Stockholders of the Winona and St. Peter Railroad Company will be held at the office of the Secretary of said Company in the city of Winona, State of Minnesota, on Wednesday, the eighth day of June A. D. 1864, at eleven o'clock, A. M. for the purpose of electing Directors to serve for the ensuing year.

PHRENOLOGY brings to light some startling and curious facts. Nearly every examination that has been made has shown that the organ of Acquisitiveness is very largely developed in all the ladies' heads, and that, too, quite recently. This is accounted for on the ground that they are studying how they can best acquire some of those beautiful fancy & dress goods at White & Mark's store.

COUGHS, BRONCHITIS.—The entire freedom from all deleterious ingredients render "Brown's Bronchial Troches," or Cough and Voice Lozenges, a safe remedy for the most delicate female or youngest child, and has caused them to be held in the highest esteem by Clergymen Singers and Public Speakers generally.

A MAN SHOT AT MADELIA.—We learn that a stranger, whose name is unknown to us, was accidentally shot at Madelia, last Monday. He was just starting out with Mr. Doolittle to look at some land, and had seated himself in his buggy, Mr. Doolittle was in the act of placing his gun in the buggy, when the hammer caught in some way, and the gun was discharged, the contents hitting his companion in the back, and came out just below the ribs. We were not informed whether the wound was fatal or not Wickersham & Kilgore have a good assortment of letter and note paper, and envelopes of all kinds. Their articles for the toilet table are just such as the ladies want and of course will have.

PIGEONS are very numerous in this vicinity, and sportsmen are bagging them by the hundreds. Doctor Frisbie, an experienced sportsman, will accept our thanks for a brace of them given us a day or two since.

RUNAWAY.—A span of horses attached to a heavy truck wagon, both belonging to Hiram Tompkins, were frightened last Wednesday, and ran up street at a furious rate. One of the bits broke, and he was unable to hold or guide them, and when oposite the Clifton House, with admirable presence of mind, he succeeded in getting down with the child so as to let the wagon pass over him, and then let go of the reins. He was slightly injured about the head. The horses ran around several blocks, and at last stopped at Mr. Tompkin's stable.

PERSONAL.—R. R. Parry, Esq. of Philadelphia, arrived in town yesterday.

E. H. Berry, Esq, General Agent of the Charter Oak Life Insurance Co. is stopping in town for a few days, on business connected with the company. Mr. Hall of this place is the local agent.

BRIDGE DOWN.—On Sunday last as a span of horses attached to a lumber wagon, in which were seated four persons was passing over the bridge at Vernon Centre, the bridge suddenly gave way, and the whole party were precipitated into the river, in about four feet of water. They were got out badly frightened, but uninjured. Our bridges are al. good notwithstanding this, and we don't need any new ones. Oh no, not at all. The town had but a few days before spent twenty-five dollars for repairs.

A NEW FEATURE.—Mankato is fast putting on city dress and adopting city styles. The St. Paul Daily Press is now delivered at the residence of subscribers at five o'clock every morning, thus enabling them to read the latest news from the army leisurely, while enjoying the aroma of hot coffee. Verily, the world does move.

BLUE EARTH COUNTY AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY.—The executive committee of the above named Society are requested to meet at Mankato on the 18th inst., at 10 o'clock A. M. to take into consideration the propriety of holding a fair and making all necessary arrangements for the same. The names of the members are D. H. Tyner, Henry Shaubhut, Dr. W. W. Clark, J. A. Jones, Jas. Miller, J. M. Thompson, Danl. Buck, and B. D. Pay.

D. H. TYNER President

Garden City, June 1st, 1864.

The draft for this district is in progress at Rochester, but will take about two weeks to complete it. The drafted men will commence to report on the 13th.

OUR CHART.—The mania for "head delineations" and "charts of character" has been so fierce during the past week, that our very retiring disposition has been seriously affected. We hardly knew how to overcome it. We thought over all the pros and cons of the subject, and finally an intimate friend told us we had better go and "be felt of."

Well, we went; and the result was so favorable and so exceedingly satisfactory that we propose to give our readers a few of our strong points.

We knocked timidly at the Prof. door, and after waiting a long time, were finally closeted with him.

Our bumps were all gone over with hurriedly, and them again more carefully, (We suppose it was first done to feel if there was anything there that would bite.) He finally stopped on Amativeness. This bump, if large, is expressive of love for the fair sex. To our great joy and surprise, we found we had none at all. Philoprogenitiveness was very large. We were exceedingly fond of "little brats," and would undoubtedly become the "affectionate parient" of twenty-five or seventeen.—mostly girls and boys. This was so truthful that we instantly coincided with the Professor, inasmuch as our Uncle Sammuel is very much in want of the article. We had very good Friendship, especially if our friends were subscribers to the UNION, and had paid in advance. Our Secretiveness was quite large. If somebody would give us twenty-five or fifty dollars, our Acquisitiveness, with the aid of Friendship, Conscientiousness, Calculation and all the other organs combined and intermixed, and working as a homogeneous whole might possibly overcome our Secretiveness, and we be induced to tell who "X. O. P" was. Otherwise we might be "pumped" until our microcosm was as dry as a contribution box on a rainy day. Combativeness showed that we had a big crop of hyronecalo eons which, if properly hoed out wouldn't allow our corn to be tread upon. In this connection, he said we had a large lot of mushroons. This was a stumper. We looked at our chart but couldn't find it. We felt of our head, but with no better success. A thought struck us. We went over to our office and examined our subscription list, and found, surely enough that we had quite a lot of delinquent ones. Our Acquisitiveness indicated that we were very fond of green backs, such as turtle soup, fricaseed frogs, and clover, &c &c. He said we were a good Mestifa—mestifa—mestifafierceyou; that is, our Conscientousness and one other prominent organ, indicated that we were destined to go to Congress, as none but honest men ever go there. He said our "frontal sinus," was pretty good, but he thought we ought to have an ornamental one, and he advised us to get Cannon to paint it (He probably meant our office sign.)

But, we have not time to pursue this interesting subject further. We have got our chart engraved, and are selling first impressions at a dollar and a half a year. The Professor was satisfied that our chart was a good one, and accordingly we eased him of a few green backs, thus showing clearly that he isn't a mushroom.

NOTICE.—Not having yet enrolled as large a number of pupils as could be accommodated, a few boys can be taken at the school now in session at City Hall,—if desired. PROF POWERS.—Our citizens during the past week, have been treated to a series of very interesting Phrenological Lectures by the above named gentleman. City Hall has been crowded every night, and no one regrets the expense or trouble of attending. Indeed, there has been no trouble, but much pleasure. The Prof. is a man of thought and research, and handles his subjects with decided ability. His language is that which all can understand and is elegant, refined, and very much to the point. The subject of his lecture to-night and also to-morrow night is "Marriage," showing the relations which do, and should, exist between men and women in young in young and mature life. It is one of the highest importance, and we hope those who have this matter at least will not fail to attend.

THE

Singer Sewing Machines.

Our LETTER A FAMILY SEWING MACHINE is fast gaining a world-wide reputation. It is beyond doubt the cheapest and best and most beautiful of all Family Sewing Machines yet offered to the public. No other Family Sewing Machine has so many useful appliances for Hemming, binding, Felling, Tucking, Gathering, Gauging, Braiding, Embroidering, Cording and so forth. No other Family Sewing Machine has so much capacity for a great variety of work. It will sew all kinds of cloth, and with all kinds of thread. Great and recent improvements make our Family Sewing Machine most reliable, and most durable, and most certain in action at all rates of speed. It makes the interlocked stitch, which is the best stich known. Any one, even of the most ordinary capacity, can see at a glance how to use the letter A Family Sewing Machine. Our Family Sewing Machines are finished in chaste and exquisite style.

The Folding Case of the Family Machine is a piece of cunning workmanship of the most useful kind. It protects the machine when not in use, and when about to be operated may be opened as a spacious and substantial table to sustain the work.—While some of the Cases, made out of the choicest woods, are finished in the simplest and chastest manner possible, others are adorned and embellished in the most costly and superb manner.

It is absolutely necessary to see the Family Machine in operation, so as to judge of its great capacity and beauty.

It is fast becoming as popular for family sewing as our Manufacturing machines are for manufacturing purposes.

The Branch Offices are well supplied with silk twist, thread, needles, oil, &c., of the very best quality.

They are simple in construction, and easily understood; and if any part is broken by accident, it is readily replaced.

These are PECULIAR FACTS, and will go far to determine the choice of any intelligent buyer.

HOSTETTER'S

CELEBRATED

STOMACH BITTERS.

A pure and powerful tonic, corrective and alterative of wonderful efficacy in disease of the Stomach, Liver and bowels. Cures, Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Headache, General Debility, Nervousness, Depression of Spirits, Constipation Colic, Intermittent Fevers, Cramps and Spasms, and all Complaints of either Sex arising from Bodily Weakness whether inherent in the system or produced by special causes. Nothing that is not wholesome genial and restorative in its nature enters into the composition of Hostetters Stomach Bitters. This popular preparation contains no mineral of any kind, no deadly botanical element; no fiery excitant; but it is a combination of the extracts of rare balsamic herbs and plants with the purest and mildest of all diffusive stimulants. It is well to be forearmed against disease, and, so far as the human system can be protected by human means against maladies engendered by an unwholesome atmosphere, impure water and other external causes, Hostetters Bitters may be relied on as a safeguard. In districts infested with Fever and Ague, it has been found infallible as a preventive and irresistible as a remedy and thousands who resort to it under apprehensions of an attack, escape the scourge, and thousands who neglect to avail themselves of its protective qualities in advance are cured by a very brief course of this marvelous medicine. Fever and Ague patients, after being plied with quinine for months in vain until fairly saturated with that dangerous alkaloid, are not unfrequently restored to health within a few days by the use of Hostetter's Bitters. The weak stomach is rapidly invigorated and the appetite restored by this agreeable Tonic and hence it works wonders in cases of Dyspepsia and in less confirmed forms of indigestion. Acting as a gentle and painless apperent, as well as upon the liver, it also invariably relieves the Constipation superinduced by irregular action of the digestive and secretive organs. Persons of feeble habit, liable to Nervous attacks, Lowness of spirits and fits of languor, find prompt and permanent relief from the Bitters. The testimony on this point is most conclusive, and from both sexes. The agony of bilious colic, is immediately assuaged by a single dose of the stimulant, and by occasionally restoring to it, the return of the complaint may be prevented. As a general tonic, Hostetter's Bitters produce effects which must be experienced or witnessed before they can be fully appreciated. In cases of constitutional Weakness, Premature Decay, and debility and decrepitude arising from old age, it exercises the electric influence. In the convalescent stages of all diseases it operates as a delightful invigorant. When the powers of nature are relaxed, it operates to re-inforce and re-establish them. Last but not least, it is the only safe stimulant, being manufactured from sound and innocuous materials, and entirely free from the acid elements, present more or less in all the ordinary tonics and stomachics of the day. No family medicine has been so universally, and it may be truly added, deservedly popular with the intelligent portion of the community, as Hostetter's Bitters. Prepared by Hostetter and Smith, Pittsburgh, Pa. Sold by all Druggists, Grocers and Storekeepers everywhere. 93

THE CHILD'S PLEA.

Dear father, "drink no more," I pray,
It makes you look so sad;
Come home, and, drink no more," I say,
'Twill make dear mother glad.

Dear father, think how sick you've been.
What aches and pains you've had!
Oh, "drink no more," unless you mean
To drive dear mother mad.

Dear father, think me not unkind
When I entreat you so;
Oh, "drink no more," and then you'll find
A home where'er you go.

Dear father, think of mother's tears.
How oft and sad they flow!
Oh, "drink no more," then will her fears
No longer rack her so.

Dear father, think what would become
Of me were you to die;
Without a father, or a home,
Or friend, beneath the sky:

Dear father, do not turn away,
Nor from me think to roam;
Oh, "drink no more," by night or day,
Now come, let us go home.

Dear father, "drink no more," I pray,
It makes you look so sad;
Come home, and "drink no more," I say,
'Twill make that home so glad.

Thus spake in tenderness the child—
The drunkard's heart was moved;
He signed the pledge, he wept, he smiled,
And kissed the boy he loved so well.

Select Miscellany.

Why he Did not Propose.

Why did you never think of marriage? asked I fondly of my friend Lyman Robbins, who was ten years older than my self and a confirmed bachelor.

I have thought of it. Said he.

Well why didn't you marry, then?

I will tell you. You know Frank Palmer don't you.

Yes he failed last week to the tune of twenty thousand dollars. But what has that to do with your story?

Something as you will see. I was never seriously tempted to make a proposal but once, and that was to Frank's wife—before she was married, do you understand!

Oh! said I, growing interested.—And why didn't you?

You shall know, I was young and romantic at that time—she was beautiful and accomplished. We were thrown together in society and I was just the age to yield to her fascination. Though I never expressed my love in words I suppose my looks betrayed me, and I was quite sure that she was aware of my feelings towards her. Our families being somewhat intimate we were on the same footing, and she treated me in very much the same confidential manner as she would a favorite cousin.

Do you think, I inquired, that she was in love with you?

No I never thought of that. I presume however, she would have liked to have lured me to a declaration, and then she would have acted as a fancy dictated One day, when I had made a morning call and was retiring, she told me she was going out shopping, and laughingly proposed to me to go with her and carry the bundles. Having nothing of importance to take up my time, not being averse to the proposal, partly on account of its novelty and considerably I rather suspect, on account of the agreeable character of the company I should have, I consented in the spirit, and in a few minutes we were fairly enroute.

I have but a little to buy. Said my companion. You may congratulate yourself upon that, as you will have less to carry.

We made our first visit to a dry goods establishment.

Have you any lace collars? Inquired Caroline.

A large quantity were displayed, but they were only five dollars in price and they were too cheap. At length one was found at seven dollars, with which my companion' professed herself satisfied and decided to take it.

I suppose, said she, on going out that I don't really need it, but it was so beautiful I could not resist the temptation.

A beautiful shawl at the door of a store next caught Caroline's attention. I must certainly go in and look at their shawls. I never saw any precisely like them.

New kind said she to the clerk.

Yes, Miss, just imported from France warranted to surpass in firmness of texture and durability any now extant.—Will you have one?

The price?

Seventy-five dollars and cheap at that.

That is high said she.

Not for the quality. Just feel it—see how soft it is and you will not call it expensive.

I did not think of getting one today, however I think I must. You may charge it to my father.

The shawl was folded and handed to me by the clerk.

I suppose father will scold said Caroline, but its such a beauty.

We reached ere long another dry good store, the placard of which selling off at cost, proved so eductive that we at once stayed our steps and entered. Caroline rushed to examine the silks. the first specimen offered, to my unpracticed eye, seemed of a superior quality, was cast aside, and she desired to see the very best they had in the store. Some were shown her at two dollars and a half per yard.

After a while ordered twelve yards to be cut off for her. The bill of course, was sent to her father.

What with the shawl and silk, each of which made a bundle of no inconsiderable size, I was pretty well weighed down and began to be apprehensive of the consequence in case my companion should make any more purchases. She was only going to step into a jeweler's to have a locket repaired. Accordingly we repaired to the store of a fashionable jeweler. The locket was handed over with the necessary directions.

But this was not all. A lady at the counter was engaged in examining a very costly pair of ear-rings which she was desirous of purchasing. but demurred at the price. At last she laid them down reluctantly, saying they are beautiful, but I dont care to go so high as twenty-five dollars.

Let me see them if you please, asked Caroline, They were handed to her. She was charmed with them, chiefly I imagine, on account of the price for they had little' beyond that to recommend them. Now I must positively go home, said she, without purchasing anything more,

For once she kept her word, and I was released of my attendance. But the thought that she had expended one hundred and thirty-five dollars, in a single mornings shopping, and on objects none of which by her own confession she stood in need, could not help recurring to me, and I decided that until I could find some more rapid way of making money such a wife would be altogether too expensive a luxury for me to indulge in. How far I am right you may judge by Frank Palmer's failure. At all events that is the reason why I didn't propose.

Value of the promise of Marriage.

A case of almost romantic interest has recently been decided by the Supreme Court of this Commonwealth. One of the members of a late firm in San Francisco, purchased an estate with money which he had secretly and fradnently abstracted from the funds of the company. On the 11th of April 1853, his wife died, and on the 24th of June following he addressed a letter to a lady of Massachusetts, offering himself in marriage and informing her that she might regard the estate he had purchased as her homestead.

His lady accepted a deed of the place, and promised to marry the grantor, but the marriage was prevented by his death, in Oregon, where he had gone on business. Meanwhile, the firm in San Francisco became insolvent, and brought a suit in equity to recover this estate, which had been purchased with partnership funds, that they might apply the avails towards the payment of their creditors. The argument was, that the estate, having been conveyed as a mere gift, without any consideration might be recovered.

But the Court decided that the conveyance was for a perfectly valid consideration, namely, a promise of marriage. A woman who voluntarily made an agreement to marry, says the Court without delicacy, and so not without exposing herself to unfavorable observation, and to some loss of public favor and respect, seek elsewhere, except for good and substantial reasons for withdrawing from an engagement by which she has bound herself, for 'preferment in marriage; and thus her promise and agreement to marry a particular person essentially change her condition of life. A legal contract and promise to marry another must, therefore, like an actual marriage, be deemed to be a valuable consideration for the conveyance of an estate, and will justly entitle the grantee to hold it against subsequent purchasers, or the creditors of the grontor.—Boston Advertiser.

FASHION kills more women than toil and sorrow. Obedience to fashion is a greater transgression of the laws of woman's nature, a greater injury to her physical and mental constitution, than the hardships of poverty and neglect. The slave woman at her task will live and grow old and see two or three generations of her mistresses fade and pass away The washerwoman, with scarce a ray of hope to cheer her in her toils, will live to see her fashionable sisters all die around her. The kitchen maid is hearty and strong when her lady has to be nursed like a sick baby.

It is a sad truth that fashion pampered women are almost worthless for all the good ends of human life. They have but little force of character, they have still less power of moral will, and quite as little physical energy. They live for no great purposes in life; they accomplish no worthy ones. They are only doll-forms in the hands of milliners to be dressed and fed to order.

A person speaking to a deaf man and getting angry at his not catching his meaning said:

'Why it's plain as A B C.'

'That may be, sir, replied the poor man, 'but I am D E F.'

Advice to Young Men.

A lady who signs herself "A Martyr to Late hours," offers the following sensible suggestions to young men:

Dear gentlemen between the ages of "eighteen and forty-five," listen to a few words of gratuitous remarks When you make a social call of an evening, on a young lady, go away at a reasonable hour. Say you come at eight o'clock, an hour and a half is certainly as long as the most fascinating of you in conversation can, or rather ought, to desire to use his charms. Two hours indeed, can be very pleasantly spent, with music, chess, or other games, to lend variety, but kind sirs by no means stay longer. Make shorter calls and come oftener. A girl—that is a truehearted sensible girl—will enjoy it better and really value your acquaintance more Just conceive the agony of a girl who well knowing the feelings of father and mother upon the subject, hears the clock strike ten and yet must sit on the edge of her chair, in mortal terror lest papa should put his oft-repeated threat in execution—that of coming down and inviting the gentleman to breakfast. And we girls understand it all by experience and know what it is to dread the prognostic of displeasure. In such cases a sigh of relief generally accompanies the closing of the door behind the gallant, and one don't get over the feeling of trouble till safe in the arms of Morpheus. Even then sometimes the dreams are troubled with some phantom of an angry father and distressed (for all parties) mother; and all because a young man will make a longer call than he ought to: Now young gentlemen friends, I'll tell you what we girls will do. For an hour and a half we will be most irresistibly charming and fascinating; then, beware, monosyllabic responses will be all you need expect And if when the limits shall have been passed,, a startling query shall be heard coming down stairs: "Isnt it time to close up?" you must consider it a righteous punishment, and taking your hat, meekly depart—a sadder, and, it is to be hoped a wiser man. Do not get angry; but the next time you come be careful to keep within just bounds. We want to rise early these pleasant mornings, and improve the "shining hours;" but when forced to be up at such unreasonable hours at night, exhausted nature will speak. and, as a natural consequence, with the utmost speed in dressing, we can barely get down to breakfast in time to escape a reprimand from papa, who don't believe in beaux—as though he never was young—and a mild reproving glance from mamma, who understands a little better daughter's feelings, but must still disapprove outwardly, to keep up appearances. And now, young men, think about these things, and don't—for pity's sake don't—throw down your paper with a "pshaw!" but remember the safe side of ten.

Gen. Frank Cheatham and Peggie M'cue.

Many of your Cincinnati readers remember a queer specimen of the genus homo, who used to be employed on the river boats, and who was known as "Peggie McCue." McCue is now in the rebel army seeking his rights. During the occupancy of Mission Ridge, by the enemy, an incident occurred to Peggie that is worthy of record. It was related to me by a deserter who was present. Peggie was engaged one day as a teamster, and Gen. Frank Cheatham riding along, caught him in the act of pummeling the mules with a billet of wood. Riding up in a towering rage, Cheatham denounced him as a d——d son of —— and ordered him to cease his brutal amusement. Peggie's Irish riz suddenly. Turning about and confronting Frank, he remarked:

"General, you are a d—d coward. You know your shoulder straps protect you or you would never apply that epithet to me!"

"A coward, am I, you miserable devil!" exclaimed the Gen. throwing off his coat, "look here McCue; there is General Cheatham and the shoulder straps; here is Frank Cheatham. Come and take satisfaction."

Peggie was not slow to accept the invitation, made for Frank, and in two minutes had whipped him soundly. The General: smarting under his defeat, started for his horse, which a sudden application of Peggie's foot assisted him to mount. Picking up the coat, McCue threw it to the rider, remarking as he did so, pointing first to the rider, then to the coat:

"There is the whipped Frank Cheatham, of the Cumberland army; here is Major General Cheatham, commander of a division. General, you can repeat that operation as often as you desire; you will always find Peggie ready for you"

A fellow, calling himself Robert Tilery, writes us a ferocious letter from Caldwell county. Robert Tillery is undoubtedly a terrible fellow. Far flashed the red R. Tillery.—Prentice Benefit of Exercise.

Exercise is health-producing because it works off and out of the system its waste, dead and effete matters, these are all converted into a liquid form, called by some, humors, which have exit from the body through the 'pores' of the skin, in the shape of perspiration, which all have seen, and which all know is the result of exercise when the body is in a state of health. Thus it is that persons who do not perspire, who have a dry skin, are always either feverish or chilly, and are never well and never can be as long as that condition exists. So exercise, by working out of the system its waste, decayed and useless matters, keeps the human machine 'free'—otherwise it would soon clog up, and the wheels of life would stop forever! Exercise improves the health, because every step a man takes tends to impart motion to the bowels: a proper amount of exercise keeps them acting once in twenty-four hours, If they have not motion enough, there is constipation, which brings on very fatal diseases: hence exercise—especially that of walking—wards off innumerable diseases, when it is kept up to an extent equal to inducing one action of the bowels daily. Exercise is healthful, because the more we exercise the faster we breathe. If we breathe faster we take that much more air into the lungs; but it is the air we breathe which purifies the blood, and the more air we take in the more perfectly is that process performed, The purer the blood is, the better the health must be. Hence, the more a consumptive stays in the house, the more certain and more speedy is his death.—Hall's Journal of Health.

WE MUST DIE.—In the long watches of the winter night, when one has awoke from some evil dream and lies sleepless and terrified with the solemn pall of darkness around—on one of these deeply still dark nights, when the window only shows a murky patch of positive gloom in contrast with the nothingness of the walls when the howling of a tempest round chimney and roof would be welcomed as a boisterous companion in such still dead times lying as in the silence of the tomb one realizes that we shall some day lie in bed and not think at all and the time will soon come when we must die. Our preachers remind us of this often enough but we cannot realize it in a pew in broad daylight. You must wake in the middle of the night to do that and face the thought like a man that it will come and come to ninety-nine in a hundred of us not in a maddening clatter of musketry as the day is won; or in such like glorious times when the soul is in mastery over the body, but in bed by slow degrees. It is in darkness and silence that we realize this; and let us hope and humbly remember that death has been conquered for us, and that in spite of our unworthiness we may defy him.—Henry Kingley's Ravenzhoe.

A MODEL LETTER.—The following letter has been received by the principal of a public school in England, in reply to a circular asking the opinion of parents upon the practice of flogging: 'Dear sir: Your flogging cirklar is duly receaved. I hopes as to my son John you will flog him jus so often as you like. Hees a bad boy is John. Althuath I've been teching him myself, it seems to me he will larn nothing—his spellin is speshall ottragusly deficient. Wallup him well, sur, and you will reseive my harty thanks. Yours MOSES WALKER. P. S.—Wat accounts for John being sich a bad scollar is that he's my son by my wife's first husband.

HAZEL EYED GIRLS,—Major Noah said a hazel eye inspires at first sight a platonic sentiment, as securely founded as the rock of Gibaraltar. A woman with a hazel eye never elopes from her husband, never chats scandal, never sacrifices her husband's comfort to her own, never talks too little, always is an intellectual, agreeable, and lovely creature. The gray is the sign of shrewdness and talent. Great thinkers and captains have it, In woman it indicates a better head than heart. The dark hazel ignoble in its significance as well as its beauty. The blue is amiable, but may be feeble. The black—take care! there's thunder and lightning ther.

A PRISONER taken at Chichamanga was locking at one of our guns, and remarked that he "didn't think the Yankees would use them big guns much longer." "Why not?' inquired one "Because," said he "the Confederacy is so narrow that you'll fire clear over it and hit your men on the other side."

'Ma,' said the pride of the family, an urchin who had seen some seven summers, 'do you know why our tom-cat is like a poet?' Ma didn't. 'Why,' explained the precious pet, 'doesn't she go out moonlight nights and invoke the mews?'

THE WHEELBARROW.

'Putting your foot in it,' it seems, is a term of legitimate origin. According to the Asiatic Researches, a very curious mode of trying the title to land is practised in Hindostan. Two holes are dug in the disputed spot, in each of which the lawyer on either side put one of their legs, and there remain until one of them is tired, or complains of being stung by insects—in which case his client is defeated. In our country it is generally the client, and not the lawyer, who puts his foot in it.'

A TRAVELLER'S SANGFROID.—What a pleasant thing it is to see a man make the best of an unavoidable discomfiture instead of boring himself to death about a thing that can't be helped. A friend tells us of a good natured wag travelling by stage between two distant towns in Maine when the vehicle was suddenly arrested by impassable snowbanks, far from any other dwelling than a small log tavern, to which the half-frozen passengers with difficulty reached.

All but our wag grumbled; he hailed the landlord, got a toddy, and asked;

"How many folks live in this town?"

"About fifteen hundred, " said Boniface.

"You've got more snow, in proportion to population, than any other town in Maine!"

IRISH CALCULATION.—An Irish lady was once declaring that she could not understand how gentlemen could smoke. 'It certainly shortens their lives,' said she. 'I didn't know that,' said a gentleman, 'there's my father who smokes every blessed day, and he is now seventy years old.'

'Well,' was the reply, 'if he had never smoked he might have been eighty by this time.'

A LADY who had read of the extensive manufacture of odometers to tell how far a carriage had been run, said she wished some Connecticut genius would invent an instrument to tell how far husbands had been in the evening when they just step down to the post office.

The other evening a gentleman's button caught hold of a lady's shawl "I am attached to you," said the gentleman, laughing, while he was industriously trying to get loose. The attachment is mutual," was the good humored reply.

A GERMAN wrote an obituary on the death of his wife, of which the following is a copy: "If mine wife had lived until next Friday, she would have been dead shust two weeks. Nothing is possible with the Almighty, As de tree falls so must it stand.

A "BIG INJUN" having strayed from the camp, found himself lost on trying to return to it. After looking about, he drew himself up and exclaimed, "Injun lost!" but recovering himself and feeling unwilling to acknowledge such short-sightedness, continued, "No, Injun no lost wigwam lost; Injun here!"

IN the parish of Uckfield, England, a man was recently committed to prison and hard labor for three weeks because he said he was unable to work. No wonder poor man, for he was eighty-two years of age. Some of the more humane of the English press exclaim against this cruel treatment.

A CARPENTER of Birmingham, England, committed suicide recently leaving in his shop a coffin, with a note to this effect: "Tell hour worthy Coroner that I Died by a gunshot wound inflicted by my own hand to get out of my misery and the Extortionate Good for Nothing Doctors."

NOT DEAD.—A poor son of the Emerald Isle applied for employment to an avaricious hunk, who told him that he should employ no more Irishmen, "for the last one died on my hands and I was forced to bury him at my own charge!" "Ah, yer honor," said Pat, brightening up and is that all? Then you'll give me the place, for sure I can get a certificate that I never died in the employ of any master I ever served."

TOO OBLIGING BY HALF.—A gentleman on leaving a hotel where he had been stopping several days, rewarded the attention of an obliging servant with a handsome gratuity. "Ah!" said the grateful Patrick, long may your honor live and may I make your fires hereafter!"

NATURE when she makes a beautiful head is often so absorbed in admiration of her own work that she forgets the brains.

WHEN a married man pays more attention to his wife's cousin than to his wife it is a certain sign that the cousin's visit has been long enough.

THAT was an inquiring young mind that asked the schoolmaster where all the figures went to when they were rubbed out.

IF a woman tells more than the truth in speaking of a rival's age, she will probably make the thing even in stating her own.

The Frontier Defences.

"Is there any danger from Indians on the frontier?" is a question that we are asked twenty times a week. And one to which we have invariably answered, "Not if a proper disposition is made of the troops in the State." Those who are not posted, naturally inquire, where the troops are posted, and what they are doing. These questions can be answered in a very few words, and without trouble to hunt up the information. There are now in the State, the Sixth and Eighth Regiments of Infantry, the Second Regiment of Cavalry, and Hatch's Battallion.

The Sixth has been ordered to join Sherman. The Eighth Regiment, and eight companies of the Second Cavalry have gone on the Expedition to the Missouri, and are expected by the strategical genius who commands this military district to perform prodigies of valor. For our frontier defence we have Hatch's Battallion, stationed round about Fort Abercrombie and Pembina, and which is of no use whatever to this portion of the State. There are two companies of Cavalry at Fort Ridgely. Company F. is stationed at the various outposts between that place and the Des Moines, and Company E. along the line of posts between Fort Ridgely and St. Cloud. It is proposed to abandon the post at Hutchinson, and remove the stores to Fort Ridgely, and also to remove the Quartermaster and Commissary stores from this place to Fort Ridgely as soon as possible. There are between eighty and ninety men in Company F. and they are divided up in squads of ten and twelve to a station. Co. E. is divided up and stationed in about the same manner. This is ample protection, so says the profound and far-seeing Brigadier of this District. And if we wish any better, we must call upon our Militia, to leave their farms, and workshops, and other places of business, and stand guard on the frontier, while two or three thousand of well disciplined troops are sent upon a bootless errand, at an expense of millions of dollars to the Government, and for the benefit of a few swindling contractors.

General Sully has men enough, but he has not sufficient means at his command to transport his supplies. Adding to his present force of 6,000 will increase his difficulties, and not make the campaign any more successful. We therefore look upon the Expedition that has just left Fort Ridgely, as a very dear pleasure excursion.

Planning campaigns, and fighting Indians, with military headquarters in first class hotels, may be a very delightful recreation to men of brilliant military talent, but settlers on the frontier who are in danger—if any danger there be—of depredations from Indians, don't look upon it in that light. If there is to be any protection afforded them, it should be complete. They should feel a sense of perfect security while in their fields at work, that no savages are lurking in the bushes to spring upon them unawares. After the troops are nearly all away, but very little will be needed to create another stampede that will be most disastrous in its results. We think there is no danger, and do not apprehend any, but a majority of the settlers are of a different opinion, and will not feel that they have full protection until the number of troops on the frontier is doubled. It would have been of greater benefit to the State and the country, had the Eighth Regiment been ordered South, and all the Second Cavalry placed on the frontier, and let General Sully carry out the details of his campaign. But ambitious Generals who are seeking for an additional "star," think otherwise.

The U. S. District Court—Another Fizzle.

The grand farce of summoning jurors, witnesses, &c., to attend the June term of the District Court which by law should be held in this place, has been performed, as is the usual custom. Two years ago, we think it was, that his Honor Judge Nelson, adjourned the court with the Grand Jury still in session; and they may still be at work getting up bills of indictment, for aught we know to the contrary.

Now, the Honorable Judge adopts a simpler plan. He sends up the Marshal to settle the little bills incurred and adjourn the Court, he the meanwhile, resting from his superabundant labors for another year. Ah! no! we forget. Once a quarter he does have to sign a voucher for seven hundred and fifty dollars for performing—nothing.

So far as the people in this section are concerned, it makes but little difference whether the session of the District Court is held here or not, but it does look bad to have one of the semi-annual sessions regularly adjourned.

Fire Insurance.

Some of our subscribers have recently called on us to make inquiry in regard to the "Home Mutual Insurance Company of St. Paul," an institution which we were not aware existed. It seems that a peripatetic Agent of the Company is soliciting parties in this county to take policies of insurance on their property in this institution. We notice in the Press of the 4th inst., that the business of this Company is conducted by parties imported expressly for the purpose, and we infer that resident underwriters who have character as insurance men, are not connected in its management.

Thompson & Brothers, are the bankers of the concern, and will, no doubt, keep safely, all funds which get into their hands; but they have no experience in underwriting, and we protest against the use of respectable names to bolster up a corporation of whose management they know nothing. The time will be, perhaps, when Mutual Companies can be established, under the control of our own citizens, and be of benefit to the community in insuring farm buildings. But that day has not yet come.

Honor to Blue Earth.

The people of this county have cause to feel proud. In looking over the list of drafted men in this district, we notice that this County, which is one of the first in the State, in population, has only five men drafted from it. Every draft on our people has been honored except this last, and had a few more days been allowed us, we should have been entirely clear. Our citizens do not lack in patriotism in the least.

THE National Republican Convention is now in session at Baltimore. About six hundred delegates are present. Delegates from several States, not represented in Congress, have asked to be admitted. We do not think they will be, however. Lincoln will undoubtedly be nominated by acclamation.

THE 30th Wisconsin Regiment, we notice, is at Fort Snelling, and will soon be stationed on the frontier. We supposed it was to join Gen. Sully.

WE find the following item in an Eastern exchange:

The President has recently pardoned twenty-seven of the Minnesota Indians who were concerned in the great massacre and confined in the barracks at Rock Island.

A GOOD APPOINTMENT.—Private A. McKinney, of company A, 10th Minnesota Infantry, has been appointed Paymaster in the army and confirmed by the Senate. Mr. McKinney has for sometime past been on duty as clerk at General Rosecran's headquarters, and is a man of fine business qualifications and irreprocahable character. Such appointments do honor to the Government, as they show that merit is not always overlooked in the general scramble for office.—St Louis Democrat.

Lieut Manns, of the 10th U. S. Infantry, recently met with a sad rebuff at Fort Kearney. The Lieut. was promenading in full uniform one day, and approaching a volunteer on sentry, who challenged him 'Halt'!' 'who comes there?' The Lieutenant, with contempt in every lineament of his face exclaimed indignantly, 'Ass!' The sentry's reply apt and quick, came,.' Advance, Ass, and give the countersign.'

"Belle Boyd" a Prisoner.

A letter was received in this city to day from the notorious female spy "Belle Boyd" forwarded to the Secretary of the Navy by U. S. Marshal Keys, of Boston, at "Belle's request, She is the "Mrs. Davis," captured on board the Greyhound. She says she was allowed to leave the South for a foreign land to recover her health, which had been much impaired by former imprisonment; that she was on board a British ship (the Greyhound) when captured, and was intending to go to Canada to settle until "this cruel war is over," in order to be as near her mother, who lives somewhere in the vicinity, as possible. She says she assumed the name of Davis "in order to escape newspaper notoriety." This declaration is positive evidence of insanity, upon which "Belle's" earnest plea to be released from imprisonment will undoubtedly receive favorable consideration.—Washington Rep. 26th.

A Drunken Lieutenant Shoots at Gov. Andy Johnson.

Yesterday afternoon, between five and six o'clock, Lieut. Augustus B. Brown, of the 71st Ohio Vol. Infantry, was much intoxicated and quarrelsome, talking boisterously on the street, and drawing his revolver upon any one who crossed his path. In his drunken wanderings he came to Gov. Johnson's stable, where he stopped a colored boy in the Governor's employ and demanded of the negro some whiskey. The negro told him that he had none, whereupon the Lieutenant demanded that he get some, or he would shoot him.

The boy, much alarmed, ran to the house, followed by the Lieutenant, who had entered Gov. Johnson's yard, and told Gov. Johnson, who met the Lieutenant and ordered him off from the place. After some words the Lieutenant drew his revolver and fired at the Governor, but being too drunk to take good aim, the ball passed through the Governor's coat by his side. While attempting to cock his pistol for another shot, the Governor struck Brown a tremendous blow in the face with his first, felling him to the ground, and before Brown had a chance to recover himself he was arrested by Sergeant W. H. Calvin, Co. 6, 18th Michigan, who ran to the spot as soon as he saw the difficulty. As the case will be investigated, we refrain from all comments, having given what we believe to be the facts, or what was told us as the facts in the case.—Nashville Press.

Grant's Line of Advance.

There is a peculiarity in regard to General Grant's advance toward Richmond which is worthy of notice. When he crossed the Rapidan, his line of communication was the Alexandria Railroad, and he was seventy miles from Washington overland. When he swung round upon the Fredericksburg Railroad, he shortened his land communication to about twenty miles, while at the same time he was advancing towards Richmond. He has once more swung away from his base and relies upon the York River, having only that short piece of land carriage between White House and his present position—the most convenient line of communication perhaps he has had since his movement began. Should it suit his purpose to move still further south and eastward, he may if he wishes rely upon the James River instead of the York. Thus as he moves further from home and nearer to the rebel Capital, he does not stretch his line of communications, in any way to weaken his force for its protection but he rather improves it by advancing.

But if the south line is the best why not move by it in the first place as McClellan did? Why advance by a line if he does not care to hold it as he advances? Because his present line of advance is per se as easy as any other, and in many respects better than any. He moves where his enemy is, with the idea that his work is not only to reach Richmond, but to destroy Lee's army. And in the pursuit of that idea he has reached his present position. He has the double work now of beating the army and taking the city.

Gen. Grant and His Politics.

"Burleigh," of the Boston Journal, writing from New York, May 27, says:

Many inquiries have been made about Gen. Grant's politics. I am happy to inform your readers from his own lips to what party he belongs and under what banner he marches. A near relative of his has been passing some time in this city. While with Gen. Grant at the West, before he was made Lieutenant General, the friend said to him: "General, I have been inquired of to-day about your politics.'. "Did you give the parties any information?" was the quiet query. "I did not," was the answer, "for I don't know what your politics are." Knocking the ashes from his cigar, the General continued: "When I resided at the South I had the opinion and prejudices of Southern people against the Republican party. I brought those opinions and prejudices with me when I came to Illinois. Had I taken active part in politics I should have been with the party opposed to the Republicans. I watched Mr. Lincoln's course, and was satisfied with his patriotism. But these are not the times for parties. Indeed, in this crisis there can be but two parties.—these for the country, those for its foes. I belong to the party of the Union. Those who are the most earnest in carrying on the war and putting down the rebellion have my support. As a soldier, I obey the laws and execute the orders of all my superiors, I expect every man under me to do the same."

When Mrs. Grant left Washington for her Western home, she remained a short time in this city at the Fifth Avenue Hotel. Several gentlemen called upon her, and in the course of the conversation congratulating her on the elevation of her husband and expressed a hope that he would be successful in this campaign. Her whole manner, quiet, dignified and reserved, seemed to express surprise that any one could doubt his success. Pausing a moment, she replied: "I have no doubt but the General will succeed, for he is a very obstinate man." This remark ended the conversation.

A Galena neighbor of the Commanding General has been stopping here some time, and seems utterly confounded with the sudden growth of his neighbor, the tanner. He can't account for it, for he was not a marked man in his home, and nobody supposed him a great man; he seldom talked, asked no advice, gave none to any one, but always did what he agreed to, and at the time.

TELEGRAPH NEWS.

The War in Virginia.

WASHINGTON, June, 3.—A dispatch from the army of the Potomac dated 5 o'clock Tuesday P. M. says Gen. Birney's division advanced against the breast-work held by Breckinridge's corps on the south side of Fatopotomoy Creek on a high eminence a very strong position and one which might have been easily held against a superior force

The enemy after firing a round or two and seeing a determination to take the place evacuated and retreated to the woods.

Our loss was about twenty five.

We took about fifty prisoners mostly belonging to Breckinridge's command some of whom said they were in the Valley in the fight with Gen. Sigel but did not have to fight as stubbornly as they did here.

An attempt made to turn our left last night and the attempt to cut us off from the White House our new base for supplies was defeated with considerable loss on both side.

WASHINGTON, June 3.—The steamer Keyport arrived this P.M., having left White House at noon yesterday.

Parties who came upon her state that heavy cannonading was heard there when they left indicating that an engagement was in progress.

A cavalryman who came in from the front to the White House reported that the sixth corps was engaged having brought it on by a rapid and sudden movement from the left to right.

Several regiments of negro troops doubtless a portion of Butler's forces were being landed at White House when the Keyport left.

A letter from the Army of the Potomac dated Tuesday night says the day before the 6th Corps advanced from Hawes Store towards Bethesady Church and drove the enemy about two miles.

At sunset while our men were engaged in digging rifle pits Rhode's and Early's Divisions made an attack on Warren's right flank causing him to fall back from his first lines.

The enemy then advanced and charged the 21 lines. Kitching,s Brigade of heavy artillery was posted there and opened a heavy fire in conjunction with the batteries on both sides which nearly demolished the rebel column of attack. The enemy fell back in terrible disorder and left their dead and wounded dehind them.

NEW YORK, June 7.—The Tribune's special headquarters Army of the Potomac correspondent of June 2d, says the successful operations of the Fifth corps on Monday were followed up by the advance of the 2nd corps on Tuesday forenoon compelling the enemy to withdraw from their line on the Totopotamy.

They have retreated to the souto side of the Chickahominy with the exception of a thin line to retard our advance.

Our cavalry entered Mechanicsville last evening after scouting about the old battle fields of Chickahominy.

Grant still pushes his left wing successfully and his strategy baffles the manœuvres of the enemy. Having offered him battle on the Totopotomy with his right wing resting on the Virginia Central railroad and having compelled the enemy to withdraw across the Chickahominy he has thrown his left wing—with his usual celerity—away to the east of Richmond and is now threatening the Chickahominy at Bottoms Bridge. This is the point of interest

"Baldy" Smith arrived from the White House in time to get in action and cooperate with our flank last night. Firing all day in that direction indicated that a severe battle has been raging and to night we are glad to observe the cannonading to be perceptibly more distant. Our new base now is completely established at the White House.

BALTIMORE, June 7. The National Union Convention assembled this morning in the St. Charles Theatre which was fitted up for the occasion by the Baltimore City Council.

There are nearly 600 delegates present including many from remote territories. New Mexico has sent a delegation, Hon. E. D. Morgan chairman of the National Committee called the Convention to order at 12 M, Making a brief address he proposed Dr. R. Breckinridge as temporary chairman. The announcement was received with great applause which was renewed on his taking the chair and three cheers given for the old war horse of Kentucky.

Dr. Breckinridge returned thanks for the honor and in a brief and eloquent speech explained the considerations which induced him to attend the Convention.

THE HOME OF TASTE.—How easy it is to be neat and clean! How easy to arrange the rooms in graceful propriety! How easy to invest our houses with truest elegance! Elegance resides not with the upholsterer or draper it is not put up with the hangings and curtains—it is not in the mosaics, the carpetings, the rosewood, the mahogany, the chandelabra, or the marble ornaments;it exists in the spirit presiding over the chambers of the dwelling. Contentment must always be most graceful, it sheds a serenity over the scene of its abode; it transforms a waste into a garden. The house lightened by these intimations of a nobler and brighter life may be waiting in much which the discontented desire, but to its inhabitants it will be a place, far outvieing the Oriental in brilliancy and glory.

These lands comprise what are known as the Winnebago Trust lands in the State of Minnesota, and will be sold to the highest and best bidder in tracts not exceeding one hundred and sixty acres each, under the provisions of a treaty concluded with the Winnebago Indians, April 15th, 1859, and an act of Congress, approved February 21st 1863, entitled "An act for the removal of the Winnebago Indians, and for the sale of their Reservation in Minnesota, for their benefit."

No bid will be entertained at a rate less than two dollars and fifty cents per acre.

In case a bid is accepted, the party making the same will be notified as soon thereafter as practicable. If within thirty days after such notice the party shall fail to make payment to the undersigned, the land for which such bid was made will be subject to sale to any other person.

Patents will be issued and transmitted to purchasers as soon after the payment as the same can be prepared. Payments may be made either in cash or in the certificates of indebtedness of the Winnebago Indians issued by the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, for the debt of said Indians, and secured to be paid out of the proceeds of the sale of said lands by the third article of the treaty above mentioned. The right to reject any and all bids is expressly reserved. All bids must be sealed and addressed to the undersigned, Washington City, D. C., and indorsed "Bid for Winnebago Tract Land."

CONSIDERABLE ginseng has been brought into town during the week. It is worth 21 cents per pound.

WANTED.—A servant girl, to whom good wages will be paid. Apply at this office.

ALL marriage and death notices published after the 10th inst., will be charged twenty-five cents each.

NEW GOODS.—Sparrow has received his new goods, and invites his friends to call and examine his stock.

THE rain of last week was a great blessing to the crops. It made farmers happy at the prospect of a good harvest.

WINNEBAGO LAND SALE.—We refer our readers to this advertisement which will be found elsewhere. It will interest many.

WHITE & MARKS have got some ladies' hats that are very cheap and pretty. They say they are "feminine" hats, and take well.

BROWN'S BRONCHIAL TROCHES.—These Lozenges are prepared from a highly esteemed receipt for alleviating Bronchial Affections, Asthma, Hoarseness, Coughs, Colds, and Irritation or Soreness of the Throat.

The following is a list of drafted men in Martin County.

WAVERLY—C. D. Eddy, Lewis F. True, George S. Fowler, W. S. Eddy, and A. H. Farnsworth.

A LUXURY.—Strawberries are beginning to come into market, but are not quite ripe enough for use. In a week or two they will be a delicious as the "kiss of love" that Professor Powers told about. Bah!

JACK FROST.—There was considerable frost in this vicinity last Monday morning. We have heard of no particular damage being done to gardens. In some places vines were nipped but not killed.

THE celebrated Baker family will sing at City Hall next Wednesday and Thursday evenings. They have never sung to any but crowed houses and we are sure they will be heartily welcomed here. Admission 25 cents, children, 15 cents.

NEW MEAT MARKET.—We understand that W. P. Gould, formerly from Durand, Wis. and recently from Blue Earth City, will soon erect buildings and open a meat market in this place. We believe he intends to deliver meat to customers at their residences.

RAIN.—This section of country was visited with a very severe rainstorm last Saturday afternoon. It lasted about an hour. The rain fell to the depth of two inches. The ground was so dry, however, that it was soon soaked up.

The following is a list of drafted men in Faribault County.

TOWN OF MARPLES—Henry T. Welch, John Parmiston, Gilan Barber, Charles Pease, Augustus, Karpfer, and Charles Marples.

TOWN OF SEELY—Matthew Ottun, and Willard Seely.

CAPT. BAILEY, of the Sixth Regiment passed through town Wednesday on his way to Ft. Snelling. He had about thirty horses which he turned over to Quartermaster McKusick. The greater portion of his company went to the Fort by way of Winnebago and Faribault.

PERSONS having business to transact with the Press Printing Co., or wishing to subscribe for the daily, tri-weekly and weekly Press can leave their orders with us, and they will be promptly attended to. After this week we shall keep extra copies of the paper for sale at our office.

SPEAKING about boquets, reminds us that we are indebted to Misses McMahan and Belden, for a tastefully arranged boquet of wild roses. Our thanks ladies, and may you never—well, no matter.

THE plan of delivering the daily Press to subscribers gives general satisfaction. Persons who subscribe can get it delivered every morning by a trusty carrier. There will be no failure, only when the mail fails to bring the papers.

MUSIC.—We are informed by Miss Belden that she can accommodate a few more scholars in her music class. Parents who wish their children to receive instruction in music can apply to Miss Belden at the residence of Dr. McMahan. She is an excellent teacher, and her terms are very reasonable.

ATTORNEY AT LAW.—We were pleased to make the acquaintance of Hobart Orton, Esq., a gentleman of legal ability, who has recently come among us, from Ohio, and intends to settle in our midst. He has opened an office over Lewis & Frisbie's drug store.

THE bridge over the Blue Earth at Vernon is being repaired. We were misinformed as to the depth of water at the time the bridge gave way. It was over ten feet deep, and the horses were only saved by holding their heads above water until help could be obtained.

A COLLECTION was taken up at the close of Bishop Whipple's discourse on Thursday evening last, amounting to $13,55. It is to be used by the Ladies' Aid Society in purchasing hospital stores for the soldiers in the army.

RETURNED.—Captain McKusick and Isaac Marks, who were at Fort Ridgely to witness the departure of the expedition have returned. It was composed of the 8th Regiment and six companies of the 2nd Cavalry, and will be under the command of Col. Thomas of the 8th, until a junction is formed with General Sully, on the Missouri. This is the begining of another ridiculous farce.

CHARLES SCHEFFER, the Treasurer of the State Sanitary Commission at St Paul, has ackowledged the receipt, from the ladies of Mankato, of one hundred and fifty two dollars and fifty cents. The whole amount sent was $157,50, but five dollars proved to be counterfeit and was returned. We hope that five dollars was not a copperhead's gift.

LIST OF DRAFTED MEN.—We have received the following list of drafted men from this county:

MAPLETON—Hammon Love, and Donald McGregor.

CERESCO.—J. M. Mead, H. W. Perry, and John Porter.

There is no such person in Mapleton as Hammon Love. It is probably intended for Lore Harriman. The Marshall, however, will have to notify the party by the name as given him, report to Captain See, and await further orders.

LADIES AID SOCIETY.—The annual meeting of the Ladies Aid Society was held at the house of Judge Branson on Thursday afternoon the 2nd inst. The following officers were chosen for the ensuing year;

President—MRS. JUDGE BRANSON.

Vice President—MRS. DR. WICKERSHAM.

Secretary—MRS. P. GRIFFITH.

Treasurer—MRS FRANCIS T. WAITE.

The next meeting of the Society will be held at the house of Mrs. A. D. Seward, on Thursday, the 16th inst.

LIFE INSURANCE.—E. H. Berry, of Faribault, is the General Agent of the Charter Oak Life Insurance Co. of Hartford. He has been in town during the past week, and has been very successful in issuing policies of life insurance. There is no better company in the country than the Charter Oak, or one that offers better terms of insurance. J. N. Hall is the agent for this place, and any one wishing to take a policy in this Company on very favorable terms, should call on him.

PERSONAL.—Hon. Chas. Scheffer, Secretary of State is stopping in town. He is the guest of Judge Finch.

Col. James H. Baker, of the 10th Regiment arrived in town Tuesday, on a furlough. He proceeded to his home in Garden City to visit his family. The Colonel is looking well, and will remain with us until July.

A. A. Clifford, now in the employ of Beaupre & Kelly, of St. Paul, is in town soliciting orders for goods. The name of Beaupre & Kelly is as familiar to the merchants in the Valley as "Household words."

Our old friend McCauley, one of the best business men Borup & Champlin, of St. Paul, ever had, is also in town soliciting orders for that firm. He never fails to get his pockets full, because his firm is responsible and popular.

LADIES' NATIONAL COVENANT MEETING.—We are requested to state that the ladies of Mankato will meet at City Hall to-morrow afternoon at two o'clock, for the purpose of organizing a Society auxiliary to the Ladies National Covenant at Washington. The object of the Society is that the members pledge themselves not to purchase any imported article of clothing, for three years or during the war. We hope they will see fit to include the drinking of tea and coffee. We heartily approve of this meeting, and hope that there will be a full attendance of ladies. It will be of incalculable benefit to the Benedicts who have been accustomed to hand over the greenbacks whenever their "better halves" wished some imported luxury. Give us calico dresses and cotton handkerchiefs, you "little and big dears."

JUSTICE COURT.—Esquire Moreland has transacted a large amount of business during the past week, and has a few cases yet on the docket.

The first one tried on the 30th ult, was Horace Wetzell against Joseph Silvers. A suit of replevy to recover a horse. It was settled by the plaintiff paying $40 and taking the horse.

On the 3rd inst., the suit of R. J. Marvin and J. C. Randall against A. Plymate, to recover some logs that were unlawfully taken, was tried. It was decided in favor of the defendant.

On the 4th inst., the suit of Pauline Tyler, administratrix of the estate of Moses Tyler, against S. T. Mills, came up. This was a suit to recover damages claimed to have been sustained by the plaintiff, and which were caused by Mr. Mills' boy riding a horse against the horse of Mr. Tyler and so injuring it that it afterwards died. It was a jury trial, and a verdict of $100 was rendered for the plaintiff.

The case will probably be appealed.

William L. Wilson against P. Kimmel. A suit to recover twenty dollars damages for defendant's cattle destroying hay of plaintiff

T. T Peirce, against Wm R. Wilcox is on the docket for to-morrow.

A ridiculous and trivial case of assault and battery was before the Court on Monday, but the parties agreed to a settlement and the matter was dropped.

FINKLE & LYON'S

SEWING MACHINES.

THESE Machines make the lock stitch alike on both sides, and use less than half the thread and silk that the single or double thread loop-stitch Machines do: will Hem, Fell, Gather, Cord, Braid, Bind, &c., and are better adapted than any other Sewing Machine in use to the frequent changes and great variety of sewing required in a family, for they will sew from one to twenty thicknesses of Marseilles without stopping, and make every stitch perfect, or from the finest gauze to the heaviest beaver cloth, or even the stoutest harness leather, without changing the feed, needle or tension, or making any adjustment of Machaine whatever!!!

They are simple in construction, and easily understood: and if any part is broken by accident, it is readily replaced.

These are PECULIAR FACTS, and will go far to determine the choice of any intelligent buyer.

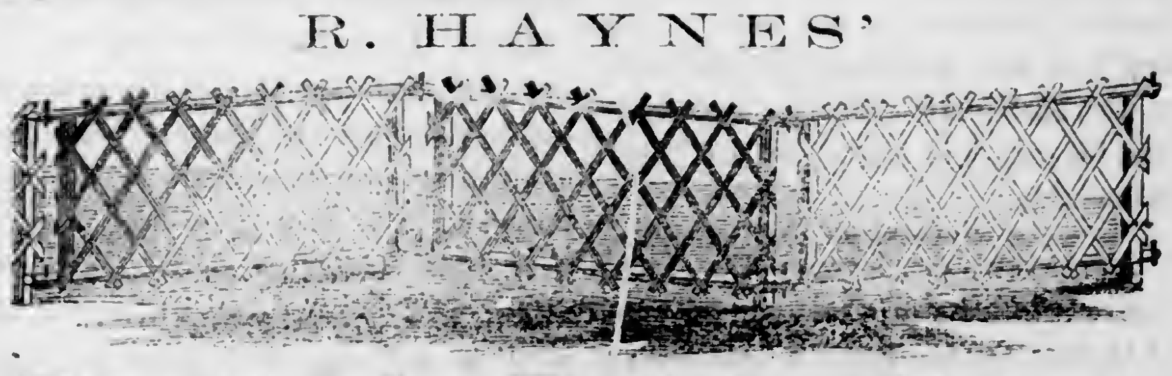
R. HAYNES'



Portable Brace Fence!

PATENTED APRIL 7, 1863.

WE claim for this Fence greater strength and durability with less expense than any ordinary farm fence. No farmer who studies economy and convenience in the management of his farm will be without it The First Premium was awarded to Mr. Haynes' Portable Fence, at the late State Fairs in Ohio and Michigan, and at several County Fairs. Read the following extract:

"Among the many things we saw on exhibition at the State Fair was Haynes' Portable Brace Fence. This fence seems to be a great improvement over most Fences of the kind It is very strong, and is so braced that wind can have no more effect upon it, if as much, as upon a common rail fence. It is light, yet heavy enough for all farm purposes. Its cost is but little, and much labor is saved by using this fence, as it is easily put up, and in after years easily repaired. Every farmer ought to see this remarkable fence. We hope Mr. Haynes will be induced to exhibit it at our County Fair.—Medina (Ohio) Gazette.

Mr. H. has also invented a mould or bench upon which this fence is made. By using this bench any farmer can make the fence at a rapid rate. Full directions for making the bench and the fence upon it accompany each deed For farm or township rights address

CELEBRATED

STOMACH BITTERS.

A pure and powerful tonic, corective and alterative of wonderful efficacy in disease of the Stomach, Liver and bowels, Cures, Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Headache, General Debility, Nervousness, Depression of Spirits, Constipation Colic, Intermittent Fevers, Cramps and Spasms, and all Complaints of either Sex arising from Boodily Weakness whether inherent in the system or produced by special causes. Nothing that is not wholesome genial and restorative in its nature enters into the composition of Hostetters Stomach Bitters. This popular preparations contains no mineral of any kind, no deadly botanical element; no fiery excitant; but it is a combination of the extracts of rare balsamic herbs and plants with the purest and mildest of all diffusive stimulants. It is well to be forearmed against disease, and, so far as the human system can be protected by human means against maladies engendered by an unwholesome atmosphere, impure water and other external causes, Hostetters Bitters may be relied on as a safeguard. In districts infested with Fever and Ague, it has been found infallible as a preventive and irresistible as a remedy and thousands who resort to it under apprehensions of an attack, escape the scourge, and thousands who neglect to avail themselves of its protective qualities in advance are cured by a very brief course of this marvelous medicine. Fever and Ague patients, after being plied with quinine for months in vain until fairly saturated with that dangerous alkaloid, are not unfrequently restored to health, within a few days by the use of Hostetter's Bitters. The weak stomach is rapidly invigorated and the appetite restored by this agreeable Tonic and hence it works wonders in cases of Dispepsia and in less confirmed forms of indigestion. Acting as a gentle and painless apperent, as well as upon the liver, it also invariably relieves the Constipation Superinduced by irregular action of the digestive and secretive organs: Persons of feeble habit, liable to Nervous attacks, Lowness of spirits and fits of Languor, find prompt and permanent relief from the Bitters. The testimony on this point is most conclusive, and from both sexes. The agony of billious colic, is immediately assuaged by a single dose of the stimulant, and by occasionally restoring to it, the return of the complaint may be prevented. As a general tonic, Hostetter's Bitters produce effects which must be experienced or witnessed before they can be fully appreciated. In cases of constitutional Weakness, Premature Decay, and debility and decrepitude arising from old age, it exercises the electric influence. In the convalescent stages of all diseases it operates as a delightful invigorant. When the powers of nature are relaxed, it operates to re-inforce and re-establish them. Last but not least, it is the only safe stimulant, being manufactured from sound and innocuous materials, and entirely free from the acid elements, present more or less in all the ordinary tonics and stomachies of the day. No family medicine has been so universally, and it may be truly added, deservedly popular with the intelligent portion of the community, as Hostetter's Bitters. Prepared by Hostetter and Smith, Pittsburgh, Pa. Sold by all Druggists, Grocers and Storekeepers everywhere. 21

LIFE.

BY DELLY ATHERTON.

Onward! Onward, ever onward,
Never pausing by the way;
Rising when the morning breaketh,
Sleeping at the close of day.
Weaving dreams of Fame and gladness,
Fringed with Love's unreal light;
But to find them merged in sadness,
Chilled by sorrow's deadly blight.

Is this Life? The life that lured us,
With its radiance in our youth?
No! we'll break the chains that bind us,
And we'll live for right and truth.
Put away the dreams that charmed us,
Though our doom be toil and care;
Live for others—live for duty—
So shall life grow bright and fair.

Life is toiling—resting never,
With the heart and with the brain,
Till the world is pure and holy
And its children free from pain.

Select Miscellany.

Farm Experience.

'Two dollars a day in seed time, and five in harvest,' said my husband; 'that will never do. No man can farm in Minnesota and pay that.'

'But what,' said I, 'will you do with your land? You cannot put in your crop and do all else that must be done.'

'No matter, I cannot hire. No man can pay such a price and make both ends meet.'

'In the long run, though, I am sure you will lose by allowing your land to lie idle.'

'In ordinary times and circumstances, perhaps, I might, but now. My losses for the past year have been too bitter to warrant any outlay that will not be at once profitable. So a part of the farm must run to waste, sad as you feel about it'

'Not if I can help it,' said I.

'But you do too much already. This drudgery you now perform pains me, and I know mortifies you.'

'If I am unwilling to do what I know is my duty, let me be mortified, I deserve it. But see a moment. Our little daughter can just as well as not lay aside her latin and grammer for a time, and do the housework; that is, what must be done—for our housekeeping will be wonderful simplified when stripped of all its hireling appendages.'

'Well,' said he, 'if I could only get a boy to do the dragging; and you could do the teaming, we might get through.'

I did my part—not very esily, however The mud lay in treacherous holes, and the horses knew perfectly well that they could have things their own way, and so, once in the mire, they were in no haste to get out. I was often sorely puzzled, but never completely baffled. Once we were half up a miry hill, and not an inch farther would they budge. 'Hold on, there!' cried a manly voice behind me, and in a moment the speaker hastened up with a pair of oxen, and brought us all out of our troubles. Again caught in a similar trap, I was overtaken and rescued by a kind German neighbor, who took the sacks on his own shoulders and bore them to dry land. The teaming was, on the whole, satisfactorily finished, and we began to look around for our boy.

Boys are as plenty as blackberries. Of all the sad wrecks of this war, none are sadder than that of universal boyhood. Who can tell whether they can ever be reclaimed from the wildness that gains upon them as, year after year, the country keeps from them their natural guardians.

When it became known that we wanted a boy, several offered themselves. I selected a fine fellow, who asked a tall price, and promised to do everything. His father, then on a furlough from the army, brought him to us, and committed him, not without tears, to my care, saying he had been too much his own master. We all loved our little Tommy, and tried our best to render him happy with us, but to no purpose. All kinds of work displeased him, and on the second day he took a French leave, declaring that he expected to ride the horses to drag—but was compelled, instead, to drive the oxen and walk, too!

The next morning we had the offer of a second Tommy; who in due time appeared He resembled the first only in name; was quiet, industrious and gentle. At all ordinary chores, no boy would do better; but the dragging was too much entirely. He had never driven oxen, and Pete and Charley determined, as far as they were concerned, he should never learn. So when hitched to the drag, they wandered off at their own sweet will, sometimes on that. Tommy 'who-ha geed'd,' ran before and behind, and plied his whip with infinite industry, but they cared as much for his shouting as for the buzz of a musquito, and his whip troubled them less than its sting. My husband was in despair. 'If that boy were only my own,' said he, 'how gladly would I stop my work to teach him.' In a week he might be able to do something, but as it is I can get on much faster without his aid than with it.' The grain has been sown, and swarms of pigeons were hovering near ready to gulp it down. My husband was compelled to leave on business that could not be delayed Could I cover the grain? I could try.

The oxen understood I was a novice, and conducted accordingly. They tossed their heads, walked their bright eyes, and scampered off, with me after them. The field fortunately, was bare of stumps, stone, grub, or any obstruction whatever; so we had a clear chance. What curves, circles, tangents, and parabolas we described, no geometry could measure. More than once, I was tempted to give up, and heartily agreed with the first Tommy that it was too bad to 'drive oxen and walk too;' but I knew I could do it—and I did. In a short time we—that is, myself and the oxen—came to a mutual understanding, and walked in straight paths.

Quietly at work, I began to think how I looked. Ah, said I to myself, what would cousin Ben and sister Lucy say to see me in this plight? And those dear pupils of old Woodstock, who used to shield their teacher from all harm and spare her all annoyance, what would they think? Then came up an old cut in Woodbridge's Geography, entitled 'Women laboring in the field' where one forlorn looking object might have answered my photograph, only she followed a plow—I, a drag. All these thoughts came up in the repeated crossings of the field till the bluff sides seemed peopled with spectators. Ah, thought I, above tree top and bluff point, higher than the white cloud floating over all, are perhaps a host of witnesses, matrons of the revolution, who gloried in the roughest toil that country's wants demanded, while we, their degenerate daughters, blush to be caught at any labor that is not lady-like. Such is our patriotism,

We had a very plain tea that night, but my husband, usualy nice, noticed no omissions. After supper we went to inspect the field of my conquest. Very beautiful it lay in the moonlight—all mellow and even Not a grain in sight. My husband was delighted, and paid me a great many compliments on my success. When the evening lamp was lighted and the children sleeping in each other's arms, he read me a strange story from an old book some of you may have seen, of a husband who with his beautiful wife pioneered upon a very big farm, much larger than any 'out on the prairie;' and who without a child to do a chore, never pestered themselves with hired help, but did everything with their own hands; and when he planned the days work, she did not object that the sun would injure her complexion, though no woman ever had fairer; nor did she ask to 'fix upfer company' tho' no matron entertained grander; nor did she say he should do his work and she hers; nor did she remind him, as she might with propriety have done, that they need not work so hard, since the munificent landholder had not only planted the farm but fenced it, and had provided for their clothing and given all rent free; she said none of these things that most wives now-a days would be sure to mention, but simply replied:

> "What thou bidst
> Unargued I obey. God is thy law: thou mine"

Never was farming done like that on this great first farm. 'I believe things would have gone on in this fashion forever, and she would never have touched that fruit.

> Whose mortal taste
> Brought death into the world, and all our woe."

if she had always worked with her husband, and not thought of setting up for herself.

'Since Paradise is lost by working apart, it will come back if we work together, I suppose you mean to say,' I replied:

'Now don't you think so yourself?' said he, My reply was in deeds, not words. That day was but the commencement. Other days were passed in the same manner. Our little housekeeper worked admirable. Our simple meals were easily served, and relished as never before. The hurry, noise and dust of seed-time were sowed—all so still and quiet. The crops were put in, in ample time and capital order, and not a dime expended for help. My husband's delight knew no bounds. 'Who would have thought it? said he. You have helped me wonderfully. To-morrow we will send the first load of wheat to market, for I shall be in a hurry only till that is done, Then we will make all things about our home near as may be like that—the model of all homes—built upon the wooded mountain whose high top was plain.' Oh, this we is a great institution, I always knew it: yet, never since we pronounced the 'great vow that did incorporate and make us one.' has it served a better turn than now,

The morrow came. The last sack of that load filled; when a hissing crackle startled me, It was so like the fearful sound but once heard never forgotten, that aroused me years ago on a mild winter's night, when the parental mansion became the sport of the devouring element, and our dying mother with her fatherless children driven shelterless in the storm. This sound was like that, I thought—but it was impossible. I ran to the wash-room—all right; to the kitchen—no fire; but at a corner of the main building remote from either a blank cloud was rising which told all.

There was a frantic cry—a dashing of a pail or two of water, but no hope. Books, pictures, and much that is needful were saved, but the pioneer cabin, the unsold wheat, burned, and the dear little home, reared with so much effort, and endeared by so many tender recollections, lies in ashes, and the shade trees just budding into vernal bloom stretch their bare black arms over it, as over a grave,

We live in a stable now, and are reminded of the Blessed One who so lived when he came to teach us all, where alone the true Eden may be found, and how we may gain it. In our haste to secure an earthly paradise we had strangely forgotten him. Is this sent to lead us back?—Winona Republican. B.

Hard on the Minister.

A minister was traveling in the back woods, and espying a cabin, entered on a mission of Mercy, The lady of the house (she being present alone, and rightly judging his errand,) when she saw him approaching seized the Bible and when he entered, was, to all intents, busily engaged in perusing the volume. He noticed, however, that she held the letters reversed, in other words upside down. After the usual courtesies the minister inquired what she was reading.

Oh! bout the old prophets, was the evidently self satisfactory reply.

It is very edifying to read the sufferings of Christ, said the minister.

And so that good man is dead, is he? said the matron, evidently getting somewhat interested.

Certainly he is.

Well that's just the way. I've been at John a long time to get him to take the newspapers, but he won't. Everybody in the world might die, and we not to hear a word about it, said the woman in a rapid tone.

Ah! woman you are in the dark, said the preacher with an elongated face.

Yes, I know we are. I've been at John a long time to put a window in the far end of the house, said the woman, but he won't do that either.

I perceive that you are weak in knowledge.

I know I am weak, and I guess if you'd had the billions fever, and been taken sasafras and cataract pills as long as I have, you'd be weak too, replied the woman in rather an angry tone of voice, and half an octave higher than usual.

Curious Illustrations of Red Tape.

About fifteen years ago, it hapened in a certain country of Europe, that the inspector-general of garrisons, while visiting a provincial town, observed a sentinel stationed at a little distance outside the walls, keeping guard over some ruined buildings in the suberbs. The general inquired of the sentinel, with some curiosity, why he was posted there. The sentinel referred him to his sergeant nothing to say but that such was the orders of his lieutenant. The lieutenant justified himself under the authority of the captain commandant of the garrison. Upon being applied to for his reasons for the standing order in question, the commandant informed the inspector-general, with much seriousness, that his predecessors in office had handed down to him the custom as one of the military duties of the place.

A search was immediately instituted in the archives of the municipality, the result of which was to obtain satisfactory proof that for the last seventy years, a sentinel had always stood over the ruined buildings in the same manner. With awakend interest and curiosity the general returned to the capitol. He there set on foot a more elaborate investigation among the State documents of the minister of war. After long delay it was at last discovered that the ruined buildings of the faubourg had been in 1720, a storehouse for mattresses belonging to the garrison, and that in the course of that summer it become desirable to repaint the door. While the paint was wet a guard was placed outside to warn those who went in and out; but, before the paint was dry, it came to pass that the officer on duty was dispatched on missions of importance, and left the town without remembering to remove the sentinel. For a hundred and thirty years a guard of honor had consequently remained over the sacred and inviolable tradition, but one which represented at bottom an higher idea than wet paint. —London Review.

Sin has a great many tools but a lie is the handle which fits them all.

For Women to Read.

A knowledge of domestic duties is beyond all price to a woman. Every one of the sex ought to know how to sew, mend and cook and superintend a household. In every situation of life, high or low, this knowledge is of great advnatage. There is no necessity that the gaining of such informations should interfere with intellectual acquirement or even elegant accomplishment. A well regulated mind can find time to attend to it all. When a girl is nine or ten years old she should be accustomed to take some regular share in household duties and to feel responsible for the manner in which her part is performed—such as her own mending, washing the cups and putting them in place, cleaning silver, or dusting and arranging the parlor. This should not be done occasionally or whenever she finds it convienient; she should consider it her department. When older than twelve, girls should begin to take turns in superintending the household; making puddings, pies, &c. To learn effectually they should actually do these things themselves, and not to stand by and see others do them. Many a husband has been ruined for want of these domestic qualities in a wife—and many a husband has been saved from ruin by his wife being able to manage well the household concern.

"Skeezics."

The following is an illustration of the word "Skeezics," in Bartlett's dictionary of Americanisms.

'At a democratic meeting in Indiana the other day, a speaker named Long, responded to a loud call and took the stand. But a big strapping fellow persisted in crying out in a stentorian voice, 'Long! ;Long!' This caused a little confusion; but after some difficulty in making himself heard, the President succeeded in stating that Mr. Long the gentlemen honored by the call, was now addressing them. 'Oh he be—,' replied the fellow, 'he's the little skeezics that told me to call for Long!' This brought down the house.

A little three year old child ran away from home, and went to a neighbor's about eight o'clock in the evening, while his mother had gone to the well for a pail of water. Rather surprised at seeing her out at so late an hour, the neighbor asked her are you not afraid to come so far from home in the night? O, no sir, replied the confiding little thing, I've got on mother's hood!

THE HAPPY MAN.—He who is strong, and does a man's work; he who in going out to his daily toil leaves at home a beloved creature who loves and thinks of him alone, it is by that very fact inspired with cheerfulness, and is happy all the day. A blesed thing it is to have by your hearth-stone a trusty worthy and loving woman, to whom you can open you heart, with whom you can suffer. She will prevent you from either dreaming or forgetting.

RATES OF SPEED.—The ordinary rate of speed per second is as follows:

Of a man walking, 6 feet; of a good horse in harness, 12 feet; of a good sailing ship, 18 feet; of a reindeer in a sled on the ice, 24 feet, of a hare, locomotive or hurricane 84 feet; of sound 3,092 feet; of a cannon ball 1,344 feet; of the earth's rotation at the equator, 1,521 feet; of the earth's velocity in its orbit, 91,132 feet—19 miles.

A physician, examining his student as to his progress, asked him, 'should a man fall into a well forty feet deep, and strike his head against one of the tools with which he had been digging, what would be your course if called in as a surgeon?' The student replied 'I should advise them to let the man lie, and fill up the well.'

'THIS 'ERE AND 'THAT AIR.'—A lady, traveling in a railway carriage, was much annoyed by a Cockney companion continually embellishing his conversation with 'This 'ere and 'That air.' A few moments afterwards she quietly requested him to close the window, remarking. 'This ear is affected by that air.'

Your Fare.

A young lady from the rural districts of Hoosierdom lately visited Chicago with her beau. Getting into a city railroad car for the first time she took a seat while her lover planted himself on the platform with the driver Pretty soon the conductor began to collect the fare and approaching the rustic maiden he said: 'Your fare Miss!' The Hoosier rosebud allowed a delicate pink to manifest itself on her cheeks and looked down in soft confusion. The conductor was astonished at this but ventured to remark once more: Your fare Miss!' This time the pink deepened to a carnation as the rustic beauty replied:' Wall if I am good lookin', you hadn't ought to say it afore folks!' The passengers in the car roared with laughter and the lover coming in to see what was going on, at once settled the fare.

A person speaking of the tenacity of life in turtles asserted that he had seen one which had had its head cut off open its jaws six weeks afterwards The company seeming rather skeptical he said, 'I saw it and trust none of you will doubt my words Then turning to one gentleman he asked him what he thought. The gentleman observing that it was very remarkable said to the relator, 'If you yourself sir had not seen the circumstance could you have believed it?' Indeed ' said he ' I could not.' "Then said the gentleman 'I hope you will excuse me if I do not

WAITING FOR SOMETHING.—There are boys who think themselves men and who go to the barber's shop to be as they say 'shaved.' We heard of a juvenile who went to be scraped and the barber having adjusted the cloth and soaped his mouth skin left him and went lounging about the door. As soon as the young gent saw him sauntering he impatiently screamed out, 'Well what are you leaving me all this time for?'

The witty barber replied, 'I am waiting until your beard grows.'

BUGGY.—As the season is approaching when bed bugs most do congregate persons not desiring to be carried out of the world by them will be glad to learn that they can't stand hot alum water. Take two pounds of alum bruise it and reduce to a powder; dissolve it in three quarts of water; let it remain in a warm place till the alum is dissolved then apply the liquid hot with a brush to every crack and crevice and there will be an end to these night creepers.

A lady occupying room letter B at one of the hotels wrote on the slate the following: 'Wake letter B at seven; and if letter B says Let us be don't let letter B be because if you let letter B be letter B will be unable to let her house to Mr. B who is to be on hand at half past seven.' The porter a better boot-black than orthographist did not know at seven whether to wake ' letter B' or let her be."

CUMPTON keeps a nine-pin alley and one day he was seen leaning up against the outside weeping as if his heart would break. 'What's the matter inquired one of his friends who was passing. 'Matter enough he said. 'I'm clean done over, my boy is dead. I'm mighty misfortunate in babies. Just as quick as they get big enough to set up the pins they die!' And poor Cumpton sobbed on.

A lawyer the other day went into one of the barber shops to procure a wig. In taking dimensions of the lawyer's head the boy exclaimed:

'Why how long your head is sir.'

'Yes' replied our worthy friend we lawyers must have long heads.'

The boy proceeded in his vocation but at length exclaimed 'Lor sir your head is as thick as it is long.!'

The Weekly Union.

United States Official Paper.

Mankato. Friday, June 17, 1864.

UNION PRESIDENTIAL TICKET.

FOR PRESIDENT:
ABRAHAM LINCOLN,
OF ILLINOIS.

FOR VICE PRESIDENT.
ANDREW JOHNSON,
OF TENNESSEE.

The Presidential Ticket.

We had not time last week to do any more than to place at our masthead the ticket nominated at the Baltimore Convention, and it is not necessary now for us to say more than to endorse these nominations. And this we do, most heartily. We never did an act with greater pleasure.

The nomination of Mr. Lincoln was demanded by the people, and the people are satisfied with it. The action of that Convention is but the expression of the united people of the north, who are in favor of preserving the Union.

The course of the Administration has been sound to the core, on things of an essential character, and has gained for it the respect, and popular love of the masses.

President Lincoln was inaugurated as "honest old Abe," and by his honest, consistent, upright course; his plain, matter of fact way in meeting and disposing of vexed questions, has retained that sobriquet. He has been nominated a second time by acclamation and his election is a foregone conclusion. The people want no change in the administration of the government while the war lasts, and their decision will be that there shall be none.

The choice of the Convention for Vice Presiden was a wise one,—"fitly to be made." Andy Johnson is a leading, sound and patriotic man, and will draw around him thousands of loyal hearts, north and south.

The $300 Exemption Clause.

The draft which has been in progress in this State for the past few weeks is a grand humbug. It has filled Uncle Sam's pockets with greenbacks, and has taken but comparatively few men from their homes.

In the Second District out of eight hundred men to be drafted less than fifty will be obtained, and the commutation money will probably amount to over eigthy thousand dollars. It will be in the same proportion in the first District, where there is a deficit of over eleven hundred. This three hundred dollar loophole makes a complete farce of the draft. It renders ugatory all the complicated machinery necessary to enroll, draft and examine conscripts, and simply tells them that if "they have a few greenbacks they can commute and stay at home."

No stronger evidence of its uselessness is needed than the fact that it has failed to bring about good results in Ohio, where a draft has been in progress to make up a deficit of 20,000. Less than five hundred men will be obtained in the whole State. In Cincinnatti, where 3,000 were drafted, all but sixteen escaped by availing themselves of this three hundred dollar loop hole.

Just now the Government wants men instead of money. It has plenty of money, or the means are at hand to procure it, but it has not got plenty of men. The term of service of nearly a hundred regiments will expire between this and October. They are going home now, every day, and their places must be filled. We must not suffer the ranks of Grant's and Sherman's armies to be depleted by regiments being mustered out of the service, when every strong arm and brave heart is needed to confront and push back the rebel hordes, who are seeking our destruction. Our armies are being reduced rapidly. It cannot be otherwise when we bear in mind the fierce and hotly contested battles of the last month. The daily re-inforcements are not equal to the daily loss. Grants assault on the rebel line on the Chickahominy cost him seven thousand men in ten minutes. Did he receive an equal number of reinforcements in the same time? He ought to have a 100,000, yes, 200,000 men to make good his losses, and enable him to strike the death-blow of the rebellion—to crush in in its very heart.

Repeal this three hundred dollar clause, and compel every drafted man to go, or furnish a substitute, and the war can be ended this year. Let it remain untouched, and the war will be prolonged for three years more. We have competent generals in command now, and they ask the government to support them by giving them plenty of men. They must have them. If they fail, are defeated, and driven back, the responsibility will lie at the door of Congress, if they adjourn the present session without striking out this exemption clause. We are in favor of its immediate repeal, and would urge a draft of three hundred thousand more. The country is ripe for it and demand it. Members of Congress, need not fear to face their constituents if they meet this matter bravely and strike out a section which has cursed the law.

Congress must give the government a chance to act, to place plenty of men at Grants, disposal, and he will make this contest sharp, quick and decisive.

Soldier's Fair and Festival.

Next Thursday evening the citizens of Garden City will have a Soldiers Fair and Festival for the benefit of our Soldiers, and the funds will be sent to the Sanitary Commission. We understand that all the arrangements necessary to insure its success, and make it pass off pleasantly are fast being completed. We know that Garden City will acquit herself nobly, yet we would urge upon all friends of Soldiers to attend this Fair and help to roll on the ball.

As a County, Blue Earth has done but little in this cause. Mankato, through the efforts of the Ladies Soldiers Aid Society, and by private subscription, has given about five hundred dollars. We want to see this sum largely increased. We know it can be.

This County can esily raise twelve hundred dollars for the benefit of Soldiers, and as Garden City has taken the initiative in giving a Fair and Festival we hope that other towns will follow suit, and roll up something worthy of record.

The Sixth Regiment left Fort Snelling for the South Tuesday last. It numbers 849 effective men.

Well Done Faribault.—The recent fairs at Winnebago and Blue Earth Cities, netted the handsome sum of eight hundred and sixteen dollars and over. That speaks well for our sister County. May she ever continue thus in well doing.

The Richmond Sentinel is puzzled at Grant's operations. It says:

It is time for us all to cease speculations as to Grant's movements and attend to the facts. He has been offering fight when we thought he was retreating, and retreating when we thought he was offering fight; he has been advancing when he was whipped, and heading up stream when he had every reason to hurry down. He has gone by the rule of military contrariness, and has always disappointed us whenever we supposed that he was acting sensibly or consistently with himself, We suppose that he has come to final fight at last; though, warned by experience, we express the opinion with becoming doubt.

The Tribune's Washington correspondent has the following from another source dated White House, 11th;

News from the front this morning is of a most joyful character. Two officers have just arrived here, and bring the joyful news of the capture of Ft. Darling. An order conveying this intelligence was read to the army last evening, and the cheers of our soldiers could be heard for miles around.

Republican Union Platform.

The following is the platform reported by the Committee on Resolutions, and adopted by the Baltimore Convention:

Resolved, That it is the highest duty of every American citizen, to maintain against all their enemies the integrity of the Union and the paramount authority of the constitution and laws of the United States; and that, laying aside all differences and political opinions, we pledge ourselves as Union men, animated by a common sentiment, and aiming at a common object, to do everything in our power to aid the government in quelling by force of arms the rebellion now raging against authority, and in bringing to the punishment due to their crimes, the rebels and traitors arrayed against it.

Resolved, That we approve the determination of the government of the United States not to compromise with rebels, or to offer any terms of peace except such as may be based upon an "unconditional surrender" of their hostility and a return to their just allegiance to the constitution and laws of the United States; and that we call upon the government to maintain this position and to prosecute the war with the utmost possible vigor to the complete suppression of the rebellion, in full reliance upon the self sacrifices, the patriotism, the heroic valor and the undying devotion of the American people to their country and its free institutions.

Resolved, That as slavery was the cause and now constitutes the strength of this rebellion, and as it must be always and everywhere hostile to the principles of republican government, justice and the national safety demand its utter and complete exterpation from the soil of the republic, and that we uphold and maintain the acts and proclamations by which the government, in its own defense, has aimed a death-blow at this gigantic evil. We are in favour, furthermore, of such an amendment to the constitution to be made by the people in conformity with its provisions, as shall terminate and forever prohibit the existence of slavery within the limits of the jurisdiction of the United States.

Resolved, That the thanks of the American people are due to the soldiers and sailors of the army and navy who have periled their lives in defense of their country, and in vindication of the honor of the flag; that the nation owes to them some permanent recognition of their patriotism and their valor, and ample and permanent provisions for those of their survivors who have received disabling and honorable wounds in the service of the country; and that the memories of those who have fallen in its defense shall be held in grateful and everlasting rememberance.

Resolved, That we approve and applaud the practical wisdom, the unselfish patriotism, and unswerving fidelity to the constitution which Abraham Lincoln has discharged, under circumstances of unparalelled difficulty, the great duties and responsibilities of the Presidential office; that we approve and endorse, as demanded by the emergency and essential to the preservation of the nation against its open and secret foes; that we approve especially the proclamation of emancipation, and the employment as Union soldiers of men heretofore held in slavery; and that we have full confidence in his determination to carry these and all other constitutional measures essentially to the salvation of the country into full and complete effect.

Resolved, That we deem it essential to the general welfare that harmony should prevail in the national councils, and we regard as worthy of public confidence and official trust those only who cordially endorse the principles proclaimed in these resolutions, and which should characterize the administration of the government.

Resolved, That the government owes to all men employed in its armies, without regard to distinction of color, the full protection of the laws of war, and that any violation of these laws or of the usages of civilized nations in the times of war by the rebels now in arms should be made the subject of full and prompt redress.

Resolved, That the foreign immigration which in the past has added so much to the wealth and development of resources and increase of power to this nation, the asylum of the oppressed of all nations, should be fostered and encouraged by a liberal and just policy.

Resolved, That we are in favor of the speedy construction of the railroad to the Pacific.

Resolved, That the national faith pledged for the redemption of the public debt must be kept inviolate, and that for this purpose we recommend economy and rigid responsibility in the public expenditures, and a vigorous and just system of taxation; that it is the duty of every loyal state to sustain the credit and promote the use of the national currency.

Resoved, That we approve the position taken by the government that the people of the United States can never regard with indifference the attempt of any European power to overthrow by force or to supplant by fraud the institutions of any republican government on the western continent, and that they will view with extreme jealousy, as menacing to the peace and independence of this our country, the efforts of any such power to obtain new footholds for monarchial governments, sustained by a foreign military force in near proximity to the United States.

We clip the following from the Winona Republican of a late date;

All of our State exchanges speak of the heavy current of immigration setting in to the interior counties of Minnesota. The entire region south of the Minnesota river, down to the Iowa line, and west to the Dakota boundary, is being populated at a rate never before equaled in the history of our State. A large number of immigrants, direct form Norway, arrived here on Wednesday morning, by steamboat, and on Tuesday about seventy-five wagons, each containing a family, crossed the river at La Crosse, all bound for the Blue Earth country. In addition to such pleasing facts as these, we have most encouraging reports from all quarters of the State concerning the growing crops. The wheat, both winter and spring, is in splendid condition, and promises an abundant yield.

It is not true as reported that Senator B. Gratz Brown, of Misscuri, whose name was at the head of the first call for the Cleveland Convention, was absent from the convention on account of sickness.

He was in his seat in the Senate on Monday and Tuesday, in most excellent health. Dr. Cheever of New York, whose name headed the signatures of another of the calls was also in Washington on Monday.

The reason of his absence from the convention is said to have been "pressing engagements" elsewhere.

A correspondent of the New York Herald suggests that persons owning shade trees that are infested with worms will at once bore a hole in the trunk of each tree extending to the center or heart of the tree and then fill the hole up with pulverized sulphur and plug it up tight. In a short time the sulphur will spread through all the branches, and the worms will soon disappear.

The War Department gives the State of Indiana credit for 122,416 three years' volunteers, and charges her with her quotas under all calls, 110,923 men leaving a credit to the State over all calls of 11,487 men.

The State is entitled to a further credit of about 3,000 re enlisted veterans not included in the above account.

TELEGRAPH NEWS.

The War in Virginia.

June 10, 1864.—The enemy are busy throwing up fortifications in vicinity of Summer's Bridge and Bottom's Bridge. The spires of Richmond are visible from these points, and wagon trains can be seen moving within three or four miles of the city, where the road for a short distance is visible.

Very litele firing has taken place to-day. As change in our position has been made within the last 2 days.

Last evening as Col McAllister of the 11th New York was riding along the line he was fired upon by a rebel sharpshooter, notwithstanding, there has been a tacit agreement that no picket firing should take place. The bullet passed across the Colonel's breast, and entered the heart of the Colonel's orderly who was riding with him. The entire command was at once put under arms expecting an attack, but nothing further transpired.

New York, June 14.—The World says that it is now discovered that the army under Grant has effected a change of base to the James River.

All the movements of that army since the battle of Friday, the 3rd have aimed at this consummation, which was shadowed forth, though not declared in former dispatches.

The city has been filled with rumors to-day that Fort Darling is largely invested and must soon surrender, thus allowing gunboats to pass up James River.

A mail came up to-day also the 2d Wisconsin regiment whose term of service has expired.

Both armies in fact have been enjoying the repose necessary after the hard fighting and marching of the past three weeks of the campaign.

The silence of to-day is even more marked than before.

The sound of a musket has scarcely been heard along the entire front.

From present indications it is not likely that there will be any fighting for several days to come but the storm is brewing, and may burst in quarters where it is least expected.

New York, June 14. The Commercial says, we are authorized to state that the Secretary of the Treasury will accept in payment toward the seventy-five million loan, the two year five per cent legal tenders, allowing the accrued interest, and also ordinary certificates of deposit with accrued interest. This arrangemen will materially facilitate subscriptions to the loan.

Large amounts of legal tenders of the two years issue are being retired at the Sub-Treasury. On Saturday about 6 000,000 were retired; yesterday, 7,000,000, and to day the amount will probably reach 7,000,000, making a total of $20,000,000 in three days.

WILL YOU GO—Up in the Balloon that Charlie Heinze is going to send up on the evening of the 4th of July?

FOR SALE.—A "purp"—a diminutive Shepherd dog. He's not imported.

W. P. GOULD'S new building will be completed next week, and soon thereafter he will be prepared to supply customers with good "sirloin steaks."

THE river is lower now than it was ever known to be. If the Cavalry horses had remained here much longer there would'nt have been a drop left.

SALE OF TOWN PROPERTY.—Thos. J. Swayne, has sold to Chas. N. Nelson, his house and lot, a very desirable peice of own property for $4,500.

U. S. Collector Hall is now in Rochester receiving commutation money from conscripts. He will probably be absent until the first of next week.

PAYMASTER.—C. S. Duncombe, Esq., of this place, has been appointed Acting Assistant Paymaster in the Navy.

THE CROPS.—Farmers from this and Faribault counties inform us that crops are suffering considerably for the want of rain. Early sown wheat is doing the best. The potato crop it is feared will be light.

FIRE WORKS.—Charlie Heinze has just received a fine lot of fire-works, for the young folks to use in patriotic displays on the Fourth. Also a lot of bird cages, children's wagons, willow baskets, &c, which he will sell cheap.

WE are now agent for both St. Paul dailies the Press and Pioneer—and will furnish the latter on the same terms that we do the Press. Persons wishing to take either of the weeklies can send, us their names with the money, and they will be promptly forwarded.

BROWN'S Bronchial Troches, for Coughs, Colds' and Irritated Throats are offered with the fullest confidence in their efficacy. They have been thoroughly tested, and maintain the good reputation they have justly acquired. As there are imitations, be sure to obtain the genuine.

THE notice of a Fourth of July picnic published elsewhere, forestalls an article we had prepared on that subject. We hope our citizens will interest themselves in this matter, and go and have a good time.

MEAGHER has something new in the shape of a Patent Stove cover lifter and dish holder, which is an indispensible article for the kitchen. With it one can remove anything and everything from the stove. Price 25 cents.

ALLOTMENT MONEY.—The American Express Company brought up Wednesday night nine hundred and forty-five dollars from Co H. 4th Regiment. It has been distributed, according to directions, to the families of the soldiers. The Company is now stationed at Huntsville, Ala.

THE BAKERS' CONCERT.—These celebrated vocalists gave two of their unrivalled musical entertainments in this place on Monday and Tuesday evenings last. They were listened to with marked attention. Their singing did not detract at all from the excellent repetation they have heretofore enjoyed.

Emigration from Wisconsin and Illinois to Blue Earth and Faribault counties is said to be unparalelled. Over a hundred emigrant teams camped a few miles east of Winnebago last week, and hundreds more are on the road from LaCrosse. They are all just the right kind of solid, substantial farmers, who will add to the wealth and prosperity of these two counties.

EARLY PEAS.—Wm. L. Wilson, yesterday, presented us with a fine mess of early Peas, of the Tom Thumb, or Strawberry variety, and will please accept our thanks for the same. They were raised in his own garden. He is always among the first to bring around early vegetables.

GEO. W. LAMBERTON, a member of Co. E 2d Cavalry, had one of his legs smashed, and the other badly injured, by a mule falling on him, while on duty near Hutchinson. It is feared that one of his legs will have to be amputated.

HORSES STOLEN.—On Sunday night last, three horses and a young colt were stolen from E. D. Chappell, E. P. Hull, and Isaac Allen, of Kasota Le Sueur County. On Sunday two men were seen in that vicinity, claiming to be looking for lost horses. Both had bridles in their hands, and inquired particularly of Mr. Chappell's family, where he was, and when he would be at home. There is no doubt but what these persons stole the horses, after dark. As will be seen elsewhere, one hundred dollars reward is offered for their recovery.

RESIGNED.—Private letters from Major G. K. Cleveland inform us that Capt. J. J. Thornton, of this place, has been obliged, on account of ill-health, to resign his position as Quartermaster in the Army, and that he would soon start for Minnesota.

WARD says that he has got more silk cloaks, and mantillas, and cloth cloaks than any other man in town. He wants all the ladies to come and buy before they join the anti importation Society, which he thinks a grand good one.

LADIES NATIONAL COVENANT MEETING.—The meeting of the ladies of Mankato, on Saturday afternoon, June 11th, for the purpose of organizing a Society auxiliary to the Ladies' National Covenant at Washington, was called to order by Mrs. John J. Shaubhat, who was appointed chairman.

The address and covenant adopted by the Society at Washington were read, after which the following officers were elected:

President—MRS. M. E. SIBLEY.
Vice Pres—MRS. THOMAS DAY.
Cor. Sec'y—MISS D. A FLOWER.
Rec. Sec'y—MISS J. A. PARSONS.

Signatures to the covenant were then obtained numbering twenty-six.

On motion, the meeting then adjourned to meet on the 2d of July.

NEW SAFE.—E. H. Smith & Co., have just received a new safe from Cincinnatti, of Diebold. Bahmann & Co's make. It weighs 4,520 ibs, and cost, set up in their office, over a thousand dollars. It is fire and burglar proof, and is elegantly finished. Our bankers deserve credit for the energy they have shown, in bringing it here. There, Smith, we'll take a bowl full of ice cream.

THE DRAFT.
Correspondence from Rochester.

ROCHESTER, June 14th, 1864.

FRIEND SLOCUM.—I am here, as you know, receiving the commutation of the drafted men who propose to pay their $300 rather than don the uniform of Uncle Sam. From present appearances a great proportion, not exempted, will pay commutation. I have this evening deposited in the Express office $24,600 received today from eighty-two drafted men, and we are to-night making out receipts for forty-two more. I think that by to-morrow night I shall have received fully $50,000. The general opinion is that at least five to six hundred will commute in this district. The rush to pay to-day has been tremendous, as a good many had reported before the time fixed in their notices. Probably to-morrow the crowd will get thinned out some, but we shall be kept quite busy for some time.

Several ladies have been here to pay for their husbands, and the good souls appeared to be delighted to pay over the money, only they were anxious to know whether the said husbands would be liable to another draft.

Rochester is a live town, and, in addition to the regular business of the place and the great crowd of drafted men here, to-day has been show day. The "elephant" has been here with all the side show arrangements. Buildings are going up in all directions, and everything betokens prosperity to the town.

Yours,
JOHN N. HALL.

PROF. POWERS' LECTURE.—Prof. Powers is stopping at the Clifton, and will remain there during to day, and attend to Physiological and Phrenological delineations. He will lecture to night at City Hall on the "Philosophy of Religion." Give him a full house.

A SINGLE BOX OF BRANDRETH'S PILLS—contains more vegetable extractive matter than twenty boxes of any pills in the world besides; fifty-five hundred physicians use them in their practice to the exclusion of other purgatives. The first letter of their value is yet scarcely appreciated. When they are better known sudden death and continued sickness will be of the past. Let those who know them speak right out in their favor. It is a duty which will save life.

Our race are subject to a redundancy of vitiated bile at this season, and it is as dangerous as it is prevalent; but Brandreth's Pills afford an invaluable and efficient protection. By their occasional use we prevent the collection of those impurities, which, when in sufficient quantities, cause so much danger to the body's health. They soon cure liver complaint, dyspepsia, loss of appetite, pain in the head, heartburn, pain in the breast-bone, sudden faintness and costiveness. THE HISTORY OF HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS.—The most remarkable medicine of the day, and the many cures that have been performed with it in cases of Liver Complaint, Dispepsia, Nervous Debility, and other diseases arising from a disordered stomach or liver, places it at once among the most astonishing discoveries that has taken place in the medical world. The diseases to which bitters are applicable are so universal that there are but few of our friends who may not test their virtues in their own families or circle of acquaintances and prove to their own satisfaction that there is at least one remedy among the many advertised medicines, deserving the public commendation.

A SINGLE BOX OF BRANDRETH'S PILLS—contains more vegetable extractive matter than twenty boxes of any pills in the world besides; fifty-five hundred physicians use them in their practice to the exclusion of other purgatives. The first letter of their value is yet scarcely appreciated. When they are better known sudden death and continued sickness will be of the past. Let those who know them speak right out in their favor It is a duty which will save life.

Our races are subject to a redundancy of vitiated bile at this season, and it is as dangerous as it is prevalent; but Brandreth's Pills afford an invaluable and efficient protection. By their occasional use we prevent the collection of those impurities, which, when in sufficient quantities, cause so much danger to the body's health. They soon cure liver complaint, dyspepsia loss of appetite, pain in the head, heart-burn, pain in the breast-bone, sudden faintness and costiveness. Sold by Wickersham, & Kilgore, Mankato Minn. and by all respectable dealers in medicines. 42

SEWING MACHINES.

THESE Machines make the lock stitch alike on both sides, and use less than half the thread and silk that the single or double thread loop-stitch Machines do; will He , Fell, Gather, Cord, Braid, Bind, &c., an are better adapted than any other Sewing Machine in use to the frequent changes and great variety of sewing required in a family, for they will sew from one to twenty thicknesses of Marseilles without stopping, and make every stitch perfect, or from the finest gauze to the heaviest beaver cloth, or even the stoutest harness leather, without changing the feed, needle or tension, or making any adjustment of Machine whatever!!!

They are simple in construction, and easily understood: and if any part is broken by accident, it is readily replaced.

These are PECULIAR FACTS, and will go far to determine the choice of any intelligent buyer.

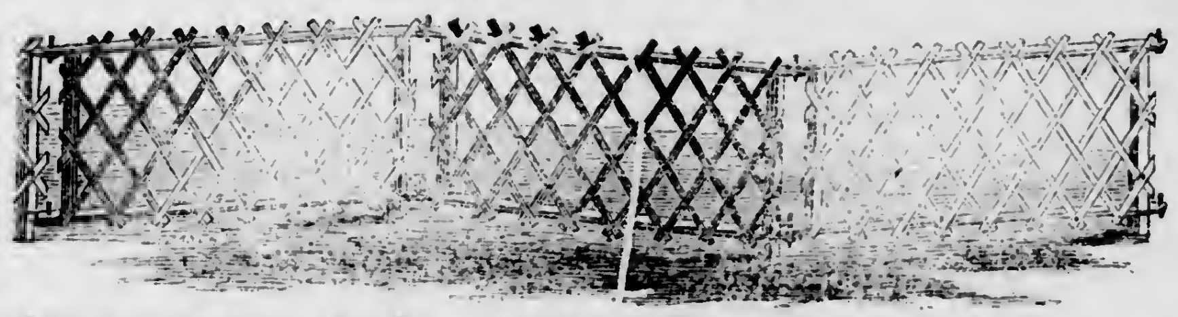
R. HAYNES'



Portable Brace Fence!

PATENTED APRIL 7, 1863.

WE claim for this Fence greater strength and durability with less expense than any ordinary farm fence. No farmer who studies economy and convenience in the management of his farm will be without it. The First Premium was awarded to Mr. Haynes' Portable Fence, at the late State Fairs in Ohio and Michigan, and at several County Fairs. Read the following extract:

"Among the many things we saw on exhibition at the State Fair was Haynes' Portable Brace Fence. This fence seems to be a great improvement over most Fences of the kind It is very strong, and is so braced that wind can have no more effect upon it, if as much, as upon a common rail fence. It is light, yet heavy enough for all farm purposes Its cost is but little, and much labor is saved by using this fence, as it is easily put up, and in after years easily repaired. Every farmer ought to see this remarkable fence. We hope Mr. Haynes will be induced to exhibit it at our County Fair.—Medina (Ohio) Gazette.

Mr. H. has also invented a mould or bench upon which this fence is made. By using this bench any farmer can make the fence at a rapid rate. Full directions for making the bench and the fence upon it accompany each deed. For farm or township rights address.

HOSTETTER'S

CELEBRATED

STOMACH BITTERS.

A pure and powerful tonic, corrective and alterative of wonderful efficacy in disease of the Stomach, Liver and bowels. Cures, Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Headache, General Debility, Nervousness, Depression of Spirits, Constipation Colic, Intermittent Fevers, Cramps and Spasms, and all Complaints of either Sex arising from Boodily Weakness whether inherent in the system or produced by special causes. Nothing that is not wholesome genial and restorative in its nature enters into the composition of Hostetters Stomach Bitters. This popular preparations contains no mineral of any kind, no deadly botanical element; no fiery excitant; but it is a combination of the extracts of rare balsamic herbs and plants with the purest and mildest of all diffusive stimulants. It is well to be forearmed against disease, and, so far as the human system can be protected by human means against maladies engendered by an unwholesome atmosphere, impure water and other external causes, Hostetters Bitters may be relied on as a safeguard. In districts infested with Fever and Ague, it has been found infallible as a preventive and irresistible as a remedy and thousands who resort to it under apprehensions of an attack, escape the scourge, and thousands who neglect to avail themselves of its protective qualities in advance are cured by a very brief course of this marvelous medicine. Fever and Ague patients, after being plied with quinine for months in vain until fairly saturated with that dangerous alkaloid, are not unfrequently restored to health, within a few days by the use of Hostetter's Bitters. The weak stomach is rapidly invigorated and the appetite restored by this agreeable Tonic and hence it works wonders in cases of Dispepsia and in less confirmed forms of indigestion. Acting as a gentle and painless apperent, as well as upon the liver, it also invariably relieves the Constipation superinduced by irregular action of the digestive and secretive organs: Persons of feeble habit, liable to Nervous attacks, Lowness of spirits and fits of Languor, find prompt and permanent relief from the Bitters. The testimony on this point is most conclusive, and from both sexes. The agony of billous colic, is immediately assuaged by a single dose of the stimulant, and by occasionally resorting to it, the return of the complaint may be prevented. As a general tonic, Hostetter's Bitters produce effects which must be experienced or witnessed before they can be fully appreciated. In cases of constitutional Weakness, Premature Decay, and debility and decrepitude arising from old age, it exercises the electric influence. In the convalescent stages of all diseases it operates as a delightful invigorant. When the powers of nature are relaxed, it operates to re-inforce and re-establish them. Last but not least, it is the only safe stimulant, being manufactured from sound and innocuous materials, and entirely free from the acid elements present more or less in all the ordinary tonics and stomachics of the day. No family medicine has been so universally, and it may be truly added, deservedly popular with the intelligent portion of the community, as Hostetter's Bitters. Prepared by Hostetter and Smith, Pittsburgh, Pa. Sold by all Druggists, Grocers and Storekeepers everywhere. 23

ONE YEAR AGO.

BY LOUIS GRAYLE.

Into the gold of sunset,
Under a summer sky,
Over the waves we glided,
She whom I loved and I.

Slowly we moved o'er the waters,
Never a word we spoke;
Only the laughing ripples
The musical silence broke.

The glory all had faded,
Which the sky at sunset wove,
The twilight cloud around us,
Ere we gained the darkened shore.

One year ago we glided
Together o'er the wave:
Last night, when the moon was shining,
I stood alone by her grave.

Select Miscellany.

A Chapter in the History of Missouri Methodism.

ADDRESS OF REV. N. SHUMATE

The following sketch of the remarks of Rev. N. Shumate, at the Fast day service at Salem Methodist Episcopal Church we publish at the request of some of our subscribers:

Mr. Shumate said, it was in the fall of 1853 that he was transfered to the Missouri Conference by Bishop Ames, and stationed in the city of Hannibal. He had been unaccustomed to the strife of border life, and his appointment was the subject of great anxiety to his mind. The bishop had said to him 'You go to that country as a Methodist preacher, to preach Christ and Him crucified to bond and free. The politicians will take care of the country. They will attend to the slavery question.' He had acted upon the bishop's advice. It has been understood that the people of that country are conservative, but it was more a conservatism of action than of sentiment. They agreed with him in holding every principal of the Methodist Discipline on the subject of slavery. They regarded that as an anti-slavery document, and as apostolic in its teachings, and they had never swerved one jot or title from the book on that subject; and though they could not carry themselves against slavery because it was upheld by the laws of the state, whenever slavery came within the pale of the church, they dealt with it according to the law of the church. In eleven years administration, he had met with one such case, and in that the church law was rightly applied, and the person was expelled. But conservatism had its day. It lived to see its mission accomplished, and was set aside, and they were now trying to meet the demands of the present times. He thanked God that they lived to see the end of slavery. They had no tears to shed over the death of this direful evil. He rejoiced in God that it was gone.

It was a remarkable fact that Methodism had furnished the first bloodshed in this great contest. As far back as 1853, his first year in Missouri, such was the disturbance of the public mind on this question that the Methodist preachers and people were threatened on every hand. They could not pass from one town to another without being in great danger of falling into the hands of pro-slavery mobs, who would maltreat them, if not take their lives. He supposed the pro-slavery party supposed they might in this way scare them out of the state, and have the whole territory to themselves. But they did not give way; and when their opponents saw there was firmness and integrity on their part they assumed a more threatening attitude toward them; and it was but a little while before they were privileged—if it might be called a privilege—to furnish them a victim upon whom to spend their malignity and spite.

In 1852, a young man named Kelly was transfered from the Indiana Conference and stationed in the north part of the state. At one of his quarterly meetings a mob entered the house and forcibly took him from the pulpit, stating that he was an escaped convict from the Iowa penitentiary at Fort Madison, and that they were going ot take him back where he belonged. A convict has escaped from that institution; but the persons who took Kelly knew that he was not the man, as he did not answer to the description in the advertisement; but this advertisement served as a pretext for their course, and an opology for laying violent hands on him. They proceeded to take him from the pulpit, they pinioned him, while four of them stood by with revolvers in their hands, swearing that if anybody attempted to interfere they would blow their brains out for them. They tied him, put him on a horse, and started with him, without his coat or gloves, while the cold wind of December was sweeping over those western prairies; and they hurried him out to Fort Madison, Iowa, with a view to delivering him up.

His presiding elder, Rev. Mr. Denison, had his coat and gloves, and followed them, and begging them to let him put them on, but they refused to allow it. Taking another course from that of the murderes, he succeeded in reaching Fort Madison before they came there, and made arrangements to arrest them. They took Kelly to the penitentiary, and as soon as the warden saw him, he said: 'I have nothing to do with that man. He does not belong here.' The officers were there, and took up the kidnappers and took them before a magistrate, who decided that, as the crime was committed in another state, he had no authority, and let them go. The presiding elder took Kelly to his residence, a distance of about seventy-five miles. He never sat up another day, and in the course of a few weeks he died from the effects of the treatment received at the hands of these murderers. His body rests in the cemetery at Quincy Illinois, on the other bank of the Mississippi, and rests there, as the martyr of Methodism in the great struggle.

To illustrate the state of the public mind at the time I may state that a distinguished lawyer of that county was waited on by the friend of Bro Kelly, and $500 offered him if he would prosecute the murderer. At first he consented, but afterward refused, stating as his reason that any man who would defend the Northern Methodist Church would ruin himself there for all time to come. He was asked if he would do it for $1,000. He replied, 'No, not for $5,000. My reputation in this state is worth more than $20,000 to me.' The grand jury took no notice of it, and the murderers of Kelly go yet unpunished, so far as he was advised. He refered to the Kansas border in 1856-57. He said many Methodists along the border were drawn into the strife, and had to leave their homes. The first victims there were the ministers and members of the Methodist Church.

He related the brutal treatment received by Rev. Mr. Sellers, who was smeared all over with tar by a pro-slavery mob They rubbed the tar in his hair, and over his face, eyes and neck, pouring it down his body, under his shirt-collar, and also filled his mouth with tar. They then told him to leave; and when remonstrated with by a friend of his, they asked the friend, 'Who are you?' and, without waiting for a reply, shot him dead.

Those events gave license to the mob spirit throughout the state, and most of the leading men of the church were compelled to leave. They could not hold the session of the annual conference at the place appointed; and; in 1858, they were confined to a few counties on the Mississippi, river. He wished to state these things, because, while they were undergoing the fiery trials, some of the brethrin in the East seemed to have little pity for them Sainted James V. Watson, formerly editor of the Northwestern Christian Advocate, said to him in a private letter: 'The best thing you can do is to pull up stakes and leave that country. Slavery will spread all over these lands, and it is worse than useless for you to maintain the church in that region of country.'

However, we stood true to our post until the year 1859, when we received our last regular appointment from Bishop Morris, immediately before the outbreaking of the war. He said to the bishop then.' 'I shall receive my appointment and stand up to it, as well as I can; but don't be surprised if you hear that we have to give up our work, or that some of us are killed.' He was sent up to Jefferson City District, and in less than two months the whole country was alive with rebels, and there was no chance to save our lives but to take to the brush and do the best we could to protect ourselves. Several suggested leaving the country.

The speaker then related an instance of attack upon one of the meetings under his charge. They had assembled for preaching, to hold the services of a quarterly meeting, and such was the state of alarm that they considered it best to prepare themselves for any emergency. All the guns, pistols, and axes that could be secured were brought into the house, and they were resolved to defend themselves to the utmost or sell their lives as dearly as possible, for they had information of a threatening attack. It was not long before the mob came upon them. Halting at some distance from the house, they sent a young man as a spy, to see their strength and means of defense. He came into the house. The speaker occupied a chair before a stand near the door, for they were worshiping in a private house. He saw from appearances that mischief was brewing. The young man looked round and counted their number, and then retired. Their position was critical, God, however, by a very small circumstance, over which they had no control, helped them. There was an upstairs to the house in which they were, and the children, quite a number of whom were there, being noisy, were sent up stairs so as not to disturb the meeting, and they continued to keep considerable noise, stamping and running over the floor and talking to each other. The spy returned and reported that they had over thirty men in the house, and he should judge, about that many up stairs, making over sixty in all. He was afraid if they made the attack then, they would be defeated. He was asked if he had seen any guns there, and replied that he had seen a great many. He was asked if he had seen 'Old Ben' there, referring to Benjamin Harrison, the owner of the house, and a man of courage and determination. He answered yes, he was there, and besides that he had seen a pistol lying on the stand before the preacher. They finally decided to defer the attack until night, and went off.

The speaker explained the manner in which they obtained information of their plans.

They prepared for the attack at night, stationing pickets out on all sides, and one man, who had a double barreled shot gun, hid himself in some currant bushes in the garden. After a while the mob came up the lane and to within twenty feet of the house, and near where the man was concealed in the bushes. Their leader said, 'Let us send in a spy, and see if they are any stronger than they were in the morning.' The same circumstance was repeated that occured in the morning. The children were up stairs, and made considerable noise, and were again mistaken by the spy for some of the party. They had more in their company also. Several had come in during the day, and they had more guns than in the morning.

The brethren, consulted him as to what they had better do. He felt inclined not to give up the ground in the face of a mob, and he said to them, 'If you will stand together, we will defend ourselves, if possible, and not give up in this way. It is cowardly to abandon the place. We shall have to fight any way, and for my part, I would as lief the war should be inaugurated here as any where else.'

He explained how he came to have the pistol before him. He had been compelled to arm himself in self defense, and feeling a little lop-sided while speaking with the pistol in his side pocket, he had taken it out of his pocket, and laid it down before him. In this way the service had commenced. It was a strange mixing up of things, which he had not been used to—fighting and praying, war and preaching—but they could not avoid it. And he supposed he was confused; they told him his sermon was as much mixed up as their surroundings were.

Well, when they stopped in the road they sent in their spy again.

He counted forty men—our man in the bushes heard what he said—and he did not know how many were up stairs. They first calculated on waiting till after preaching and then demanding the surrender of the preacher, and if they could not get the preacher they would burn the barn, hoping to draw them out from the house, and then attack them.

They waited till after preaching.

Just at this moment a dashing shower of rain came up, as it were providentially, and they, perhaps not liking to get wet, retired. The next morning they had their services and then left for their homes.

He felt encouraged. He thought that by a little firmness they would be able to stand their ground. He concluded not to go lop-sided any longer. He procured another pistol and started home. He had to go some thirty miles, and on the way he met a friend who told him that a vigilance committee had been formed at the court house of Phidies county; that they had the names of all loyal men, who were divided into two classes, the first of which were required to leave on notice, and he was in the first class. The rebels were between him and home, and what to do he did not know. He took the cars for Rolla. On reaching that place he saw the rebel flag for the first time, and he can never forget his feelings at that hour.

He felt humbled and ashamed that he was in such a place, and among such a people.

A gentleman from Springfield, Missouri, who was doing business there, and with whom he was acquainted, happened to see him getting out of the cars, and said to him, 'You are in danger; the mob are hunting you; in the present condition of things you are not safe for a moment.'' He said to him, 'Can you do anything for me?' He said, 'I don't know; I will see.' The stage happened to be there, and he told me to get in, and drive rapidly through the town. As they passed through the square, he drew the curtains slightly apart, so that he could see what was going on, and he could not describe the scene that presented itself to his view. They were recruiting for Jeff Davis, and he described the crowd as drunken, filthy, horrible; next to wild beasts their band consisted of a tin dinner horn, and an old accordeon, and they marched round with a straggling crowd of dirty men and ragged boys following in their train.

It was a critical moment, but, through God's mercy, he got out of the town in safety, and made his way toward home, which he expected to find in ashes; but it was not.

He soon learned the rebels were too strong for him and he made arrangements for sending his family away; and then he went himself, leaving his effects behind him much of which he had never seen since, and never expected to. He went westward and his family eastward. On his journey he slept out with the buffalo robe which he had on his saddle for his bed. Sometimes he was drenched with rain; and often he was pinched with hunger. He finally reached St. Louis, and with his heart full of the determination to avenge his worngs, he enlisted as a private in the army of the United States. His friends did not let him remain long in the ranks, but elected him their chaplain.

He stayed in the army two years, and did the best he could for God and his country.

He said that so soon as the rebel army began to recruit in the state the Methodist people were the first victims sought out by them and were treated without mercy. He referred to the stoning of the Methodist Church in Jefferson City. They broke the windows, pews, pulpit, and furniture to atoms, and two cart loads of stones were taken out of the church afterward. Their families were driven from home. The men and boys took to the woods, and the women suffered the vilest abuse at the hands of the rebels, such as could not be described here. In the general storm, but three of the preachers maintained their position in the state; the rest fled. But God was merciful. Soon after the fall of Fort Sumter, General Lyon captured the rebel camp near St. Louis, and shortly after the rebels were driven out of the state.

After the fall of Lyon, the whole state was again overrun by the rebels.

He was then in Jefferson City, and hearing that the people were coming in, he went out to meet them, and the sight was indescribable. God forbid that he should ever see such a sight again. Among them were multitudes barefooted, bareheaded, with little clothing to cover them, who had been compelled to leave their homes and property, and fly for their lives He saw women traveling, carrying their children, without a shoe to their feet, and they had traveled for a hundred miles over the hardest roads he ever saw—over the sharp flint rocks of the Ozark Mountains—and their feet were bleeding at every step.

He gave these as instances of what had been endured by our people in Missouri. They had learned from these circumstances, if from nothing else, to be loyal to the Union. These persecutions had made them intensely loyal and they intended so to be.

They had succeeded under the blessing of God, in keeping above the waters, and they intended to stand by the old flag, sink or swim, survive or perish.

The power of slavery in Missouri is broken. The slaves had gone off to a great extent. He had been on the river where he could see the grand exodus. They had had a very cold winter, and God had bridged the river for them which is a little unusual that far south. And while the slave masters were trying to prevent them, and making them offers of freedom if they would only stay with them, when God froze the river they started across the river, carrying their packs on their backs: and as soon as they were across the river, they turned northward, and said, 'Farewell to old massa!' These men became suddenly very loyal, and persuaded the blacks to enlist, so they could get their $380, and not lose their negroes entirely!

A great change has come over the country, and the people now say, as we express it in the West, that slavery is 'played out.' He had heard a Missouri Congressman say that 'his mind had changed on the 'nigger question; he believed that slavery is religiously, and morally, and politically and socially wrong, and they would never have peace until slavery is done away with. He was in favor of immediate emancipation, without compensation to the owner. They had had the slaves long enough to pay for them twice over.'

The Boston fire department has ten steam fire engines, eight horse hose carriages, one hand hose carriage, three hook and ladder carriages, and thirty-four horses, with their various equipments and appurtenances. The number of members to which the department is entitled by the ordinances of the city is two hundred and fifty-four, exclusive of the board of engineers.

An army chaplain preaching to his soldiers exclaimed: "If God is with us, who can be against us?" "Jeff. Davis and the devil.', promptly exclaimed one of our boys.

Our Representative Men.

Abraham Lincoln, rising steadily by the elevating power of his abilities and his political principles—from the flat-boat to the Presidential Chair, is a fit representative of the genius of our free North. Labor, self-culture, great natural sagacity, and an inflexible integrity, personal and political, combined with a firm conviction of the righteousness of freedom and the wrong of slavery, have placed him where he is. He knew them both. Slavery, by depriving his youth of all advantages, launched and left him on a flat-boat. But that flat boat, bearing him across the Ohio to free soil, freedom supplied what slavery had denied, and bore him steadily upward to the Presidency. At the South he would have belonged to the despised class of "poor whites." The energizing power of freedom impels him onward and upward till he succeeds to the chair of Washington, Jefferson, Madison, Monroe and Jackson, only the first and last of whom, if any of them, will occupy a larger or more admirable place in history than he. When elected, as he certainly will be, he will be the first President twice elected from the Northern States. It is eminently fit that he should be such a representative of the genius of our free and democratic North, which is henceforth the country. Andrew Johnson, springing from the same class of "poor whites" at the South, has fought his way up against the aristocratic slaveholding class, step by step, tooth and nail, asking no favors of the chivalry, and getting fewer than he asked. He knows what slavery is, for he has felt its barb. He felt it when, a journeyman shoemaker sustaining his mother by working over his lapstone, he learned his alphabet by midnight toil—never having the opportunity to attend school a day in his life.

Having arrived at manhood, and married, he learned from his wife to write and "cypher." Still he had no books, and with all this assiduity his education at the South at thirty was barely what a child of his talents at the North have acquired at ten. What had Andy Johnson then to thank the boasted "Southern institutions" for, save for keeping him, up to his manhood, in intense ignorance, and robbing him of all the light and joy of the most precious twenty years of his life. He felt the curse. He knew why every free State had free schools and every slave State had none. Since that time he has been a representative man of the poor whites of Tennessee; They recognized him as one of themselves, and so far as slavery had left them brains enough to stand in sympathy with him he led them. Fighting secession tooth and nail as he fought the slave aristocracy, for it was but his old enemy in a new form, the long start which the secessionists got of the Unionists under Buchanan's administration enabled them temporarily to triumph over him and drive him from his State. When Fort Donelson opened the State to Union arms, he returned, and it was not long before, fully emancipated himself from the power and influence of slavery, he struck the key-note of emancipation for all. The extirpation of slavery has now few, if any, more radical advocates than Andrew Johnson, of Tennesse, who, except Andrew Jackson from the same State, is almost or quite, the only person sprung from the class of poor whites whom 'Southern institutions'' have permitted to rise to prominent national positions of usefulness and honor.

Why has the Republican party selected these two men from our vast population? Not because of their abilities alone, however great they may be, but because our contest is one of liberty against slavery, of democracy and equality against aristocracy and caste, of brains against blood, or personal worth against first family favoritism, of the laboring man against the man owner, and we want to show what freedom does for the poor man. We would show the world that our enemies build wrongly, and that we build rightly. Therefore it is that these stones which the false builders have rejected we "have made the head of the corner."—Chicago Tribune,

A HEAVY BLOW.—'I was once in Montpelier, 'said the colonel, on official business. During my stay a horse race came off at the capital; and as I am rather partial to horse-racing, I went to see it. Just as the horses were about starting, some fellow insulted me by jostling me rather roughly. Now, you know, that I don't often fight, but when I strike I do strike. So I up fist and hit him a blow that sent him against the fence into a field, carrying with him nine sections of posts and rails. The fellow lay a short time, then raising himself to a sitting posture, he looked wildly around him. 'Gentlemen,' said he, has the storm done much damage? Did the lightning strike anybody but me?'

Hurrah for Abraham Lincoln, just fills out this column.

How to Choose a Cow.

There is always some risk in buying a cow, of whose previous character and history we know nothing, for there are no infallible signs of excellence. A rough, scrawney, coarse, ill-shapen cow is often a noble milker. Yet there are a few points generally agreed upon by experienced farmers, which is well to consider before purchasing. A small boned head and light horns are better than large. Long legs make too wide a gap between udder and milk-pail, and long-legged cows are seldom quiet feeders, but wander about too much. A slender rather than a thick neck, a straight back, wide ribs and broad brisket, are to be sought for. The body of the cow should be large in porportion to the head, neck and legs, though not excessively large; and the hind quarters if large out of proportion indicate good milking qualities. Medium sized cows, all things considered, prove the best milkers for the amount of food they consume. The color of the hair has probably nothing to do with the milking qualities, and good looks should be regarded but little in the purchase of dairy animals. As to the color of the skin, a bright yellow, approaching that of gold coin, creamy color within the ears—this and good rich milk are very apt to go together; and withal a soft flexible hide, loose over the ribs and rump, is also to be sought. The udder should be large, soft and full-sized milk veins, which ramify over it, with funsized milk veins stretching forward along the belly, and let the teats be large and not crowded together. Test the cow's disposition and inquire about it. Irritable and nervous cows are unpleasant to handle, and almost always scanty milkers. Something can be ascertained from their looks and motions. Large, mild, easy, quiet motions when driven, and gentleness when handled, indicate good nature. What the butchers term 'good handling,' is an important quality in a milch cow, for it indicates not only good milking properties, but easy fattening, when service in the dairy is over.—American Agriculturist.

SINGULAR CIRCUMSTANCE.—In another part of this paper will be found the name of a Sargeant D. M. Boyden, of this village a member of the 7th Rhode Island Regiment, who was wounded in one of the late battles in Virginia. On that day that he was wounded, his mother, in coming from the cellar of her residence; says she distinctly heard the voice of Decatur cry out, 'Oh, mother!' The voice was so natural that she expected to see her son when she came up stairs. As no one was there, she was convinced from that moment that her son was either killed or wounded. Two other members of this family, not residing with the mother, and knowing nothing of the facts recorded above dreamed on that night that Decatur was wounded. One of these persons (a lady) was so impressed with her dream, that she arose and dressed herself, being unable to sleep. These persons are all of the highest respectability and veracity. The mother's warning and the dreams of the others have been fully verified. Decatur was wounded by a shell in the side. How can these singular circumstances be accounted for?—Woonsocket Patriot.

UNION PRESIDENTIAL TICKET.

FOR PRESIDENT:
ABRAHAM LINCOLN,
OF ILLINOIS.

FOR VICE PRESIDENT.
ANDREW JOHNSON,
OF TENNESSEE.

From the Ninth Regiment.

We publish elsewhere a letter relating to the conduct of the 9th regiment in the late disaster that happened to Gen. Sturgis' expedition, below Memphis. The loss to Co. E, from this county is very slight, nearly all the boys having come in. We had hoped to receive a list of the casualties before going to press, but shall not be able to publish it until our next. The boys of Co. D are nearly all missing. It went into the fight with 65 men, and came out with only five. The Ninth fought bravely, and won imperishable glory.

A NEW DICTIONARY.—The Saint Peter Statesman, published by a Green(y) is getting up a new dictionary, and sends out the proof sheets of four pages each in advance. We have examined the work carefully, and find it contains but four words and their definitions. They are, "Treasury thieves" and "loyal traitors." No one subscribes for it but Copperheads, and they all agree as to the correct rendering of the words.

Fernando Wood, Sam Cox and Senator Richardson, write that the Chicago Convention will not be postponed. It seems to be generally understood that General Grant will not have any strength in the Convention as a candidate for Presidency, unless he should take Richmond before the 4th of July. General McClellan's chances are still considered good.

It is a matter of record that Gen. [illegible] and Morgan at Cynthiana [illegible] some months ago, the threats of Gov. Bramlette, to the effect that he would resist further recruiting of negro soldiers by saying that at the slightest attempt to translate those words into acts, he would march with his whole command against all who should join in such attempts.

REBEL LOSSES.—The Richmond Enquirer about ten days since gave a list of eleven thousand one hundred and thirty rebel wounded who have been sent to hospitals from Lee's army, and three thousand and forty-four from Beauregard's command. This probably covered about half the total loss, as many have been taken to Lynchburg and other places. Add, then eleven thousand taken prisoners by Grant and Butler, and four or five thousand killed outright, and we can approximate to the rebel losses thus far during this memorable campaign.

JOHN P. HALE, John F. Potter and Preston King are mentioned in connection with the Canada Consulate made vacant by the death of J. R. Giddings. The salary is $4,000 per annum.

A CARGO of 40,000 shovels and a lot of siege guns was shipped from Washington a few days since, consigned to Gen. Grant. Does this indicate that spades are to be trumps in the great game in front of Richmond?

THE American Organs are admirably suited for the Drawing Room, Boudoir, or parlor. They have the full compass with improved expression stop, a rich, sustained tone, and very powerful, yet silvery harmony of sound. Finished in Rosewood for Private use, and in plain Black Walnut and Oak for Churches, Sunday Schools, Lodges, &c. Prices from $80 to $450. S. D. & H. W. Smith, are the only Manufacturers of the American Organ. W. W. Kimball, 142 Lake street, Chicago, Wholesale Depot for the North-west.

Rumored Evacuation of Richmond.

NEW YORK, June 17.—The World's Washington special says rumors were rife that the rebels are evacuating Richmond. The Rebel Congress adjourned hastily without closing the business before them, and not only prisoners but non-combatants have been removed south. It is said the evacuation was decided for three months ago, when they commenced to remove the public archives to Columbia, S. C., Macon, Georgia, and other places. There was a heavy exodus of women and children recently and some think the place is evacuated now and Grant can take it without a struggle. The rebel capital was never in such danger. The railroads south are in Grant's hands, and Averill's forces are in possession of the Danville Railroad, and the capital is completely isolated.

THE DRAFT.

Correspondence from Rochester.

ROCHESTER, June 21, 1864.

FRIEND SLOCUM:—Another busy week, and still the throng of conscripts reporting, although sensibly diminished, is yet quite large. So far, probably, about 900 have reported, of whom 352 have paid commutation; over 100 are held to service the balance, say about 50 per cent. exempted. The Board of Enrollment have held long daily sessions and worked hard to accommodate the drafted men with a speedy examination.

No one not familiar with the multiform duties of the Board of Enrollment has any idea of the immense amount of labor to be performed in connection with making a draft for the number of men required from this district. In the case of men held to service descriptive lists in duplicate are made and the men mustered in, clothing issued, everything done in fact, so that the men are ready to be assigned to duty in the field as soon as they arrive at the Fort whither they are sent under charge of a small guard four or five times a week.

Capt. See, Commissioner Cole, Surgeon Mayo and their assistants have conducted the oftentimes delicate and always responsible duties of the Provost Marshal's office in a manner which entitles them to great credit.

The men held to service frequently look a little dispirited on emerging from the examining room, but after shedding the citizens and donning the soldiers garb they appear very different. We have some of the conscripts on guard around the Provost office every day and they appear quite well pear quite contented.

The amount of Commutation money received up to Monday night is as follows:

Tuesday, June 14,	82 men		$216 00
Wednesday, June 15,	107 men		321 00
Thursday,	" 16,	24 "	102 00
Friday,	" 17,	44 "	132 00
Saturday,	" 18,	39 "	117 00
Monday,	" 20,	45 "	135 00
		351 "	$105,300

The Board has commenced to draft the second time in counties where the time to report has expired. The second draft for Houston county is made for 108 men and in Filmorre county 152 men, Olmsted county some 10 or 12. Ceresco in our county will be called upon for three men as the three first drafted have been exempted.

There are many amusing incidents connected with the examination which leak out from the examining room—visitors are not permitted there. One six-foot son of Erin after being examined and passed, claimed to be over age. His looks belied the declaration and then he fell back on alienage—he had voted and held the office of Justice of the Peace as was well known for several years—finally he caved, but before paying his commutation, he abstracted $5 from the $300, thinking he could blarney the receiver out of that, but it was no go and reluctantly he drew forth the remaining V.

Another subject had a terrible bad rheumatic stiff leg which he could not draw up at all—the Surgeon thought a little chloroform would improve him. One inhalation worked miracles on the diseased member, not only making it sound but in its ultimate effect of transferring a lot of greenbacks to our Uncle Samuel.

In all probability I shall remain here during this week and perhaps the fore part of next, as men from the second draft will soon begin to report.

Sherman's Operations.

Army correspondents write that Sherman does not desire to push Johnston any further without compelling him to come to a decisive battle. For this he is establishing a strong position at Allatoona, hurrying up reinforcements and immense quantities of militay stores, and has arranged his plans to circumvent Johnston. It is said that Johnston will give battle before retreating further, and certain points are stated where he has established fortified lines: but Johnston's policy has peen sufficiently indicated hitherto. He will fight, but not decisively, and to no greater extent than he has already done.

He will make good his retreat if [illegible], and it is precisely to prevent this that Sherman is making his arrangements. Johnston has been reinforced from Mobile, and an order has been issued for a levy of from 10,000 to 15,000 Georgia militaiy for him. We are unable to define the location of Big Shanty, where Sherman now is, but it is in advance of Ackworth, and not far from Kenesaw. The two armies are in full view of each other, and a battle is impending, though when it will occur it is difficult to say.

The country through which the campaign has been conducted is exceedingly wild and rough. The forests are almost universal, and it is a work of great peril to manœuver an army through such a wilderness in the face of an enemy. The facility for guerrilla fighting and bushwhacking is such as to induce Sherman to look to his line of communication with much caution, and thus far his sucess has been surprising. His present position puzzles the rebels far more than the previous activity of his flanking operations.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Gen. Sturgis' Expedition.

The Ninth Regiment in the Fight.

NEARLY HALF OF IT MISSING.

We publish below extracts from a very interesting letter received from Capt. Thornton of Memphis:

A terrible disaster has happened to the Expedition which left this place about the first of the month under Gen. Sturgis. The 9th Minnesota was in the expedition and the stragglers are just getting in. I was up to their camp this evening, and left it just at dark. Wesley and George Maxfield are both in and both wounded. Wesley is up at the Adams Hospital and it was too late for me to go to see him to-night, but will go over early in the morning. He has lost the two middle fingers of his left hand. His life is not in the slightest danger, so don't give yourself any uneasiness on that score. Some of the boys saw him only an hour or two before dark and he was doing first rate. George has a ball through his left arm below the elbow. He was around camp laughing and joking as though nothing was the matter. Roberts, the brother of the Lieutenant was shot through the knee and is reported a prisoner. Dane, Keyser, Lieut. Roberts, Shaubhut, Hensley, Woleben, in short all the Mankato boys that I now remember, except Lee, Len. Johnson and Martin are in, and Len. Johnson will be in before morning. Neither Martin nor Lee were hurt, and the worst that has happened to them is that they may be prisoners, but it is hoped they may get in to-morrow. Jenkins, from Butternut Valley, is killed. He is the only one supposed to be killed in company E, that I could hear of, but it was nearly night when I found them and it may be worse than this; perhaps one-half of the company is missing yet. Hatch, Carly, Hilton, Burgess, Conner, Jo. Lagree, Kinsey, and Maxfield are all safe, but I cannot remember the names of all. Over half of the regiment is missing, yet many stragglers will doubtless get in. The 9th Minnesota, 93d Indiana, and a negro regiment are said to have saved the whole army from being captured on the field. It occurred about 100 miles south-east of Memphis, and from Friday morning until to-day the men have been without anything to eat. It is almost a miracle that any of them got in. The most of them however were brought in by railroad from Collierville, 20 miles out. Forty of my teams left here when I went on the Red River Expedition, were sent out with the expedition and are all captured, a few of the mules only being saved. This would have been lucky for me had my accounts been in a bad condition, but as it is, it is going to make me a little more work. I would have much preferred to have had my teams and wagons as I did not need a battle to settle my accounts.

Col. Wilkin has covered himself all over with glory. You can hardly make the old veterans who were along and saw the conduct of the 9th believe that this was their first fight. Our entire loss will probably amount to 4,000, and 200 or 300 wagons and considerable artillery, but for two or three days no one can more than guess the loss.

The rebel Senate passed the following resolution:

Resolved, That the President be requested to make an exposition, through our Commissioners abroad, to the various European Powers to which they may be accredited, of the violation of the rules of civilized warfare, and of the attrocities committed by the Government and the Armies of the United States in the prosecution of hostilities against the Confederate States of America.

The devil himself could not equal this effrontery.

Military Execution at Memphis—Three Soldiers Shot for the crimes of Rape and Robbery.

Last evening was the time appointed for the execution of Privates John Callahan, Jacob Snover and Thomas Johnson, all of the 2d New Jersey Cavalry, for the crime of rape and robbery. It having become generally known that the execution was to be public, early in the evening a large number of persons repaired to the spot, being the open ground directly west of the parapet of Fort Pickering.

Having arrived on the grounds, the entire military of the city was present, drawn up so as to form three sides of a hollow square, the parapet of the fort forming the fourth section. Outside of this line was an equal number of citizens, including many ladies and children. Upon coming in view of the square, the wagon and the escort halted, when the band of the 8th Iowa Infantry took the head of the column, being immediately in front of the shooting party—a squad of thirty six men and three Sergeants, detailed from the several companies of the 8th Iowa, and commanded by Sergeant William Kirkpatrick, of Company H. While halted here, the prisoners were taken from the wagon and placed in the centre of the shooting squad being still attended by their several spiritual advisers. Immediately after them followed a detachment of twelve men, bearing their coffins.

Shortly after three o'clock the party entered the square, the band playing the Dead March. A complete circuit was made of the entire line, up to a position within a short distance in front of the parapet of the fort, where the party halted. The prisoners were next placed in a line each before his coffin, and the three squads of shooters, each consisting of twelve men and a Sergeant, drawn up directly in front, at a distance of about ten paces. These positions having been taken, Col. Geddis read the charges, findings and sentence in each case to the prisoners separately.

A prayer was next offered by the Rev. Mr. Adams, Chaplain of the 2d New Jersy Cavalry, the regiment to which the convicts belonged at the time of their committal of the crime. After this, an opportunity was given the prisoners to make remarks, if such was their wish. Nothing was said audible by any of them, however, except Snover, who seemed to be engaged in a prayer, which was spoken so as to be partially heard. After a few moments pause here, the bandages were placed upon the prisoners' eyes, and their religious attendants retired. A wave of the Colonel's handkerchief was the signal for the shooting squads' making ready. The order "Fire!" was given. A volley of thirty-six guns sounded as one. The convicts fell back lifeless. Three balls had entered the body of Callahan, one in the head and two in the chest; five balls had entered the the chest of Snover; and the full number (six) had taken effect upon the body of Johnson.

Dr. Cook, a Surgeon of the 8th Iowa, then pronounced them dead, and so reported to the General commanding.—Memphis Bulletin.

How Our Boys Amuse Themselves.

A correspondent of the N. Y. Tribune narrates the following incident in the Virginia campagn:

Naturally the time hangs a little heavily when, as sometimes happens, nothing that may be shot at is seen for a hour or two. During one of these intervals this morning, one man conceived a brilliant scheme, which, unfolded to his comrades, was instantly adopted. Every man loads his piece and points it over the parapet or through one of the many small portholes made by placing ammunition boxes in the wall. Then the author of the plan begins to shout orders as though commanding at least a brigade:

"Colonel, connect your line with the 47!" "Give way to the right!" "Close ranks!" "Right dress!" "Fix bayonets!" "Double quick!" "Ch a a-rge!"

Instantly five hundred men rise into plain sight behind the rebel works, expecting to see an advancing line. Not so, but five hundred men from safe cover fire upon them on the instant. The volley, which must have inflicted considerable loss, is followed up with cheers and jeers, laughter, and much chaffing, as: "What do y' think o' Yankee tricks?" "That's the way John Brown's soul marches on." "No use o' baitin' hooks when you're fishin' for gudgeons."

The trick has been repeated several times during the day, with ingenious variations, always to crowded houses and always eliciting much applause from the performers.

Evacuation of Marietta.

The recent order to move stores, &c., from Marietta, which has given some little alarm to our citizens, was issued because of the possibility of that place being temporarily uncovered by our army while maneuvreing, and not because of any existing intention to bring the army lines nearer Atlanta. This is derived from unquestionable official sources, and may be depended upon.

The army is in motion—slowly retrograding from the Etowah. A calm pervades it like that of the dignified repose which rests upon the features of the Commander-in-Chief. The Federals will find it "still as the breeze but dreadful as the storm."

There is less reason for apprehension of raids than has existed throughout the campaign. Our position is strengthened as our line of communication is shortened, and with the enemy vice versa. Our confidence in the army and Gen. Johnston increases with every hour that the campaign progresses, and the peculiar fitness of our present Commander-in-Chief for the position he holds is daily attested by his admirable skill and cool discretion and valor.—Atlanta Confederacy.

Incidents of the War in Georgia.

We clip from the Chicago Tribune's correspondence a description of a few of the daily scenes that occur in Sherman's army:

The headquarters of several Generals have been occasionally moved on account of shells and other missiles, which somehow, find their way everywhere. The other day, a shell burst at Gen. Thomas' headquarters, scattering the tents and furniture, and killing or wounding one man, and playing smash generally. Generals Hooker and Butterfield have had equally narrow escapes. One man was killed while getting water from a spring near the headquarters of the latter.

Use renders these men cool and even callous in presence of these messengers of death. Yesterday a man on the skirmish line received a ball in the cheek, which came out behind his ear, through the strong chords of the neck. A stretcher was brought, but he kicked it over, with an oath, walked to the surgeon, had his wound probed and dressed, and returned to his company, swearing he would "make the rebs pay for that." He was from an Eastern regiment. During the battle of Reseca on the 15th of May, after the storming of a portion of the rebel works, by Butterfield's division, and while our men were hiding and crouching in and about the fort, and still protecting the captured guns, a man from the 70th Indiana regiment suddenly exposed himself to that close and terrible source of destruction—the rebel's line of masked breast-works—saying. "Shoot! God d—n you! shoot!" Alas! the defiance was answered, and he fell dead with an oath on his lips and a bullet in his heart! There are many Tennessee regiments now in the 23d Corps. One of these soldiers asked one of our blue stars: "Say! do all you'uns belong to 'Hooke's flankers?'" It is to be observed that Hooker does plenty of front fighting as well as flanking.

This promises to be the severest contest of the campaign so far. The 20th Corps were badly cut up. The enemy fought as usual in the timber and behind their works. Johnson is reported to have said: "If I can't fight the Yankees, here, I can't anywhere." On this coming to the ears of Sherman he said. "I can whip him here too, and I will be in Atlanta on Saturday."

The restrictions on pilfering have become nearly obsolete — perhaps partly from the undeniable fact that officers as well as soldiers prefer fresh poultry to salt pork. Notwithstanding that all the able-bodied male population are actually in the rebel army, it looks hard to steal the chickens, flour, milch cows, &c., which may be the only means of support of the women and children, whose feeble resistance and tearful remonstrances are so pitifully vain.

The soldier sees only a dainty addition to his hard fare, and the officer is not necessarily a man whose feelings interfere with his appetite.

I saw more than $100 worth of plug tobacco taken from one house, as well as poultry, hogs, flour, &c. At another, yesterday, a quantity of Molasses in barrels was discovered in the cellar. The barrels were burst in and the contents flowed on the depth of four inches, with flour and molasses, boys presented a motley appearance. To crown the molasses "raid" a little nigger was tumbled into one of the barrels! One poor man was glad to get the hide of his slaughtered steer.

To correct these gross acts of vandalism, at the same time procure the necessary supplies, orders have been issued to organize foraging parties who will collect, give receipts for, and distribute what may be required for the support of the army in addition to the reduced ration. As we are fast leaving our precarious base of supplies on the Etowah, such a course is absolutely necessary. This is authorized by obstinate pressing—that is reckless and indiscriminate pillage.

We are now, June 1st, about 25 miles from our railroad base of communication and supplies at Kingston, the rebels being about 16 miles from their railroad base at Marietta, on the Kingston and Atlanta Railroad.

Our lines extend in a bold curve from northwest to southeast, the right including Dallas, and the left resting on and including Burnt Hickory. Our lines of fortifications, consisting of successive tiers of breastworks, redoubts, earthworks, &c., erected along this curve about 14 miles. The position of the rebels confronts ours. Both parties are continually throwing up new works, and constructing additional defenses, forts, &c. The tops of the intervening hills are torn into shreds, or cut clean off by the iron storms. Yesterday a nest of sharpshooters who, under cover of a house, had been annoying the men of Butterfield's Division, came under the observation of that General, and very soon received the attention of the most valuable battery, which demolished the house in a twinkling about the ears of the astonished rebs and scattered the rascals like chaff. Their sharpshooters, perched in trees and every possible place of ambuscade, have been and still are a source of great annoyance and have contributed much to the casualties of our men.

The Malden Murder—Letter from Mrs. Green.

The following is the letter which was addressed by Mrs. Green to the Governor, pleading for mercy to her husband, the convicted murder:

Malden, June 1. 1864.

SIR. I make no apology for bringing myself to your notice; there is none needed; but I come, a wife begging the life of one dear to her, even her husband.

I am aware, sir, of the position in which you stand, aware what an important step you are about to take; important as regards your position in the world where the cry is ever for blood. But they tell me you are a christian; and if so, I know your heart revolts at the idea of carrying out a law made by men whose religion rested only in their heads, and had not yet worked down to the hearts.

Oh, sir, I beg you to consider well before you take this terrible step.

Oh, sir, consider his former life.

In the year that we lived together he was the kindest, best of husbands. those who know him best will testify to his uniform kindness, to all. In he position which he occupied all liked him. Selfishness seemed to form no part of his disposition. A good-natured man, it was his joy to make those around him happy.

Sir, if you had known him thus, the conviction would have come to your heart, as it does to mine, that it must have been in a moment of insanity that he committed that terrible deed.

Oh, sir, our Father, who look not on the outward deed but judgeth the inmost heart, alone knows what made him do it; but He knowing that none but Himself may judge the heart of man, has commanded us, "Judge not, lest ye be judged."

Sir, are they sure who cry so steadily for his blood what their own spirit is? Are they sure that they are not in their own vindictiveness worse that he? Christ says: "Ye who have heard it said by them of old time, Thou shalt not kill, but I say unto you, whosoever is angry with his brother without cause shall be danger of the judgment."

Oh, sir, is it not well to examine our own hearts before we so condemn others? Oh, if this is so important a step to be taken before the world, how much more so is it before our Heavenly Father? Sir, I pray you be merciful!

Sir, if his heart was so wicked as some may beleive, would not my heart turn against him? Sir, I have been brought up to abhor wickedness and crime in its gentlest phases. Could I then so love him, if his heart was so wicked? Oh, I implore you to let your heart and conscience plead with your reason in this trial of your Christian love.

Sir, consider—is this case not sent you by Our Father [as] a trial of your Christian faith, standing in the high place you occupy—opposed to the worldly policy which too often characterizes our appointed rulers?

Hark! the Great Judge of all speaking through His Son, our elder brother: "Blessed are the merciful, for they shall obtain mercy.

Sir, with one last appeal to your heart for mercy, I am yours.

U. S. Mail Robbery !

Depredations Committed on the Mail on the Mankato and Winona Stage Route since last March.

150 Letters Found Concealed !

A LARGE AMOUNT OF MONEY STOLEN !

An extensive mail robbery has just been discovered in this vicinity which surpasses anything ever heard of in this part of the country. Both the through and way bags containing the U. S. Mail which is carried over the Mankato and Winona mail route, have been opened at different times since the 1st of March last, and nearly five hundred letters taken out, cut open, and all the money found in them abstracted.

The circumstances of the discovery of these letters served to throw suspicion on the drivers who drive between Winnebago Agency and Wilton, where the depredations have been committed.

We have endeavored to obtain all the particulars of the robbery so far as we could, and will state them as correctly as we can.

Mr. Dyer, the postmaster at the Agency, first suspected that the affairs of his office were being meddled with early last spring, as money letters were left at his office to be sent to the St. Paul Press and Chicago Times and these letters never reached their destination.

Up to that time he had kept the post office desk, in which the mail key, and all letters and papers arriving at, and departing from his office were placed, in the bar-room. As soon as it was known that this money was missing, he then moved the desk to his private apartments, where no one had access but his wife. Previous to this the key to the desk had been lost.

The drivers on this end of the route are J. White and Henry Pierce, who drive as far out as the Agency. They are not implicated at all. Between the Agency and Wilton the drivers are James Burns and Patrick McConaghy, driving through one day and back the next. No one ever believed that these men would rob the mail. They had been on the route since it was first opened, and have always been looked upon as trustworthy. Nothing occurred on the road that would throw suspicion on them until the letters were found found at the Agency.

The first time the attention of the Mankato office was called to the matter was in March last, or about the time the roads were so bad. The Chicago letters packages for Mankato and towns up the Blue Earth, were found broken open in two or three instances. These come in the through bag which is opened for the last time at Owatonna. On comparing them with the way bills, sometimes they would be short, and again all loose in the bag. Supposing that they were mislaid at Owatonna and would be along the next day no further attention was given it.

About four weeks ago the packages commenced disappearing. Packages with way bills calling for thirty and forty letters, would contain only two or three, and those return bids on Winnebago lands ; and a Chicago way bill calling for thirty-three letters was found, but no letters in the bag to answer the call.

These things occurred so frequently that the facts were reported by the Postmaster here to the Department at Washington, who replied that a special agent would be sent out to investigate the matter.

On Saturday morning last, Mr. Dyer's horse, at the Agency kicked a board off from the side of his stall, when a hundred and thirty-six letters rolled out and fell under the horse's feet. Pat McConaghy, we believe, was in the stable at the time, and called the attention of some one to them, saying "There are some papers under the horse's feet, you had better see what they are." They were taken up and carried into the house and put safely away.

When Mr. Dyer returned home he took them in charge. On the same day at Wilton, and about the same hour, the stage agent's wife, while at work in the room where the drivers slept, found, stowed away in the ceiling, another lot of 155 letters, that were destined for the East. She at once informed her husband, who reported the facts to the postmaster, and they were taken to the post office.

These drivers were then suspected, and James E. Childs, the Deputy Provost Marshal of Waseca county came through to Mankato and lodged a complaint with U. S. Commissioner Willard, who issued a warrant for their arrest.

This was Sunday night. The warrant was placed in the hands of Sheriff Middlebrook who started out on the stage Monday morning to make the arrests. On consulting Mr. Dyer, it was decided that both should go to Wilton, and that Burns should drive through, and they could then make both arrests at that place. They did so, and a thorough search of their room and persons was made. Nothing of importance was found. Mr. Dyer's key to the Post Office desk was found on Burns, we believe, and also, a bunch of keys, one of which resembled the U. S. mail key, and appeared to have been filed. It would not fit any of the mail locks, however.

The prisoners were brought to the Agency, Mr. Dyer riding on the outside with Pat who drove, and the Sheriff on the inside with Burns. From the Agency all three rode on the outside, Dyer remaining at home.

They were taken to the County jail and took supper with the Sheriff's family.

The U. S. Marshal and District Attorney of St. Paul were written to Sunday night, and requested to come up and take hold of the matter. The Marshal arrived Wednesday night, and on Thursday afternoon the prisoners were arraigned before Commissioner Willard, Francis Beveridge and E. P. Enos appearing on the part of the prisoners, and H. G. Otton, Esq., for the United States. The complaint was read, to which the prisoners plead not guilty. The examination was then adjourned till Saturday morning, in order to give the Marshal time to subpœna the witnesses at the Agency and Wilton.

Here the matter rests. That there has been a daring robbery committed there is no doubt ; but whether these prisoners are guilty of it we do not say. The evidence is circumstantial, and very strong. We hope the guilty parties will be found out whoever they may be. There are other facts connected with the robbery that we are not at liberty to publish at present. They will probably come to light in the examination.

By request of Mr. Dyer we have assisted him in his investigations and in so doing have obtained a list of the letters found at the Agency, which we publish below, giving the address only.

Some of them were torn up, and then chewed up in wads and stuffed inside other envelopes, others one corner only was cut, and three or four were not opened. Most of them, however, were cut at one end of the envelope, the letters taken out, and put back in other envelopes.

ARREST OF TIMBER THIEVES.—A short time ago Lucius Dyer, of the Agency, learned that parties had been stealing timber off from three fractional forties—known as Turner's Grove—in Faribault County, of which he is the owner, He at once went up determined to have them arrested and fined. The parties arrested are Frederick Steffen, and Wm. Irvine, and the arrests were made by Deputy Sheriff P. H. Alllen, of Faribault County. They were brought to Winnebago City and tried before Justice ———. After summoning nearly the whole town two men were found who had seen the prisoners on the land cutting and carrying off logs, Steffen and Irvine were fined fifty dollars each and costs, amounting in all to one hundred and eighty two dollars, failing to pay which they were brought to the Blue Earth County jail, and placed in charge of sheriff Middlebrook.

ACCIDENT.—An accident occured to a lady passenger on the St. Paul Stage last Tuesday, when about two miles from town, that may result quite seriously. There were a number of passengers in the Stage, and some of them were asleep. The Stage ran over a large rock and threw the passengers up from their seats. This lady, a Miss Leslie, from Blue Earth City, was sitting on the front seat, and as the wheel passed over the rock, it threw her against the back of the seat with such force as to injure her spine. She did not feel it much at the time, but before the stage arrived in town she became insensible, and was taken out of the stage in that condition. Doctors McMahan and Lewis were immedately called and gave her medical attendance. This, Wednesday morning, she was lying at the Mankato House, unable to be moved.

WE hear considerable complaint about bugs destroying cucumber vines, and we give our readers the benefit or a recipe that we have used for years, and never known it to fail. Take a strong solution of aloes and water and sprinkle over the vines, in the morning or evening when the bugs are troublesome. You will not need to do it more than two or three times before they will take a furlough and go home to stay. Try it. It will never fail.

HOOKED BY A COW.—Last Sunday Joseph Myers and his wife, Germans, living in Lime township, were out in the barn yard attending to some chores. His wife was standing near the bars, through which Mr. Myers was driving a cow and a young calf. The cow has very sharp horns, and as she passed Mrs. Myers she gave a quick toss of her head, and one of her horns struck Mrs. M. just forward of one hip, and tore through and across the abdomen, and came out just in front of the other hip, making a terrible wound, over twelve inches in length. The weather being very warm she had on but little underclothing ; not sufficient to resist the blow. She was immediately conveyed to the house, and a messenger dispatched to town for medical aid. Doctors McMahan and Lewis have her under their care, and she is now doing well.

MEETING OF THE AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY.—At a meeting of the Executive committee of the Blue Earth County Agricultural Society held in Mankato, June 18th, 1864, it was

Resolved, That said Society hold a County Fair the coming fall ; provided that the citizens of any town in said county offer sufficient inducements by proper grounds and sufficient assistance in warranting the society in so doing.

Resolved, That the Executive Committee receive such proposals for assistance from the different towns in the county, until the 9th day of July, 1864 ; and that such Fair be held within the town offering the best inducements, and that it be held at such time as the Executive Committee shall designate.

The Committee then adjourned to meet at the office of D. Buck, in the town of Mankato, on the 9th day of July. 1864.

D. H. TYNER, President.
DANIEL BUCK, Sec, pro tem

Stealing birds nest is bad business, and boys should learn better.

COOL.—One of our subscribers to the daily papers, who has a very retire-ing disposition, says he wants his paper left so that he can reach it from his bed-room window without getting up. We are going to send a boy around soon to Read the papers to all such.

WARM WEATHER.—The weather has been exceedingly warm for the past few days. The thermometer has ranged as high as 105 in the shade.

NEW STORE AT WINNEBAGO CITY.—O. Ward, of this place, has opened a branch store at Winnebago City, and placed it in charge of N. Sargent, a gentleman well known in the valley, We bespeak for Mr. Sargent, a liberal share of patronage from Faribault County.

ANOTHER ACCIDENT.—Mr. L. D. Gilbert, of Forest City, had his leg slightly fractured by a kick from one of his horses the other day, as he was stopping at the Winnebago Agency. He was on his way home from Winona with a load of reapers.

WANTED.—A gentleman, wife and child desires to obtain boarding in a private family, or a small house or two or three rooms in town for dwelling purposes. Enquire soon at this office.

REPAIRING ROADS.—Elder Hinkley, is doing considerable toward repairing the Agency road. We hope he will not neglect the hill but give it a good scraping.

NO YOU DON'T.—We notice in the Constitution of the Ladies' National Covenant that it is made the duty of the Corresponding Secretasy to "enlist the press." We take occasion thus early to inform the fair Secretary that our "press" won't enlist unless she'll pay a big bounty ; but if she wants to "press us," why, that's another matter, and we won't object, providing t'other don't know it.

DEATH OF MINER MILLS—Mr. Miner Mills, one of the oldest settlers of Mankato, died at his residence last Wednesday morning, from the effects of a kick on the head inflicted by one of his horses a few weeks ago.

Passed at the First Session of the 38th Congress.

[PUBLIC—No. 10.]

AN act amendatory of and supplementary to "An act to provide circuit courts for the districts of California and Oregon, and for other purposes," approved March third, eighteen hundred and sixty-three.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled. That the term of the circuit court of the United States for the district of California shall be held in the city of San Francisco, in said State, on the first Monday of February, and on the second Monday of June, and on the first Monday of October, of each year: and in the city of Monterey, in said State on the first Monday of April, and on the second Monday of August and on the first Monday of December of each year; and that a term of said circuit court for the state of Oregon shall be held at the city of Portland, in said state, on the first Monday of January, and on the first Monday of may, and on the first monday of september of each year.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted That, whenever the circuit judge is absent, or, from any cause is unable to hold a term of circuit court as above provided, it shall be the duty of the district judge of the district to hold such term. No term of the circuit court in one district of the tenth circuit shall be deemed to be ended from the commencement of a term in another district. A circuit court may be held in the different districts at the same time.

Sec. 3 And be it further enacted, That the circuit judge of said tenth circuit may, at his discretion, appoint special sessions of the circuit court to be held at the places where the stated sessions thereof are to be holden as provided in this act, by an order, under his hand and seal addressed to the marshal and clerk of said court at least fifteen days previous to the day fixed for the commencement of such special sessions, which order shall be published by the marshal in one or more of the gazettes or newspapers within the district where such sessions are to be holden. At such special sessions it shall be competent for the said court to entertain jurisdiction of and hear and decide all cases in equity, cases in error or on appeal, issues of law motions in arrest of judgment, motions for new trial, and all other motions, and to award executions and other final process and to do and to transact all other business, and direct all other proceedings in all causes pending in the circuit court, except trying any cause by jury, in the same way and with the same force and effect as the same could or might be done at the stated sessions of each court. At said special sessions of said court may also try and determine all issues of fact in cases in which by the stipulation in writing of the parties, or their attorneys, and filed with the clerk, a jury shall be waived.

Sec. 4. And be it further enacted, That the clerks of the circuit courts for the districts of California shall be appointed by the circuit judge of the tenth circuit. The appointment shall be in writing under the hand and seal of the circuit judge, and shall be filed in the clerk's office and entered at large upon the records of the court. The circuit judge may revoke the appointment at any time by filing in the office of the clerk a notice in writing under his hand and seal, stating that the appointment is revoked. The revocation shall be entered on the records of the court The clerk, before entering upon the discharge of his duties, shall take the oath of office prescribed by the act entitled "An act to prescribe an oath of office and for other purposes," approved July two, eighteen hundred and sixty-two, and such oath shall be endorsed upon his appointment. The clerk shall also execute a bond to the United States with two or more sufficient sureties in such sum as the circuit judge may designate, conditioned for the faithful performance of his duties. In case of a vacancy in the office of clerk, the district judge shall have power to fill such vacancy by appointment, which shall continue until an appointment is made by the circuit judge.

Sec. 5. And be it further enacted, That the clerks of the circuit courts of the tenth circuit shall have power to appoint one or more deputies, who shall have the same authority, in all respects as their principal. The appointment shall be in writing, and be signed by the clerk, and shall be filed in his office, and be entered at large upon the records of the court. The clerk may revoke the appointment of any deputy at will by writing filed in the office, and entered upon the records. Each deputy, before entering upon his duties, shall take the oath of office prescribed by the act entitled "An act to prescribe an oath of office and for other purposes," approved July two, eighteen hundred and sixty-two. And such oath shall be endorsed upon his appointment. The clerk may take from each of his deputies a bond with sureties for the faithful performance of his duties, but the clerk and the sureties on his official bond shall be liable for all the official acts of each deputy.

Sec. 6. And be it further enacted, That the clerks of the circuit courts and district courts of the United States for the districts of California and Oregon shall severally be entitled to charge and receive for the services they may perform double the fees and compensation allowed by the act entitled "An act to regulate the fees and costs to be allowed clerks, marshals, and attorneys of the circuit and district courts of the United States and for other purposes," approved February twenty-six, eighteen hundred and fifty-three.

Sec 7. And be it further enacted, That issues of fact in civil cases may be tried and determined by the said circuit court without the intervention of a jury, whenever the parties or their attorneys of record file a stipulation in writing with the clerk waiving a jury. Upon the trial of an issue of fact by the court, its decision shall be given in writing and filed with the clerk. In giving the decision, the facts found and the conclusions of law shall be separately stated. The review of the judgment or decree entered upon such findings by the Supreme Court of the United States upon appeal or writ of error shall be limited to a determination of the sufficiency of the facts found to support the judgment or decree entered, and to the rulings of the court in admitting or rejecting evidence offered, and in the construction of written documents produced and admitted. The Supreme Court may affirm or modify or reverse the judgment or decree entered, or may, in its discretion, or a new trial or further proceedings to be taken

Sec. 8. And be it further enacted, That a term of the district court of the United States for the southern district of California shall be held in the city of Monterey, in said State, on the first Monday of February, and on the first Monday of June, and on the first Monday of October, of each year; and a term of the district court of the United States for the northern district of California shall be held in the city of San Francisco, in said State, on the first Monday of April, and on the second Monday of August, and on the first Monday of December, of each year; and a term of the district court of the United States for the district of Oregon shall be held at the city of Portland in the State of Oregon, on the first Monday of March and on the first Monday of July, and on the first Monday of November, of each year.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That William B Todd, William P. Dole Edward Clark, Edward J. Simms, Joseph J. Coombs, Z C. Robbins, Thomas S. Gardner, John R Elvans, and Samuel B. Niles, and their associates and successors, are constituted and created a body corporate and politic, by the name of "The Washington City Saving Bank."

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted, That the officers of said corporation shall consist of a president and vice president, who, together with seven trustees, shall constitute a board of managers, four of whom, if the president or vice president be present, shall constitute a legal meeting of such board for the transaction of business.

Sec. 3. And be it further enacted, That said corporation shall meet annually in the month of April, and as much oftener as they may judge expedient, and any seven members of said corporation, the president, secretary, or treasurer being one, shall be a quorum, and the said corporation at their annual meeting shall have power to elect a president and a treasurer, who shall give bond in the sum of ten thousand dollars, for the faithful discharge of the duties of his office, and all such other officers as may be deemed necessary; which officers shall continue in office one year, and until others are chosen in their stead, and all officers so chosen shall be under oath to the faithful discharge of the duties of their offices, respectively.

Sec. 4 And be it further enacted, That said corporation may receive on deposit, for the use and benefit of the depositors; all sums or money offered for that purpose: Provided however; That it shall not hold at the same time more than one thousand dollars of any one depositor, other than a religious or charitable corporation. The income or interest of all deposits shall be divided among the depositors, or their legal representatives, according to the terms of interest stipulated: and the principal may be withdrawn at such times, or in such manner, as the corporation shall in its by-laws direct.

Sec. 5 And be it further enacted, That no officer, director, or committee charged with the duty of investing the deposits shall borrow any portion thereof, or use the same, except in payment or expenses of the corporation; and if any officer, director, or agent, or other person connected with said bank, and interested with the funds or deposits thereof, shall embezzle or fraudulently convert the same to his own use, he shall be deemed guilty of larceny, and shall, on conviction thereof, by any court competent to try the offence, be imprisoned in the penitentiary not less than one nor more than ten years.

Sec. 6. And be it further enacted, That the subordinate officers and agents of said corporation shall respectively give such security for their fidelity and good conduct as the board of managers may from time to time require, and said board shall fix the salaries of such officers and agents.

Sec. 7. And be it further enacted That the persons named as corporators in the first section of this act shall be authorized to meet and organize said bank by the election of one of their number as president, and one as vice president, and thereupon shall proceed to elect such persons as they shall select, not herein named as corporators, to be added to their board of managers, so that the whole number of trustees, or managers, including the president and vice president, shall not exceed nine persons.

Sec. 8. And be it further enacted, That this corporation shall make an annual report to Congress of their funds and investments. Sec. 9. And be it further enacted, That the books of said corporation shall, at all times during their hours of business, be open for inspection and examination to the Comptroller of the Currency or depositors.

Sec. 10 And be it further enacted, That said corporation may make by-laws for the more orderly management of their business, not repugnant to law; may have a common seal, which they may change at pleasure; that all deeds, grants, covenants, and agreements made by their treasurer, or any other person by their authority shall be good and valid and said corporation shall have power to sue and may be sued, defend and be held to answer by the name aforesaid.

Sec. 11. And be it further enacted, This act shall take effect from and after its passage.

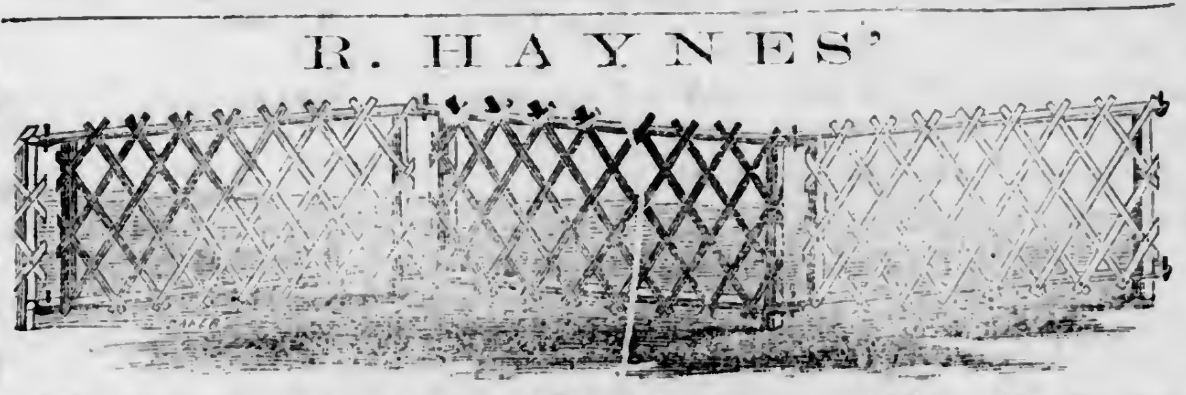
R. HAYNES'



Portable Brace Fence!

PATENTED APRIL 7, 1863.

WE claim for this Fence greater strength and durability with less expense than any ordinary farm fence. No farmer who studies economy and convenience in the management of his farm will be without it. The First Premium was awarded to Mr. Haynes' Portable Fence, at the late State Fairs in Ohio and Michigan, and at several County Fairs, Read the following extract;

"Among the many things we saw on exhibition at the State Fair was Haynes' Portable Brace Fence. This fence seems to be a great improvement over most Fences of the kind It is very strong, and is so braced that wind can have no more effect upon it, if as much, as upon a common rail fence. It is light, yet heavy enough for all farm purposes Its cost is but little, and much labor is saved by using this fence, as it is easily put up, and in after years easily repaired. Every farmer ought to see this remarkable fence. We hope Mr. Haynes will be induced to exhibit it at our County Fair.—Medina (Ohio) Gazette.

Mr. H. has also invented a mould or bench upon which this fence is made. By using this bench any farmer can make the fence at a rapid rate. Full directions for making the bench and the fence upon it accompany each deed. For farm or township rights address M. B HAYNES, Agent for Minnesota,

HOSTETTER'S

CELEBRATED

STOMACH

BITTERS.

A pure and powerful tonic, corrective and alterative of wonderful efficacy in disease of the Stomach, Liver and bowels, Cures, Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Headache, General Debility, Nervousness, Depression of Spirits, Constipation Colic, Intermittent Fevers, Cramps and Spasms, and all Complaints of either Sex arising from Bodily Weakness whether inherent in the system or produced by special causes. Nothing that is not wholesome genial and restorative in its nature enters into the composition of Hostetters Stomach Bitters. This popular preparations contains no mineral of any kind, no deadly botanical element; no fiery excitant; but it is a combination of the extracts of rare balsamic herbs and plants with the purest and mildest of all diffusive stimulants. It is well to be forearmed against disease, and, so far as the human system can be protected by human means against maladies engendered by an unwholesome atmosphere, impure water and other external causes, Hostetters Bitters may be relied on as a safeguard, In districts infested with Fever and Ague, it has been found infallible as a preventive and irresistible as a remedy and thousands who resort to it under apprehensions of an attack, escape the scourge, and thousands who neglect to avail themselves of its protective qualities in advance are cured by a very brief course of this marvelous medicine, Fever and Ague patients, after being plied with quinine for months in vain until fairly saturated with that dangerous alkaloid, are not unfrequently restored to health, within a few days by the use of Hostetter's Bitters. The weak stomach is rapidly invigorated and the appetite restored by this agreeable Tonic and hence it works wonders in cases of Dispepsia and in less confirmed forms of indigestion. Acting as a gentle and painless apperent, as well as upon the liver, it also invariably relieves the Constipation superinduced by irregular action of the digestive and secretive organs: Persons of feeble habit, liable to Nervous attacks, Lowness of spirits and fits of Languor, find prompt and permanent relief from the Bitters. The testimony on this point is most conclusive, and from both sexes. The agony of bilious colic, is immediately assuaged by a single dose of the stimulant, and by occasionally restoring to it, the return of the complaint may be prevented. As a general tonic, Hostetter's Bitters produce effects which must be experienced or witnessed before they can be fully appreciated. In cases of constitutional Weakness, Premature Decay, and debility and decerepitude arising from old age, it exercises the electric influence. In the convalescent stages of all diseases it operates as a delightful invigorant. When the powers of nature are relaxed, it operates to re-inforce and re-establish them. Last but not least, it is the only safe stimulant, being manufactured from sound and innocuous materials, and entirely free from the acid elements, present more or less in all the ordinary tonics and stomachics of the day. No family medicine has been so universally, and it may be truly added, deservedly popular with the intelligent portion of the community, as Hostetter's Bitters. Prepared by Hostetter and Smith, Pittsburgh, Pa. Sold by all Druggists, Grocers and Storekeepers everywhere. 23

Poetry.

THE RAIN.

Merrily, mournfully pattering still
Falling like dew on the flowers,
Singing and sighing, and moaning at will,
Falleth the rain all the hours;
Dancing so merrily over the eaves,
Falling like music's refrain,
Hiding its gems in the heart of the leaves,
Merrily falleth the rain.

Falling, falling cheerily still!
It kisses the lilly's white breast;
Over the meadows it wanders at will,
Lulling the blue-bells to rest.
Merrily, cheerily falleth the rain,
Over the country and town,
Like the soft murmur of music's refrain,
The fairy-like rain cometh down.

The rain, the beautiful rain,
Sadly and sweetly it falls, [green
To the souls of the dead where the grass groweth
In sweet spirit voices it calls;
It makes, with its murmurs of beautiful grief,
The flower to bloom o'er his head,
And by its sweet treasures of rosebud and leaf,
Makes lovely the home of the dead.

The rain, the rain, the beautiful rain,
The merrily, mournfully falling,
The echo of footsteps that fall not again,
Strange voices to earth ever calling:
The whisper of magic that maketh the buds
To beauty and frailty to grow;
The message of mercy from man to his God,
Proclaiming "All peace be below!"

TWO KINDS OF PLEASURE.

BY SYLVANUS COBB, JR.

'He's a mean, niggardly fellow; and you can't make anything else of it,' said James Pearce, addressing half a dozen companions, and speaking very emphatically.

'So he is,' echoed another.

'Ay, a regular skinflint,' added a third.

'I wouldn't ask such a fellow to go anywhere,' chimed in a fourth. 'I wouldn't have him at any rate.'

'It's a pity that such a good hearted fellow should be so mean,' resumed Pearce. 'I supposed he would be on hand for any kind of fun.'

These were young men ranging from twenty to thirty years of age, all fond of what they denominated life. They lived in a large suburban village, where sport was plenty, and the means of carrying it on abundant. They were none of them really bad youths, but they lived fast.

'What's all this?' asked a young man, who came up just as the last remark was made, and whose name was Landon Merritt.

'We were talking about Tom Thornley,' replied James Pearce.

'And what about him?'

'What do you find mean in Tom Thornley?'

'Why—everything. Here he is right among us, just in the prime of youth, money enough, and yet he won't join in with us in any of our fun. Only this morning I went to him and asked him to subscribe towards our club, and what do you suppose he said? He just very coolly told me he couldn't afford it! Now what do you think of that?'

'Well, I don't know,' answered Merritt. 'I think he could afford it if he wished.'

'Of course he could. Afford it! Why he not only has a salary of a clear thousand a year, but I know he has ten thousand at interest, besides the splendid house his father left him. He's a mean chap any way.'

'How much did you ask him to put down?'

'I didn't name any sum, but I told I had put down fifty dollars for the year, and most of the others had done the same. But he couldn't afford it! Bah! he's a miser—a regular young skinflint. Why I supposed as soon as he got back from college, he'd make a glorious companion for us. I meant he should go to our races, join our boat club, put up a shilling at poker once in a while, and make himself happy generally. But now look at him. There he is, at home every evening, and afraid to come out least he should lose a cent.'

'Who's that, James?' asked a voice close at hand.

The party turned and saw Thomas Thornly himself, who had just come round the corner of the building before which they stood. He was a young man, not over five and twenty, and wearing the appearance of a true and intelligent man.

'What is it? Who is it that has merited your disapproval?'

All were silent a few moments; but Pearce saw that his companions expected him to speak and he did so.

'I'll tell you Tom,' he said. 'We were all talking about you; I won't say a thing behind a man's back that I would't say to his face. I was disappointed in you.'

'Ah, how so?' asked Thornley, with a smile.

'Why, in your not joining with us in our sports, and bearing your share of the tax. But mind, we arn't anxious for you to do so, if you don't wish it.'

'And I suppose it is my wish not to do so that you condemn?'

'Yes; I thought for a chap who had as much money as you have, it looked rather small to be hoarding it away like an old miser.'

'But, my dear friend, you forget that every man naturally follows that which he thinks yields him the most pleasure. If you find the most pleasure in spending your time and money boating, horse racing, card-playing, and in wine-supper, I shall not find fault with you, though I sincerely beleive you could spend time and money to better advantage.'

'That's your opinion.'

'It is.'

'Well, tisn't mine. After sticking to business all day, I think we have some right to a bit of recreation for the evening; and once in a while, of a pleasant day, we'll trot a horse, or sail a boat, and hurt nobody?'

'And you do so, do you not?'

'Of course we do.'

'Then why find fault with me?'

'Because you keep from us that companionship we have a right to expect. If you were a regular Jack, we shouldn't care; but you're too good a fellow to sneak away from us in this fashion You love fun as well as any of us, only—I speak plainly—'

'Certainly, go on.'

'Your too miserly to pay for it; and that don't look well for one who has so much money as you have.'

For some moments Thornley was silent. A single instant there appeared a flush upon his cheek, but a meaning smile soon took its place.

'Boys,' said he at length, 'you do not fully understand me. But come with me to my home and I will explain. Come. I cannot offer you wine, but you shall have as nice fruit as this section can afford; and if I do not satisfy you that I am right, I will give you a hundred dollars for your club. Come I will not detain you long.'

As the young man spoke, he turned back towards the point whence he had come, and the others followed him. The walk was not long, for at a short distance from the dusty street they came to a cottage-like mansion, before which spread a wide park, with neatly graveled foot and carriage paths, along the borders of which grew all sorts of flowers and evergreens. Thomas led the way up to the verandah, and under the shade of the trellised walk he stopped and pointed to some marble statutes that had been recently set up near an artificial fountain.

'How do you like those?' he asked.

'Splendid,' answered several.

'I take a great deal of pleasure in having them here; and though they cost me quite a sum, yet I do not regret it.'

Next he led them into the house, and conducted them to a room which he informed them was his own place of resort. The apartment was spacious and airy, and the ceiling high and richly frescoed. Around the walls were hung several splendid paintings, together with quite a number of very richly framed engravings. At the angles of the wall were nichs in which stood chaste and elegant statuts and busts. One side of the apartment was wholly occupied by a library, within which were over a a thousand volumes of good substantial works. On a table were drawing, painting and writing materials, while in a recess constructed on purpose, stood a beautiful house organ. Thomas was on the point of speaking, when one of the doors was opened, and a female entered She started back on seeing such a party, and would have instantly withdrawn had not the host called her back.

'Here, Susan,' he said, 'some of my friends have come to see our little cage—my wife gentlemen

The young lady turned back into the room, and with a pleasant smile welcomed her husband's guests. She was a lovely, beautiful woman, and seemen just the companion for a man with such tastes as young Thornley displayed,

'Can we have some fruit?' the host asked after his wife had saluted the company.

'I think I can find some,' replied the wife; and thus speaking she left the room.

'Now, boys,' said Thomas, 'you see here some of my sources of pleasure. I suppose the articles in this room have cost me not less than five thousand dollars. It is qutte a sum, but I had the money to spare, and I laid it out after my own tastes. You see that painting there over the mantle—I bought it last week. It is either one af Murillo's or a most excellent copy, but I think it is original. I bought it of a gentleman who attended the sale of an estate in Seville, and this he obtained there. Did you ever see such exquisite touches?'

All admired the picture, and while they were looking around upon the others, the young hostess returned, accompaned by a servant bearing trays of fruit. There were peaches, pears, grapes, and some beautiful plums. The repast was luscious; and when it was finished, Thornly arose and asked his friends to follow him into the garden. Here they found an acre of ground laid out into orchard, vineyard and tillage, and looking neat and tidy. Here and there was little trellised arbors, within which were mossy seats, while flowers and grapes hung overhead.

'Here,' said Thornley, after they had walked through the garden, 'I spend some of my leisure time, and I assure you I find much pleasure in the cultivation of my fruit. My wife attends to the flowers, while I see to the trees and vines. While the sun shines, we find comfort here; and when the night comes we retire to our library, where reading and music gives us pleasure and profit. Then again, I sometimes have leisure hours from my business when the weather will not permit us to work in our garden. We then write, draw or paint. But come, let us go in once more and you shall examine my library.

The party again repaired to the house, but they could not remain long, for some of them had engagements.

'And now,' said Thornley, after his friends were ready to retire, 'you have seen my sources of pleasure. Every industrious man with fair fortune may have the same, though they may not go quite so far as I have gone but I only speak in general terms. If I could find pleasure in the sports you have tried to urge upon me, you may be assured I would not only join in them, but I should also pay my share of the expenses cheerfully; but such things have no real pleasure for me—not generally. Once in a while I love to sail, and I love social gatherings; but my fullest joy is here, with my wife, my books, my music, and my garden. My home is open to you whenever you may wish to join me in my kind of pleasure; and you may be sure you will ever be warmly received. And one other thing I will tell you. I have subscribed a thousand dollars to the new Athenæum in the city; and whenever any of you may wish to visit there and see the splendid specimens of art collected, I will give you a gass.'

The party had reached the verandah on their way, but they hesitated, as though something should yet be said. At length James Pearce spoke:

As I commenced this discussion which has led to this pleasant visit, I ought to speak what I think to be the truth now, Tom you are right. Your pleasure is surely better than ours, for it has no wear to it. I'll never find fault with you again; but one thing I will do—I shall except your invitation to spend an occasional evening here.'

All agreed with Pearce; and when they turned away from Thornley's home, they were wiser than before They had learned what they had not previously understood, and that was, that there was another kind of real pleasure besites that which they followed. Argument might never have convinced them; but one good look at their friend's home, and an understanding of his domestic arrangements, opened their eyes. Never again did they ask Thornley to accompany them upon their excursions, but they did often visit him; and they were not long in finding that an evening spent beneath his roof, with music and sensible conversation, and a simple collation of fruit and nuts, was better, by far, than a wine supper, with its boisterous laugh and jest, and consequent depression and headache of the morning following.

HOW COFFEE CAME TO BE USED.—At the time Columbus discovered America, it had never been known or used. It only grew in Arabia and upper Ethiopia. The discovery of its use as a beverage is ascribed to the superior of a monastry in Arabia who, desirous of preventing the monks from sleeping at their nocturnal services, made them drink the infusion of coffee, upon the report of some shepherds, who observed that their flocks were more lively after browsing on the fruit of that plant. Its reputation rapidly spread through the adjacent countries, and in about two hundred years it reached Paris. A single plant brought there in 1614, became the parent stock of all the coffee plantations in the West Indies. The extent of consumption can now hardly be realized. The United States alone annually consume, at the cost of its landing, from fifteen to sixteen millions of dollars. You may know the Arabia, or Mocha, the best coffee, by its small bean of dark color. The Java and East India, the next in quality, a larger and paler yellow. The West India Rio has a blush, greenish gray tint.

OUR BEST PARLORS.—Don't keep a solitary parlor into which you go but once a month, with your parson, special guests or sewing society.

Make your living-room the house.

Let the place be such that when your boy has gone to distant lands, or even when, perhaps, he clings to a single plank in the waters of the wide ocean, the thought of the old homestead shall come to him in his desolation, bringing always light, hope and love. Have no dungeon about your house—no room you never open—no blinds that are always shut.

Singular War Incident.

Amidst all the horrors of war, many incidents occur amusing in themselves, and which sometimes, under the most trying circumstances, are provocation of mirth, and from subjects for camp stories months after. I have seen soldiers chase hares and pick blackberries when a shower of leaden messenger of death was falling thick and fast around them, and do many other cool and foolish things. But the following which actually took place at Mine Run, surpasses anything I remember to have ever seen or heard.

On one of those biting cold mornings, while the armies of Meade and Lee were starting at each other across the little rivulet known as Mine Run, when moments appeared hours, and hours days, so near at hand seemed the deadly strife, a solitary sheep leisurely walked along the run on the rebel side.

A rebel vidette fired and killed the sheep, and dropping his gun, advanced to remove the prize. In an instant he was covered by a gun in the hands of a Union vidette, who said. 'Divide, is the word, or you are a dead Johnny.' This proposition was assented to, and there, between the two skirmish lines Mr. Rebel skinned the sheep, one half, and moved back to his post, when his challenger, in turn dropping his gun, crossed the rau, got the other half of the sheep and again resumed the duties his post amidst the cheers of his comrades who expected to help him eat it, Of the hundreds of hostile men arrayed against each other on either bank of that run, not one dared to violate the truce intuitively agreed upon by these two soldiers.

Influence of Temper on Health.

Excessive labor, exposure to wet and cold, deprivation of sufficient quantities of necessary and whole some food, habitual bad lodging, sloth, and intemperance, are all deadly enemies to human life; but they are none of them so bad as violent and ungovernable passions. Men and women have survived all these, and at last reached an extreme old age; but it may be safely doubted whether a single instance can be found of a man of violent and irrascible temper, habitually subject to storms of ungovernable passion, who has arrived at a very advanced period of life. It is, therefore, a matter of the highest importance to every one desirous to preserve "a sound mind in a sound body," so that the brittle vessel of life may glide down the stream of time smoothly and securely, instead of being continually tossed amidst rocks and shoals which endanger its existence, to have a special care, amidst all the vicissitudes and trials of life, to maintain a quiet possession of his own spirit.

At the battle of Chancellorsville, the Swiss General Fogliardi, who has been accustomed to the broad, open and clear European battle-fields, where whole army corps can charge in battle-line without impediments, and where the surging squadrons of cavalry are the sweeping concomitants of every army, could not exactly see how a great battle could be fought in that tangled, impenetrable wilderness, and remarked to a staff-officer noted for the force and brevity of his expression, as well as his great personal bravery: 'Zis is not a battle—zis is a grand skirmish!' reiterated the staff-officer, 'I'd have you understand, Sir, that two or three skirmishes like this would wipe the whole Swiss nation off the face of the earth! and rode down the line into the bullets with as much sang froid as though eating his breakfast.

Beckwith, the Commissary on Sherman's staff, went into the General's tent a few days since and accosted him thus 'General, we must make another contract for beef ,we have not enough to last two month.'

'Have you enough to last for two month?' inquired the General.' Yes, sir.' 'Well, in less then two months the army will be in——— or in Atlanta; if it goes to the former place we shall need no beef; if to the latter, we shal find enough; so make no more contracts, Beckwith.'

A half famished fellow in the Southern States, tells of a baker (whose loaves had been growing small by degrees and beautifully less) who, when going his rounds to serve his customers, stopped at the door of one of them and knocked, when a lady within exclamed—"Who's there?" and was answered. 'The baker.' 'What do you want?' 'To leave your bread.' 'Well, you needn't make such a fuss about it—put it through the keyhole'

A young lady once married a man by the name of Dust, against the wishes of her parents. After a short time they lived unhappily together, and she returned to her father's house; but he refused to see her, saying. "Dust thou art, and unto Dust thou shalt return."

A Crowd of Crimes.

Several months since, a quarrel arose between two neighbors residing near Jeffersonville, Tuolumne county, California, named Isaac Dann, and —— McAllister, relative to a water privilege.—McAllister was shot and killed. Considerable feeling was manifested at the time about the affair. Dann was indicted for murder, and at the trial his fair young wife sat with anxious countenance by his side, and two beautiful little children clung close to the unhappy father, whom the law's stern decree might tear from them forever.

On the opposite side of the courtroom, beside the prosecuting officers, was the brokenhearted widow of McAllister, in deep mourning habiliments. The scene was solemn and impressive. Even the Judge on the bench looked more grave than usual.

The trial was ably conducted. B, E. Moore, perhaps the most successful criminal lawyer in the State, made an eloquent and powerful defense of the prisoner. The jury disagreed. Shortly afterward the widow of the murdered man became insane, and committed suicide, leaving two or three little children to the world's cold charities. Time rolled on. A couple of weeks ago Dann,s trial came up agaia. He was acquitted. Now we learn that a day or two after his discharge, Dann's house was fired, in the night time, in apparantly a dozen places. He awoke to find his dwelling in flames. Snatching up one of his children he told his wife to take the other and follow him. Burned and bruised he got out.

But that young mother perished in the flames. It was indeed a terrible affair,—Aurora (Cal.) Times.

THE LAMENTED BAKER'S REGIMENT—The term of the 'California Regiment' having expired, it has returned to Philadelphia, where it is known as the Seventy first Regiment of Pennsylvania Volunteers. It was originally one thousand strong. It has been in all the battles with the Army of the Potomac since Col. Baker's death: it has been commanded by Col. Wistar, Col. Markoe, and is now under the command of Col. R. Penn Smith. Since it was mustered into the service it has had twenty-seven hundred men in its ranks.

Covered with glory, a war-worn remnant of only about one hundred men have returned to their homes.

AN INDIGNANT SOLDIER.—A soldier in hospital in Resaca (Ga.) writes to a Western paper: 'I see my name reported in the list of deaths at this hospital. I knew it was a lie as soon as I saw it. Hereafter when you hear of my death, write me and find out if it is so before publishing it. Yours, convalescently, Michael Butler, Company I. 47th Ohio,'

Old negro, slumbering, with his feet pointing to a glimmering fire.

Opens one eye, and gets a glimpse of them, as they stand up in the obscurity. Mistake them for two little negroes, and cries: "Gif fum fore me!' and relapses into sleep. After awhile opens the other eye, and still seeing the intruders, says: "Gif fum fore me, says; I kick you in the fire if you don't; will, shu'—'and again he snores. His dreams not being pleasant he soon open both eyes, and still seeing the little pets, he draws up his foot for the threatening kick, but is alarmed to see the enemy advanced upon him and exclaims: "Wha, where you comin to now! Humph! my own foot, by golly!"

The hat was passed around in a certain congregation for the purpose of taking up a collection. After it had made the circuit of the church it was handed to the minister, who, by the way, had exchanged pulpits with the regular preacher, and he found not a penny in it. He inverted the hat over the pulpit cushion and shook it, that its emptiness might be known, then raising his eyes toward the ceiling, he exclaimed, with great fervor,

'I thank God that I got back my hat from this congregation.'

'Won't you cut open a penny for me, father?" said a little girl, when she came home from school one day. 'Cut open a penny! What do you want me to do that for?' asked her father.—'Cause,' said the little girl, 'our teacher says in every penny there are four farthings, and I want to see them."

A large grindstone burst at Utica on Thursday while in rapid motion. One piece of the stone weighing twelve hundred pounds was thrown forty feet into the air. Another piece passed through a brick wall. Nobody hurt.

Mrs. W. W. Smith, of Dubuque, Iowa, attempted to commit suicide by cutting her throat at a hotel in Rochester, on Saturday morning, while under the influence of religious excitement. It is thought she will recover.

Either there is a great deal of man's nature in a monkey, or a great deal of monkey's nature in man.

THE POSITION.

The position of our armies remains about as it was a week ago. The army of the Potomac is south of the James, where it is being collected and prepared for further offensive movement. Our guns command the railroads running through Petersburg. Gens. Crook, Averill and Hunter are engaged in opperating in the vicinity of Lynchburg, with a view of cutting off the communication of Gen. Lee with the South. Our gallant army in Georgia is slowly, but surely working its way south to Atlanta.

The U. S. Mail Robbery Case.

We announced the particulars of the startling mail robbery in our last issue. We have only further to add this week that on Saturday the parties accused were tried before commisioner Willard. After a pretty thorough and tedious hearing of from 8 A. M. till midnight, they were bound over, to appear before the U. S. Court in St. Paul, where at latest accounts their case was undergoing an examination by the Grand Jury.

If an indictment is found the final trial will likely be had the last of this week. The penalty for the crime with which they are charged, is imprisonment in the Penitentiary not more than twenty nor less than ten years. Mail robbery is one of those crimes that are hard to detect and when once clearly shown should be severely punished.

THE CHICAGO CONVENTION.

The great pow-wow of the late lamented, so-called democracy, is not to take place on Monday next as was announced. Nothwithstanding the fact that it would have been extremely copperheadish after the style of all their late doings; yet every one was anxious to see the result. The idea of seeing Woodism and Vallandighamism put forth in the form of a platform of a party calling itself national would have been a novel sight. Yet we are now doomed to wait.

The predicament of the party is truly amusing. Grant had not yet been defeated. Sherman still goes on, and with every crushing blow they give the enemy the copperhead party sinks lower and lower.

When the Convention does assemble, it will be composed of men who have gone there without any instruction from the masses of the party they represent; and the result is, that the convention is now in the hands of the wire working men of the party, who have no principles to put forth, and they call and postpone the institution as suits the shape of the times. Never was a Convention before held in which were so many discordant elements as are likely to be in this. Men will be there who, in a feeble sort of a way, are in favor of fighting down the rebellion—others who wish to stand guard over what we have already gained and try to coax the rebels back,—others who, like Vallandigham, would withdraw our arms from the rebellious States and give up the fruits of three years' hard fighting, for the purpose of seeing if they would not deign to dictate terms of compromise and settlement. Others, too, who are in favor of adopting an out and out secession platform, acknowledging it as a fact, and as the true theory of our government, to be applied, not only in this case, but in future, to any other State that, may wish "to be let alone."

Whether it will be possible to harmonize all these discordant elements we must now wait to see. Should they meet at all, it is likely to be on the platform of Mr. Vallandigham in which the loyal people will be required to kneel humbly before the people of our "wayward sister States" and acknowledge that we did a very wicked thing in voting for the man of our choice, when the plantation driver had cracked his whip over our heads and told us to vote the "'tother way." In which, too, we will have to promise that if they will consent to move their capital from Richmond up to Washington and admit us into the Southern Confederacy, why, we will never vote contrary to the dictum of the duly constituted cotton aristocracy. This will be the formulæ: "Now if you'ns will vote just as we'ns tell yez to, then we'ns will let you'ns come inter our confederacy" "That's fair," says the Chicago Convention "we will do that and step right in." We will move the Richmond government up to Washington and start the machine to running. We mud sills are not fit to vote on our own account without first asking the nigger driver, and we ought to have known better than to have tried. It only gets us into trouble. After this we won't elect any one unless he is from a first family, and can boast that he 'never did a stroke of work.' We will pay your debts and repudiate our own, if you will only stop this war." These may not be the exact words of the platform, but it will be the purport of it when reduced down to plain English.

We promise that the President will get a sound cussing, but we do not expect that the convention will give free vent to all their enthusiastic admiration for Jeff. Davis. This will be withheld for obvious reasons of policy. But we are sure that a convention sitting in his behalf will say no harm of that amiable statesman.

In the present position they have no hope of success in the election except in the utter defeat of our arms. Crushing disaster with Grant and Sherman to the nation's cause would give them some show of success. If our arms should be successful they must make a radical change of policy, or be driven most disgracefully from the presidential contest. This they do not wish to make unless driven to it by the stern logic of events, and it is one of the most hopeful signs, that the shrewdest men of the party saw that a change of base was likely to be necessary; predicated on the triumph of our arms, and to wait for this the convention has been postponed. If they should fail to hold Richmond against our arms, they will likely adopt a platform similar in most respects to the Baltimore platform and put up a candidate, and make a merely personal contest with Mr. Lincoln. Who is to be the candidate to be put into this personal contest? They can't find him among any of their politicians.

Little Mac. would not make a respectable show. Any one can divine what they will attempt—to put up Gen. Grant. This will be their last desperate attempt to defeat Mr. Lincoln. Will Gen. Grant accept such a position then from a party whose only hope now is the defeat of his army? We think Gen. Grant has some self respect. We believe he has some gratitude to Mr. Lincoln who stood by him when the nation clamored for his disgrace after the battle of Pittsburg Landing. He can certainly see that no well meaning man will approve of a course that places the President in political antagonism with his Lieut. General in the midst of a great campaign. This change of time for holding the Chicago Convention shows that they fear the result of the campaign. They dare not take a bold stand on any principle to be defended at all hazards.

How different the action of the great Union Party. They did not have to wait to see unmistakable signs of victory before they pledged themseles to the maintainance of the unity of the nation. We are willing to pledge the life of the party to the maintainance of the Union. The Union party in the midst of the uncertainty of war has taken upon its shoulders the nation's cause, and by the help of God we will bear it on, as well through the black cloud of military disaster and defeat, if need be, as through the sunshine of victory.

BARBAROUS.

The Rebels have invented a new mode of exhibiting their barbarism, which has been apparent for the last three years. Their latest display of cruelty has taken place at Charleston, S. C., where they have placed under the fire of our guns five of our Generals and forty-five field officers—now prisoners in their hands. On the 13th of this month the rebel General Jones notified Gen. Foster, commanding our forces around Charleston, of the action of the rebel Government. Foster replied that he would ask from our authorities the same number of their men to place in front of our works under their fire. Whether this, so just an act of retaliation, has been yet done we are not informed.

But the rebel General Gardner has been sent South from Ft. Lafayette, it is supposed to be placed in the hands of Gen. Foster.

War is hard enough when conducted in a civilized way, but when such barbarity is adopted it becomes ten fold worse. No way is left us but to meet it with the sternest retaliation.

The Chicago Convention Postponed.

Grant and Sherman have not yet been defeated and as the result the Executive Committee of the National Copperhead party come out in the following card:

NEW YORK, June 22.—At a meeting of the Executive Committee, held to-day, it was voted that, in deference to the desire of a very large number of the leading members of the Conservative Union Democratic party throughout the country, the meeting of the Democratic National Convention be postponed to Monday, August 29th, 1864, at 12 o'clock at noon, at Chicago.

(Signed) AUGUSTE BELMONT, Chairman.
FRED'K O. PIERCE, Secy.

Vallandigham.

The above named individual lately appeared in an Ohio Convention of his district at Hamilton, where he was received with applause by the faithful. He proceeded to read a speech to the Convention, which thereupon elected him a delegate to the Chicago Convention. He says he is going to keep cool till after the Convention meets, when he will proceed to lay before the world, all that he has been pondering over while watching over the border.

EMIGRATION.—Still the tide of emigration pours in. The prospects of Blue Earth county are decidedly flatteridg. The large reservation that was open for settlement a few months ago now contains a large population. This body of land is the best in the State, being well supplied with timber. This land has been sold from $2 50 to $3 50 per acre. A little yet remains to be taken and those who wish to get cheap farms should send in their bids to the Secretary of the Interior soon, as the bids will not be received after the 15th of July.

Owing to the want of time and space, some important matter will be deferred until next week.

Reconstruction.

The Baltimore Platform is as clear and explicit a political creed as was ever put forth by any Convention in this country. There is no room left for doubt or misapprehension as to what is the meaning of its "planks." Neither does it evade any real, living issue before the country upon which Union men can agree as to a definite policy. Even those who were most opposed to the Convention and to Mr. Lincoln, acknowledge this and that the Platform is as radical and thorough-going as any radical could desire.

But it is silent, and wisely so, upon the prematurely vexed subject of reconstruction. Why it was so is very well and very briefly stated by the Editor of the N. Y. Times, who was the chairman of the Committee on Resolutions and therefore best qualified to speak on the subject.

Mr. Raymond says: "The simple truth is that the time has not yet come for a fixed conclusion upon the best mode of reconstruction. Such a decision now by the Union party would be premature, unsafe, and unwise. The prime element in the problem is as yet indeterminable—we mean the disposition of the Southern people after the overthrow of their armies. This in the very nature af the case, cannot be known except by practical experience after that overthrow takes place. We may speculate about what it will be, ever so confidently, and yet it is nothing but speculation—the stuff that dreams are made of. Too many of the strongest anticipations of even the wisest men have been falsified, in these unprecedented times, to justify any further calculation on the unseen.'

A little vessel called the Vision was launched on the 47th, at New York, in which the owner and one other individual design to cross the Atlantic. She is fifteen feet four inches long, four feet ten inches wide, and something over two feet in the depth of her hold. We know little about the practicability of navigating the ocean in these cockle shells, but the project of the Vision occurs to as very visionary. The captain expects to became a lion by the time he reaches Liverpool, and to be able to sell the craft which has accomplished such wonders at a high figure. He stands an excellent chance to be a dead lion enveloped in a wattery mane before he reaches there.

Fourth of July.

At a meeting of the proprietor, editor, compositor, pressman, newsboys, and two devils, belonging to the Union office, it was Resolved, That, whereas this present year having been one of unexampled high prices in everything pertaining to living and enjoyment, therefore, Resolved, That under the peculiar circumstances of the case the Town Council may be permitted for the occasion to waive all ceremony, and let the Fourth of July take care of itself. Resolved, That the fourth of july is a patriotic day, and the Mankato UNION is a patriotic institution, so regarded and considered by the public, Resolved, By the pressman that the Mankato UNION have a celebration on its own hook. Resolved, That a committee be appointed to present a programe of arrangements. Resolved, That a committee of two be named by the chair to provide a suitable dinner, under the supervision of the Union League.

The committee of arrangements then returned and brought in the following programe.

The grand anniversary of our Nation's birthday will be ushered in by firing of guns and ringing of bells, commencing at sunrise, and they will ring and fire for one hour. The Town Council will then commence enforcing the Maine Law assisted by Bros. Law and Smith. The various lager beer shops, restaurants, taverns and groceries will be inspected and all the liquor found will destroyed or drank. It is expected that the various barber shops in town will be shut up on this day, and also all broker's offices. This ordinance will be strictly enforced.

The grand procession will form at 6 o'clock A. M., its right resting on the railroad bridge at St. Peter, and its left on Judson. It is expected that during the marching the utmost decorum will be observed by the populace, and it is very desirable that little boys should not be permitted to throw fire crackers and serpents into the carriages of our principal tanners and codfish gentry.

The different candidates for District Judge will be on the ground and see that order is maintained. The following is the order of about one-eighth part of the procession. We have not room for it all:—

The following rules must be observed:—

1. No man is allowed to be accompanied by a dog or other brute beast.

2. Visiting editors are not allowed to mix with the respectable part of the procession. Eastern editors not allowed in the town.

P. S. All the "principal" people mentioned will certainly appear. Those dissatisfied with their position in the procession will refer to X. O. P.

The procession will meet at Ambrose's at 3 A. M. and partake of refreshments, as the Maine Law will not go into effect until 6 A. M.

P. S. Lawyers will not be allowed to connect themselves with the procession under any circumstances.

Let him alone.

The New York Evening Post is of the opinion that the best thing that can be done with Vallandigham is to let him alone. After remarking that his desire is for myrtyrdom, it says:

"But the authorities at Washington are too sagacious, we trust, to be caught in the trap which has been set for them. They must know by this time that Vallandigham's original arrest and punishment was a doubtful matter; that there is really no authority for sending a man out of his country, and that his coming back is scarcely even a nominal offense. It is at best a piece of witty and long-planned bravado, gotten up by the managers of the desperate peace faction, to help themselves forward at the North, and to further the interest of their rebel friends at the South. The scheme is glass; a very mole can see through it; faugh!"

And the Buffalo Commercial Advertiser says:

"Vallandigham has returned in the hope that the government will re-arrest him. His followers are prepared to protect him, and it necessary to resort to violence, and if the opportunity be not afforded them they will be foiled. The whole thing seems to us to be a cheap political device, and so transparent that it need deceive no one:

"We trust the administration will not be betrayed into meddling any further with Valandingham, by any mistaken ideas of asserting its dignity or power, or permit its equanimity to be disturbed by the defiant bluster of the whilom exile of his friends. By so doing it would furnish them with coverted capital for the Chicago Convention, and add to the fictitious consideration which they have already conferred upon the "great copperhead."

"The government has already asserted itself sufficiently in this matter. It has elicited an overwhelmingly loyal response from the people of the North, and nothing now remains to complete the punishment of Vallandigham, and make it terrible to him, but let him alone severely. The times, and the sentiments of the people of Ohio, have been essentially changed since Valandingham was first arrested. He has no longer the power for mischief he then had. The people who can, in an emergency, organize and send into the field, thirty thousand Union soldiers thirty days, must possess an assured loyalty which is proof against the insidious and vile teachings of one so infamous as Vallandigham. He will find, now that he has returned, that the scorn and indignation of the people will be a more bitter and unendurable infliction than that which he received from the Government."

Gen. Grant and the Presidency.

Those who are expecting that there may be a contingency when Gen. Grant, would receive and except a nomination for the Presidency, know very little of the man. Difficult as it may be to convince many of our readers that there is an American who would deliberately refuse the Presidency, we feel certain that there is any such a one and that the Lieutenant General is the man. No American lives who has been or is more devoid of aspiration for civil promotion or to whose tastes a high station would be more repugnant. He has been nearly all his life a soldier, devoted to his profession and centering all his ambition on success in this profession. It is this singleness of purpose that has made him successful and that has made him so universally popular.

But, aside from this, we know from perfectly reliable sources that Gen. Gran has peremptorily refused in advance any offer of the Presidency. He replied to those who were seeking to learn his views on the subject, that while the war lasted no earthly inducement could take him voluntarily from his present position, and that even should the war come to a speedy conclusion he would be the most ungrateful of men to run against Mr. Lincoln. This declaration come to us through the most trustworthy sources and affords to us conclusive proof that Gen. Grant has fully decided not to enter the political arena. And those who know him, know that he is not apt to waver when he has made up his mind one way or the other.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

THE scene of the recent battle on the peninsula has been called variously Coal Harbor and Cold Harbor. A correspondent of a Boston paper now claims that its proper name is Cool Arbor. This may be so; but both sides found it anything but cool on the 3d of June.

Exaggerated Rebel Accounts of the Sturgis Disaster.

The Grenada (Miss.) Rebel Picket of the 16th, contains the subjoined dispatches:

"Forest, with Bell's Lyons' and Meeker's brigades, also Johnson's brigade of Roddy's command, Rice's and Morton's batteries have whipped 12,000 Yankees with great slaughter, capturing 20 cannons, 250 wagons, 3,000 mules and 2,000 prisoners. Many of them were negroes, who fought desperately. The enemy had 2,000 in killed and wounded. Our loss in wounded is heavy, from 600 to 1,000. Among our wounded is Col. Polk of Bell's brigade, Adjutant Pope, of the 7th Tennessee, and King of Rice's battery.

The enemy is scattered and Forest is still pursuing. Heavy rains have cut off the retreat of the enemy. The railroad and telegraph are uninterrupted to Corinth. The enemy numbered two to our one. Their infantry are demolished.

General Forest's victory is greater than at first supposed. Our loss is 150 killed and 450 wounded. The enemy's loss is 1,000 killed and 3,000 captured. The balance are scattered through the woods, still being pursued. The entire army is destroyed. We captured 3,000 prisoners, 250 wagons, with supplies, ordnance stores, 2,000 small arms and about 20 pieces of artillery. The enemy stood till they were knocked down by the butts of our guns. We had 3,000 in the fight and the enemy 10,250."

A TERRIBLE MURDER—A most terrible murder was committed last Tuesday in Allen county, Indiana. A family of three persons were murdered and their residence burnt to screen the crime. The Fort Wayne Sentinel has the following concerning this shocking affair:

The son of one of Boiteaux's neighbors saw a light about 11 o'clock last night in the direction of his house, and told his father he thought the house was burning.

This morning they went over to ascertain the facts, and found Mrs. B. lying in the fence corner, near the house, dead. The house was burned down, nothing but a mass of burning embers being left. Boiteaux and his son could not be found, and it is supposed that their bodies were consumed. Boiteaux was an old Frenchman, and was preparing to returned to France. He had lately sold a piece of land, and was believed to have a large sum of money in the house, which undoubtedly tempted the desperadoes to commit a robbery, and then, to conceal the crime, murdered all the inmates and set fire to the house. Mrs. B. had strength enough left to crawl from the house to the fence where she was found, while her husband and son were killed outright, and their bodies consumed in the house. Mrs. Boiteaux appears to have made a desperate resistance, as she had several severe cuts on the arms, and one or two stabs, apparently made with a bowie-knife; she was also shot twice, one of the balls passing through the heart. The remains of the two men were found in the house, nearly consumed by the fire. It is ascertained that the deceased had $1,800 in the house, more than half of which was in paper. About $100 in gold, partially melted, was found in the ruins, and it is thought probable that more may be found when the fire if sufficiently extinguished to allow a more thorough search. How much booty the murderers got cannot be ascertained.

LYING TO KEEP THEIR COURAGE UP.—The Richmond Dispach has the hardihood to state that the whole of Gen. Lee's loss since the present campaign is but seventeen thousand, all told—killed, wounded and missing," whilst it modestly puts down Grant's loss at one hundred thousand. The dimensions of the Dispatch's capacity for lying may be estimated by the fact that we have taken fully ten thousand prisoners, leaving but ten thousand for the killed and wounded of the rebels! In other words, the rebels have killed or wounded six of our men for every one of their own suffering similar casualties. What must be the guilibility of a people with whom such falsehoods pass current?

The N. Y. Herld's correspondent June 26th 1864 writes as follows. A gentleman from Atlanta says the citizens are removing their valuables further South, and that if Johnston is driven from the Chattahoochee he will make his next stand at Cedar Bluffs river, nine miles South of Atlanta. He reports that the Governor of Georgia had issued a proclamation warning the Confederate forces not to destroy Atlanta nor the railroads contiguous thereto, as they are the property of the State, and that if necessary he will call out the Georgia militia and withdraw the Georgia troops from the Confederacy to carry out the purposes of his proclamation.

Prentice says there is a good deal of the devil in the rebels. They sometimes fight like him, frequently run like him, and always lie like him.

Lord Palmerston will complete his 80th year on the 20th of next October, and has been about fifty years in office.

FOURTH OF JULY BALL.—We learn that Mrs. Waltz, is to give a grand ball on the evening of the Fourth. The City Hall will be opened as the ball room, where the young and and old can "trip the light fantastic toe." We know that everybody will feel satisfied with Mrs. Waltz's provsions for refreshments. The public generally are invited to attend and enjoy themselves.

CONTAGIOUS DISEASES.—The measles have appeared in our town again —to the great terror of the little folks. Most people do not consider the extent of mortality caused by this disease. The census shows three times as many deaths by measles as small pox; and besides, it often leaves the patient with bad hearing, weak eyes or lungs. Children with this disease should be watched with the strictest care.

* * *

SMALL POX.—We are sorry to learn that the neighborhood of South Bend is threatened by the presence of this disease. A friend of Mr. Banks who lately came into the country is now down with it at his house. We learn that proper flags are out and the road obstracted that passes the house, so that strangers have ample warning to keep clear.

RAIN.—On Monday and Tuesday morning the farming part of our county was made glad by several good showers of rain, which seems to have wet the ground more than any we have had for some time. This puts a bright face on the prospects of our crops which had begun to suffer severely. We may look for an ordinary yield of Wheat, oats, corn and barley.

THE ever welcome face of Harper's Monthly, is before us, and this time bearing date of July. There is no monthly that comes to us that we peruse with greater pleasure than we do Harper. Its leading articles are always of an historical character, and are intensely interesting. There is a great deal of information to be gained in reading it. It should be in every family.

GODEY FOR JULY.—"Have you read Godey for July?" asked a lady friend the other day, "I think it is so interesting, and the fashion plates are so splendid, I would not part with it for any thing in the world." That is the opinion of all who take Godey. It has lost none of its high reputation, and we trust that it will continue to do so long as it is so ably conducted as at the present time.

ARTHUR'S MAGAZINE FOR JULY.—Our acquaintance with this excellent monthly is somewhat limited, but we have found it interesting so far as we have read, and can thus far speak well of it. It is embellished with engravings, and fashion plates, and has a choice selection of good reading matter.

A Proposition for Exchange.

The Richmond Whig of the 8th of June urges the expulsion from the rebel capital of "some fifteen hundred or two thousand Irish and German woman" who are now living there; on the score that their husbands "have gone to the Yankee Service." The southern gentleman who writes this in one of the leading rebel journals, shows his gently breeding by the way in which he speaks of these unfortunate women and children.

He says; "They don't pretend to do any kind of work, and spend all their time in running from one place where charity is dispensed to another, just as hogs in the fall of the year run from one apple tree to another."

We have no doubt the husbands of these women would have preferred to enter the Union armies; but there is every reason to believe that they have been conscripted into the rebel ranks, and have either died there, or are still forced to fight for these rebels, who now propose to expel their helpless wives and children.

When one of the slaveholders in 1861 told Russell, the London Times correspondent, that when the fighting was done they meant to put down the Irish, he only expressed what is in the heart of every slaveholding rebel, who sees in a free working man a 'mudsill' a filthy 'mechanic,' and a person dangerous to slavery.

As to sending these Irish and German women and children into our lines, we can only say, they will be welcome. The men of the free States have never refused any asylum, safety, shelter, food, clothing, and kind offices to helpless women and children. But when they come to us let our Government send South, to Richmond, an equal, or better, a double number of the rebel women with whom the boarding-houses of New York are crowded, and not less than twenty thousand of whom are known to the police. By such an exchange we shall be greatly benefited.—New York Times.

THE HISTORY OF HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS.—The most remarkable medicine of the day, and the many cures that have been performed with it in cases of Liver Complaint, Dispepsia, Nervous Debility, and other diseases arising from a disordered stomach or liver, places it at once among the most astonishing discoveries that has taken place in the medical world. The diseases to which bitters are applicable are so universal that there are but few of our friends who may not test their virtues in their own families or circle of acquaintances and prove to their own satisfaction that there is at least one remedy among the many advertised medicines, deserving the public commendation.

A SINGLE BOX OF BRANDRETH'S PILLS.—contains more vegetable extractive matter than twenty boxes of any pills in the world besides; fifty-five hundred physicians use them in their practice to the exclusion of other purgatives. The first letter of their value is yet scarcely appreciated. When they are better known sudden death and continued sickness will be of the past. Let those who know them speak right out in their favor. It is a duty which will save life.

Our race are subject to a redundancy of vitiated bile at this season, and it is as dangerous as it is prevalent; but Brandreth's Pills afford an invaluable and efficient protection. By their occasional use we prevent the collection of those impurities, which, when in sufficient quantities, cause so much danger to the body's health. They soon cure liver complaint, dyspepsia, loss of appetite, pain in the head, heartburn, pain in the breast-bone, sudden faintness and costiveness. LAWS OF THE UNITED STATES.

Passed at the First Session of the 38th Congress

[PUBLIC—No. 11.]

AN ACT to amend an act entitled "An act for enrolling and calling out the national forces, and for other purposes," approved March third, eighteen hundred and sixty-three.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the President of the United States shall be authorized, whenever he shall deem it necessary, during the present war, to call for such number of men for the military service of the United States as the public exigencies require.

SEC. 2. And be it further enacted, That the quota of each ward of a city, town, township, precinct or election district, or of a county, where the county is not divided into wards, town, townships, precincts, or election district, shall be, as nearly as possible, in proportion to the number of men resident therein liable to render military service, taking into account, as far as practicable, the number which has been previously furnished therefrom, and in ascertaining and filling said quota there shall be taken into account the number of men who have heretofore entered the naval service of the United States, and whose names are borne upon the enrollment lists as already returned to the office of the Provost Marshal General of the United States.

SEC. 3. And be it further enacted, That if the quotas shall not be filled within the time designated by the President, the provost marshal of the district within which any ward of a city, town, township, precinct, or election district, or county, where the same is not divided into wards, towns, townships, precincts, or election districts, which is deficient in its quota, is situated, shall, under the direction of the Provost Marshal General, make a draft for the number deficient therefrom; but all volunteers who may enlist after the draft shall have been ordered, and before it shall be actually made, shall be deducted from the number ordered to be drafted in such ward, town, township, precinct, or election district, or county. And if the quota of any district shall not be filled by the draft made in accordance with the provisions of this act, and the act to which it is an amendment, further drafts shall be made, and like proceedings had, until the quota of such district shall be filled.

SEC. 4. And be it further enacted, That any person enrolled under the provisions of the act for enrolling and calling out the national forces, and for other purposes, approved March third, eighteen hundred and sixty-three, or who may be hereafter so enrolled, may furnish, at any time previous to the draft an acceptable substitute, who is not liable to draft, nor at the time in the military or naval service of the United States, and such person so furnishing a substitute shall be exempt from draft during the time for which [such] substitute shall not be liable to draft, not exceeding the time for which such substitute shall have been accepted.

SEC. 5. And be it further enacted, That any person drafted into the military service of the United States may, before the time fixed for his appearance for duty at the draft rendezvous furnish an acceptable substitute, subject to such rules and regulations as may be prescribed by the Secretary of War. That if such substitute is not liable to draft, the person furnishing him shall be exempt from draft during the time for which such substitute is not liable to draft, not exceeding the term for which he was drafted; and if such substitute is liable to draft, the name of the person furnishing him shall again be placed on the roll, and shall be liable to draft on future calls, but not until the present enrolment shall be exhausted; and this exemption shall not exceed the term for which such person shall have been drafted. And any person now in the military or naval service of the United States, not physically disqualified, who has so served more than one year, and whose term of unexpired service shall not at the time of substitution exceed six months, may be employed as a substitute to serve in the troops of the State in which he enlisted; and if any drafted person shall hereafter pay money for the procuration of a substitute, under the provisions of the act to which this is an amendment, such payment of money shall operate only to relieve such person from the draft in filling that quota; and his name shall be retained on the roll in filling future quotas; but in no instance shall the exemption of any person, on account of his payment of commutation money for the procuration of a substitute, extend beyond one year; but at the end of one year, in every such case, the name of any person so exempted shall be enrolled again, if not before returned to the enrolment list under the provisions of this section.

SEC. 6. And be it further enacted, That boards of enrolment shall enroll all persons liable to draft under the provisions of this act, and the act to which this is an amendment, whose names may have been omitted by the proper enrolling officers; all persons who shall arrive at the age of twenty years before the draft; all aliens who shall declare their intention to become citizens; all persons discharged from the military or naval service of the United States who have not been in such service two years during the present war; and all persons who have been exempted under the provisions of the second section of the act to which this is an amendment, who are not exempted by the provisions of this act; and said boards of enrollment shall release and discharge from draft all persons who, between the time of the enrolment and the draft, shall arrive at the age of forty-five years, and shall strike the names of such persons from the enrolment.

SEC. 7. And be it further enacted, That any mariner or able or ordinary seaman who shall be drafted under this act, or the act to which this is an amendment, shall have the right, within eight days after the notification of such draft, to enlist in the naval service as a seaman, and a certificate that he has so enlisted being made out in conformity with regulations which may be prescribed by the Secretary of the Navy, and duly presented to the provost marshal of the district in which such mariner or able or ordinary seaman shall have been drafted, shall exempt him from such draft: Provided, That the period for which he shall have enlisted into the naval service shall not be less than the period for which he shall have been drafted into the military service: And provided further, That the said certificate shall declare that satisfactory proof has been made before the naval officer issuing the same that the said person so enlisting in the navy is a mariner by vocation, or an able or ordinary seaman. And any other person now in the military service of the United States who shall furnish satisfactory proof that he is a mariner by vocation or an able or ordinary seaman may enlist into the navy under such rules and regulations as may be prescribed by the President of the United States: Provided, That such enlistment shall not be for less than the unexpired term of his military service nor for less than one year. And the bounty money which any mariner or seaman enlisting from the army into the navy may have received from the United States, or from the State in which he enlisted in the army, shall be deducted from the prize money to which he may become entitled during the time required to complete his military service: And provided further, That the whole number of such transfer enlistments shall not exceed ten thousand.

SEC. 8. And be it further enacted, That whenever any such mariner or able or ordinary seaman shall have been exempted from such draft in the military service by such enlistment into the naval service, under such draft [illegible] the ward, town, township, precinct or election district, or county, when the same is not divided into wards, towns, townships, precincts or election districts, from which such person has been drafted, shall be credited with his services to all intents and purposes as if he had been duly mustered into the military service under such draft.

SEC. 9. And be it further enacted, That all enlistments into the naval service of the United States, or into the marine corps of the United States, that may hereafter be made of persons liable to service under the act of Congress entitled "An act for enrolling and calling out the national forces, and for other purposes," approved March third, eighteen hundred and sixty-three, shall be credited to the ward, town, township, precinct, or election district, or county, when the same is not divided into wards, towns, townships, precincts, or election districts, in which such enlisted men were or may be enrolled and liable to duty under the aforesaid, under such regulations as the Provost Marshal General of the United States may prescribe.

SEC. 10. And be it further enacted, That the following persons be and they are hereby exempted from the enrolment and draft under the provisions of this act and of the act to which this is an amendment, to wit: Such as are rejected as physically or mentally unfit for the service, all persons actually in the military or naval service of the United States at the time of the draft, and all persons who have served in the military or naval service two years during the present war and been honorably discharged therefrom, and no persons but such as are herein exempted shall be exempt.

SEC. 12. And be it further enacted, That section third of the "Act for enrolling and calling out the national forces, and for other purposes," approved March 3d, eighteen hundred and sixty-three and so much of section ten of said act as provides for the separate enrolment of each class, be and the same are hereby repealed; and it shall be the duty of the board of enrolment of each district to consolidate the two classes mentioned in the 3d section of said act.

SEC. 13. And be it further enacted, That any person who shall forcibly resist or oppose any enrolment, or who shall incite, counsel, encourage, or who shall conspire or confederate with any other person or persons forcibly to resist or oppose any such enrolment, or who shall aid or assist, or take any part in any forcible resistance or or opposition thereto, or who shall assault, obstruct, hinder, impede, or threaten any officer or other person employed in making or in aiding to make such enrolment, or employed in the performance, or in aiding in the performance of any service in any way relating thereto, or in arresting or aiding to arrest any spy or deserter from the military service of the United States shall, upon conviction thereof in any court competent to try the offence, be punished by a fine not exceeding five thousand dollars, or by imprisonment not exceeding five years, or by both of said punishments in the discretion of the court. And in cases where such assaulting, obstructing, hindering, or impeding shall produce the death of such officer or other person, the offender shall be deemed guilty of murder, and, upon conviction thereof upon indictment in the circuit court of the United States for the district within which the offence was committed, shall be punished with death. And nothing in this section contained shall be construed to relieve the party offending from liability, under proper indictment or process, for any crime against the laws of a State, committed by him while violating the provisions of this section.

SEC. 13. And be it further enacted That the Secretary of War shall be authorized to detail or appoint such number of additional surgeons for temporary duty in the examination of persons drafted into the military service in any district, as may be necessary to secure the prompt examination of all such persons, and to fix the compensation to be paid surgeons so appointed while actually employed. And such surgeons so detailed or apointed shall perform the same duties as the surgeon of the board of enrolment, except that they shall not be permitted to vote or sit with the board of enrolment.

SEC. 14 And be it further enacted, That the Secretary of War is authorized, whenever in his judgment the public interest will be subserved thereby, to permit or require boards of examination of enrolled or drafted men to hold their examinations at different points within their respective enrollment districts, to be determined by him: Provided, That in all districts over one hundred miles in extent, and in such as are composed of over ten counties, the board shall hold their sessions in at least two places in such district, and at such points as are best calculate to accommodate the people thereof.

SEC. 15. And be it further enacted, That provost marshals, boards of enrolment, or any member thereof, acting by authority of the board, shall have power to summon witnesses in behalf of the Government, and enforce their attendance by attachment without previous payment of fees, in any case pending before them, or either of them; and the fees allowed for witnesses attending under summons shall be six cents per mile for mileage, counting one way; and no other fees or costs shall be allowed under the provisions of this section; and they shall have power to administer oaths and affirmations. And any person who shall wilfully and corruptly swear or affirm falsely before any provost marshal, or board of enrollment, or member thereof, acting by authority of the board, or who shall, before any civil magistrate, wilfully and corruptly swear or affirm falsely to any affidavit to be used in any case pending before any provost marshal or board of enrolment shall, on conviction, be fined not exceeding five hundred dollars, and imprisoned not less than six months nor more than twelve months. The drafted men shall have process to bring in witnesses, but without mileage

SEC. 16. And be it further enacted, That the copies of any record of a provost marshol or board of enrolment, or of any part thereof, certified by the provost marshal, or a majority of said board of enrolment shall be deemed and taken as evidence in any civil or military court in like manner as the original record; Provided, That if any person shall knowingly certify any false copy or copies of such record, to be used in any civil or military court he shall be subject to the pains and penalties of perjury.

SEC. 17. And be it further enacted That members of religious denominations, who shall by oath or affirmation declare that they are conscientiously opposed to the bearing of arms, and who are prohibited from doing so by the rules and articles of faith and practice of said religious denominations, shall, when drafted into the military service, be considered non-combatants, and shall be assigned by the Secretary of War to duty in the hospitals, or to the care of freedmen, or shall pay the sum of three hundred dollars to such person as the Secretary of War shall designate to receive it, to be applied to the benefit of the sick and wounded soldiers: Provided, That no person shall be entitled to the benefit of the provisions of this section unless his declaration of conscientious scruples against bearing arms shall be supported by satisfactory evidence that his department has been uniformly consistent with such declaration.

SEC. 18. And be it further enacted, That no person of foreign birth shall on account of alienage, be exempted from enrolment or draft under the provisions of this act, or the act to which it is an amendment, who has at any time assumed the rights of a citizen by voting at any election held under authority of the laws of any other State or Territory, or of the United States, or who has held any office under such laws or any of them; but the fact that any such person of foreign birth has voted or held, or shall vote or hold office as aforesaid, shall be taken as conclusive evidence that he is not entitled to exemption from military service on account of alienage.

SEC. 19. And be it further enacted. That all claims to exemption shall be verified by the oath or affirmation of the party claiming exemption, to the truth of the facts stated, unless it shall satisfactorily appear to the board of enrolment that such party is for some good and sufficient reason unable to make such oath or affirmation; and the testimony of any other party filed in support of a claim to exemption shall also be made upon oath or affirmation.

SEC. 20. And be it further enacted, That if any person drafted and liable to render military service shall procure a decision of the board of enrolment in his favor upon a claim to exemption by any fraud or false representation practiced by himself or by his procurement, such decision or exemption shall be of no effect, and the person exempted, or in whose favor the decision may be made, [illegible] shall be deemed a deserter, and may be arrested, [illegible] tried by court martial, and punished as such, and [illegible] shall be held to service for the full term for which he was drafted, reckoning from the time of his arrest: Provided, That the Secretary of War may order the discharge of all persons in the military service who are under the age of eighteen years at the time of the application for their discharge, when it shall appear upon due proof that such persons are in the service without the consent, either expressed or implied, of their parents or guardians: And Provided further, That such persons, their parents, or guardians, shall first repay to the Government and to the State and local authorities all bounties and advance pay which may have been paid to them, anything in the act to which this is an amendment to the contrary notwithstanding.

SEC. 21. And be it further enacted That any person who shall procure or attempt to procure, a false report from the surgeon of the board of enrolment concerning the physical condition of any drafted person, or a decision in favor of such person by the board of enrolment upon a claim to exemption, knowing the same to be false, shall, upon conviction in any district or circuit court of the United States, be punished by imprisonment for the period for which the party was drafted.

SEC. 22. And be it further enacted, That the fees of agents and attorneys for making out and causing to be executed any papers in support of a claim for exemption from draft, or for any services that may be rendered to the claimant, shall not, in any case, exceed five dollars; and physicians or surgeons furnishing certificates of disability to any claimant for exemption from draft shall not be entitled to any fee or compensation therefor. And any agent or attorney who shall, directly or indirectly, demand or receive any greater compensation for his services under this act, and any physician or surgeon who shall, directly or indirectly, demand or receive any compensation for furnishing said certificates of disability, and any officer, clerk, or deputy connected with the board of enrolment who shall receive compensation from any drafted man for any services, or obtaining the performance of such service required from any member of said board by the provisions of this act, shall be deemed guilty of a high misdemeanor, and upon conviction, shall, for every such offence, be fined not exceeding five hundred dollars to be recovered upon information or indictment before any court of competent jurisdiction, one-half for the use of any informer who may prosecute for the same in the name of the United States, and the other half for the United States, and shall also be subject to imprisonment for a term not exceeding one year, at the discretion of the court.

SEC 23. And be it further enacted, That no member of the board of enrolment, and no surgeon detailed or employed to assist the board of enrolment, and no clerk, assistant, or employee of any provost marshal or board of enrolment, shall, directly or indirectly, be engaged in procuring or attempting to procure substitutes for persons drafted, or liable to be drafted into the military service of the United States. And if any member of a board of enrolment, or any such surgeon, clerk, assistant, or employee, shall procure or attempt to procure, a substitute for any person drafted, or liable to be drafted, as aforesaid, he shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall, upon conviction, be punished by imprisonment not less than thirty days, nor more than six months, and pay a fine not less than one hundred, nor more than one thousand dollars, by any court competent to try the offence.

SEC 24. And be it further enacted, That all able bodied male colored persons, between the ages of twenty and forty five years, resident in the United States, shall be enroled according to the provisions of this act, and of the act to which this is an amendment, and form part of the national forces; and when a slave of a loyal master shall be drafted and mustered into the service of the United States, his master shall have a certificate thereof, and thereupon such slave shall be free; and the bounty of one hundred dollars, now payable by law for each drafted man, shall be placed to the person to whom such drafted person was owing service or labor at the time of his muster into the service of the United States. The Secretary of War shall appoint a commission in each of the slave States represented in Congress, charged to award to each loyal person to whom a colored volunteer may owe service a just compensation, not exceeding three hundred dollars, for each such colored volunteer, payable out of the fund derived from commutations, and every such colored volunteer on being mustered into the service shall be free. And in all cases where men of color have been heretofore enlisted or have volunteered in the military service of the United States, all the provisions of this act so far as the payment of bounty and compensation are provided shall be equally applicable as to those who may be hereafter recruited. But men of color drafted or enlisted, or who may volunteer into the military service, while they shall be credited on the quotas of the several States, or subdivisions of States, wherein they are respectively drafted, enlisted, or shall volunteer, shall not be assigned as State troops, but shall be mustered into regiments or companies as United States colored troops.

SEC. 25 And be it further enacted, That the fifteenth section of the act to which this is amendatory be so amended that it will read as follows; That any surgeon charged with the duty of such inspection, who shall receive from any person whomsoever any money or other valuable thing, or agree directly or indirectly, to receive the same to his own or another's use, for making an imperfect inspection, or a false or incorrect report, or who shall wilfully neglect to make a faithful inspection and true report, and each member of the board of enrolment who shall wilfully agree to the discharge from service of any drafted person who is not legally and properly entitled to such discharge, shall be tried by a court-martial, and, on conviction thereof, be punished by a fine not less than one hundred dollars and not more than ten thousand dollars, shall be imprisoned at the discretion of the court, and be cashiered and dismissed the service.

R. HAYNES'

Portable Brace Fence!

PATENTED APRIL 7, 1863.

WE claim for this Fence greater strength and durability with less expense than any ordinary farm fence. No farmer who studies economy and convenience in the management of his farm will be without it. The First Premium was awarded to Mr. Haynes' Portable Fence, at the late State Fairs in Ohio and Michigan, and at several County Fairs. Read the following extract:

"Among the many things we saw on exhibition at the State Fair was Haynes' Portable Brace Fence. This fence seems to be a great improvement over most Fences of the kind. It is very strong, and is so braced that wind can have no more effect upon it, if as much, as upon a common rail fence. It is light, yet heavy enough for all farm purposes. Its cost is but little, and much labor is saved by using this fence, as it is easily put up, and in after years easily repaired. Every farmer ought to see this remarkable fence. We hope Mr. Haynes will be induced to exhibit it at our County Fair.—Medina (Ohio) Gazette.

Mr. H has also invented a mould or bench upon which this fence is made. By using this bench any farmer can make the fence at a rapid rate. Full directions for making the bench and the fence upon it accompany each deed. For farm or township rights address

CELEBRATED

STOMACH BITTERS.

A pure and powerful tonic, corective and alterative of wonderful efficacy in disease of the Stomach, Liver and bowels. Cures, Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Headache, General Debility, Nervousness, Depression of Spirits, Constipation Colic, Intermittent Fevers, Cramps and Spasms, and all Complaints of either Sex arising from Boodily Weakness whether inherent in the system or produced by special causes. Nothing that is not wholesome genial and restorative in its nature enters into the composition of Hostetters Stomach Bitters. This popular preparations contains no mineral of any kind, no deadly botanical element; no fiery excitant; but it is a combination of the extracts of rare balsamic herbs and plants with the purest and mildest of all diffusive stimulants. It is well to be forearmed against disease, and, so far as the human system can be protected by human means against maladies engendered by an unwholesome atmosphere, impure water and other ex[illegible] causes, Hostetters Bitters may be relied on as a safeguard. [illegible] been tried with Fever and Ague, it has [illegible] found infallible as a preventive and irresistible as a remedy, and thousands who resort to it under apprehensions of an attack, escape the scourge, and thousands who neglect to avail themselves of its protective qualities in advance are cured by a very brief course of this marvelous medicine. Fever and Ague patients, after being plied with quinine for months in vain until fairly saturated with that dangerous alkaloid, are not unfrequently restored to health within a few days by the use of Hostetter's Bitters. The weak stomach is rapidly invigorated and the appetite restored by this agreeable Tonic and hence it works wonders in cases of Dyspepsia and in less confirmed forms of Indigestion. Acting as a gentle and painless aperient, as well as upon the liver, it also invariably relieves the Constipation superinduced by irregular action of the digestive and secretive organs. Persons of feeble habit, liable to Nervous attacks, Lowness of spirits and fits of languor, find prompt and permanent relief from the Bitters. The testimony on this point is most conclusive, and from both sexes. The agony of Bilious colic, is immediately assuaged by a single dose of the stimulant, and by occasionally resorting to it, the return of the complaint may be prevented. As a general tonic, Hostetter's Bitters produce [illegible] 23

Poetry.

THE SOLDIER'S WIDOW.

BY N. P. WILLIS.

Wo! for my vine-clad home!
That it should ever be so dark to me,
With its bright threshhold, and its whispering woe
That I should ever come,
Fearing the echo of a lonely tread,
Beneath the roof tree of my glorious dead!

Lead on! my orphan boy!
Thy home is not so desolate to thee,
And the low shiver in the linden-tree
May bring to them a joy;
But oh! how dark is the bright home before thee,
To her who with a joyous spirit bore thee!

Lead on! for thou art now
My sole remaining help. God hath spoken.
And the strong heart I leaned upon has broken:
And I have seen his brow,
The forehead of my upright one, and just,
Trod by the hoof of battle to the dust.

He will not meet thee there
Who bless'd thee at the eventide, my son!
And when the shadows of the night steal on
He will not call to prayer.
The lips that melted giving thee to God
Are in the icy keeping of the sod!

Aye, my own boy! thy sire
Is with the sleepers of the valley cast,
And the proud glory of my life hath passed
With his high glance of flae,
Wo! that the linden and the vine should bloom,
And a just man be gathered to the tomb!

Select Miscellany.

THE DYING SERGEANT.

[Brigadier General J. C. Rice, who was killed in the late battles in Virginia, sent some time since the following sketch to J. G. Whittier, who forwarded it since the death of Gen. Rice to the Independent.]

It was, perhaps, ten days after the second battle of Menasses, that I visited one of the hospitals, near Washington, for the purpose of ascertaining if any one of the disabled of my own command had been borne there, and if so, of speaking to them a kind, cheerful word, always so grateful to a wounded soldier. As I was passing through the numerous wards, viewing with feelings of sympathy and pride the mutillated, but patriotic and uncomplaining sufferers, two strangers—a sister and an aunt of the young heroes—accosted me, and asked if I would be so kind as to come to the couch of their relative, and stand by him while the surgeon should amputate his limb, which they told me had been amputated a few days before, but on account of the arteries having commenced to slough away, the physician had decided upon this as the only hope of saving his life, I followed them to the conch. They were both weeping, but the wounded soldier, although suffering intensely, met me with a smile, and saluted me. I sat down by his couch, and took his hand in mine. He told me that he was a sergeant in the Fifth New York (Duryea's Zouaves;) that he was wounded late in the action, and left upon the field, that he remained where he remained where he fell from Saturday until the following Wednesday, "with no food save a few hard crackers, left in my haversack, and with no water, except that which God gave me from heaven, in rain and dew, and which I caught in my blanket." The sergeant continued his story, after a moment's pause occasioned by his suffering, by saying, "You know, Colonel, how God always remembers us wounded soldiers, with rain, after the battle is over, and when our lips are parched and our tongues are burning with fever. On Wednesday, I was found by one of our surgeons, who dressed my wound, and placed me with other disabled soldiers in an ambulance, to be sent to Washington. I arrived here late on Thursday evening, when my limb was amputated, and I"—— The sergeant again paused in his story, I begged him not to go on. I noticed that his voice become weaker, and his face more pale and death-like, and a moment afterward I observed blood trickling down upon the floor from the rubber ponchon on which the sergeant was lying. I at once called the surgeon to his bedside. He examined the limb, and, after consulting with other surgeons in attendance, told me they had decided that it was impossible to save his life; that re-amputation would be useless; that the soldier was fast sinking from exhaustion; and that in all probability, he would not survive the hour; and desired that I should make known their decision and apprehensions to the aunt and sister.

With such language as a soldier might command, I informed them that the sergeant must soon rest. Tears filled their eyes and they sobbed bitterly, but their grief was borne as Christian women alone can bear such sorrow—for they heard the voice of the elder brother speaking to them, as to Martha, "I am the resurrection and the life; he that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live." The sister, wiping away her tears and taking a small prayer-book from her dress, asked me if I would read to him "the prayer for the dying." I went again to the couch and stood beside the dying soldier. "Sergeant," I said, "we shall halt soon—we are not going to march much further to-day." "Are we going to halt, colonel," said the sergeant, "so early in the day? Are we going into bivouac before night?" "Yes, sergeant," I replied; "the march is dearly over—the bugle call will soon sound 'the halt.'" The sergeant's mind wandered for a moment, but my tears interpreted to him my words. "Ah colonel," said he, "do you mean that I am soon to die." "Yes, sergeant," I said, "you are soon to die." "Well, colonel, I am glad I am going to die—I want to rest—the march has not been so long, but I am weary—I am tired—I want to halt—I want to be with Christ—I want to be with my Savior." I read to him "the prayer for the dying," most of which he repeated; and then the sister kneeled beside the couch of her dying brother, and offered us to God a prayer full of earnestness, love and faith. The life blood of the dying soldier was trickling down from the bed-side and crimsoning her dress, while she besought the Father that the robes of her dying brother might be "washed and made white in the blood of the Lamb." The prayer was finished. We stood again by his bed side. "Sister—aunt—do not grieve—not grieve—do not weep, for I am going to Christ; I going to rest in heaven. Tell my mother, sister"—and the soldier took from his finger a ring and kissed it—"tell my mother, sister," said the sergeant, "and that I remembered her and loved her dying;" and then he took another ring from his hand, kissed it, and said, "Sister, give this to her to whom my heart is pledged, and tell her—tell her to come to come to me in heaven. 'And colonel,' said the sergeant, turning to me, and his face brightened with the words, "tell my comrades of the army—the brave army of the Potomac—that I died bravely, died for the good old flag." These were the last words of the dying soldier. His pulse now beat feebler and feebler, the blood trickled faster down beside, the dew of death came and went, and flickering for a moment over the palid face, at length rested—rested forever. The sergeant had halted. His bivouac now is in heaven.

The Brown Towel.

'One who has nothing, can give nothing,' said Mrs. Sayres, the sexton's wife, as the ladies of the Sewing Society were busily engaged packing the contents of a large box, destined for a western missionary.

'A person who had nothing to give, must be poor indeed,' said Mrs. L., as she deposited a pair of warm blankets in the already well-filled box.

Mrs. Sayres looked at the last named speaker with a glance which seemed to say, 'you, who never have known self-denial, cannot feel for me,' and remarked, 'You surely think one can be too poor to give?'

'I once thought so, but have learned from joyful experience that no better investment can be made, even from the depths of poverty, than lending to the Lord,

Seeing the ladies listening attentively to the conversation, Mrs S. continued—

'Perhaps as our work is finished, I can do no better than to give you my experience on the subject. It may be the means of showing you that God will reward the cheerful giver.

'During the first twenty-eight years of my life I was surrounded by wealth, and not until I had been married for nine years, did I know a want which money could satisfy, or feel the necessity of exertion. Reverses came with fearful suddenness, and before I had recovered from the blow, I found myself the wife of a very poor man, with five little children dependent upon our exertions.

'From that hour I lost all thoughts of any thing but the care of my family. Late hours and hard work were my portion, and to my unskilled hands it seemed at first a bitter lot. My husband strove anxiously to gain a subsistence, and barely succeeded. We changed our place of residence several times, in hopes of doing better, but without improvement.

'Every thing seemed against us. Our well stocked wardrobe had become so exhausted that I felt justified in absenting myself from the house of God with my children, for want of suitable apparel. While in this low condition I went to church one evening, where my poverty stricken appearance would escape notice, and took my seat nearer the door. An agent from the West preached and begged contributions to the Home Missionary cause. His appeal brought tears to my eyes, and painfully reminds me of my past days of prosperity when I could give from my abundance to all who called on me. It never entered my mind that the appeal for assistance in any way concerned me, with my poor children banished from the house of God by poverty while I could only venture out under the friendly protection of the darkness. I left the church more submissive to my lot, with a prayer in my heart that those whose conscience had been addressed might respond. I tried in vain to sleep that night. The words of the text 'Give, and it shall be given unto you; good measures, pressed down, and shaken together, and runing over, shall men give unto your bosom,' seemed continnally sounding in my ears. The eloquent entreaty of the speaker to all, however poor, to give a mite to the Lord; and receive the promised blessing, seemed addressed to me. I rose early next morning, and looked over all my worldly goods in search of something worth bestowing, but in vain, the promised blessings seemed beyond my reach.

'Hearing that the ladies of the church had filled a box for the missionary's family, I made one more effort to spare something. All was poor and threadbare; what should I do? At last I thought of my towels. I had six, of coarse brown linen, but little worn. They seemed a scanty supply for a family of seven, and yet I took one from the number, and putting it in my pocket, hastened to the house where the box was kept and quietly sliped it in.

'I returned home with a light heart feeling that my Saviour's eye had seen my sacrifice, and would bless my effort to do right.

'From that day, success attended all my husband's efforts in business. In a few months our means increased so that we were able to attend church, and send our children to the Sabath school, and before ten years had passed, our former prosperity had returned fourfold. Good measure, pressed down, and shaken together, and running over,' had been given to us.

'It may seem superstitious to you, my dear friends, but we date all our success in life to God's blessing, following that humble gift of deep poverty.

'Wonder not that from that day I deem few too poor to give, and that I am a firm believer in God's promise that He will repay with interest even in this life all we lend to him.'

Glances of deep interest unmixed with envy, were cast from the window at Mrs. L. as after bidding the ladies adieu, she stepped into her luxurious carriage.

Her consistent benevolence had proved to all that in her prosperity she still retained the same Christian spirit which in her days of poverty had led to the bestowal of the brown towel.

'Well,' exclaimed Mrs. Sayres,' 'if we all had such a self-denying spirit we might fill another box at once, 'I'll never again think I am too poor to give.''

An Over-Dressed People.

We are a scandalously over-dressed people—our women especially—but this fault is more glaring in any other class than in that which is esteemed most fortunate. Walk down Broadway any sunny afternoon, and you will meet perhaps a thousand women who look like locomotive advertisements of Stewart's or Lord and Taylor's, or some other fashionable establishment for the vending of sumptuous dry-goods, but not a hundred of these will belong to any among our wealthy families. We do not mean to say that the ladies of these families have not also costly apparel and jewelry; but they never think of adorning therewith the side-walks and increasing the pedestrian attractions of Broadway. But let a banker's clerk make a hit in some gold-gambling or stock-gambling operation, and his wife or other lady will sweep along broadway next week under silks and laces sufficient to furnish a yacht with sails and streamers; while the suddenly enriched sutler's or commissary's or contractor's wife and daughters require two carriages apiece to convey them and their "traps" to the opera, with a servant to pick up the diamonds that have rather been displayed on their garments than made really conducive to their personal attraction. In fact, we have heard that the most costly array of precious stones bought in Philadelphia in 1863 were ordered and paid for by a very common laborer of other days, who had suddenly and amply enriched himself by following the army of the Potomac, gathering up the animal food thrown away by the soldiers, and selling it for soap grease. Wishing to advertise his accession to the wealthy class, he knew no better than to cover his wife with lace and diamonds and send her forth a walking proclamation of his good fortune.—N. Y. Tribune.

A SMART BOY.—'Fred,' said a little four year old boy the other day, 'give me a sixpence to buy a monkey!' 'We've got a monkey in the house now,' replied the elder brother. 'Who is it, Fred?' asked the little fellow. 'You,' was the reply. Then give me a sixpence to buy the monkey some nuts' His brother 'shelled out.'

ACQUIREMENT.—'The chief art of learning,' says Locke, 'is to attempt but little at a time. The widest excursions of the mind are made by short flights frequently repeated; the most lofty fabrics of science are formed by the continued accumulations of single propositions,'

The Green Eyed Monster.

ONE of the sub-editors of the Evansvillle Journal gives the following scene as having occurred at Cairo:

'A German deck passenger had been harboring the 'green eyed monster' during the entire trip from New Orleans' on account of some little attentions his wife received and seemed to court from a dashing, starched up 'Synder' who, unluckily for the husband, was also a deck passenger.

'Shortly after the boat's arrival here, he was driven to utter desperation at seeing his wife receive and lovingly return the hateful Synder's kiss. Calling her forward, he placed himself upon the chalk of the boat:

" Ah, Kathleen, you likes der tailor so petter as me all der while, so, mine Cot! I drowns my-self ter death.'

"Overboard he plunged! The wife became frantic, and attempted to follow him, but was stayed by the passengers. She fell upon her knees, and agonizingly entreated her 'Shorge' to come back, but no George appeared; she promised unwavering constancy—increased affection—the spirit of devotion and submission he seemed so anxious she should manifest, but nothing save the ruffled waters gave response.—She then shreiked for him again, when up from the water shiveringly came an answer.

" I am now so dead as ter very—, if you kiss der Synder once more any time again; and if you no more kiss him and loves me so good and better as you loves him twice, vy den I comes back myself. I no likes der—tailor, him to get me for his brudder-in-law mit mein wife.

A wild, delirious cry of joy escaped the woman. She promised fidelity upon her bended knee, when slowly from beneath the guards of the boat emerged the half-frozen Dutchman.

He had managed to gain the cover of the guards without being discovered, and there supported himself above the water by the timbers. It is needless, perhaps, to say, that Kathleen has been a most devoted wife, and holds the tailor in utter detestation.'

THE FULNESS OF JOY.—Here, the vessel is to capacious to be filled with all the pleasure and delights the world can lay together. Hereafter, our pleasures and delights shall be too full for the most capacious vessel to comprehend. Our glory shall be so great that powers as well as goodness shall come forth from God himself to renew and enlarge these vessels that they may be more capable to receive and to retain their glory. We are too weak for such a weight of glory: therefore, God will bear us up. And because our joys cannot fully enter into us, we shall fully enter into them. Who would then set so large a vessel as the soul under a few drops of carnal pleasure, and neglect the spring of everlasting joy? O, my soul! what a glorious day there is a coming when the vessel of mercy shall be cast in the ocean of mercy, and be filled to the brim! When the sons of pleasure shall drink their fill at the torrents of pleasure, and be set forever down by the river's brink! When the soul that is sick of love shall lie down in the bosom of love and forever take its fill! When the children of God shall have a full fruition of God, and be forever satisfied with the presence of God! Lord let the thoughts of the joy and glory that Thou hast prepared for me turn my heart from the vanities of earth, that I may be pressing on to Thee, into Thy very presence, where is fullness of joy, and to Thy right hand where are pleasures for evermore.—Divine Breathings.

OLD DR. BEECHER'S FIRST CARPET.—My wife introduced the first carpet at Easthampton, L. I. Uncle Lot gave me some money, and I had an itch to spend it. Went to a vendue and bought a bale of cotton. She spun it and had it woven; then she laid it down, sized it and painted it in oils, with a border all around it, and other flowers over the center. She went to New York for colors, and ground and mixed them herself. The carpet was nailed down on the garret floor, and she used to go there and paint. She also took some common chairs and painted them, and cut out figures of gilt paper and glued them on and varnished them. They were really quite pretty. Old Deacon Tallmage come to see me, stopped at the parlor door and seemed afraid to come in. 'Walk in, Deacon,' said I 'Why, I can't.' said he, ''thout steppin' on't.' Then, after surveying it a while in admiration. 'D'ye think ye can have all that and heaven too?.'—Beecher's Autobiograyhy.

THE wisest man may be wiser to-day than he was yesterday, and to-morrow than he is to-day. Total freedom from change would imply total freedom from error; but this is the prerogative of omniscience alone.

A CANINE METHODIST.—In the ancient and beautiful town of Chatham, N. Y., is a very remarkable dog, whose character and behavior would excite the admiration of all good men. On week days he is a dog of like passions and behavior with other animals, but on Sunday his peculiarities and sectarian prejudices shine out. Unlike the crow, he can count, and knows when Sunday comes.

He is not the same then as on other days. He indulges in no pastimes. He encourages no company and no familiarity. He says, in action louder than words, to the vain and the canine race, "Six days shall ye play and do all your sports.' The family are all Presbyterians, but the dog is a Methodist. On Sunday mornings he attends the family on their way to church, leaves them at the door of the house of the Lord where they attend, and then goes on his solitary and unbroken way till he comes to the Methodist church, which is a little further. When he has reached the church he goes up stairs, and has a particular place in which he sits; and when an intruder ventures into his place no belle or madam of fashion who goes sweeping up the aisle of Grace, and finds a plebeian in her elegant pew can give more decided indications of annoyance and displeasure than does the dog. His seat yielded, he attends to the service with decorum, and pays dogmatical attention to the word of Scripture. Every Sunday he can be seen on his way to church—in foul weather as in fair—and his denominational preferences are as well known as those of any gentleman in town.—Boston Journal.

A dispute arose between three noblemen, one Irish, one Scotch, and the other English, as to the distinctive traits of their respective countrymen. A wager was laid that the Irish were the wittiest, the Scotch most cunning, and the English most frank. They agreed to walk out in the streets of London, and the first one of either nation met should be inquired of as to what he would take and stand watch all night in the tower of St. Paul's church. Pretty soon a John Bull came along, and was accosted thus:

"What will you take, and stand all night in the tower of St. Paul's?'

'I shouldn't want to do it short of a guinea,' frankly replied Mr. Bull.

The next one accosted was a Scotchman. Sandy replied with his cunning: 'Ana what will you gie me?'

Last, but not least, Patrick was inquired of as to what he would take, and stand all night in St. Paul's tower? To which Pat wittily answered: 'An sure, an' I think I should take a divil of a cowld!' The wager was won.

HOW DAVIS AND BRAGG WERE 'SOLD''—Rebel pickets say that during Sheridan's great raid Fitz Hugh Lee thought he had completely cut off his retreat and sent word for Jeff. Davis and Bragg to ride out and witness the sport of capturing the Yankees. Mr. Davis, accompanied by Gen. Bragg, did ride out. When he arrived, the 9th New York and 17th Pennsylvania, of Devin's brigade, Torbett's division, were driving the rebels from Meadow Bridge.

They came to see how fast the Yankees could run, and behold, their old Virginians were too fleet-footed; for the Yankees pursued them hard, but could not overtake them.

WHAT do you gain by becoming a Christain man or woman? Rather, you should ask, what do I loose by staying where I am? In the one case, you gain everything, in the other case you lose everything. For in the one case, using from a new set of principels, your life is filled with harmony and beauty; and in the other case, mystery is added to mystery, pain to pain, death to death; and no light from the window of heaven bursts upon your soul.

What do you gain? or what do you lose? Just look at those who have followed Christ, and then at those who have let him alone, and you are fully answered.

MAKING THE GIRLS GLAD.—A school boy down East who was noted among his playfellows for his frolics among the girls, was reading in the Old Testament when coming to the phrase, 'making waste places glad,' he was asked what it meant. The youngest paused, scratched his head, but gave no answer, when up jumped a more precious urchin, and cried out, 'I know what it means, master. It means hugging the gals; for Tom Ross is alers hugging 'em round the waist, and it makes 'em glad as can be.

At Ashland, a rebel Lieutenant, when captured by our men, asked to whom he had the honor of surrendering. '2d Ohio," was the reply.

"Great Heaven!" exclaimed the Lieutenant, 'I fought that regiment in the Indian Teritory, in Arkansas, in Kentucky, in Tennessee, and at last they've got me in Eastern Virginia, Are you a sporting regiment?

THE WAR NEWS.

We have not been blessed with an iota of war news thus far this week. That excellent institution, the telegraph has been on a Fourth of July spree, and we are unable to inform our readers of the movements of either General Grant or Sherman. We have faith to believe that Grant did not let our natal day pass without making his presence felt in and about Richmond. We shall have exciting news soon.

THIS, the 52d number, completes the first volume of the UNION, and we deem the opportunity a fitting one to return thanks for the very liberal patronage that has been extended to us during the year. The amount of business that has been given to us has far exceeded our most sanguine expectations. We commenced the publication of the UNION, not as an experiment, but because the reading people of this county desired to have a live county paper, in their midst, to which they were willing to give a hearty support. That it has met their views in many respects, is shown by the support extended to the paper. But this has been done by hard work. We have run the subscription list up from twenty to five hundred and seventy-five, and that too, while having a strong prejudice to contend with that existed without sufficient cause.

We are happy to say to our readers that the UNION stands upon firm ground, and has a good business footing. It will continue, in the future, as it has always done, to advocate the principles of the Republican party, giving a willing and firm support to the Administration in all its war measures.

We have not yet thought it advisable to increase our subscription price, notwithstanding the great rise of all kinds of printing material, and shall continue the old price of $1,50 per year, but strictly requiring advance payment, in all cases from and after this date. We publish the paper now lower than it can be afforded and we cannot afford to trust out small sums on subscription. We have in view, new features for the UNION, which we shall inaugurate so soon as we complete the publication of the laws, and we will guarantee the increased interest will warrant our friends in giving us the right hand of fellowship.

HONS. Wm Windom and Wm H. Seward, will accept our thanks for valuable public documents recently received.

THE Democratic National Convention that was to have met in Chicago on the 4th inst., has been postponed until the 29th of August.

A CALL for a District Convention in the Second Congressional District to nominate a Congressman has been made by the proper committee, and will be held in St. Paul on the 3rd of August next. We notice in the call the names of five new counties that are not in the State call Verily, Minnesota is growing.

THE MAIL ROBBERY.

The Record having published what it represents as a statement of what was proven at the preliminary trial of the two mail drivers on the 25th ult., before Commissioner Willard, which we think is decidedly unjust to all parties engaged, we propose to hastily review the evidence. With all the gravity of a judge the editor sums up the evidence with the remark that "the examination failed to implicate the drivers with the robbery further than to show the fact, that they were employed as carriers upon that portion of the route where the robbery is supposed to have been committed, which was the only evidence upon which they were held over." Now, the facts are these, as will appear from the minutes of those who took down the evidence.

The letters were found in the stable at the Agency by Mr. Dyer's boy while Pat, as they call him, was in the stable. They were carried in the house and locked up, but in the meantime the discovery had become known to several persons. On the same day letters were found by Mrs. Long, at Wilton, secreted in a room up stairs between the garret floor and the ceiling of the room below. Near where they were found was a stove pipe hole which was not cased up by a tin or other safe. This was about two feet from the wall of the adjoining room occupied by the drivers. The drivers' room was not plastered up on the side to the top, but the space between the ends of the joice where the letters were found opened into the drivers' room. The letters lay about two feet beyond the reach of a man's arm from the drivers' room where they could have been easily pushed by any stick or a pair of tongs. This room over where the letters were was one not occupied except by occasional night lodgers, was always unlocked, and accessible to any one in the upper part of the house. There was no boarder in the house who had anything to do with the mail, except other drivers who drove on the route beyond Wilton, and who alternately lodged in the same room as Pat and Burns.

The letters found at Wilton, without exception, were going eastward, and those found at the Agency were going westward. Now, if they were taken out at these post offices why was only the Eastern mail found at Wilton and the Western mail at the Agency? Why were all the letters going that way found at that end of the route and all coming this way found at this end? All the letters going east, and there was a hundred and fifty-five, were proven to have passed over the road on the day that Burns drove out; those coming west, that had been mailed this side of Winona, and the post mark and date of which would tell the day on which they came through,—with one or two exceptions—came through on the day that Burns drove west. This circumstance, the Commissioner, in giving his opinion, said was greatly in Pat's favor; and it was this very circumstance that seemed to show Pat's innocence, that fastened conviction of guilt on Mr. Burns.

The greater part of the mail taken was in the through bags. These through bags never go into the way post offices. The drivers have entire charge of them, and it seems rather strange that any one, even a post master, could open them, day after day, for months, without the guilty connivance of the driver.

There was evidence to show that the office at the Agency had not been properly managed. It pays but a trifle—not more than fifty dollars a year. Occasionally, when the post-master and his deputy were absent, some one of the inmates of the house would deliver letters and open the mail. The office desk, containing mail matter, had been kept in the bar room, until last spring, when complaints were made of the loss of letters; and Mr. Dyer, fearing that there might be something wrong at his office, moved it into his private room, where it has remained up to this time under lock and key. Whatever negligence was proved at the Agency office will not apply after the first of May, and most of the letters found were taken since that time. Then again, the drivers knew of the discovery of letters before they were arrested, and if they possessed a mail bag key they could have disposed of it before their arrest.

The key found on Burns fit the post office desk, and Mr. Dyer's boy testified that it was the one they had lost three months before, as he knew it by several scratches that were on it. Miss Long, testified that he had it a year; but on cross examination she could not tell why she knew it.

It was shown that it is the custom of the drivers, where they change horses to drive off to the barn from the office, and be gone half an hour or more taking the through bag with them. Now, if the Record thinks there was negligence at the Agency, "but for which probably the robbery would not have occurred," and can thus account for the daily plundering of the through mail bags that never go into the hands of any one but the drivers, we have only to say that the editor has a strange mode of digesting legal evidence.

Here was a great crime committed by some one who had the opportunity, and who had the power to do it as this was done. The robbers had access to the place where the letters were concealed, and also to the through as well as the way mail bags. The fact that the letters going east were found at Wilton, and those coming this way were found at the Agency, carries a strong presumption to the mind of an ordinary man that they were abstracted by the same parties; and more, that whoever did it was moving back and forth from the Agency to Wilton. We need not say what two men it was that had all these opportunities, and that they only could improve them.

We have wished to notice, especially, the charge of negligence against Mr. Dyer. His is a small office, and no one asks or expects he will devote all his time to it. For the accommodation of neighbors who came from a distance when he was absent, other members of his family and boarders occasionally gave out the mail. We do not deny that this was improper; we know it was. Yet how the Record can make this the means of the robbing of the mail bags that never came into his office exceeds our powers of understanding.

We do not say that Mr. Burns is guilty. We would not assume to say it unless called upon as a juror in the case. He is to be tried by a jury and cannot be convicted but by the unanimous judgment of all. Pat has been discharged, and here we leave him. The Company have confidence in him, and while at St. Paul we learned that he was driving on his old line as usual. We believe he would have been discharged by the Commissioner here, had their attorney demanded a separate trial for him. He was fastened on to Burns in the hope that his strong defense would aid in pulling both parties out.

If in all these circumstances—so many and complicated,—every minutiæ of which points to Burns, at least, the Record can see only the two facts, the robbery of the mails, and that Burns was a driver to justify the Commissioner in holding him to a further examination, we must conclude that the editor was not present to hear all the evidence, or else that he was sound asleep, or ———

GOLD SPECULATION.

The speculation in gold has in the last few weeks exceeded all calculation. Speculators wake up in the morning and find themselves rich—go to bed at night hopeless bankrupts. And notwithstanding the great risk involved in the trade there is no lack of reckless spirits to undertake the adventure.!

It is somewhat humiliating to see with what avidity the copperhead press generally, following the example of the Richmond papers, seize upon every rise of the gold market and hold it up as a sure indication of national ruin. They say that everybody, and especially our large capitalists, are losing all faith in the perpetuity of our institutions.

Now is this true? In the first place this gambling in gold is not carried on by our first class capitalists, and in the second place, the price of gold is no criterion by which to judge of the condition of the national credit.

That our large capitalists have full faith in our cause is seen by the fact that Government finds ample sale for its bonds to meet the current expenses of the war. The national debt has been increased 588,000,000, of dollars in the last year, mostly by the sale of bonds; which shows that men of money have confidence still. Then we must seek some cause for the rise of gold, other than the condition of our national finance. Our national troubles would naturally raise gold from twenty to twenty-five per cent. All above that is but a speculation in what they would make the world believe is national ruin. The same thing was done in England. In 1815 English stocks sold as low as 53 per cent., which would make gold worth 188¼ per cent. if the stocks, as here, are taken as the basis, yet, at those figures no one believed the English government was on the verge of ruin. It was all the work of stock jobbers. Remove the influence of speculation and place the value of gold on the faith that the monied men have in the credit of the nation and it would fall one hundred per cent. in one day. Men buy it because it has become the medium of speculation. How is it with land in the older States? Land is as safe an investment for money in times of trouble as gold, and yet it sells for but a pittance more than four years ago. Now if there was anything in all this cry of ruin, men would be anxious to invest in land as well as gold and we should see all kinds of real estate going up to extravagant prices. We speak of land that is entirely removed from the influence of speculation and emigration. Landholders sell land as readily as ever, and at but little more than ordinary prices for greenbacks.

In this State we have seen land made the medium of gambling speculation just as gold is now. No one supposed that the gold eagles were worthless that men paid for tamarac swamps that were near a paper town, and which every buyer knew were worthless except for the purpose of temporary speculation. It had a speculative value far beyond the real. No one to-day would buy gold at twenty-five per cent. premium under the obligation to keep it ten years and not invest it in speculation. Men buy it now and hold it a few days, with trembling hands, fearing the artificial inflation will explode and leave them bankrupt.

The real increased value of gold growing out of our national troubles, and the artificial, speculative value are entirely different things. One arises from the natural tendency of men to invest their wealth in real estate or gold in times of war. The other depends on a temporary excitement, which every one is sure will subside and suddenly ruin all found in possession of the article bought at the speculative prices.

Some of our staples have been made the medium of speculation, but to a less extent. But none of them sympathizes with the sudden rise and fall of gold. Wheat is not so high now—even in worthless greenbacks, as they say—as it was in 1855. In May and June of that year it sold for $2,80 in New York.

Real estate is the true guide by which to rate the value of all kinds of securities, and had gold fallen one hundred per cent. last week more than it did, land would have remained the same.

We see that wheat rises no more than can be accounted for by the demand and shortness of the supply of all kinds of grain in the country, aided too, perhaps by the fact that as an export, it can take the place of gold in our foreign exchange.

The fact is, that the price of gold has but little to do with the success of our national cause so long as the government can sell its bonds, in any amount, as fast as money is wanted and when it rises, it only shows that the speculators and the managers of the Chicago Convention, and copperhead press generally have been more than usually exorcised in a season of prayer for some reverse to our arms, to bolster up the gold market and the sinking cause of the party, or that they have been holding up some great scare crow to their mutual terror.

Though gold should rise to one million per cent, yet the people are here, and they will stand by their own cause, so long as they have pork and grain to feed our army, brass and iron and steel to forge into weapons, and have thousands of strong right arms to wield them.

S. C. CLEVELAND, editor of the PennYan Chronicle published at PennYan, New York, who was in this place a few weeks ago visiting his friends, has written a lengthy article of interest which we shall publish in full next week. The following extract relative to Mankato, we publish this week.'

Mankato is a very pretty town, with fair business advantages and bids fair to become a large place. It sustains two good weekly newspapers of opposite politics, and has all the ambition peculiar to western towns. When I come here again I hope to see it enjoying the full fruition of all its dreams of greatness, and by all means railway communication with the Mississippi.

Letter From the Fourth Regiment.

Through the kindness of Mr. M. B. Warren, of Garden City, we are enabled to lay before our readers the following letter written by John Nicholson, of the Fourth Regiment, who is well known in Mankato:

ON THE BATTLEFIED,
20 MILES FROM ATLANTA,
June 2, 1864.

DEAR FRIENDS:—I will write you a few lines in reply to a letter received from you last night, though I do not know at what moment I must lay aside my pencil and take up my gun which lies by my side. The rebels have held us at bay now for six days, and the fighting has been terrific—nearly the whole of that time, and for that matter ever since we left Cleveland on the 3d of May.

We are behind breastworks and the rebs hurl their men blindly against them and our batteries roll them back with the most frightful butchery. Thirty-five hundred dead rebels are now rotting under the hot Georgia sun along the line of Stanley's division alone, the result of two charges. They will neither bury them themselves, nor let our men do it, as they hope that the bodies will soon become so offensive that our lines will have to be moved back.

I could tell you of some of the most shocking and inhuman barbarities that have been perpetrated on this campaign, that entirely exceed belief, but will spare you the sickening details. But remember if you ever hear a soldier tell anything cruel and horrid, that took place here, believe him, for he cannot come up to the truth. For all practical purposes both sides might just as well have up the black flag. The battle cry of our soldiers on a charge now is "Remember Fort Pillow," and you know there is nothing about that to make one tender-hearted, and the rebels know if they take a prisoner the chance are that he will be retaken, so they won't bother with them.

Our regiment has been to the front all the time, and our loss has been very severe. Over one-half of our officers, and one-third of our men are among the killed, wounded and missing. Co. I. left Cleveland with 72 men, now it numbers 45. Your humble servant has had some of the closest calls that ever a mortal was favored with, but up to date neither myself nor horse have received a scratch, though the horse, poor fel low, is almost starved to death.

I visited the Second Minnesota at Kingston. They had not been in a single action up to that time, but I have heard that they had been badly cut up since.

The movement of this army so far has been a perfect success, and the loss on our side has been very light in comparison to the amount of labor performed. The rebels have been flanked and driven from positions which they thought impregnable, and forced to retreat for a long distance through the heart of their best territory, with an army flushed with victory hanging on and harrassing their rear. They fight desperately now, for here hangs their last hope of Atlanta, and with it their Confederacy. But we will whip them sure, for we have God, the right, and the biggest guns on our side.

Both sides have been heavily reinforced, and they seem to be taking breath and nerving themselves for the last and most terrific encounter, and when the storm bursts it will strike the world with consternation and terror; and oh, how many of the participants must bite the dust, and roll in their last agony, or what is worse live to writhe a mutilated and crippled mass of helpless and suffering humanity.

Write soon, and remember, though you should never hear from me again, that I to the last stood for my country and the right, and never brought the red tinge of shame to the cheek of my family by a neglect of duty.

The Frankfort Commonwealth says that during the siege of that town by Morgan, a handsome Union soldier went to the Capital Hotel, and was mistaken for a Confederate by the rebel ladies, who soon had him smothered, like Paddy's strawberries, only using kis. instead of cream! They soon found their error, and what a fall was there, in their before smiling and beaming countenances! When he announced his presence in the parlor of the Capitol it was to order that the rebel songs and music they were entertaining themselves and rebel friends with, had to be stopped, or he would send them up to the fort.

President Lincoln's Letter of Acceptance.

EXECUTIVE MANSION, WASHINGTON,
June 27, 1864.

Hon. William Dennison and others, a committee of the Union National Convention:

GENTLEMEN:—Yours letter of the 14th inst., formally notifying me that I have been nominated by the convention you represent for the Presidency of the United States for four years from the fourth of March next, has been received. The nomination is gratefully accepted, as the resolutions—called the platform—are heartily approved.

While the resolution in regard to the supplanting of Republican Government upon the Western Continent is fully concurred in, these might be misunderstanding were I not to say that the position of the government in relation to the action of France in Mexico, as assumed through the State Department, and endorsed by the convention, among the measures and acts of the Executive, will be faithfully maintained so long as the state of facts shall leave that position pertinent and applicable.

I am especially gratified that the soldier and the seaman were not forgotten by the convention, as they forever must and will be remembered by the grateful country for whose salvation they devote their lives.

Thanking you for the kind and complimentary terms in which you have communicated the nomination and other proceedings of the convention, I subscribe myself,

Your obedient servant,
ABRAHAM LINCOLN.

The mail brought us yesterday two letters from correspondents widely distant, each containing the same identical paragraph, cut from their local Copperhead sheets, and credited to the CHICAGO TRIBUNE, with characteristic comments. The paragraph is as follows:

"Give us a rebel victory, let our army be destroyed, Maryland conquered, Washington captured, the President exiled, and the Government destroyed, give us all these, and any other calamities that can result from defeat and ruin, sooner than a victory with McClellan as General."

It is scarcely necessary with the readers of the TRIBUNE to pronounce the above a gross and palpadle forgery, done in the rebel service. No such sentiments ever appeared in our columns. No Copperhead editor ever attributed it to us without the consciousness that he was telling a willful and malignant lie. It is not a thing to be mistaken about, and plain language to characterize the act is better than any other.—Chicago Tribune.

A Bad Railroad Accident.

ST. HILAIRE, C. E., June 29.—The emigrant train, consisting of eleven cars, went over the Beloit Bridge this morning. Three hundred and fifty-four German emigrants were on board. Thirty-four dead bodies have been recovered, and between thirty and forty taken out, more or less badly injured. The train from Quebec has been delayed in consequence.

One car has not been sufficiently reached to allow the dead to be taken from it.

The engineer went down with his engine, but escaped with slight injuries A dreadful responsibility seems to rest on this man for violation of stringent orders to stop before going on the bridge. Only two living have been rescued from this car. Depth of water—where the accident occurred about ten feet. Conductor Thomas Finn is killed. Fireman supposed to be killed. St. Hilaire is nineteen miles from Montreal.

How General Polk was Killed.

From rebel prisoners we learn some highly interesting particulars concerning the manner of the death of Bishop General Polk. On the afternoon of the 14th a party of rebel Generals, consisting of Johnston, Polk and Hardee, rode to Pine Mountain, for the purpose of making telescopic observations of our lines.

At the time a brisk artillery fire was going on between the two armies, but no engagement of the infantry.

The rebel generals were on foot at the time, having left their horses out of range. The artillerists of the fourth corps, observing the party, fired at them, but failed of their mark, as they were protected in a measure. Another battery of the same corps, but some distance on the right, got range on the party and gave them a discharge. One of the projectiles struck General Polk on the left arm, about the elbow, passed through his body, considerable mangling it, and carried off the right arm. The unexpected circumstance occasioned great excitement and consternation among the generals and rebels in the vicinity, as could be plainly seen by some of our troops, though the cause of the confusion was not known to them at the moment.

A short time ago a signal officer by the name of Fluke discovered the principal of the rebel system of signals, which enabled him to interpret what was transpiring along the enemy's lines. The discovery and key to the system were made known to some of our signal officers and often by them and through this means valuable information has been secured concerning the designs of the enemy.

On the afternoon of the 14th, after the death of Gen. Polk, it seems the fact was announced along the enemy's lines by signals. One of the signal officers of our corps read and interpreted the signals, and at once made the unexpected announcement to our officers.

Our cotemporary, Chas. H. Slocum Esq., of the Mankato Union, made us a surprise call just as we were about going to press. He meets with great success in his local paper, which speaks well for his tact as editor and publisher, and for the liberality and enterprise of the people of Mankato. We congratulate him in his prosperity.—Anoka Star.

MANKATO WEEKLY UNION SUPPLEMENT.

Mankato, Weekly Union.

MANKATO, JULY 8, 1864.

OFFICIAL.

Laws of the United States.

Passed at the First Session of the Thirty Eighth Congress.

[PUBLIC—No. 85.]

AN ACT to provide a national currency, secured by a pledge of United States bonds, and to provide for the circulation and redemption thereof.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress Assembled, That there shall be established in the Treasury Department a separate bureau, which shall be charged with the execution of this and all other laws that may be passed by Congress respecting the issue and regulation of a national currency secured by United States bonds. The chief officer of the said bureau shall be denominated the Comptroller of the Currency, and shall be under the general direction of the Secretary of the Treasury. He shall be appointed by the President, on the recommendation of the Secretary of the Treasury, and by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, and shall hold his office for the term of five years unless sooner removed by the President, upon reasons to be communicated by him to the Senate; he shall receive an annual salary of five thousand dollars; he shall have a competent deputy, appointed by the Secretary, whose salary shall be two thousand five hundred dollars, and who shall possess the power and perform the duties attached by law to the office of Comptroller during a vacancy in such office and during his absence or inability; he shall employ, from time to time, the necessary clerks to discharge such duties as he shall direct, which clerks shall be appointed and classified by the Secretary of the Treasury in the manner now provided by law. Within fifteen days from the time of notice of his appointment the Comptroller shall take and subscribe the oath of office prescribed by the Constitution and laws of the United States; and he shall give to the United States a bond in the penalty of one hundred thousand dollars, with not less than two responsible sureties, to be approved by the Secretary of the Treasury, conditioned for the faithful discharge of the duties of his office. The Deputy Comptroller so appointed shall also take the oath of office prescribed by the Constitution and laws of the United States, and shall give a like bond in the penalty of fifty thousand dollars. The Comptroller and Deputy Comptroller shall not, either directly or indirectly, be interested in any association issuing national currency under the provisions of this act.

SEC. 2. And be it further enacted, That the Comptroller of the Currency, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, shall devise a seal, with suitable inscriptions, for his office, a description of which with a certificate of approval by the Secretary of the Treasury, shall be filed in the office of the Secretary of State with an impression thereof, which shall thereupon become the seal of office of the Comptroller of Currency, and the same may be renewed when necessary. Every certificate, assignment, and conveyance executed by the Comptroller, in pursuance of any authority conferred on him by law, and sealed with his seal of office, shall be received in evidence in all places and courts whatsoever; and all copies of papers in the office of the Comptroller, certified by him and authenticated by the said seal, shall in all cases be evidence equally and in a like manner as the original. An impression of such seal directly on the paper shall be as valid as if made on wax or wafer.

SEC. 3. And be it further enacted, That there shall be assigned to the Comptroller of the Currency by the Secretary of the Treasury suitable rooms in the Treasury building for conducting the business of the Currency Bureau, in which shall be safe and secure fire-proof vaults, in which it shall be the duty of the Comptroller to deposit and safely keep all the plates not necessarily in the possession of engravers or printers and other valuable things belonging to his Department; and the Comptroller shall from time to time furnish the necessary furniture, stationery, fuel, lights, and other proper conveniences for the transaction of the said business.

SEC. 4. And be it further enacted, That the term "United States bonds," as used in this act, shall be construed to mean all registered bonds now issued, or that may hereafter be issued, on the faith of the United States by the Secretary of the Treasury in pursuance of law.

SEC. 5. And be it further enacted, That associations for carrying on the business of banking may be formed by any number of persons, not less in any case than five, who shall enter into articles of association, which shall specify in general terms the object for which the association is formed, and may contain any other provisions not inconsistent with the provisions of this act, which the association may see fit to adopt for the regulation of the business of the association and the conduct of its affairs, which said articles shall be signed by the persons uniting to form the association, and a copy of them forwarded to the Comptroller of the Currency, to be filed and preserved in his office.

SEC. 6. And be it further enacted, That the persons uniting to form such an association, shall, under their hands, make an organization certificate, which shall specify—

First. The name assumed by such association, which name shall be subject to the approval of the Comptroller.

Second. The place where its operations of discount and deposit are to be carried on, designating the State, Territory or District, and also the particular county and city, town or village.

Third. The amount of its capital stock, and the number of shares into which the same shall be divided.

Fourth. The names and places of residence of the shareholders, and the number of shares held by each of them.

Fifth. A declaration that said certificate is made to enable such persons to avail themselves of the advantages of this act.

The said certificate shall be acknowledged before a judge of some court of record or a notary public, and such certificate with the acknowledgement thereof authenticated by the seal of such court or notary shall be transmitted to the Comptroller of the Currency, who shall record and carefully preserve the same in his office. Copies of such certificate, duly certified by the Comptroller, and authenticated by his seal of office, shall be legal and sufficient evidence in all courts and places within the United States, or the jurisdiction of the Government thereof, of the existence of such association, and of every other matter or thing which could be proved by the production of the original certificate.

SEC. 7. And be it further enacted, That no association shall be organized under this act, with a less capital than one hundred thousand dollars, nor in a city whose population exceeds fifty thousand persons, with a less capital than two hundred thousand dollars: Provided, That banks with a capital of not less than fifty thousand dollars may, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, be organized in any place the population of which does not exceed six thousand inhabitants.

SEC. 8. And be it further enacted, That every association formed pursuant to the provisions of this act shall, from the date of the execution of its organization certificate, be a body corporate, but shall transact no business except such as may be incidental to its organization and necessarily preliminary, until authorized by the Comptroller of the Currency to commence the business of banking. Such association shall have power to adopt a corporate seal, and shall have succession by the name designated in its organization certificate, for the period of twenty years from its organization, unless sooner dissolved according to the provisions of its articles of association, or by the act of its shareholders owning two-thirds of its stock, or unless the franchise shall be forfeited by a violation of this act; by such name it may make contracts, sue and be sued, complain and defend, in any court of law and equity as fully as natural persons; it may elect or appoint directors, and by its board of directors appoint a president, vice president, cashier, and other officers, define their duties, require bonds of them and fix the penalty thereof, dismiss said officers or any of them at pleasure, and appoint others to fill their places, and exercise under this act all such incidental powers as shall be necessary to carry on the business of banking by discounting and negotiating promissory notes, drafts, bills of exchange, and other evidences of debt; by receiving deposits; by buying and selling exchange, coin, and bullion; by loaning money on personal security; by obtaining, issuing, and circulating notes according to the provisions of this act; and its board of directors shall also have power to define and regulate by by-laws, not inconsistent with the provisions of this act, the manner in which its stock shall be transferred, its directors elected or appointed, its officers appointed, its property transferred, its general business conducted, and all the privileges granted by this act to associations organized under it, shall be exercised and enjoyed; and its usual business shall be transacted at an office or banking house located in the place specified in its organization certificate.

SEC. 9. And be it further enacted, That the affairs of every association shall be managed by not less than five directors, one of whom shall be the president. Every director shall, during his whole term of service, be a citizen of the United States; and at least three-fourths of the directors shall have resided in the State, Territory, or district in which such association is located one year next preceding their election as directors, and be residents of the same during their continuance in office. Each director shall own, in his own right, at least ten shares of the capital stock of the association of which he is a director. Each director, when appointed or elected, shall take an oath that he will, so far as the duty devolves on him, diligently and honestly administer the affairs of such association, and will not knowingly violate, or willingly permit to be violated, any of the provisions of this act, and that he is the bona fide owner, in his own right, of the number of shares of stock required by this act, subscribed by him, or standing in his name on the books of the association, and that the same is not hypothecated, or in any way pledged, as security for any loan or debt; which oath, subscribed by himself, and certified by the officer before whom it is taken shall be immediately transmitted to the Comptroller of the Currency, and by him filed and preserved in his office.

SEC. 10. And be it further enacted, That the directors of any association first elected or appointed shall hold their places until their successors shall be elected and qualified. All subsequent elections shall be held annually on such day in the month of January as may be specified in the articles of association; and the directors so elected shall hold their places for one year, and until their successors are elected and qualified. But any director ceasing to be the owner of the requisite amount of stock, or having in any other manner become disqualified, shall thereby vacate his place. Any vacancy in the board shall be filled by appointment by the remaining directors, and any director so appointed shall hold his place until the next election. If from any cause an election of directors shall not be made at the time appointed, the association shall not for that cause be dissolved, but an election may be held on any subsequent day, thirty day's notice thereof in all cases having been given in a newspaper published in the city, town, or county in which the association is located; and if no newspaper is published in such city, town or county, such notice shall be published in a newspaper published nearest thereto. If the articles of association do not fix the day on which the election shall be held, or if the election should not be held on the day fixed, the day for the election shall be designated by the board of directors in their by-laws, or otherwise; Provided, That if the directors fail to fix the day, as aforesaid, shareholders representing two-thirds of the shares may.

SEC. 11. And be it further enacted, That in all elections of directors, and in deciding all questions at meetings of shareholders, each shareholder shall be entitled to one vote on each share of stock held by him. Shareholders may vote by proxies duly authorized in writing; but no officer, clerk, teller, or bookkeeper of such association shall act as proxy; and no shareholder whose liability is past due and unpaid shall be allowed a vote.

SEC. 12. And be it further enacted, That the capital stock of any association formed under this act shall be divided into shares of one hundred dollars each, and be deemed personal property and transferrable on the books of the association in such manner as may be prescribed in the by-laws or articles of association; and every person becoming a shareholder by such transfer shall, in proportion to his shares, succeed to all the rights and liabilities of the prior holder of such shares, and no change shall be made in the articles of association by which the rights, remedies, or security of the existing creditors of the association shall be impaired. The shareholders of each association formed under the provisions of this act, and of each existing bank or banking association that may accept the provisions of this act, shall be held individually responsible, equally and ratably, and not one for another, for all contracts, debts, and engagements of such association to the extent of the amount of their stock therein at the par value thereof, in addition to the amount invested in such shares; except that shareholders of any bank association now existing under State laws, having not less than five millions of dollars of capital actually paid in, and a surplus of twenty per centum on hand, both to be determined by the Comptroller of currency, shall be liable only to the amount invested in their shares; and such surplus of twenty per centum shall be kept undiminished, and be in addition to the surplus provided for in this act; and if at any time there shall be a deficiency in said surplus of twenty per centum, the said banking association shall not pay any dividends to its shareholders until such deficiency shall be made good; and in case of such deficiency, the Comptroller of the currency may compel said banking association to close its business and wind up its affairs under the provisions of this act. And the Comptroller shall have authority to withhold from an association his certificate authorizing the commencement of business, whenever he shall have reason to suppose that the shareholders thereof have formed the same for any other than the legitimate objects contemplated by this act.

SEC. 13. And be it further enacted, That it shall be lawful for any association formed under this act, by its articles of association, to provide for an increase of its capital from time to time, as may be deemed expedient, subject to the limitation of this act: Provided, That the maximum of such increase in the articles of association shall be determined by the Comptroller of currency; and no increase of capital shall be valid until the whole amount of such increase shall be paid in, and notice thereof shall have been transmitted to the Comptroller of currency, and his certificate obtained specifying the amount of such increase of capital stock, with his approval thereof, and that it has been duly paid in as part of the capital of such association. And every association shall have power, by the vote of shareholders owning two-thirds of its capital stock, to reduce the capital of such association to any sum not below the amount required by this act, in the formation of associations: Provided, That by no such reduction shall its capital be brought below the amount required by this act for its outstanding circulation, nor shall any such reduction be made until the amount of the proposed reduction has been reported to the Comptroller of the currency and his approval thereof obtained.

SEC. 14. And be it further enacted, That at least fifty per centum of the capital stock of every association shall be paid in before it shall be authorized to commence business; and the remainder of the capital stock of such association shall be paid in installments of at least ten per centum each on the whole amount of the capital as frequently as one installment at the end of each succeeding month from the time it shall be authorized by the Comptroller to commence business; and the payment of each installment shall be certified to the Comptroller, under oath, by the president or cashier of the association.

SEC. 15. And be it further enacted, That if any shareholder, or his assignee, shall fail to pay any installment on the stock when the same is required by the foregoing section to be paid, the directors of such association may sell the stock of such delinquent shareholder at public auction, having given three weeks' previous notice thereof in a newspaper published and of general circulation in the city or county where the association is located, and if no newspaper is published in said city or county, then in a newspaper published nearest thereto, to any person who will pay the highest price therefor, and not less than the amount then due thereon, with the expenses of advertisement and sale; and the excess, if any, shall be paid to the delinquent shareholder. If no bidder can be found who will pay for such stock the amount due thereon to the association, and the cost of advertisement and sale, the amount previously paid shall be forfeited to the association, and such stock shall be sold as the directors may order, within six months from the time of such forfeiture, and if not sold it shall be cancelled and deducted from the capital stock of the association; and if such cancellation and reduction shall reduce the capital of the association below the minimum of capital required by this act, the capital stock shall, within thirty days from the date of such cancellation, be increased to the requirements of the act; in default of which a receiver may be appointed to close up the business of the association according to the provisions of the fifth section of this act.

SEC. 16. And be it further enacted, That every association after having complied with the provisions of this act, preliminary to the commencement of banking business under its provisions, and before it shall be authorized to commence business, shall transfer and deliver to the Treasurer of the United States any United States registered bonds bearing interest to an amount not less than thirty thousand dollars nor less than one-third of the capital stock paid in, which bonds shall be deposited with the Treasurer of the United States and by him safely kept in his office until the same shall be otherwise disposed of, in pursuance of the provisions of this act; and the secretary of the treasury is hereby authorized to receive and cancel any United States coupon bonds, and to issue in lieu thereof registered bonds of like amount, bearing a like rate of interest, and having the same time to run; and the deposite of bonds shall be, by every association, increased as its capital may be paid up or increased, so that every association shall at all times have on deposite with the Treasurer registered United States bonds to the amount of at least one-third of its capital stock actually paid in: Provided, that nothing in this section shall prevent an association that may desire to reduce its capital or to close up its business and desolve its organization from taking up its bonds upon returning to the Comptroller its circulating notes in the proportion hereinafter named in this act, nor from taking up any excess of bonds beyond one third of its capital stock and upon which no circulating notes have been delivered.

SEC. 17. And be it further enacted, That whenever a certificate shall have been transmitted to the Comptroller of the currency, as provided in this act, and the association transmitting the same shall notify the Comptroller that at least fifty per centum of its capital stock has been paid in as aforesaid, and that such association has complied with all the provisions of this act as required to be complied with before such association shall be authorized to commence the business of banking, the Comptroller shall examine into the condition of such association, ascertain especially the amount of money paid in on account of its capital, the name and place of residence of each of the directors of such association, and the amount of capital stock of which each is the bona fide owner, and generally whether such association has complied with all the requirements of this act to entitle it to engage in the business of banking; and shall cause to be made and attested by the oaths of a majority of the directors and by the president or cashier of such association, a statement of all the facts necessary to enable the Comptroller to determine whether such association is lawfully entitled to commence the business of banking under this act.

SEC. 18. And be it further enacted, That if, upon a careful examination of the facts so reported, and of any other facts which may come to the knowledge of the Comptroller, whether by means of a special commission appointed by him for the purpose of enquiring into the condition of such association or otherwise, it shall appear that the association is lawfully entitled to commence the business of banking, the Comptroller shall give to such association a certificate, under his hand and official seal, that such association has complied with all the provissions of this act required to be complied with before being entitled to commence the business of banking under it, and such association is authorized to commence said business accordingly; and it shall be the duty of the association to cause said certificate to be published in some newspaper published in the city or county where the association is located for at least sixty days next after the issuing thereof; Provided, That if no newspaper is published in such city or county the certificate shall be published in a newspaper published nearest thereto.

SEC. 19. And be it further enacted, That all transfers of United States bonds which shall be made by any association under the provisions of this act shall be made to the Treasurer of the United States in trust for the association, with a memorandum written or printed on each bond, and signed by the cashier or some other officer of the association making the deposit, a receipt therefor to be given to said association, or by the Comptroller of the Currency, or by a clerk appointed by him for that purpose, stating that it is held in trust for the association on whose behalf such transfer is made, and as security for the redemption and payment of any circulating notes that have been or may be delivered to such association. No assignment or transfer of any such bonds by the Treasurer shall be deemed valid or of binding force and effect unless countersigned by the Comptroller of the Currency. It shall be the duty of the Comptroller of the Currency to keep in his office a book in which shall be entered the name of every association from whose accounts such transfer of bonds is made by the Treasurer, and the name of the party to whom such transfer is made; and the par value of the bonds so transferred shall be entered therein; and it shall be the duty of the Comptroller, immediately upon countersigning and entering the same, to advise by mail the association from whose account such transfer was made of the kind and numerical designation of the bonds and the amount thereof so transferred.

SEC. 20. And be it further enacted, That it shall be the duty of the Comptroller of the Currency to countersign and enter in the book, in the manner aforesaid, every transfer or assignment of any bonds held by the Treasurer presented for his signature; and the Comptroller shall have at all times during office hours access to the books of the Treasurer, for the purpose of ascertaining the correctness of the transfer or assignment presented to him to countersign; and the Treasurer shall have the like access to the book above mentioned, kept by the Comptroller, during office hours, to ascertain the correctness of the entries in the same; and the Comptroller shall also at all times have access to the bonds on deposit with the Treasurer, to ascertain their amount and condition.

SEC. 21. And be it further enacted, That upon the transfer and delivery of bonds to the Treasurer, as provided in the foregoing section, the association making the same shall be entitled to receive from the Comptroller of the Currency circulating notes of different denominations, in blank, registered and countersigned as hereinafter provided, equal in amount to ninety per centum of the current market value of the United States bonds so transferred and delivered, but not exceeding ninety per centum of the amount of said bonds at the par value thereof, if bearing interest at a rate not less than five per centum per annum; and at no time shall the total amount of such notes, issued to any such association, exceed the amount at such time actually paid in of its capital stock.

SEC. 22. And be it further enacted, That the entire amount of notes for circulation to be issued under this act shall not exceed three hundred millions of dollars. In order to furnish suitable notes for circulation, the Comptroller of the Currency is hereby authorized and required, under the direction of the Secretary of the Treasury, to cause plates and dies to be engraved, in the best manner, to guard against counterfeiting and fraudulent alterations, and to have printed therefrom and numbered, such quantity of circulating notes, in blank, of the denominations of one dollar, two dollars, three dollars, five dollars, ten dollars, twenty dollars, fifty dollars, one hundred dollars, five hundred dollars, and one thousand dollars, as may be required to supply, under this act, the associations entitled to receive the same; which notes shall express upon their face that they are secured by United States bonds, deposited with the Treasurer of the United States by the written or engraved signatures of the Treasurer and Register, and by the imprint of the seal of the Treasury; and shall also express upon their face the promise of the association receiving the same to pay on demand, attested by the signatures of the president or vice president and cashier; and the said notes shall bear such devices and such other statements, and shall be in such form as the Secretary of the Treasury shall, by regulation, direct: Provided, That not more than one-sixth part of the notes furnished to an association shall be of a less denomination than five dollars, and that after specie payments shall be resumed no association shall be furnished with notes of a less denomination than five dollars.

SEC. 23. And be it further enacted, That after any such association shall have caused its promise to pay such notes on demand, to be signed by the president or vice president or cashier thereof, in such manner as to make them obligatory notes, payable on demand, at its place of business, such association is hereby authorized to issue and circulate the same as money; and the same shall be received at par in all parts of the United States in payment of taxes, excises, public lands, and all other dues to the United States, except for duties on imports; and also for all salaries and other debts and demands owing by the United States to individuals, corporations, and associations within the United States, except interest on the public debt, and in redemption of the national currency. And no such association shall issue post notes or any other notes to circulate as money than such as are authorized by the foregoing provisions of this act.

SEC. 24. And be it further enacted, That it shall the duty of the Comptroller of the Currency to receive worn-out or mutilated circulating notes issued by any such banking association, and also, on due proof of the destruction of any such circulating notes, to deliver in place thereof to such association other blank circulating notes to an equal amount. And such worn-out or mutilated notes, after a memorandum shall have been entered in the proper books, in accordance with such regulations as may be established by the Comptroller, as well as all circulating notes which shall have been paid or surrendered to be cancelled, shall be burned to ashes in the presence of four persons, one to be appointed by the Secretary of the Treasury, one by the Comptroller of the Currency, one by the Treasurer of the United States, and one by the association, under such regulations as the Secretary of the Treasury may prescribe. And a certificate of such burning, signed by the parties so appointed, shall be made in the books of the Comptroller, and a duplicate thereof forwarded to the association whose notes are thus cancelled.

SEC. 25. And be it further enacted, That it shall be the duty of every banking association having bonds deposited in the office of the Treasurer of the United States, once or oftener in each fiscal year, and at such time or times during the ordinary business hours as said officer or officers may select, to examine and compare the bonds so pledged with the books of the Comptroller and the accounts of the association, and, if found correct, to execute to the said Treasurer a certificate setting forth the different kinds and the amounts thereof, and that the same are in the possession and custody of the Treasurer at the date of such certificate. Such examination may be made by an officer or agent of such association, duly appointed in writing for that purpose, whose certificate before mentioned shall be of like force and validity as if executed by such president or cashier; and a duplicate signed by the Treasurer shall be retained by the association.

SEC. 26. And be it further enacted, That the bonds transferred to and deposited with the Treasurer of the United States, as hereinbefore provided, by any banking association for the security of its circulating notes, shall be held exclusively for that purpose, until such notes shall be redeemed, except as provided in this act; but the Comptroller of the Currency shall give to any such banking association powers of attorney to receive and appropriate to its own use the interest on the bonds which it shall have so transferred to the Treasurer: but such powers shall become inoperative whenever such banking association shall fail to redeem its circulating notes as aforesaid. Whenever the market or cash value of any bonds deposited with the Treasurer of the United States, as aforesaid, shall be reduced below the amount of the circulation issued for the same the Comptroller of the Currency is hereby authoried to demand and receive the amount of such depreciation in other United States bonds as cash value, or in money, from the association receiving said bills, to be deposited with the Treasurer of the United States as long as such depreciation continues. And said Comptroller, upon the terms prescribed by the Secretary of the Treasury, may permit an exchange to be made of any of the bonds deposited with the Treasurer by an association for other bonds of the United States authorized by this act to be received as security for circulating notes, if he shall be of opinion that such an exchange can be made without prejudice to the United States, and he may direct the return of any of said bonds to the banking association which transferred the same in sums of not less than one thousand dollars, upon the surrender to him and the cancellation of a proportionate amount of such circulating notes; Provided, That the remaining bonds which shall have been transferred by the banking association offering to surrender circulating notes shall be equal to the amount required for the circulating notes not surrendered by such banking association, and that the amount of bonds in the hands of the Treasurer shall not be diminished below the amount required to be kept on deposit with him by this act: And provided, That there shall have been no failure by such association to redeem its circulating notes, and no other violation by such association of the provisions of this act, and that the market or cash value of the remaining bonds shall not be below the amount required for the circulation issued for the same.

SEC. 27. And be it further enacted, That it shall be unlawful for any officer acting under the provisions of this act to countersign or deliver to any association, or to any other company or person, any circulating notes, contemplated by this act, except as hereinbefore provided, and in accordance with the true intent and meaning of this act. And any officer who shall violate the provisions of this section shall be deemed guilty of a high misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof shall be punished by fine not exceeding double the amount so countersigned and delivered, and imprisonment not less than one year and not exceeding fifteen years, at the discretion of the court in which he shall be tried.

SEC. 28. And be it further enacted, That it shall be lawful for any such association to purchase, hold, and convey real estate as follows;

First. Such as shall be necessary for its immediate accommodation in the transaction of its business.

Second. Such as shall be mortgaged to it in good faith by way of security for debts previously contracted.

Third. Such as shall be conveyed to it in satisfaction of debts previously contracted in course of its dealings.

Fourth. Such as it shall purchase at sales under judgment, decrees, or mortgages held by such association, or shall purchase to secure debts due to said association.

Such association shall not purchase or hold real estate in any other case or for any other purpose than as specified in this section. Nor shall it hold the possession of any real estate under mortgage, or hold the title and possession of any real estate purchased to secure any debts due to it for a longer period than five years.

SEC. 29. And be it further enacted, That the total liabilities to any association, of any person, or of any company, corporation, or firm for money borrowed, including in the liabilities of a company or firm the liabilities of the several members thereof, shall at no time exceed one-tenth part of the amount of the capital stock of such association actually paid in: Provided, That the discount of bona fide bills of exchange drawn against actually existing values, and the discount of commercial or business paper actually owned by the person or persons, corporation, or firm negotiating the same shall not be considered as money borrowed.

SEC. 30. And be it further enacted, That every association may take, receive, reserve, and charge on any loan or discount made, or upon any note, bill of exchange, or other evidences of debt, interest at the rate allowed by the laws of the State or Territory where the bank is located, and no more, except that where by the laws of any State a different rate is limited for banks of issue organized under State laws, the rate so limited shall be allowed for associations organized in any such State under this act. And where no rule is fixed by the laws of the State or Territory the bank may take, receive, reserve, or charge a rate not exceeding seven per centum, and such interest may be taken in advance, reckoning the days for which the note, bill, or other evidence of debt has to run. And the knowingly taking, receiving, reserving, or charging a rate of interest greater than aforesaid shall be held and adjudged a forfeiture of the entire interest which the note, bill, or other evidence of debt carries with it, or which has been agreed to be paid thereon. And in case a greater rate of interest has been paid the person or persons paying the same, or their legal representatives, may recover back, in any action of debt, twice the amount of the interest thus paid from the association taking or receiving the same: Provided, That such action is commenced within two years from the time the usurious transaction occurred. But the purchase, discount, or sale of a bona fide bill of exchange, payable at another place than the place of such purchase, discount, or sale, at not more than the current rate of exchange for sight drafts in addition to the interest, shall not be considered as taking or receiving a greater rate of interest.

SEC. 31. And be it further enacted, That every association in the cities hereinafter named shall, at all times, have on hand, in lawful money of the United States, an amount equal to at least twenty-five per centum of the aggregate amount of its notes in circulation and its deposits; and every other association shall, at all times, have on hand, in lawful money of the United States, an amount equal to at least fifteen per centum of the aggregate amount of its notes in circulation, and of its deposits. And whenever the lawful money of any association in any of the cities hereinafter named shall be below the amount of twenty-five per centum of its circulation and deposits, and whenever the lawful money of any other association shall be below fifteen per centum of its circulation and deposits, such associations shall not encrease its liabilities by making any new loans or discounts otherwise than by discounting or purchasing bills of exchange payable at sight, nor making any dividend of its profits until the required proportion between the aggregate amount of its outstanding notes of circulation and deposits and its lawful money of the United States shall be restored: Provided, That three fifths of said fifteen per centum may consist of balances due to an association available for the redemption of its circulating notes from associations approved by the Comptroller of the currency, organized under this act, in the cities of Saint Louis, Louisville, Chicago, Detroit, Milwaukee, New Orleans, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Pittsburg, Baltimore, Philadelphia, Boston, New York, Albany, Leavenworth, San Francisco, and Washington City: Provided, also, That clearing-house certificates, representing specie or lawful money specially deposited for the purpose of any clearing-house association, shall be deemed to be lawful money in the possession of any association belonging to such clearing-house holding and owning such certificate, and shall be considered to be a part of the lawful money which such association is required to have under the foregoing provisions of this section: Provided. That the cities of Charleston and Richmond may be added to the list of cities of the national associations of which other associations may keep three-fifths of their lawful money whenever, in the opinion of the Comptroller of the Currency, the condition of the Southern States will warrant it. And it shall be competent for the Comptroller of the Currency to notify any association, whose lawful money reserve as aforesaid shall be below the amount to be kept on hand on hand as aforesaid to make good the reserve; and if such association shall fail for thirty days thereafter so to make good its reserve of lawful money of the United States, the Comptroller may, with the concurrence of the Secretary of the Treasury, appoint a receiver to wind up the business of such association, as provided in this act.

SEC. 32. And be it further enacted, That each association organized in any of the cities named in the foregoing section, shall select, subject to the approval of the Comptroller of the Currency, an association in the city of New York, at which it will redeem its circulating notes at par. And each of such associations may keep one half of its lawful money reserve in cash deposits in the city of New York. And each association not organized within the cities named in the preceeding section shall select, subject to the approval of the Comptroller of the Currency, an association in either of the cities named in the preceeding section at which it will redeem its circulating notes at par, and the Comptroller shall give public notice of the names of the associations so selected at which redemptions are to be made by the respective associations, and of any change that may be made of the association at which the notes of any association are redeemed. If any association shall fail either to make the selection or to redeem its notes as aforesaid, the Comptroller of the Currency may, upon receiving satisfactory evidence thereof, appoint a receiver, in the manner provided for in this act, to wind up its affairs: Provided, That nothing in this section shall relieve any association from its liability to redeem its circulating notes at its own counter, at par, in lawful money, on demand. And provided, further, That every association formed or existing under the provisions of this act shall take and receive at par, for any debt or liability to said association, any and all notes or bills issued by any association existing under and by virtue of this act.

SEC. 33. And be it further enacted, That the directors of any association may, semi-annually, each year declare a dividend of so much of the nett profits of the association as they shall judge expedient; but each association shall, before the declaration of a dividend, carry one-tenth part of its nett profits of the preceding half year to its surplus fund until the same shall amount to twenty per centum of its capital stock.

SEC. 34. And be it further enacted, That every association shall make to the Comptroller of the Currency a report, according to the form which may be prescribed by him, verified by the oath of affirmation of the president or cashier of such association; which report shall exhibit in detail, and under appropriate heads, the resources and liabilities of the association before the commencement of business on the morning of the first Monday of the months of January, April, July, and October of each year, and shall transmit the same to the Comptroller within five days thereafter. And any bank failing to make and transmit such report shall be subject to a penalty of one hundred dollars for each day after five days that such report is delayed beyond that time. And the Comptroller shall publish abstracts of said reports in a newspaper to be designated by him for that purpose in the city of Washington, and the separate report of each association shall be published in a newspaper in the place where such association is established, or if there be no newspaper at such place, then a newspaper published at the nearest place thereto, at the expense of the association making such report. In addition to the quarterly reports required by this section, every association shall, on the first Tuesday of each month, make to the Comptroller of the Currency a statement, under the oath of the president or cashier, showing the condition of the association making such statement, on the morning of the day next preceding the date of such statement, in respect to the following items and particulars, to wit: average amount of loans and discounts, specie, and other lawful money belonging to the association, deposits and circulation. And associations in other places than those cities named in the thirty-first section of this act shall also return the amount due them available for the redemption of their circulation.

SEC. 35. And be it further enacted, That no association shall make any loan or discount on the security of the shares of its own capital stock, nor be the purchaser or holder of any such shares, unless such security or purchase shall be necessary to prevent loss upon a debt previously contracted in good faith; and stock so purchased or acquired shall, within six months from the time of its purchase, be sold or disposed of at public or private sale, in default of which a receiver may be appointed to close up the business of the association, according to the provisions of this act.

SEC. 36. And be it further enacted, That no association shall at any time be indebted, or in any way liable, to an amount exceeding the amount of its capital stock at such time actually paid in and remaing undiminished by losses or otherwise, except on the following accounts, that is to say:

First. On account of its notes of circulation.

Second. On account of moneys deposited with, or collected by, such association.

Third. On account of bills of exchange or drafts drawn against money actually on deposit to the credit of such association, or due thereto.

Fourth. On account of liabilities to its stockholders for dividends and reserved profits.

SEC. 37. And be it further enacted, That no association shall, either directly or indirectly, pledge or hypothecate any of its notes of circulation, for the purpose of procuring money to be paid in on its capital stock, or to be used in its banking operations, or otherwise; nor shall any association use its circulating notes, or any part thereof, in any manner or form, to create or increase its capital stock.

SEC. 38. And be it further enacted, That no association, or any member thereof, shall, during the time it shall continue its banking operations, withdraw, or permit to be withdrawn, either in form of dividends or otherwise, any portion of its capital. And if losses shall at any time have been sustained by any such association equal to or exceeding its undivided profits then on hand, no dividend shall be made; and no dividend shall ever be made by any association, while it shall continue its banking operations, to an amount greater than its nett profits then on hand, deducting therefrom its losses and bad debts. And all debts due to any association, on which interest is past due and unpaid for a period of six months, unless the same shall be well secured, and shall be in process of collection, shall be considered bad debts within the meaning of this act: Provided, That nothing in this section shall prevent the reduction of the capital stock of the association under the thirteenth section of this act.

SEC. 39. And be it further enacted, That no association shall at any time pay out on loans or discounts, or in purchasing drafts or bills of exchange, or in payment of deposits, or in any other mode pay or put in circulation the notes of any bank or banking association which shall not, at such time, be receivable at par, on deposit and in payment of debts by the association so paying out or circulating such notes; nor shall it knowingly pay out or put in circulation any notes issued by any bank or banking association which at the time of such paying out or putting in circulation is not redeeming its circulating notes in lawful money of the United States.

SEC. 40. And be it further enacted, That the president, and cashier of every such association shall cause to be kept at all times a full and correct list of the names and residences of all the shareholders in the association, and the number of shares held by each, in the office where its business is transacted; and such list shall be subject to the inspection of all the shareholders and creditors of the association, and the officers authorized to assess taxes under State authority, during business hours of each day in which business may be legally transacted; and a copy of such list, on the first Monday of July in each year, verified by the oath of such president or cashier, shall be transmitted to the Comptroller of the Currency.

SEC. 41. And be it further enacted, That the plates and special dies to be procured by the Comptroller of the Currency for the printing of such circulating notes shall remain under his control and direction, and the expenses necessarily incurred in executing the provisions of this act respecting the procuring of such notes, and all other expenses of the bureau, shall be paid out of the proceeds of the taxes or duties now or hereafter to be assessed on the circulation, and collected from associations organized under this act. And in lieu of all existing taxes, every association shall pay to the Treasurer of the United States, in the months of January and July, a duty of one-half of one per centum each half year from and after the first day of January, eighteen hundred and sixty-four, upon the average amount of its notes in circulation, and a duty of one-quarter of one per centum each half year upon the average amount of its deposits, and a duty of one-quarter of one per centum each half year, as aforesaid, on the average amount of its capital stock beyond the amount invested in United States bonds; and in case of default in the payment thereof by any association, the duties aforesaid may be collected in the manner provided for the collection of United States duties of other corporations, or the Treasurer may reserve the amount of said duties out of the interest, as it may become due, on the bonds deposited with him by such defaulting association. And it shall be the duty of each association, within ten days from the first days of January and July of each year, to make a return, under the oath of its president or cashier, to the Treasurer of the United States, in such form as he may prescribe, of the average amount of its notes in circulation, and of the average amount of its deposits and of the average amount of its capital stock, beyond the amount invested in United States bonds, for the six months next preceding said first days of January and July as aforesaid, and in default of such return, and for each default thereof, each defaulting association shall forfeit and pay to the United States the sum of two hundred dollars, to be collected either out of the interest as it may become due such association on the bonds deposited with the Treasurer, or, at his option, in the manner in which penalties are to be collected of other corporations under the laws of the United States; and in case of such default the amount of the duties to be paid by such association shall be assessed upon the amount of notes delivered to such association by the Comptroller of the Currency, and upon the highest amount of its deposits and capital stock, to be ascertained in such other manner as the Treasurer may deem best: Provided, That nothing in this act shall be construed to prevent all the shares in any of the said associations, held by any person or body corporate, from being included in the valuation of the personal property of such person or corporation in the assessment of taxes imposed by or under State authority at the place where such bank is located and not elsewhere, but not at a greater rate than is assessed upon other moneyed capital in the hands of individual citizens of such State: Provided further, That the tax so imposed under the laws of any State upon the shares of any of the associations authorized by this act shall not exceed the rate imposed upon the shares in any of the banks organized under authority of the State where such association is located: Provided, also, That nothing in this act shall exempt the real estate of associations from either State, county, or municipal taxes to the same extent, according to its value, as other real estate is taxed.

SEC. 42. And be it further enacted, That any association may go into liquidation and be closed by the vote of its shareholders owning two-thirds of its stock. And whenever such vote shall be taken it shall be the duty of the board of directors to cause notice of this fact to be certified, under the seal of the association, by its president or cashier, to the Comptroller of the Currency, and publication thereof to be made for a period of two months in a newspaper published in the city of New York, and also in a newspaper published in a city or town in which the association is located, and if no newspaper be there published, then in the newspaper published nearest thereto, that said association is closing up its affairs, and notifying the holders of its notes and other creditors to present the notes and other claims against the association for payment. And at any time after the expiration of one year from the time of the publication of such notice as aforesaid, the said association may pay over to the Treasurer of the United States the amount of its outstanding notes in the lawful money of the United States, and take up the bonds which said association has on deposit with the Treasurer for the security of its circulating notes; which bonds shall be assigned to the bank in the manner specified in the nineteenth section of this act, and from that time the outstanding notes of said association shall be redeemed at the Treasury of the United States, and the said association and the shareholders thereof shall be discharged from all liabilities therefor.

SEC. 43. And be it further enacted, That the Treasurer, on receiving from an association lawful money for the payment and redemption of its outstanding notes, as provided for in the preceding section of this act, shall execute duplicate receipts therefor, one to the association and the other to the Comptroller of the Currency, stating the amount received by him, and the purpose for which it has been received, which amount shall be paid into the Treasury of the United States, and placed to the credit of such association upon redemption account. And it shall be the duty of the Treasurer, whenever he shall redeem any of the notes of said association, to cause the same to be mutilated, and charged to the redemption account of said association; and all notes so redeemed by the Treasurer shall, every three months, be certified to and burned in the manner prescribed in the twenty-fourth section of this act.

SEC. 44. And be it further enacted, That any bank incorporated by special law, or any banking institution organized under a general law of any State, may, by authority of this act, become a national association under its provisions, by the name prescribed in its organization certificate; and in such case, the articles of association and the organization certificate required by this act may be executed by a majority of the directors of the bank or banking institution; and said certificate shall declare that the owners of two-thirds of the capital stock have authorized the directors to make such certificate and to change and convert the said bank or banking institution into a national association under this act. And a majority of the directors, after executing said articles of association and organization certificate, shall have power to execute all other papers, and to do whatever may be required to make its organization perfect and complete as a national association. The shares of any such bank may continue to be for the same amount each as they were before said conversion, and the directors aforesaid may be the directors of the association until others are elected or appointed in accordance with the provisions of this act; and any State bank which is a stockholder in any other bank, by authority of State laws, may continue to hold its stock, although either bank, or both, may be organized under and have accepted the provisions of this act. When the Comptroller shall give to such association a certificate, under his hand and official seal, that the provisions of this act have been complied with, and that it is authorized to commence the business of banking under it, the association shall have the same powers and privileges, and shall be subject to the same duties, responsibilities and rules in all respects as are prescribed in this act for other associations organized under it, and shall be held and regarded as an association under this act: Provided, however, That no such association shall have a less capital than the amount prescribed for banking associations under this act.

SEC. 45. And be it further enacted, That all associations under this act, when designated for that purpose by the Secretary of the Treasury, shall be depositaries of of public money, except receipts from customs, under such regulations as may be prescribed by the Secretary; and they may also be employed as financial agents of the Government; and they shall perform all such reasonable duties, as depositaries of public moneys and financial agents of the Government, as may be required of them. And the Secretary of the Treasury shall require of the associations thus designated satisfactory security, by the deposite of United States bonds and otherwise, for the safe keeping and prompt payment of the public money deposited with them, and for the faithful performance of their duties as financial agents of the Government: Provided, That every association which shall be selected and designated as received or depositary of the public money shall take and receive at par all of the national currency bills, by whatever association issued, which have been paid in to the Government for internal revenue, or for loans or stock.

SEC. 46. And be it further enacted, That if any such association shall at any time fail to redeem, in the lawful money of the United States, any of its circulating notes, when payment thereof shall be lawfully demanded, during the usual hours of business, at the office of such association, or at its place of redemption aforesaid, the holder may cause the same to be protested, in one package, by a notary public, unless the president or cashier of the association whose notes are presented for payment, of the president or cashier of the association at the place at which they are redeemable, shall offer to waive demand and notice of the protest, and shall, in pursuance of such offer, make, sign, and deliver to the party making such demand an admission in writing, stating the time of the demand, the amount demanded, and the fact of the non-payment thereof; and such notary public, on making such protest, or upon receiving such admission, shall forthwith forward such admission or notice of protest to the Comptroller of the currency, retaining a copy thereof. And after such default, on examination of the facts by the Comptroller, and notice by him to the association, it shall not be lawful for the association suffering the same to pay out any of its notes, discount any notes or bills, or otherwise prosecute the business of banking, except to receive and safely keep money belonging to it and to deliver special deposites: Provided, That if satisfactory prossf be produced to such notary public that the payment of any such notes is restrained by order of any court of competent jurisdiction, such notary public shall not protest the same; and when the holder of such notes shall cause more than one note or package to be protested on the same day, he shall not receive pay for more than one protest.

SEC. 47. And be it further enacted, That on receiving notice that any such association has failed to redeem any of its circulating notes, as specified in the next preceding section, the Comptroller of the Currency, with the concurrence of the Secretary of the Treasury, may appoint a special agent (of whose appointment immediate notice shall be given to such association) who shall immediately proceed to ascertain whether such association has refused to pay its circulating notes in the lawful money of the United States, when demanded as aforesaid, and report to the Comptroller the fact so ascertained; and if, from such protest or the report so made, the Comptroller shall be satisfied that such association has refused to pay its circulating notes as aforesaid and is in default, he shall, within thirty days after he shall have received notice of such failure, declare the United States bonds and securities pledged by such association forfeited to the United states, and the same shall thereupon be forfeited accordingly. And thereupon the Comptroller shall immediately give notice in such manner as the Secretary of the Treasury shall, by general rules or otherwise, direct, to the holders of the circulating notes of such association to present them for payment at the Treasury of the United States, and the same shall be paid as presented in lawful money of the United States; whereupon said Comptroller may, in his discretion, cancel an amount of bonds pledged by such association equal at current market rates, not exceeding par, to the notes paid. And it shall be lawful for the Secretary of the Treasury, from time to time, to make such regulations respecting the disposition to be made of such circulating notes after presentation thereof for payment as aforesaid, and respecting the perpetuation of the evidence of the payment thereof as may seem to him proper; but all such notes, on being paid, shall be cancelled. And for any deficiency in the proceeds of the bonds pledged by such association, when disposed of as hereinafter specified, to reimburse to the United States the amount so expended in paying the circulating notes of such association, the United States shall have a first and paramount lien upon all the assets of such association; and such deficiency shall be made good out of such assets in preference to any and all other claims whatsoever, except the necessary costs and expenses of administering the same.

SEC. 48. And be it further enacted, That whenever the Comptroller shall become satisfied, as in the last preceding section specified, that any association has refused to pay its circulating notes as therein mentioned, he may, instead of cancelling the United States bonds pledged by such association, as provided in the next preceding section, cause so much of them as may be necessary to redeem the outstanding circulating notes of such association to be sold at public auction in the city of New York, after giving thirty days' notice of such sale to such association.

SEC. 49. And be it further enacted, That the Comptroller of the Currency may, if he shall be of the opinion that the interests of the United States will be best promoted thereby, sell at private sale any of the bonds pledged by such association, and receive therefor either money or the circulating notes of such failing association: Provided, That no such bonds shall be sold by private sale for less than par, nor less than the market value thereof at the time of sale: And provided, further, That no sales of any such bonds, either public or private, shall be complete until the transfer thereof shall have been made with the formalities prescribed by this act.

SEC. 50. And be it further enacted, That on becoming satisfied, as specified in this act, that any association has refused to pay its circulating notes as therein mentioned, and is in default, the Comptroller of the Currency may forthwith appoint a receiver, and require of him such bond and security as he shall deem proper, who, under the direction of the Comptroller, shall take possession of the books, records, and assets of every description of such association, collect all debts, dues, and claims belonging to such association, and, upon the order of a court of record of competent jurisdiction, may sell or compound all bad or doubtful debts, and, on a like order, sell all the real and personal property of such association, on such terms as the court shall direct; and may, if necessary to pay the debts of such association, enforce the individual liability of the stockholders provided for by the twelfth section of this act; and such receiver shall pay over all money so made to the Treasurer of the United States, subject to the order of the Comptroller of the Currency, and also make report to the Comptroller of the Currency of all his acts and proceedings. The Comptroller shall thereupon cause notice to be given, by advertisement in such newspapers as he may direct, for three consecutive months, calling on all persons who may have claims against such association to present the same, and to make legal proof thereof. And from time to time the Comptroller, after full provision shall have first been made for refunding to the United States any such deficiency in redeeming the notes of such association as is mentioned in this act, shall make a ratable dividend of the money so paid over to him by such receiver on all such claims as may have been proved to his satisfaction or adjudicated in a court of competent jurisdiction; and from time to time, as the proceeds of the assets of such association shall be paid over to him, he shall make further dividends, as aforesaid, on all claims previously proved or adjudicated; and the remainder of such proceeds, if any, shall be paid over to the shareholders of such association, or their legal representatives, in proportion to the stock by them respectively held: Provided, however, That if such association against which proceedings have been so instituted, on account of any alleged refusal to redeem its circulating notes as aforesaid, shall deny having failed to do so, such association may, at any time within ten days after such association shall have been notified of the appointment of an agent, as provided in this act, apply to the nearest circuit, or district, or territorial court of the United States, to enjoin further proceedings in the premises, and such court, after citing the Comptroller of the Currency to show cause why further proceedings should not be enjoined, and after the decision of the court or finding of a jury that such association has not refused to redeem its circulating notes, when legally presented, in the lawful money of the United States, shall make an order enjoining the Comptroller, and any receiver acting under his direction, from all further proceedings on account of such alleged refusal.

SEC. 51. And be it further enacted, That all fees for protesting the notes issued by any such banking association shall be paid by the person procuring the protest to be made, and such banking association shall be liable therefor; but no part of the bonds pledged by such banking association, as aforesaid, shall be applied to the payment of such fees. And all expenses of any preliminary or other examinations into the condition of any association shall be paid by such association, and all expenses of any receivership shall be paid out of the assets of such association before distribution of the proceeds thereof.

SEC. 52. And be it further enacted, That all transfer of the notes, bonds, bills of exchange, and other evidences of debt owing to any association, or of deposits to its credit; all assignments of mortgages, sureties on real estate, or of judgments or decrees in its favor; all deposits of money, bullion, or other valuable thing for its use, or for the use of any of its shareholders or creditors; and all payments of money to either, made after the commission of an act of insolvency, or in contemplation thereof, with a view to prevent the application of its asssets in the manner prescribed by this act, or with a view to the preference of one creditor to another, except in payment of its circulating notes, shall be utterly null and void.

SEC. 53. And be it further enacted, That if the directors of any association shall knowingly violate, or knowingly permit any of the officers, agents or servants of the association to violate any of the provisions of this act, all the rights, privileges and franchises of the association derived from this act shall be thereby forfeited. Such violation, shall, however, be determined and adjudged by a proper circuit district, or territorial court of the United States in a suit brought for that purpose by the Comptroller of the Currency, in his own name, before the association shall be declared dissolved. And in cases of such violation, every director who participated in or assented to the same shall be held liable in his personal and individual capacity for all damages which the association, its share holders, or any other person, shall have sustained in consequence of such violation.

SEC. 54. And be it further enacted, That the Comptroller of the Currency, with the approbation of the Secretary of the Treasury, as often as shall be deemed necessary or proper, shall appoint a suitable person or persons to make an examination of the affairs of every banking association, which person shall not be a director or other officer in any association whose affairs he shall be appointed to examine, and who shall have power to make a thorough examination into all the affairs of the association, and, in doing so, to examine any of the officers and agents thereof on oath; and shall make a full and detailed report of the condition of the association to the Comptroller. And the association shall not be subject to any other visitorial powers than such as are authorized by this act, except such as are vested in the several courts of law and chancery. And every person appointed to make such examination shall receive for his services at the rate of five dollars for each day by him employed in such examination, and two dollars for every twenty-five miles he shall necessarily travel in the performance of his duty, which shall be paid by the association by him examined.

SEC. 55 And be it further enacted. That every president, director, cashier, teller, clerk or agent of any association, who shall embezzle, abstract, or wilfully misapply any of the moneys, funds, or credits of the the association, or shall, without authority of the directors, issue or put in circulation any of the notes of the association, or shall, without such authority, issue or put forth any certificate of deposit, draw any order or bill of exchange, make any acceptance, assign any note, bond, draft, bill of exchange, mortgage, judgment or decree, or shall make any false entry in any book, report, or statement of the association, with intent, in either case, to injure or defraud the association or any other company, body politic or corporate, or any individual person, or to deceive any officer of the association, or any agent appointed to examine the affairs of any such association, shall be be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by imprisonment not less than five nor more than ten years.

LATE NEWS ITEMS.

— They seem to be undergoing a chronic ministerial crisis in Canada, with a strong tendency to political anarchy. One solution which has been proposed is, a confederation of the British North American provinces, beginning first with the two Canadas. It is thought that if this can be set on foot, with the plan of making the provincial parliament combine the functions of both federal and local legislation, that such a representation of all interests in a cabinet can be obtained as will ensure stability. Several leading men have expressed themselves favorable to the project, and a commission is talked of to reduce it to a practicable form to bring it before the people. In addition to the internal needs of the provinces, pointing in this direction, are the growing difficulties in the relations between the provinces and Great Britain, which, it is thought, would be solved by the proposed arrangements.

—On Monday last a train on the Memphis and Charleston Railroad was fired into, resulting in the death of the breakman, a negro. On Thursday, a train on the same road, near Forest Hill, had several volleys fired into the cars, killing two soldiers and wounding eight. Six soldiers jumped from the train at the commencement of the attack, to fight the enemy, but, unfortunately, found a larger force than they expected and were forced to surrender. The rebels marched the soldiers nearly two miles through the woods, when they halted and fired upon the prisoners, killing five and wounding the sixth; who succeeded in escaping and returning to our lines through the assistance of a lady whom he met on the road. She dismounted and forced the soldier to ride her horse, while she walked by his side supporting him till they reached Colliersville.

—A Little Rock (Arkansas) letter says the rebel General Shelby has got into a trap, and will either have to make a circuitous march into Kansas and strike south, or else divide his command up into small parties, in order to avoid capture. Should he adopt the latter course, we may expect very troublesome times in southern Missouri and Northern Arkansas this summer. At last accounts he was at Batesville, with 6,000 or 7,000 men and seven pieces of artillery. He shoots negroes found in Federal uniform, but is reported to punish bushwhackers and other robbers severely.

—A dead mule belonging to a citizen of Memphis, was being hauled out of the lines the other day, when a bayonet thrust revealed the fact that the carcass contained 60,000 percussion caps, a quantity of ammunition and other contraband articles, which some rebel sympathizer had taken this means of smuggling.

—The Cincinnati Times states that the fortifications around that city cover an area of nine miles, have eighty pieces of cannon of large calibre, and two hundred rounds of ammunition to each gun.

Official Paper of the County.

Messrs. Lewis & Frisbie have received an additional lot of new drugs which they offer to the public.

More Rain.—We were favored with another severe storm of rain Wednesday evening, that made all nature look refreshed.

Ripe currants are plenty in market, and are selling at a shilling a quart. They are one of the luxuries.

Personal.—S. F. Barney, of the firm of Willard & Barney, started East yesterday on a visit to his friends. He will be absent several weeks.

Improving.—Phillip is repairing his building on Front Street now occupied by Collector Hall, and otherwise improving it.

We have received no report of the Ladies, Fair at Garden City, but understand that the cash receipts were $150. It was our intention to have been present, but business prevented.

Wickersham & Kilgore keep constantly on hand a good assortment of perfumery of all kinds to which they invite the attention of the public Also, drugs, books, stationary, paints, oils &c.

The ladies are always interested in whatever pertains to dress, and we need but remind them that Madame Potts has just received from the East a large assortment of everything necessary to adorn their persons, to see them flocking there daily.

Sale of Warehouse.—L. C. Harrington, Esq., has sold the warehouse erected by him last fall to parties represented here by W. G. Gates, Esq., The purchasers are already laying the foundation for an addition 40 by 80 feet, which when completed, will make the building 40 by 160 feet, It is also their intention to carry up the whole building several feet higher than it is at present.

"They Can't Afford It."—Said a friend to us the other day, "Who, and what?" we asked. "Why, White and & Marks, I mean. They are selling goods so low, I know they can't afford it. They'll break down one of these days, and then I'll be in a pretty fix, with no where to buy goods cheap."

New Warehouse.—We notice that L. G. M. Fletcher, is making preparations for the erection of a new grain warehouse on his lot in the rear of Ward's store. From present appearances a very large amount of additional storage will be needed, and parties who are ready to build will find the erection of warehouses a profitable investment.

Drowned.—At Henderson, on the 4th inst., a German boy while bathing in the Minnesota, was drowned. The body had not been recovered at last accounts. Two other boys, at the same time, came near drowning. They were rescued from the water, in an insensible state, and after vigorous efforts restored to life. The Minnesota is a treacherous stream.

It is pleasant business—that of a Merchant who stands behind his counter, and deals out his wares to his customers, knowing that they are satisfied with their bargains. We have long wondered what made Randall look so happy and pleasant; but the mystery can be easily solved by any one who will take the trouble to go and examine his stock of clothing and gentlemens' dress goods, and purchase a suit.

New Store.—Mr. E. G. Williams, will soon open a new Grocery Store in the building recently occupied by J. C. Haupt. He has purchased of Beaupre & Kelley, of St, Paul, a very large stock of Groceries, and will be prepared in a few days to wait upon customers, and give them groceries as cheap as the cheapest.

The trial of the mail carriers arrested on suspicion of robbing the mail will take place at St. Paul in October next. The Grand Jury found a true bill against James Burns. The evidence being insufficient to hold Pat McConaghy, he was discharged. The letters found will not be given up by the Marshal until after the final trial.

The Continental for July is on our table, and we find it a very interesting number. It loses none of its excellence; on the contrary it is fast gaining in public favor. The contents of the present show great taste and care in selecting, and the articles will be read with great interest. "Lookout Mountain," a poem by A. B. Street, is one of the most soul-stirring pieces we have read in a long while.

The Atlantic.—We have received the July number of this Sterling Magazine, and take pleasure in speaking in its favor, as we regard it as one of the best, if not the best, published. The present number is the eighty-first of the series, and begins the fourteenth volume. It is an index of what the conductors hope to present constantly to their readers. It has a long list of contributors, comprising some of the most talented writers of the day and no pains are spared from month to month to make it attractive in every point of view.

The Fourth.—The fourth of July passed off very quietly in this place. Owing to our absence, and the rain, our celebration failed to make connections in some respects. That portion of it which required the strict inforcement of the Maine Law was, however, fully carried out. The Committee, not only did their duty well, but were assisted by the two hundred and fifty respectable citizens that were assigned to other duties. When the day ended there was no liquor in town, and we were assured by our "principal" citizens that none had been destroyed. Those who wish to know what became of it we would refer to those advocates of economy who favor the saving of the duty on iron.

The Ladei's Friend for July.—The July number of this magazine is one of the best yet issued. It opens with a beautiful and piquant steele engraving, called "How they Caught Fish," which represents a couple of young lovers earnestly engaged in conversation, apparently much to the astonishment of a party of ladies, who have just come to the edge of the woods. Then follows a very handsome fashion plate, such as this magazine is becoming noted for. Then an engraving of the Empress Eugenie, and a large number of others, devoted to the illustrations of the latest styles of dress, &c. The music of this number is a Grand March from the opera of Faust.

The literary matter includes "A story for Sisters-in-Law." "Mistress and maid," (with an illustration,) "Edna's Faith." "Richard Graham's Love," "The Maiden's answer," "First and last," "The Transformed Village," (illustrated,) "A Woman's Pride," Editor's department, &c. &c. Price $2,00 a year; 20 cents a single number.

Fairbanks' Scales.—About thirty-five years ago the Messrs. Fairbanks invented and began making platform Scales, which effected a complete change in the manner of doing such business as requires weighing, and without which it would be impossible to do the present immense amount of business in the country. Since then they have given their constant personal attention to the business, making all such improvements and adding such modifications as their experience has shown to be desirable. During this time many other kinds of scales have been invented, and more or less tried by the public, and mainly thrown aside, while the business of the Messrs. Fairbanks has steadily increased from year to year, their scales now standing higher in public estimation, and their sales being very much larger than ever before. This shows very strongly the excellence and durability of Fairbanks' Scales

A Single Box of Brandreth's Pills.—contains more vegetable extractive matter than twenty boxes of any pills in the world besides; fifty-five hundred physicians use them in their practice to the exclusion of other purgatives. The first letter of their value is yet scarcely appreciated. When they are better known sudden death and continued sickness will be of the past. Let those who know them speak right out in their favor. It is a duty which will save life.

Our race are subject to a redundancy of vitiated bile at this season, and it is as dangerous as it is prevalent; but Brandreth's Pills afford an invaluable and efficient protection. By their occasional use we prevent the collection of those impurities, which, when in sufficient quantities, cause so much danger to the body's health. They soon cure liver complaint, dyspepsia, loss of appetite, pain in the head, heartburn, pain in the breast-bone, sudden faintness and costiveness. SEWING MACHINES.

These Machines make the lock stitch alike on both sides, and use less than half the thread and silk that the single or double thread loop-stitch Machines do: will Hem, Fell, Gather, Cord, Braid, Bind, &c., and are better adapted than any other Sewing Machine in use to the frequent changes and great variety of sewing required in a family, for they will sew from one to twenty thicknesses of Marseilles without stopping, and make every stitch perfect, or from the finest gauze to the heaviest beaver cloth, or even the stoutest harness leather, without changing the feed, needle or tension, or making any adjustment of Machaine whatever!!!

They are simple in construction, and easily understood; and if any part is broken by accident, it is readily replaced.

These are peculiar facts, and will go far to determine the choice of any intelligent buyer.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That from and after the passage of this act, in lieu of the duty provided for in section forty-one of an act entitled "An act to support the Government and to pay interest on the public debt," approved July first, eighteen hundred and sixty-two, and in addition to duties payable for licenses, there shall be levied, collected, and paid on all spirits that may be distilled and removed for consumption or sale previous to the first day of July next, of first proof, the duty of sixty cents on each and every gallon; and said duty shall be a lien and charge on such spirits, and also on the interest of all persons in default in the distillery used for distilling the same, with all the stills, vessels, fixtures, and tools therein, and in the lot or tract of land whereon the said distillery is situated, until the said duty shall be paid: Provided, That the said duty on spirituous beverages enumerated in this act, shall be collected at no lower rate than the basis of first proof, and shall be increased in proportion for any greater strength than the strength of first proof.

SEC. 2. And be it further enacted, That all spirit or other articles on which duties are imposed by the provisions of this act, or of the act referred to in the first section of this act, and amendments thereto, which shall be found in the possession or custody or within the control of any person or persons, for the purpose of being sold by such person or persons, in fraud of the internal revenue laws, as heretofore referred to, or with design to avoid payment of said duties, may be seized by any collector or deputy collector who shall have reason to believe that the same are possessed, had, or held for the purpose or design aforesaid, that the same shall be forfeited to the United States; and also all articles or raw materials found in the possession of any person or persons intending to manufacture the same for the purpose of being sold by them, in fraud of said laws, or with design to evade the payment of said duties, and also all tools, implements, instruments, and personal property whatsoever used in the place or building, or within any yard or enclosure where such articles on which duties are imposed, as aforesaid, shall be found, may also be seized by any collector or deputy collector, as aforesaid, and the same shall be forfeited as aforesaid; and the proceedings to enforce said forfeiture shall be in the nature of a proceeding interim the circuit or district court of the United States for the district where such seizure is made, or in any other court of competent jurisdiction; and any person who shall have in his custody or possession any such spirits or other articles, subject to duty as aforesaid, for the purpose of selling the same with the design of avoiding payment of the duties imposed thereon, shall be liable to a penalty of five hundred dollars, or not less than double the amount of duties fraudulently attempted to be evaded, to be recovered and applied as other penalties provided by the act heretofore mentioned. And the spirits and other articles which shall be so seized by any collector or deputy collector shall, during the pendency of such proceedings, be delivered to the marshal of said district, and remain in his care and custody, and under his control, until final judgment in such proceedings shall be rendered: Provided, however, That when the property so seized may be liable to perish or become greatly reduced in value by keeping, or when it cannot be kept without great expense, the owner thereof or the marshal of the district may apply to the assessor of the district to examine said property; and if, in the opinion of said assessor, it shall be necessary that the property should be sold to prevent such waste or expense, he shall appraise the same; and the owner shall thereupon have said property returned to him upon giving bond in such form as may be prescribed by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, and in an amount equal to the appraised value, with such sureties as the said appraiser shall deem good and sufficient, to abide the final order, decree, or judgment of the court having cognizance of the case, and to pay the amount of said appraised value to the marshal, or otherwise, as he may be ordered and directed by the court, which bond shall be filed by said appraiser with the Commissioner of Internal Revenue. But if said owner shall neglect or refuse to give said bond the appraiser shall issue to the marshal aforesaid an order to sell the same; and the said marshal shall thereupon advertise and sell the said property at public auction in the same manner as goods may be sold on final execution in said disaster; and the proceeds of the sale, after deducting the reasonable costs of the seizure and sale, shall be paid to the court aforesaid, to abide its final order, decree, or judgment.

SEC. 3. And be it further enacted, That all distilled spirits upon which an excise duty is imposed by law may be exported without payment of said duty, and when the same is intended for exportation, may, without being charged with duty, be removed under such rules and regulations and upon the execution of such transportation bonds or other security as the Secretary of the Treasury may prescribe; said bonds or other security to be taken by the collector of internal revenue of the district from which such removal is made, Provided, that the said spirits shall be transported directly from the distillery or a bonded warehouse to a bonded warehouse established in conformity with the law and Treasury regulations, at a port of entry of the United States, and used for the storage of distilled spirits, and be placed in charge of a proper officer of the customs, who, together with the owner and proprietor of the warehouse, shall have the joint custody of all the distilled spirits stored in said warehouse. And all the labor on the goods so stored in said warehouse shall be performed by the owner or proprietor of the warehouse, under the supervision of the officer of the customs in charge of the same, and at the expense of the said owner or proprietor: and the said spirits shall also be subject to the same rules and regulations, and be chargeable with the same costs and expenses, in all respects, to which other goods that are deposited in public store for exportation from the United States may be subject. And no drawback shall in any case be allowed on any distilled spirits upon which an excise duty shall have been paid either before or after it shall have been placed in a bonded warehouse as aforesaid; but no provisions of this act shall be construed to repeal existing laws which provide that distilled spirits may be removed from the place of manufacture or bonded warehouse for the purpose of being redistilled for exportation, or which provides for the manufacture for exportation of medicines, preparations, compositions, perfumery, and cosmetics, or which provide for an allowance or drawback on cordials and other liquors when exported.

SEC. 4. And be it further enacted, That from and after the passage of this act, in lieu of the duties provided in the act referred to in the first section of this act, there shall be levied, collected and paid upon all cotton produced or sold and removed for consumption, and upon which no duty has been levied, paid or collected, a duty of two cents per pound; and such duty shall be and remain a lien thereon until said duty shall have been paid, in the possession of any person whomsoever. And further, if any person or persons, corporation or association of persons, remove, carry, or transport the same, or procure any other party or parties to remove, carry, or transport the same from the place of its production, with the intent to evade the duty thereon, or to defraud the Government, before said duty shall have been paid, such person or persons, corporation, or association of persons shall forfeit and pay to the United States double the amount of said duty, to be recovered in any court of competent jurisdiction: Provided, that all cotton sold by or on account of the Government of the United States shall be free and exempt from duty at the time of and after the sale thereof, and the shall be marked free, and the purchaser furnished with such a bill of sale as shall clearly and accurately describe the same, which shall be deemed and taken to be a permit authorizing the sale or removal thereof.

SEC. 5 And be it further enacted, That every collector to whom any duty upon cotton shall be paid shall mark the bales, or rather [other] packages, upon which the duty shall have been paid, in such manner as may clearly indicate the payment thereof, and shall give to the owner or other person having charge of such cotton, a permit for the removal of the same, stating therein the amount and payment of the duty, the time and place of payment, the weight and marks upon the bales and packages so that the same may be fully identified. Whenever any cotton, the product of the United States, shall arrive at any port of the United States, from any State in insurrection against the Government, the assessor or assistant assessor, under the act referred to in the first section of this act, shall immediately assess the taxes due thereon, and shall, without delay, return the same to the collector or deputy collector of said district, and the said collector or deputy collector shall demand of the owner or other person having charge of such cotton the tax imposed by this act, and assessed thereon, unless evidence of previous payment of said tax shall be produced, under such regulations as the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, by the direction of the Secretary of the Treasury shall from time to time prescribe; and in case the tax so assessed shall not be paid to such collector within thirty days after demand, the collector or deputy collector, as aforesaid, shall institute proceedings for the recovery of the tax, which shall be a lien upon said cotton from the time when said assessment shall be made.

SEC. 6. And be it further enacted, That, from and after the date on which this act takes effect, in computing the allowance or drawback upon articles manufactured exclusively of cotton when exported, there shall be allowed, in addition to the three per centum duty which shall have been paid on such articles, a drawback of two cents per pound upon such articles in all cases where the duty imposed by this act upon the cotton used in the manufacture thereof shall be satisfactorily shown to have been previously paid; the amount of said drawback to be ascertained in such manner as may be prescribed by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, under the direction of the Secretary of the Treasury.

SEC. 7. And be it further enacted, That, from and after the passage of this act, in addition to the duties heretofore imposed by law, there shall be levied, collected, and paid on spirits distilled from grain or other materials, whether of American or foreign production, imported from foreign countries previous to the first day of July next, of first proof, a duty of forty cents on each and every gallon, and no lower rate of duty shall be levied or collected than upon the basis of proof, and shall be increased in proportion for any greater strength than the strength of first proof; and that upon all such spirits imported prior to the passage of this act there shall be levied, collected, and paid additional tax of forty cents per gallon, to be collected under the direction and according to regulations established by the Secretary of the Treasury.

SEC. 8. And be it further enacted, That consuls of foreign countries in the United States, who are not citizens thereof shall be, and hereby are, exempt from any income tax imposed by the act referred to in the first section of this act, which may be derived from their official emoluments, or from property in such countries: Provided, That the Governments which such consuls may represent shall extend similar exemption to consuls of the United States.

SEC. 9. And be it further enacted, That the provisions of the act entitled "An act further to provide for the collection of duties on imports," approved March second, one thousand eight hundred and thirty three, now in force, shall be taken and deemed as extending to and embracing all laws for the collection of internal duties, stamp duties, licenses, or taxes, which have been or may be hereafter enacted; and all persons duly authorized to assess, receive or collect such laws, are hereby declared to be and to have been "revenue officers," within the true intent and meaning of the said act, entitled to all exemptions, immunities, benefits rights, and privileges therein enumerated and conferred.

Approved March 7, 1864.

CLIFTON HOUSE,
Mankato, Minnesota.

THE proprietor would announce to the traveling public that his house is now completed and furnished throughout in the best style and he is now prepared to accommodate all who may favor him with their patronage. From long experience in the hotel business in eastern cities he flatters himself that he understands the wants of the traveling public and will spare no pains to make the Clifton an agreeable stopping place. All who may be visiting Mankato, either for business or pleasure, especially those from the surrounding counties are invited to call and satisfy themselves. Attached to the premises are stables not excelled in the State either for capacity or convenience. The proprietor thankful for the very liberal patronage bestowed upon his house, would say to all stopping at the Clifton you will meet the same cordial and welcome reception as heretofore. Farmers sustain the Clifton House and by so doing promote your own interest. A word to the wise is sufficient.

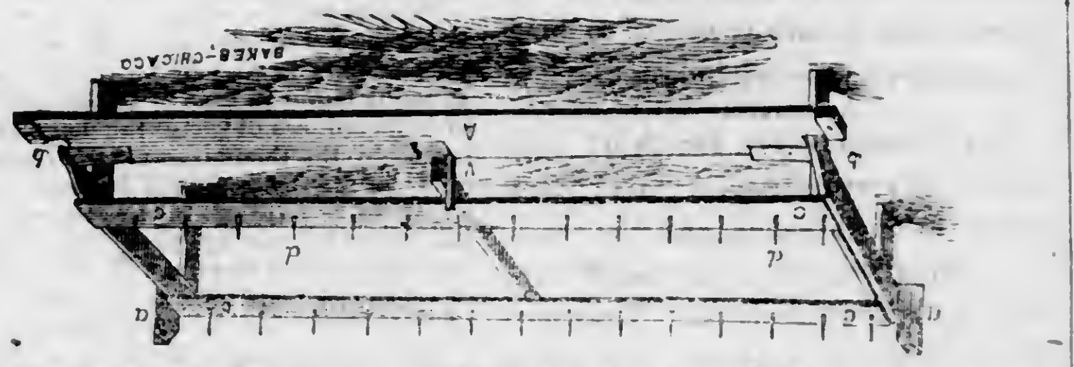
R. HAYNES'



Portable Brace Fence!
PATENTED APRIL 7, 1863.

WE claim for this Fence greater strength and durability with less expense than any ordinary farm fence. No farmer who studies economy and convenience in the management of his farm will be without it. The First Premium was awarded to Mr. Haynes' Portable Fence, at the late State Fairs in Ohio and Michigan, and at several County Fairs. Read the following extract:

"Among the many things we saw on exhibition at the State Fair was Haynes' Portable Brace Fence. This fence seems to be a great improvement over most Fences of the kind It is very strong, and is so braced that wind can have no more effect upon it, if as much, as upon a common rail fence. It is light, yet heavy enough for all farm purposes. Its cost is but little, and much labor is saved by using this fence, as it is easily put up, and in after years easily repaired. Every farmer ought to see this remarkable fence. We hope Mr. Haynes will be induced to exhibit it at our County Fair.—Medina (Ohio) Gazette.

Mr. H. has also invented a mould or bench upon which this fence is made. By using this bench any farmer can make the fence at a rapid rate. Full directions for making the bench and the fence upon it accompany each deed. For farm or township rights address

CELEBRATED
STOMACH BITTERS,

A pure and powerful tonic, corrective and alterative of wonderful efficacy in disease of the Stomach, Liver and bowels. Cures, Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Headache, General Debility, Nervousness, Depression of Spirits, Constipation Colic, Intermittent Fevers, Cramps and Spasms, and all Complaints of either Sex arising from Boodily Weakness whether inherent in the system or produced by special causes. Nothing that is not wholesome genial and restorative in its nature enters into the composition of Hostetters Stomach Bitters. This popular preparation contains no mineral of any kind, no deadly botanical element; no fiery excitant; but it is a combination of the extracts of rare balsamic herbs and plants with the purest and mildest of all diffusive stimulants. It is well to be forearmed against disease, and, so far as the human system can be protected by human means against maladies engendered by an unwholesome atmosphere, impure water and other external causes, Hostetters Bitters may be relied on as a safeguard. In districts infested with Fever and Ague, it has been found infallible as a preventive and irresistible as a remedy and thousands who resort to it under apprehension of an attack, escape the scourge, and thousands who neglect to avail themselves of its protective qualities in advance are cured by a very brief course of this marvelous medicine. Fever and Ague patients, after being plied with quinine for months in vain, until fairly saturated with that dangerous alkaloid, are not unfrequently restored to health within a few days by the use of Hostetter's Bitters. The weak stomach is rapidly invigorated and the appetite restored by this agreeable Tonic and hence it works wonders in cases of Dyspepsia and in less confirmed forms of indigestion. Acting as a gentle and painless aperient, as well as upon the liver, it also invariably relieves the Constipation superinduced by irregular action of the digestive and secretive organs. Persons of feeble habit, liable to Nervous Attacks, Lowness of Spirits and fits of languor, find prompt and permanent relief from the Bitters. The testimony on this point is most conclusive, and from both sexes. The agony of bilious colic is immediately assuaged by a single dose of the stimulant, and by occasionally resorting to it, the return of the complaint may be prevented. As a general tonic, Hostetter's Bitters produce effects which must be experienced or witnessed before their full value can be appreciated. In cases of constitutional Weakness, Premature Decay, and debility and decrepitude arising from old age, it exercises the electric influence. In the convalescent stages of all diseases it operates as a delightful invigorant. When the powers of nature are relaxed, it operates to re-enforce and re-establish them. Last but not least, it is the only safe stimulant, being manufactured from sound and innocuous materials, and entirely free from the acid elements present more or less in all the ordinary tonics and stomachics of the day. No family medicine has been so universally, and, it may be truly added, deservedly popular with the intelligent portion of the community, as Hostetter's Bitters. Prepared by Hostetter and Smith, Pittsburgh, Pa. Sold by all Druggists, Grocers and Storekeepers everywhere. 23

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU.

For Weakness arising from Excesses, Habits of Dissipation, Early Indiscretion, of abuse, attended with the following symptoms:--
Indisposition to Exertion, Loss of power, Loss of Memory, Difficulty of Breathing, Weak Nerves, Trembling, Horror of Disease, Wakefulness, Dimness of Vision, Pain in the Back, Universal Lassitude of the Muscular System, Hot Hands, Flushing of the Body, Dryness of the Skin, Eruptions on the Face Pallid Countenance. These symptoms, if allowed to go on, which this medicine invariably removes, soon follows Impotency, Fatuity, Epileptic Fits, in one of which the Patient may expire.

Who can say they are not frequently followed by those "Direful Diseases." "Insanity and consumption." Many are aware of the cause of their suffering, but none will confess the records of the insane aslymns. And melancholy deaths by Consumption bear ample witness to the truth of the assertion. The Constitution once affected with organic Weakness, requires the aid of Medicine to Strengthen and Invigorate the system.

Which Helmbold's Extract Buchu invariably does. A trial will convince the most skeptical.

Females—Females—Females old or young, single, married, or contemplating marriage. In many affections peculiar to Females the Extract Buchu is unequaled by any other remedy as in Chlorosis or Retention, Irregularity, Painfulness, or suppression of customary Evacuations, Ulcerated or Schirrus state of the Uterus, Leuchorrhea or Whites, Sterility, and for all complaints incident to the sex, whether arising from indiscretion, Habits of Dissipation, or in the decline or change of life. It causes a frequent desire and gives strength to Urinate, thereby removing obstructions, preventing and curing strictures of the Urethra, allaying Pain and inflammation, so frequent in the class of diseases, and expelling all poisonous diseased and wornout matter. Thousands upon thousands who have been the victims of Quacks, and who have paid heavy fees to be cured in a short time, have found they were deceived, and that the poison has, by the use of powerful astringents, been dried up in the system, to break out in an aggravated form, and perhaps after marriage. Use Helmbold's Extract Buchu for all affections and diseases of the urinary organs, whether existing in male or female, from whatever cause originating and no matter of how long standing. Diseases of these organs requires the aid of diuretic. Helmbold's extract Buchu is the great diuretic, and is certain to have the desired effect in all Diseases for which it is recommended. THE MOTHERLESS GIRL;
OR A LESSON TO STEP-MOTHERS.

BY ELLA FARMAN.

> "I have no mother, for she died
> When I was very young;
> But her memory still around my heart,
> Like morning mists has hung."

"Mama, Netta has broken a salver full of coffee cups. I wish she could be punished for such carelessness," exclaimed Lena Clay; a richly dressed girl of sixteen summers, as she entered the breakfast parlor one morning.

"The careless thing!" said the beautiful Mrs. Clay, "I don't know what to do with her. It's an absolute waste to have her in the house."

"Clara!" and the husband—a noble looking man, spoke sternly,—"Clara, I cannot hear you speak thus of my child. She may be careless, but she is my child, remember. You should keep another servant girl if you wish the work done properly. Annette is young and unaccustomed to work."

"Mr. Clay," and the wife's black eyes sparkled, "Mr. Clay, when I became your wife I supposed that I could manage the household as I chose. But I find I was quite mistaken. That ugly child of yours wishes to manage me and Lena both. She is perfectly disrespectful. No mother can see her only child thus treated. But you would not permit me to manage her at all, Mr. Clay, and I should be very grateful if you would do it yourself."

"I never saw a child act as Netta does," said Lena, pettishly. "She acts very strange. I let her do the ironing last night and she came up about twelve just as I came home from the party, and sat down on the floor and began to cry and made such a noise, and so I just rose and gave her a whipping which silenced her. Then she began to read in that old Bible, and I never can sleep with a light in the room. She will have to sleep in the garret after this. But I punished her this morning," and the little imperious beauty laughed gaily.

During Lena's speech Mr. Clay's eyes had flashed more than once, and he finished the breakfast soon and in silence. As he left the room he said to himself, "I can endure this no longer; Clara is my wife to be sure, but Annette is also my child."

He paused at the kitchen door, and well he might. Upon the cold, hard floor, with her golden head resting in a chair, lay his pale daughter, Netta. She had been weeping, for the traces of tears were on her colorless cheeks, but she was calm now, save the quick beating in the veins of her low, meek brow, and the tremulous quivering of her sweet childish lips. Her small hands reddened by toil were carelessly clasped together, and a small red book lay amid the folds of her plain calico dress.

Netta sprang up affrightedly as she heard the door pushed open, and her cheeks glowed crimson as she hid the book in her pocket. But as she saw that it was her father, her cheek paled again and the tears gushed into her eyes. A tear trembled in the father's eye as he saw the worn features of the fair girlish face, and the thinness of the slender form attired in a course, ill-fitting costume. "Netta," said he kindly as he went up to her and laid his hand on that small head with its mass of golden curls, "Netta, are you sick?" A low moan was her only reply. Then he said again, "Netta my child you are pale and sick. Tell me what is the matter."

Then the fair fragile girl looked up at him with those deep blue eyes half veiled by drooping eyelashes, those deep blue eyes so like those of her dead mother's which had so often been uplifted to his. Then she wound her thin white arms about his neck and said in a low trembling tone, "No Papa I don't think that I am sick, but I am so weak that I can scarcely stand upon my feet. Oh, Papa," and she sobbed bitterly.

After a moment's silence, Mr. Clay said, "Go up into one of the parlors and lie down on the lounge. Do as I tell you Netta, hereafter."

"Yes, Papa," said Netta at the same time shivering with terror," but don't tell me to go there!" She will beat me if I do."

"Beat you Netta? Who will beat you darling?" asked he tenderly.

Netta hesitated a moment, and then said tremblingly;" "They said they would beat me to death, if I ever told you of it. But Mrs. Clay, mama I mean, whips me cruelly every day."

"What for Netta?" said he in a calm tone, though his eyes flashed fiercely.

"I don't know, Papa," she replied childishly, "yesterday I went up into the parlor to look at my mama's picture and I stepped on an ottoman to see plainer and then Miss Lena came in and boxed my ears hard and told me to go out and Miss Lena's mother came in and told me to never come up there again. But oh, I did want to see Mamma's picture so bad, and before I thought I told Miss Lena it was my papa's parlor and I had a better right there than she, and then they whipped me and shut me up in the cellar closet."

The red blood rush in a fiery tide to Mr. Clay's cheeks but he restrained himself and said camly "You should have told me of this before, Netta."

"Don't blame me for it Papa," said Netta imploringly, "they would have killed me and besides I didn't think you would care. Miss Lena said you didn't care anything about me now that you had married her handsome mother. And I thought you didn't Papa, for you never come and talked with me as you used to. There hasn't been anybody to love me since Mamma died, have they," and the blue eyes uplifted to his were very earnest.

The father gazed mournfully down on the pale sweet child he held in his arms, and as he remembered all his neglect of her for two years, he almost shuddered. And in that one moment of silence the image of his dead wife seemed to rise up from the far country grave, in which he had laid her, and stand before him. And the deep blue eyes, just like those of the child gazing up at him, had a saddened look lingering in their depths, and the dead lips wore a reproachful expression, and a spirit voice seemed to say in low upbraiding tones,—"Hast thou forgotten the pale child I left as an only remembrance?" The father sighed as the sad vision faded away and then he bore the pale little Netta up into one of his gorgeous parlors and laid her by the glowing fire on a pillowy lounge where she could see a sweet girlish face gleaming out of a heavy frame—the face of her dead mother.

As Netta laid there in the luxurious stillness, the soft eyes in the picture shined like angel eyes, and the red lips wore a seraph smile, and the golden hair seemed like a crown of glory.

Albert Clay was only twenty-two when he married a gentle girl with winning ways. Ten summers Annetta Lee blessed him with her love, and then faded from earth, leaving one little girl—Netta, to cheer his loneliness.

Two years he lived alone in his stately mansion, with Netta and his widowed heart. But after a long communion with himself, he resolved to marry some lovely, amiable woman to be a mother to his little girl who was now ten years old. After carefully studying the characters of his lady acquaintances, he found none among them so gentle and amiable, so sympathising with him—the wealthy widower so idolizing his motherless daughter, as the beautiful widow, Clara Appleton. And her only daughter—Miss Lena—a beautiful girl of fortune, loved Netta so dearly—always with her at school, never happy away from her—oh, it was all so fascinating that the rich Mr. Clay married Mrs. Appleton, and took her and Lena from their small cottage to his stately mansion.

For a few months the utmost deference was paid to Mr. Clay's slightest wishes, and little Netta was petted more than ever, she was always richly dressed and kept in the parlor and when visitors paid fashionable calls, the beautiful Mrs. Clay would point to her and Lena and say—"My two darling daughters!" especially when Mr. Clay was present. All went on merry as marriage bells, and Mr. Clay congratulated himself on possessing sufficient sense to have selected such a lovely wife from the multitudes of maiden ladies and inconsolate widows and scheming daughters who had crowded his path—"thick as leaves in vallambrose."

But after awhile there began to be a change. Mrs. Clay and Lena did not always wear sweet smiles; and the intonation of their voices was not always the softest, and somehow Netta was not as joyous as she had been at first; her face became paler and sadder and she was far more plainly dressed, and not so much in the parlors. Thus matters went on, and Mr. Clay never saw his motherless girl save in the kitchen, and he seldom went there his mind was so occupied by business cares and his beautiful bride, and for a long while he did not notice her absence. But when Clara and Lena both openly abused her, his fatherly feelings were touched, and the old love for his child awoke, and at last he saw his mistake in marrying, but too late. Yet he determined that they should not abuse the only child of his first wife.

It was a chilly, rainy day, and everything looked dismal and cheerless in the city. Clara and Lena sat in the rich boudoir where a blazing fire glowing redly in the grate made it warm and cozy. Netta was there too, for Mr. Clay had laid down strict orders and they did not dare disobey them by sending her into the kitchen, and now she wore as costly robes as Miss Lena did, and was provided with books and teachers.

Netta was reading a richly bound book of Eliza Cook's Poems. For she in her loneliness had found a deep love for all that was beautiful, and poetry was to her, as stars are to mariners far out on the pathless sea. Netta had altered much in two months. There was a soft light in her eye, a rosy flush on her cheek, and the wearied, toil-worn look had vanished; but the smile on her lips was always sad.

Mrs. Clay in a brocade dressing robe was lying on a sofa, reading 'Uncle Tom's Cabin,' and weeping over the misfortunes of Eliza—for Mrs Clay had one of those peculiarly formed heads which could sympathise with all popular sorrows.

Lena sat in a richly cushioned rocking chair busy with her patterns zepher worsted and velvets.

But soon she threw them down, petnantly exclaiming, "There, I can do nothing more until I have two more of that particular scarlet, and two more of the lightest ozure. What shall I do? I ought to finish it for the ladies' Fair.

'I don't know what you will do? Where did you select?' asked the mother, looking up from her reading.

'At one of the farther shops on Broadway,' replied Lena. 'I must have some more immediately some way.'

'You will have to go Annetta,' said Mrs. Clay. 'The girls are all busy down stairs and cannot be spared, and Lena's health is too delicate to think of her going out in such stormy weather, and the worsteds must be had immediately.

Netta shuddered as she shut her entrancing book and looked out on the cheerless street, and up at the leaden sky from which the rain came steadily down, and not one lady pedestrian to be seen on the pavement. 'Oh, it rains so fast, and it will be such hard walking mother,' pleaded she.

'Nonsense,' it is nothing for a stout, healthy girl like you,' said Mrs. Clay without looking from her book.

'Why not wait until Papa comes home, he will get them for you,' said Netta pleadingly.

'You indolent thing?' exclaimed Lena imperiously. 'Go get them quick; I cannot wait till night.—Don't sit there hesitating.'

Netta cast a shivering glance at the stormy sky but she knew it would be useless to remonstrate for her father was not there. As she rose, Mrs. Clay handed her a thin, faded brocha, and a common bonnet. Netta glanced at them and said—'Oh, don't send me out so thinly clad. It is very cold. I shiver to even go through the hall. Let me wear my cloak.'

'Hush girl,' imperiously said Mrs. Clay. 'To humor you would take half of my husband's income.'

'I wonder Papa does half as much for her as he does,' said Lena. 'He is my own-papa,' said Netta calmly, 'and he loves me as much as he does those he shelters beneath his roof.'

Mrs. Clay sprang to her feet in a passion, exclaiming, 'You saucy thing! how dare you speak disrespectfully of me and Lena! Go on your errand immediately;' and the thinly clad, motherless girl was sent out into the rain to perform a trifling errand, which required her to go to the other end of Broadway: and the step-mother and step-sister sat in their luxurious boudoir in sumptuous elegance.

Mr. Clay passed out of his rich store on Broadway and walked hastily along the pavement, thickly and warmly clad in his heavy overcoat and fur cap, a large umbrella shielding him from the blinding sleet and rain. As he passed a lofty dwelling with high marble steps he heard a moan strangely low and plaintive, and he murmured—'Some poor beggar girl I suppose: pity for a girl out in this storm.'

Then low sobs and moans rose and fell on his, ears He stood irresolute. The wind blew the rain and sleet harshly in his face. He thought of the warm, pleasant sitting room at home, with its soft carpet and crimson curtains and velvet lounges and cushioned rocking chairs. He thought of the warm kiss with which Netta would meet him. Then like startling voices bidding him turn back, came those plaintive moans and in a moment he stood by the marble steps of the lofty dwelling.

The girl was half sheltered by an umbrella; beneath it he caught a bright gleam of gorgeous cashmere. Who could lie moaning on those marble steps robed in such rich material. He hastily tore the umbrella from the clasp of the red stiffened fingers, but the girl, a slender thing, lay with her face down on the cold, wet marble. She did not see the man by her side but moaned on and Mr. Clay could hear her faint childish voice saying—'Oh, Papa, come and take me home; I shall die here in the cold rain.'

'Oh, why in those low, touching tones was there a familiar sound, a household tone which thrilled Albert Clay's heart with a vague indistinct sense of pain? In a moment the shivering, childish form was clasped in his arms. Then the pale wet face with its faint, white features met his gaze. It was his own daughter Netta. For a moment all was dim before his eyes and the strong man sank faintly on the marble steps where his child had lain in cold agony.

Then he saw the parcel of worsted lying on the pavement, and he comprehended it all, and he was nerved again. As he clasped Netta to his heart she opened her blue eyes upon him and as they rested on the saddened face bending tenderly over her, she murmured faintly—'is it you Papa? Oh, I am so glad that you have come to take me home to mama—my angel mama,' and a tiny arm was clasped tightly about his neck and a golden head rested confidingly in his bosom. Netta was unconscious.

Then the father went swiftly on, merely pausing to order a physician. He hastily went up the steps of his mansion and entered without ringing and with his heavy over shoes and dripping coat and hat, he entered his wife's rich boudoir and laid Netta on a sofa.

Lena and Mrs. Clay grew icy pale. They saw a pall folding tightly around their future. 'Here is a specimen of your love towards my child. See your work. You heartless, cruel woman,' said he sternly as he glanced for the first time upon them.

The doctor came; and at last Netta fell into a quiet slumber which soon changed into a broken troubied slumber and her cheeks began to glow with the crimson light of fever heat. At intervals she awoke, muttering incoherent sentences. And at the red light of dawn she was raving in delirium. All day, through that hushed darkened chamber rung Netta's voice—pleading at times, then in frightful tones like those of a wounded bird; then softened down to a cadence low and mild as the flow of still waters. Then she would moan again and her earnest voice would be heard—'Oh, mother, it is so cold and the shawl is so very thin let me wear my cloak.'

Then again she would sob with outstreatched arms, 'Oh, Papa, come and take me home. The wind blows and it rains hard. Come after me, my own papa, I can go no farther.

The mystic hour of midnight had come with its mysterious solemnity. Within Mr. Clay's mansion all was hushed. There was no light burning save in the chamber of the dying Netta.

Netta was calmly sleeping. The hectic glow that had flushed her cheek had utterly dried away, and it was as snowy white as the pillow on which it rested, Her eyes were shut and her golden curls lay in beautiful confusion over the pillows, and her tiny hands were clasped above her head. The father's trembling fingers lay on the pulses of one small wrist, and the doctor's on the other. 'Can she live. Doctor?' eagerly asked the father.

'She is waking now.' said the Doctor.'

Slowly the large blue eyes unclosed; their light was as serene as the azure of an unclouded summer sky, and as they sought her father, a seraphic smile wreathed her lips, and the childish face shone as if angel-wings were shadowing it with their divine presence. Then she said—'I have been away, have'nt I papa?'

'No, Netta,' was the reply, 'you have been on the bed, and your own papa has been watching by your side.'

'But I have been away,' she said earnestly. 'It was to a very bright, beautiful place, where I heard sweet, low voices, and they whispered to me that it was the city of Light where there was never any clouds or storms there; and there was a long, wide golden river there, a river of flowing gold, and beautiful tree rose by it, and voices sweet as the flow of the river's waves, whispered that they were the trees of life. And I saw the angels, papa, and they wore white, and they had crowns of sunlight and golden harps, with which they made music, And I saw mama, and she asked me to come and live in the city of Light with her. I may go may I not, papa? Earth is dark with clouds, and cold with storms, You will not bid me stay, will you? The city is warm and bright forever, papa,' and Netta's eyes were glorious bright, and her face glowed with an unearthly beauty, and strength was hers even as if angel arms upheld her.

Then Doctor P——whispered—'It is the wondrous beauty of death.'

As if all earthly sounds were hushed, the father gazed upon his child and murmured—'It is the angel beauty. Heaven's gates are opening and the glorious light burst out in brilliant floods—shining down upon my child, lighting up the Valley and Shadow of Death. Then earth thoughts came; and bending over and kissing Netta's half parted lips, he said—'Is the city so beautiful that Netta must needs go away and leave papa amid the cold tempests of earth?'

Then Netta's arms folded him in soft embrace, and she said—Papa, I must go! The angels are unfurling their wings for flight and they whisper—'Netta, come!' I must go papa; mama is beckoning and I must not linger. Do you not hear the rustling of the angels wings that are to bear me away? Mama is by the gate Good bye, Papa, and the little golden head drooped on his bosom: the intensely brilliant eyes shut, and the long lashes lay motionless on the marble cheeks, and the arms loosened their clasp about the father's neck. Netta was dead. In the mysterious midnight the meek spirit of the motherless girl flew up from the dim stormy earth, and the angels with starry wings bore her through the Eden Gates in the city of light; and she shall go no more out forever.

That night Mr. Clay spoke stern words to Clara and Lena, and sent them back to their old home; and soon a divorce would part them forever. And those guilty ones, upon whose souls the blood of that Motherless Girl rested, could not complain for the judgment was just.

The next day tender, careful hands robed Netta in spotless white, and strewed pale, scented blossoms and green leaves in her coffin, and after a holy sermon the lone father bore her away from the noisy, dusty city, into the green blooming country, and buried her by her mother's grave, planted a moss-rose by the white marble slab, on which the inscription is:

"NETTA CLAY.
AGED 12 YEARS"
"We loved her, and she died."

He wet the sod with tears, and ere the flowers of another summer lit up earth with their colored radience, he was away in the distant west.

His Netta sleeps there in the quiet country grave, and the blue birds sing in the locust above her grave; and the moss-rose blooms on the green sods which lay on her coffin, the golden sunlight sleeps in its pink blossoms, the brooks quiet waters gush near her, and its mournful cadances hum a low dirge for the Motherless Girl who sleeps on its shores.

Politeness.

ONE of the English infidels was so struck with the politeness and good feeling manifested in St. Paul's writings, that he affirmed if St. Paul had said that he himself had ever performed a miracle, he would believe it, because he deemed St. Paul too much of a gentleman to tell an untruth. Whatever we may think of this remark, we cannot but be struck with the power which politeness had over the infidel.—And as this infidel is not an exception, it may be well to show some few of the advantages of being polite.

1. We conform to the Scriptures. If St. Paul taught politeness by his example—so did he in his writings. He tells us, 'In honor we must prefer one another.' Here is the great secret of politeness, viz.—forgetfulness of self. In another place he says, 'Be courteous,' in other words—be polite.

2. We make friends. Nothing so wins upon strangers as true politeness. A little attention, shown in a stage, or in the cars, or at a public table, costs us very little, But what an effect it has upon the persons to whom the attention is shown. The pleased look, the gratified smile, showe us that we have gained a friend.

3. We increase our usefulness. One reason why ministers and good Christian people have no more influence, is on account of their sour face and forbidding countenances. They look as if they said—Keep away from me. But if they allow the vulgar to approach within reach of their majestic presence, there is a pompous manner or way they have. which prevents the hearts of others going out to them, and thus the influence over such people is lost.

4. It gives success. Let any man who has goods to sell, or office to attain, be kind and polite, no sham—like that put on by the politicians—and his goods are sold and his office reached, ten times sooner than the man who looks mad, and cuts you up as he cuts off his calicoes and cloths.

Politeness, of all things earthly, costs the least. But its power, it is not saying too much, is tremendous.

As Sidney Smith said of Daniel Webster, 'he was a steam engine in trowsers.' so we say of the really genuine polite man—he, too, is a steam engine—his power in his particular sphere, is wonderful. He, other things being anything equal, will accomplish good in the world.

A person visiting a neighbor, found him disabled from having a horse step upon his foot, Hobbling out to the stable, the sufferer explained how it happened. "I was standing here,' 'and the horse bro't his foot down on mine.' The man looked at the injured member, which was the No. 14 pattern, and said very quietly: 'Well, the horse must step somewhere.'

Poor but Honest.

How often do we here the expression, 'He is poor but honest.' Poor but honest, indeed! Why should a poor man's honesty be always accompanied with a but? Can any one tell us? Does poverty in itself imply dishonesty, to such an extent that the above form of expression is necessary to convince the world that a man in indigent circumstances is not a rascal? From the customary manner in which this announcement is made, one would hardly suppose that it were possible for poverty and honesty to go together. Who ever says that such and such an individual is 'rich but honest?' No one thinks of speaking in that way. It wo'd be deemed the essence of impropriety, if not downright slander. Yet, in reality, this phrase would be as proper and just as the one which forms the caption to this article. The truth is, it is quite possible for both rich and poor persons to be honeit, or the reverse: and neither their poverty or wealth is any sure index to their character. They may have come honestly into possession of either. Neither wealth or poverty is incompatible with uprightness of conduct; nor is either condition any guarantee against the parctice of villainy.

We dislike the expression, 'Poor but honest;' it is indicative of unjust prejudices and erroneous views on the part of those who thus talk.

Why, not say, 'Poor and honest?,

To Our Subscribers.

This issue of our paper will be the last going out from Cincinnati, and the next, and all future issues, will come from Knoxville direct, via Nashville. We have at length purchased one of Hoe's fine printing presses, in New York, and it is now at Louisville, on its winding way to Knoxville. We expect to have this new machine in operation in a very short time, when our paper will come out by the mails, with regularity.

We may have to miss one or two of the next issues, but if they are delayed in coming to subscribers, they will understand that it is done on account of the shipment, and the putting under way of our new press.

All communications, as well as exchange papers, either to the undersigned, or CAPT. A. E. BLUNT, will be addressed to KNOXVILLE, TENNESSEE,' where they will reach us and receive attention, as we go with the paper to Knoxville, and remain among the fixtures of the office. Our list of subscribers is now very large, and is growing daily. Let advertisements as well as names of subscribers be sent on to Knoxville, and they will receive prompt attention.

Remittances at our risk.

Those who are opposed to the late Baltimore ticket, setting forth LINCOLN & JOHNSTON, and the Anti-Slavery Platform they stand upon, would do well not to patronize us, for we stand with these candidates upon the same platform! And all who are in sympathy with this rebellion, or have plates of copper on their heads, would do well not to subscribe for our sheet, as they will frequently get their feelings hurt. And all who are for 'Peace,' for the Cleveland, or Chicago nominees for the Presidency, would do well to have no fellowship with our paper—for we are for LINCOLN & JOHNSON, and for the war to the bitter end.

We will thank papers, friendly to our cause, to insert this card once, as a means of giving information to the public abroad. W. G. BROWNLOW,

A PARAGRAPH FOR BUSINESS MEN.—One fact has come to be pretty universally recognized, viz, that fortunes are not made in trade without some forms of advertising. There are more fortunes established in a judicious system of advertising than in anything else, and knowing exactly how to advertise, is knowing exactly how to get trade. The public have become accustomed to having the claims of all trading establishments presented to them in some form of advertisement. Each man has his own way of expressing himself, and each trade has its own special wants. There is the fact, of course, that the absolute necessaries of life must be bought somewhere. and in the long run people will buy where they can buy the cheapest, but many a shop could, by good advertising, obtain a business in six months which it would otherwise be obliged to wait years for. Everything should be advertised—every new invention, every luxury, every discovery; and it is here that the greatest degree of talent is requisite and manifest. If a man fail in the advertising department of his business, he will fail in all departments.

A country girl coming from the field, was told by her poetic cousin that she looked as fresh as a daisy kissed with dew. 'Well, it wasn't any feller by that name, but it was Steve Jones that kissed me. I told him that every one in town would find it out!'

THE WAR NEWS.

The country has been startled from its quiet by the sudden rebel raid in Maryland. From the great mass of dispatches we gather that a force of rebels numbering from 7,000 to 20,000 have been sent by Lee to commit depradations in Maryland, and threaten Washington, and endeavor to create a diversion in their favor by compelling Grant to withdraw his army from before Richmond. They have fired upon trains of cars, ransacked them, capturing prisoners, and rumor is current that Gen. Franklin was captured while on his way to Baltimore. Large numbers of cattle, horses and sheep have been stolen from the rich farmers, and driven across the river. The Government is concentrating troops as rapidly as possible, and will soon be able to check their further advance.

But the plan will not succeed in diverting Grant's attention from Richmond. He has gone in to win, and he will keep pounding away at the rebel capital until he wins the prize. True patriotism does not lack in courage and faith of ultimate triumph.

We give an interesting account of the destruction of the Alabama by one of our iron clads. Capt. Winslow did his duty in ridding the sea of this piratical craft, but it would have been better done had he sent a shot through the English yacht Deerhound, brought her to, and taken from her the prisoners belonging to him, whose escape she was aiding. English neutrality is about "played out."

Congress has adjourned, and its members are returning to their homes. The laws passed by the session are published by us from week to week.

Speaker Colfax, has been re-nominated for Congress by his District in Indiana. It was made by acclamation.

The rise and fall of gold has ceased to cause speculation as to the result of the war. It is a species of gambling carried on by the sharks of Wall street.

We second the suggestion of the Homestead to hold the Congressional Convention for this District at Mankato, Give us Mankato this year, and the next time we can come to Rochester on a railroad, perhaps. How say you Bro. Sinclair?

The Advocate, of Blue Earth City, has had considerable to say of late about a package of money which it claims was broken open by A. D. Mason Esq., the mail carrier, while in transit from that place to Mankato. The money was raised by the Aid Society of Blue Earth, to be sent to the Sanitary Commission at St. Paul. A similar Society at Winnebago was raising money for the same purpose, and the two towns were striving to see which could get the largest sum. The Advocate charges Mr. Mason with having broken open the package at Winnebago in order that the citizens there might ascertain the amount, and make theirs still larger.

As Mr. Mason is well known in this place and up the Blue Earth, and has business dealings with our merchants, we deem it proper to inform them of the facts in the matter. The charge against him is false in every particular, and was instigated by personal spite. The money was paid to Mr. Mason by Messrs. Richardson and Constance, in dollars and cents, counted out before him, and he gave his receipt for it. It was put into the package by Constance and Mason. At Winnebago inquiry was made as to the amount of their package, and Mr. Mason showed them the figures on the outside. Further than that the package was not tampered with from the time it left Blue Earth until it was deposited in the Express office at this place.

We are not surprised that this charge should be made against Mr. Mason, because we know the motives which influenced the Advocate, and we know the character of the editor too well to doubt for a moment that anything could be too mean for him to do; but we are surprised that Mr. Richardson and Mr. Constance, knowing as they are to the facts, should have remained silent so long, when they have it in their power to refute effectually, the slanders of this foul-mouthed editor, whose presence has ever been a dark spot upon the character of Blue Earth. They owe it to themselves, to their town, and to Mr. Mason, to make a public statement of the facts, and not permit a man's honesty to be impugned, whose character has always been above suspicion. We shall expect them to make such a statement.

Mr. Mason, has been too long a resident of Faribault County to be injured by the petty spite of an unprincipled editor, but this does not make it less incumbent on his friends to refute charges made by one who possesses only the form of a man but all the instincts of a brute.

The Sioux Indemnity Appropriation.

In answer to inquiries made by parties here and other places, as to when the claims of the sufferers of the Sioux outbreak in 1862, would be paid, Hon. William Windom, wrote the following letter to the Secretary of the Interior, and obtained from him a reply which we also publish. We advise those who hold these Sioux claims not to sacrifice any on them. They will undoubtedly be paid this fall.

Hon. J. P. Usher, Secretary of the Interior:
WASHINGTON, July 2d, 1864.

Sir:—Referring to our conversation this morning, I have the honor to request that you will inform me if there is any necessity for delay in the payment of the claims of sufferers from the Sioux outbreak in 1862, for which an appropriation has been made; and also that you will be good enough to state, as nearly as possible, what time said claims will be paid.

I feel very anxious about this matter, because I have been informed that certain parties are industriously circulating reports among said claimants that their claims will not be paid for a long time, with a view to induce them to sell at a ruinous discount. Many of these sufferers are our most worthy citizens, and are in a destitute condition. It will work a great hardship and a grevious wrong if by any delay in making said payments, these persons shall be compelled to put themselves in the power of speculators. I earnestly beg of you to afford all reasonable facilities for speedy payment, and thus avert a wrong, which I am sure no one would deplore more than yourself.

I have the honor to be,
Very Respectfully,
Your obt. servant,
WM. WINDOM.

DEPARTMENT OF INTERIOR,
WASHINGTON, D. C. July 2, 1864.

SIR: In answer to your letter of this date, I have the honor to state that the settlement of the claims of the sufferers by the Sioux outbreak in 1862, is progressing as fast as possible.

No cause exists for any apprehension of delay, nor for the representations which you say are being made by designing persons, with a view to induce the sale of the claims to speculators.

I am sir,
Very respectfully,
Your obedient servant.
J. P. USHER.
Secretary.

Hon. Wm. WINDOM,
House of Representatives.

CONVALESCENTS SENT TO THE FRONT.—Within the past week nearly 10,000 convalescents have been sent to the front from hospitals in Washington. The men are constantly going forward, and it is expected that at least 6,000 will rejoin their commands this week. Not more than 16,000 patients remain to be cared for, and this number will be reduced within the next three weeks, so as to leave none but desperate cases.

Minnesota Valley Railroad.

The Record talks sensible in its article on the Valley railroad, the following extract from which we copy, and endorse:

As a sincere friend of the present corporators, we cannot but view the delay and inactivity which has so far characterized their management, as injurious to the company as well as to the interests of the people of the valley. There has been no more favorable opportunity in the past five years to enlist capital in works of internal improvements than the present. It is abundant, and the advantages of the road need only be known to secure it. In fact, we have among the business men of St. Paul and the well-to do farmers of the valley, sufficient capital to build the first twenty miles, and after that is accomplished, the sales of land will be ample to complete the line to this place. Only let the corporators go to work in earnest, and show a disposition to carry out the undertaking with which they have been entrusted. Show us something like work, and we will be satisfied. The present stagnation in business throughout the Valley, for want of facilities to send our surplus grain to market, demands the immediate commencement of the road, and if the present corporators do not feel competent to the task, or have not the time, let them resign the trust into other and willing hands.

☞ In an article attempting to explain the absence of the editor of this paper from a constant attendance during the recent trial before Commissioner Willard, the editor of the Union indulges in mysterious insinuations which we should like him to explain.—Record.

Of course; we do so with pleasure. We are sorry, however, that you take it so much to heart. In order to be better understood we will give the whole sentence.

If in all these circumstances—so many and complicated,—every minutiæ of which points to Burns, at least, the Record can see only the two facts, the robbery of the mails, and that Burns was a driver, to justify the Commissioner in holding him to a further examination, we must conclude that the editor was not present to hear all the evidence, or else that he was sound asleep, or was assisting the Judge to adjust his spurs on the calves of his legs, preparatory to his Fourth of July ride. There, will that suit?

The Fourth at Fort Ridgely.

A friend who was present at Fort Ridgely on the fourth has sent us the following programme of what transpired:

First, Salute by Heaven's artillery at midnight, accompanied by rain. Not those little pattering showers that have passed for rains during the last year, but a regular wet rain; a grateful, cooling, growing soaking, watery rain, such as was seen when we were all younger than we are now, lasting till 7 o'clock A. M.

2. Salute of thirteen guns at sunrise.

3d. National salute of thirty-five guns at twelve M., after which the troops, consisting of three companies of the Second Minnesota Cavalry, four companies of the 30th Wisconsin Infantry, one company of the 1st Connecticut Cavalry and one section of the 3rd Minnesota Battery, were paraded in front of Headquarters, resting at will.

The fair ladies and children at the garrison were seated under the commodious verandahs, the officers of the various troops finding seats near the rostrum. The programme was

1st. Music by the Choir, composed of soldiers and ladies assisted by a melodeon played by Mrs. Sweet, the Chaplain's wife.
2d. Prayer by the Chaplain.
3d. Music.
4th. Reading Declaration, by Capt. A. J. Van Vorhees.
5th. Music.
6th. Oration by Private Edgar Cronkite, of Company L, 2d Minn. Cavalry.
7th. Music.

The music was considered good by those whose tastes are cultivated, and the patriot found no fault with the selections.

All was pleasant and patriotic; but the topic of conversation by all present was "the oration." Among the remarks on it were "It was good. It was nice. It was all right. It was elegant. It was full of choice periods. It had the true ring. It would honor any speaker. It would be honored by any audience however intelligent." Neither of these express the whole truth, perhaps all combined may do it. The allusions to the present National struggle touched the hearts of all.

A tribute to the memory of Ellsworth, Sedgwick, Wadsworth, Baker, Lyon, and others of our honored patriot dead, found sympathies of tender emotion in the bosoms of men.

But one name alone moved that audience from its marked composure. That was Abraham Lincoln,—at the mention of which all arose and sent up a triplet of cheers that is only equaled by the patriotism of the hearts that gave them.

Ice water was placed at several points on the parade ground and thus a cheering draft was furnished for the thirsty soldiers.

All was pleasant—no rude noises—no drunkenness—no quarreling, and no copperheads within the lines.

DANVILLE AND THE MELODEON.

DANVILLE, July 6, 1864.

I am not writing about Danville and the whisky barrel. I gave that twice as often as I wish I had any need of. I now turn to a subject which gives more satisfaction to the intelligent mind. Perhaps no portion of the State presents a clearer view of the value of early training than may be found in this town. Its inhabitants may be divided into three parts,—Northwest, East, Southwest. The former two are occupied for seven or eight years and are yet without those marks of progress which ought to be attended to in order to insure the blessings of civilization to the rising generation. The latter being taken up principally since the passage of the Homestead Bill, yet there is now a day school, a Sabbath school, and the regular worship of God conducted on the Lord's day. There is the foundation of a community here and in the adjoining town (Mapleton) which promises much social enjoyment in the future. We invite your city belles who ply their fairy fingers on the melodeon, to make a visit to our Sabbath school and religious services; they will see the hardy tiller of the soil sit down to his instrument, and with his rough fingers strike up the notes and joined—not by the choir—but by the congregation from the four corners of the house, in a familiar tune in which all can join. She need not expect to tread on a Brussels carpet inside, but upon one of God's own weaving outside, flowered and scented by Infinite skill. We will treat her at least to a fresh egg and a dish of green-peas, and if she does not go home healthier, happier and holier, it will be her own fault.

OUR FOURTH OF JULY.

Early in the morning we had a heavy shower which gave some discouragement, but before twelve o'clock the sky cleared, the grass dried, the wagons rolled in with their precious loads of mothers, children, and well filled baskets. After the usual chit chat on such occasions, the audience got seated to hear an Oration from the Rev. Mr. Hunt, It was the first time within the last twenty years in which I heard a deviation from the old fashioned Fourth of July speeches. The speaker had ample range for his thoughts in the present rebellion and its cause. He is well acquainted with the progress of the war—has ample ability to interest his hearers with an intelligent off-hand address. He also gave a useful bit to the Sunday schools (I think four in number) after which the assembly partook of a pic-nic, the best the country could afford. Thanks to those mothers, and wives for their exertions in getting up a supply of cakes, pies, pyramids, hearts, &c., not forgetting Mrs. Clark, for her new and well flavored cheese.

After singing "Homeward Bound," and a cordial shake hands, each started for their destination. The singing throughout was good. Mr. Brown's performance on the melodeon added much to the enjoyment of the day.

JOHN KELLETT.

SAYS an exchange: The Fremont platform declares authoritatively that Slavery is dead. The Copperheads, while positively endorsing this platform, declare that the Government is waging war for the abolition of Slavery! How can that be? How can you abolish that which is already dead? The Fremont wing of the Copperhead party, and the Copperhead wing of the Fremont party, find a good deal of difficulty in reconciling their opposite sentiments. The dog which the old mythologists described as guarding the door of hell, had three heads. The Dogberry Democracy, with its infusion of Fremontism, has more than three heads, each one of which, instead of finding itself on guard, will discover itself to be, in November next, severel miles from the door on the inside!

Destruction of The Alabama.

ESCAPE OF CAPT. SEMMES.

The special Paris correspondent of the Chicago Tribune gives a very full and interesting account of the destruction of the Pirate Alabama from which we take a few extracts:—

Intelligence had scarcely reached us that the Confederate cruiser had left the china shore seas, when she made her appearance and put into the port of Cherbourg. I need not say that the American consular and diplomatic authorities were on the qui vive, and that it was an anxious time for Mr. Dayton, considering the delicate nature of the relations between the two governments with respect to such matters, and the earnest desire that no possible chance should be lost of destroying this plunderer on the ocean. I believe I may say that the French authorities acted on the whole fairly on the matter, and though allowing Capt. Semmes to obtain a supply of provisions, clothing and fuel, took care that he should receive nothing else. And the rover had wherewith to pay! He is said to have brought into Cherebourg with him a sum of eight millions of francs, which with the savings of his crew, his own will, his log and forty-eight chronometers, he left there, before he went out to fight the Kearsarge, then lying off the harbor, waiting for him. Why he went out at all, or rather why he went out deliberately to fight instead of first attempting as usual to escape without fighting, it seems difficult to say. The Kearsarge is said to have sent in a courteous challenge. I have been given to understand by intelligence from a Southern source, that Capt. Semmes held a council of war with his officers, who were unanimous to accept the conflict. Thereupon this Capt. Semmes telegraphed up to Mr. Slidell in Paris, that it was eventually determined that he should go out and fight; and fortunately for the cause of American commerce, out he went and met with his fate.

A letter from Cherbourg published this morning in the Debats says that the feeling in the French fleet there, and the "elegant society" of the place was all in favor of the pirate! They must have been specially mortified, when, in the space of a couple of hours they saw the Kearsage steam into port, having in the interim sent their pet corsair to the bottom!

About half past ten on the morning of the 19th; the Alabama left the harbor attended by the French iron-clad, the Couronne, appointed to see that no engagement took place within French waters. At ten minutes after eleven the first gun was fired by the Alabama, when about a mile distant from the Kearsarge, who immediately replied, and the engagement became continuous. Some accounts say that the Alabama attempted to close; others that both vessels continued to manœuver at a distance varying during the combat from a half to a quarter of a mile. About twelve o'clock, that is, in less than an hour, the fire of the Alabama slackened; she was seen to let off her steam, and presently to make head sail and steer toward the land. A ball is said to have shattered her screw, or as some say, to have passed through her boiler. In another half hour she was evidently in a sinking state, and about ten minutes to one went down bodily. The crew were picked up—some from boats, some from the water—by the Kearsarge, by a French pilot boat, and by the English steam yacht the Deerhound; the account of the action of whose men will reach you by the London papers. The Kearsarge herself, though considerable damaged, and with twelve shot in her hull, steamed proudly into Cherbourg and anchored close to the Napoleon screw liner, where she was speedily visited in her turn by numbers of the "elegant society" of the place, in whose estimation the Federal navy doubtless stands several points higher than it did a few days ago. Ten wounded Confederates and three Federals have been transfered to the local hospitals. The Confederate authorities here are said to admit ten killed. The two vessels are said to have fired about 130 shots each. For further particulars I must refer you to the numerous statements which are hourly appearing. The result has been glorious and the exultation is great.

ESCAPE OF SEMMES.

The Daily News' Southampton correspondent says:

Captain Semmes is at Kelway's Hotel in Southampton, and the other officers and men are about the town getting clothes and necessaries; they are taken charge of at the Sailors' Home here. Captain Semmes and Chief Officer Lee went this afternoon to Emanuel's, the tailor in the High street, to make purchases. The Captain's hand was bandaged, owing to a wound he received in action. The shop was crowded with people endeavoring to get a glimpse of the Confederate commander.

Messrs. Emanuel tapped several bottles of port, and treated their customer, his lieutenant and those who came to see them, with much hospitality. Capt. Semmes anxiously asks what the people of England thought of the South, said slavery there existed but in name, and that the North and South would never again be united. He said, moreover, that he had endeavored to do his duty to his country. When he left the shop a crowd had collected round the door, who made way for him and treated him with much respect. He seemed to be laboring under mental anguish, and to feel most acutely the complete defeat he had experienced, and the death and sufferings which that defeat had caused.

He says that he was completely deceived as to the strength and armament of the federal ship. What he recollected of the Kearsarge was that she was an ordinary sloop of war. If he had known that she was an iron-clad, and much more heavily armed than the Alabama, he would not have fought, as it was madness to do so. He said that the fight between the Alabama and Kearsage has taught another lesson in naval warfare, that the uselessness of ordinary ships of war like the Alabama encountering an iron-clad and heavily armed ship like the Kearsarge. He does not know the extent of damage he did to the enemy's ship; all he knows is that he has lost his own.

A second letter from the same correspondent says:

When the battle was at an end the Deerhound steamed over to the Kearsarge, and Mr. Lancaster was asked by the officers of the Federal ship to try and pick up the scores of the Alabama's crew and officers who were floating and swimming about. He lowered his yacht boats, and one of them commanded by a man named Adams, was steering his boat into a group of a dozen struggling persons, when he passed a drowning man at some short distance with an officer's cap on. One of the men in the boat cried out, "That's Semmes," and the drowning man called out, "I am the Captain—save me, I cannot keep up any longer." Adams went and dragged him into the boat. Semmes then said, "For God's sake don't put me on the Kearsarge, but put me on board your yacht." Adams promised to do so, and laid Semmes down in the bottom, and covered him with a sail to conceal him from the Kearsarge's boats, which were evidently anxiously searching for him. When Adams had saved a boat load he took them on board the yacht, and Semmes was at once placed below. As soon as all that were seen in the water were picked up, Mr. Lancaster was anxious to get away, and began to steam out to sea. He expected that he should have been brought to by a shot from the Kearsarge, but she was too disabled it appears to go after the Deerhound to overhaul her, and thus Semmes escaped being made prisoner.

Capt. Semmes declined an invitation to a public dinner at Southampton. He is said to have gone to Paris to report to the Confederate Commissioner there.

EVERY SOLDIER SHOULD HAVE THEM.—From R B. Heintzelman Stewart 724 Reg. P. V.: "Your medical preparation (Brown's Bronchial Troches) is certainly valuable to soldiers in the field, and I feel satisfied if generally adopted at the hospitals, many sleepless nights of the weary soldier would be averted. Our regiment are now testing their qualities, and I believe are all satisfied with their good effects in alleviating those distressing affections of the throat arising from cold and exposure. They are now daily prescribed in our hospital and at the surgeon's morning call." Sold everywhere at 25 cts. per box.

BRANDRETH'S PILLS.—They expel the poisons which threaten life. Every time a sick person is purged by this vegetable remedy, he has less vitiated humors and more life and vigor, as any one can prove by taking a single dose. Persons of spare habits gain flesh and strength while using them. Every time we rest a few days or weeks from the purgation, we make new fluids from our food, which replace the unsound ones that the Pills have caused to be evacuated. Each time we repeat this process, we expel further quantities of impurities, which are again replaced by fluids less and less impure, so that in a short time, by continuing this treatment, we bring the whole mass of fluids or humors to that state of purity which constitutes health, for Brandreth's Pills only take away humors which are unsound. Sold by Wickersham, & Kilgore, Mankato Minn. and by all respectable dealers in medicines. [1-4w.

Wheat.—Farmers are beginning to get their eyes open in regard to the price of wheat, and refuse to sell for fifty five and sixty cents. There is no reason why wheat should not be worth a dollar a bushel.

Change of Time.—On Monday, July 4th, passenger trains on the Winona and St. Peter Railroad commenced running according to the time table published in our advertising colums.

Lewis & Frisbie have a very good assortment of choice literature which they ask their patrons to call and examine. They have also all kinds of school books of the latest editions, and those most generally in use.

C. S. Dunscombe, recently appointed Acting Assistant Paymaster in the Navy, has been ordered to report to Commodore Porter at Cario for duty. He left town the first of the week.

New Boot and Shoe Shop.—By a card elsewhere, our readers will see that Peter Larson, has opened a boot and shoe shop next door to the post office. He guarantees satisfaction, and desires to secure his share of trade. Give him a call.

Another game of bass ball came off on Saturday afternoon last, and resulted in favor of Jas. Shoemaker and party. Mr. Shoemaker met with a very singular accident. By some means, while in the act of knocking the ball, he broke one of the metta carpel bones of his left hand. Dr. Frisbie set the bone.

Livery Stable.—Clemens Kron, has purchased the livery stock of Mr. Swayne and removed it to Front Street opposite his old stand. He is prepared to accomodate his friends with good horses and buggies on the shortest notice. He has also stable room to let. See his advertisement, and give him a call.

Buying Wool.—Wm. D. Regers, of St. Paul, has been in this vicinity for the past week buying up wool. He has succeeded in purchasing over eight thousand pounds of a very fine quality in different parts of the county, paying for it 85 and 90 cents per pound. Several loads passed through town on the way to St. Paul

Sheep from Ohio.—D. R. Brooks has just returned from Ohio, where he purchased 1100 sheep of the French and Merino breeds. They are now on the way, and will be here in a week or so. Parties wishing to hire sheep can be accommodated by calling on Mr. Brooks. He reports that the crops in Ohio are not as forward as here.

A New Stock.—Meagher is completely filled up, that is to say, his store is jammed full of new goods, His advertisement shows plainly enough, that there is nothing that farmers want, but what he can supply them with. He has enumerated but a very small part of the articles he has for sale, but desires his friends to call and see for themselves whether he speaks soberly and truthfully.

The Ladies' Soldiers' Aid Society will meet in the log school house, Saturday afternoon at two o'clock. A full attendance is earnestly solicited as business of importance will come before the meeting. The Society wish to finish a box of hospital stores in a few days, and ask that contributions may be brought in freely and without stint. All meetings of the society will be held at the school house until further notice.

Killed in Battle.—We regret to learn that Jeremiah Keene a brother of Abel and Josiah Keene of this place, who was a soldier in the Fourth Maine Battery, was struck in the hip by a ten pound shell in one of the assaults before Petersburg, on the 21st ult. and almost instantly killed. The shell carried away his right leg, and he lived just long enough to send a message to his wife. Mr. Keene was one of the re-enlisted veterans of the Maine Battery and while on furlough was married to an amiable young lady, who now mourns his untimely loss,

The Crops.—The late rains have made a decided improvement in the looks of the crops in this section. Spring wheat, oats and barley that was only twelve or fifteen inches high three weeks ago, and headed out at that, is now from two and a half to three feet high. One can almost see it grow. We examined a number of fields the other day, and noticed that the heads are well filled, and the kernel promises to be plump. We shall have more than an average crop of small grain notwithstanding the severe drought. Corn and potatoes are doing first rate. The prospects of a good harvest are cheering.

The expedition of Major Clowny to the James River, for the purpose of building a fort, left Fort Ridgely on the 10th. The expedition consists of three companies of the 30th Wisconsin, Co. M. of 2nd Minn. Cavalry and one section of the Third Minnesota Battery, all under command of Major Clowney. They expect to make the journey in sixteen days. The site for the fort which is to be called Fort Wadsworth, is not yet selected. The selection is to be made by the major and Capt. McKusic Everything necessary to make a "small world" accompanied the expedition.

The Town of Rapidan.—Being out in the country the other day, we took a stroll to the new town site of C. P. Cook, of Garden City, situated at the rapids on the Blue Earth. Mr. Cook has got his town surveyed laid out and platted, and the plat recorded in the Register's office, and is now prepared to sell lots at reasonable rates. He has the best water power on the river, and the point selected for the town is a very desirable one. He has already concluded negotiations with parties for the building of a circular dam, the convex of the circle up steam, fifteen feet high, and two hundred and fifty feet long, and for the erection of a saw mill, this fall. He has sold several lots already, and buildings will soon be going up, and the town under way. The Blue Earth rapids is the best water power in the country, and will yet become a large manufacturing point. Money invested there will not be thrown away.

A son of the Emerald Isle, once riding to market with a sack of potatoes before him, discovered that the horse was getting tired, whereupon he dismounted, put the potatoes on his shoulders, and again mounted saying, 'it was better he should carry the praties, as he was fresher than the poor baste.'

MARRIED.

In Le Hillier, July 13th, 1864, by the Rev. B Y. Coffin. LYMAN MATTHEWS, and Mrs. LUCINDA CLARK, all of the same place.

Well, General that's right, "Go it while you're young."

TELEGRAPH NEWS.

What Grant Says about the Raid.

Washington, July 10–10 P. M.

Travelers from northern Maryland have no apprehensions of injury to any part of the track of the Baltimore and Wilmington railroad accessible to gunboats.

Secretary Welles has done his duty to the public interests exposed to this raid where it was possible to do so.

Gen. Gilmore, who was sent for by the President, arrived this morning, and will be immediately assigned to active command in the field.

The telegraph cable to Fort Monroe was cut last night by a dragging anchor and no communication has been had to-day with Gen. Grant.

Hon. John Covode returned yesterday from a visit to the Headquarters of Gen. Grant.

He had several interviews with the General and reports Grant very hopeful and expressed himself with utmost confidence in regard to his ultimate success.

Grant did not attach much importance to the rebel raid into Maryland, as he does not believe that Lee would detach any considerable force from the front of the Union lines before Petersburg.

Baltimore, July 11.

The news from Washington is exciting. The Star says the skirmishing via the Rockville road, commenced at an early hour this forenoon, was continued by the advance of the rebel force to a point about four miles west of Tennalltown. There their progress on that road stopped, and they started in some other direction.

Subsequently we here of them skirmishing between 11 and 12 o'clock on and around near the Claggett farm, and the residence of F. P. Blair, and it is reported to-day that the rebels burned the residence of Blair.

There were eight hundred infantry only in force, encamped at Rockville last night, though the panic stricken refugees, arriving to-day from the vicinity of Edwards Ferry, report them coming north from that point, yesterday evening, in large numbers, some saying 12,000 strong, others 30,000.

Baltimore, July 11—10 p. m.

A respectable citizen residing near Kingsville, reports that this morning a party of 50 rebel cavalry passed his house, making for the railroad. They cut the telegraph as they passed.

While going by the house of Mr. Day, an enthusiastic citizen residing near Kingsville, they noticed an American flag flying, and some of them stopped to burn his barn.

Mr. Day made no resistance until they attempted to tear down the flag, when he fired on the rebels and killed one of them. Mr. Day has not been heard from, and his fate is as yet unknown.

The rebels were now operating on the Philadelphia Railroad, and it is expected the telegraph wires will soon be cut.

Great excitement prevails here. The citizens are arming and going out mounted to fight the rebels.

The Situation.

The late raid of Wilson and Kautz against the Richmond and Danville and Petersburg and Lynchburg Railroads was, notwithstanding our heavy losses, the most destructive raid against the enemy's communications yet made during the war. The Danville Road occupies the same position in refereuce to Richmond, and the Lynchburg Road stands in the same relation to Petersburg, as does the Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington Railroad to our national capital. As General Grant tightens his coils around the rebel capital Lee will spit fire like a wasp in a spider's web. His raid up to Harper's Ferry is a spiteful attempt to imitate the threatening character of Grant's operations against Richmond. Meanwhile another of Grant's strategic movements is on the eve of execution. Lee, who of old, was so fond of taking the initiative, now warily watches the movements of his antagonist, and confines himself to efforts purely defensive. What Gen. Grant's next movement will be is a matter of speculation. That he will storm Petersburg is none the more probable, because he makes an ostentatious show of intention to do so, by twice summoning it to surrender. To strike out somewhat in the line pursued by Wilson's raid, turning the right of the rebel army and of Petersburg and planting himself on the line of the Richmond and Danville Railroad in the immediate rear of Richmond, would be not unlike Grant, as it would compel Lee to fight a pitched battle, or fall back to Richmond. A push from Bermuda Hundreds to separate the rebels at Petersburg from those at Richmond would have seemed more probable before the rebels had so fully fortified against it. That the expected movement will be intended to place Grant's army more immediately and embarrassingly across the line of Lee's communications, however, may safely be presumed. If in so doing he could get between the rebel forces at Petersburg and those at Richmond the advantage would be increased by dividing the enemy. If these results could be attained without giving Lee a chance to sever his communications, the safety of the movement would be still increased, but as Lee cannot be occupied in severing Grant from his base without suffering Grant to sever him from his own, the risk is equal, and being equal is, as to Grant, practically nothing, since Lee will do nothing on equal risks. We are making no mistakes. Grant believes he is winning. Every day accomplishes something. We can afford to wait in hope, and do what we can with courage.—Chicago Tribune.

Sherman and a Reverend Speculator.—A few days since, Rev. W. P. Campbell, of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church, in this place, was sent North, by order of General Webster, Sherman's Chief of Staff. He was, before the war a violent rebel; and remained such, till a very recent period, when he began to affect a conversion, with what object, we are at loss to ascertain.

Some time since, he addressed a letter to Sherman, stating that there was, in Nashville, a large quantity of confederate money which he could get hold of and take South, to buy cotton, if permitted to go through the lines, asserting that his object was to realize a handsome profit for the purpose of building a college at Nashville. Gen. Sherman received and read the letter, and then threw it aside without answering it, as he knew nothing about the author, and supposed his motives were really good, while his plans were not permissible.

The Reverend gentlemen waited for a considerable length of time, when he addressed the General as follows.

Nashville, June 4.

Major General Sherman:

Sir: I wrote you sometime since relative to a permit to go South and purchase cotton, with Confederate money, and have received no answer. I presume you thought my college prospect was not feasible, and therefore did not give it attention. Now, I will make this proposition: I will buy the cotton, and divide the profits with you.

Yours, truly, W. P. Campbell.

Gen. Sherman read the message, and immediately seized a pen and ink and wrote the following endorsement on the back:

"This is infamous. Gen. Webster will arrest this man, ad punnish him as his age and standing in community demands."

The order was transmitted to Gen. Webster, who in consideration of his age—he was sixty-five—only ordered him north of the Ohio river. If you hear of any reverend Copperhead martyr named Campbell, in the North, preaching of the tyranny of the military authorities here, you can expose him.

Where to find a Good Piano.

We have had occasion recently to test some Pianos in the new Store recently opened by W. W. Kimball Esq.. 142 Lake Street in this city; and as we know that those who have occasion to purchase instruments of this kind always want the best, we take pleasure in telling them where they can find the best. The assortment of Mr. Kimball embraces a large variety and is supplied by leading manufacturers in Boston and New York, such as J. & C. Fischer, Hallett, Davis & Co. G. A. Miller & Co., Kurtzman & Hinze, and many others. We were particularly pleased with the soft and sweet tones of the Fischer Piano which for family use is unsurpassed, We have heard excellent judges pronouncing high encomiums upon it; the whole tructure of the instrument being eminently such as a first class Piano requires.

Mr. Kimball is one of the oldest Musical Dealers in the West, and his great experience gives him an advantage which purchasers will do well to avail themselves of. He guarantees his instruments, and we do not hesitate to ask for him the confidence of any who may wish to procure one of the best kind. His stock is so ample and rich that it is scarcely possible to fail of being suited.

One can find the Fischer Piano, with its deep, mellow, sweet tone, or the Hallett, Davis and Co. Piano with its brilliant tone, or any other make which may be desired. Mr. Kimball's location is an excellent one, being on the first floor, and in the center of the finest and most fashionable retail business of the city. We invite our country as well as city friends to call upon him at 142 Lake St. and verify our recomendation —Christian Times, Chicago.

The municipal election at Memphis took place a few days since, resulting in the election of Mr. Park, a secessionist, for Mayor. General Washburne, commanding at the post, immediately suspended the functions of the civil government and named the city officers who will continue in office until their appointments are revoked by the Commanding General. Gen. Washburne is not a man to be tampered with, and will not have rebel city government where he commands.

Bidwell to Michael Schweitzer, by assignment dated on that day, which said assignment has been recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Blue Earth county, Minnesota. The amount claimed to be due on said mortgage at the date of this notice is three hundred and sixty-four 65-100th dollars. Said mortgage was executed upon real estate, therein described as follows, to wit: "The south-east quarter of section numbered thirty-two, (32) in township one hundred and five (105), north of range twenty eight (28) west, containing one hundred and sixty acres, by government survey. Sec 7. And be it further enacted That the United States mail shall be transported over said road, under the direction of the Post Office Department, at such price as Congress may by law direct. Provided, That until such price is fixed by law the Postmaster General shall have the power to determine the same.

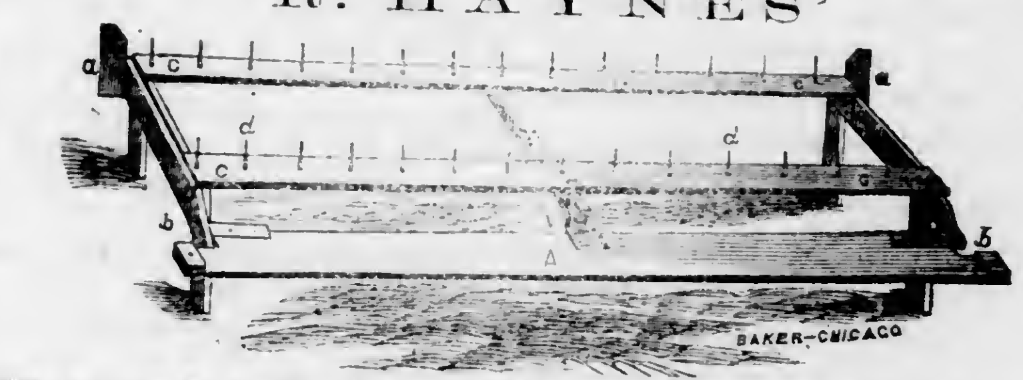
R. HAYNES'



Portable Brace Fence!
PATENTED APRIL 7, 1863.

WE claim for this Fence greater strength and durability with less expense than any ordinary farm fence. No farmer who studies economy and convenience in the management of his farm will be without it. The First Premium was awarded to Mr. Haynes' Portable Fence, at the late State Fairs in Ohio and Michigan, and at several County Fairs. Read the following extract:

"Among the many things we saw on exhibition at the State Fair was Haynes' Portable Brace Fence This fence seems to be a great improvement over most Fences of the kind It is very strong, and is so braced that wind can have no more effect upon it, if as much, as upon a common rail fence. It is light, yet heavy enough for all farm purposes. Its cost is but little, and much labor is saved by using this fence, as it is easily put up, and in after years easily repaired. Every farmer ought to see this remarkable fence. We hope Mr. Haynes will be induced to exhibit it at our County Fair.—Medina (Ohio) Gazette.

Mr. H. has also invented a mould or bench upon which this fence is made. By using this bench any farmer can make the fence at a rapid rate. Full directions for making the bench and the fence upon it accompany each deed. For farm or township rights address

CELEBRATED
STOMACH BITTERS.

A pure and powerful tonic, corrective and alterative of wonderful efficacy in disease of the Stomach, Liver and bowels, Cures, Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Headache, General Debility, Nervousness, Depression of Spirits, Constipation Colic, Intermittent Fevers, Cramps and Spasms, and all Complaints of either Sex arising from Boodily Weakness whether inherent in the system or produced by special causes. Nothing that is not wholesome genial and restorative in its nature enters into the composition of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. This popular preparations contains no mineral of any kind, no deadly botanical element; no fiery excitant; but it is a combination of the extracts of rare balsamic herbs and plants with the purest and mildest of all diffusible stimulants. It is well to be forearmed against disease, and, so far as the human system can be protected by human means against maladies engendered by an unwholesome atmosphere, impure water and other external causes, Hostetters Bitters may be relied on as a safeguard. In districts infested with Fever and Ague, it has been found infallible as a preventive and irresistible as a remedy and thousands who resort to it under apprehensions of an attack, escape the scourge, and thousands who neglect to avail themselves of its protective qualities in advance are cured by a very brief course of this marvelous medicine. Fever and Ague patients, after being plied with quinine for months in vain until fairly saturated with that dangerous alkaloid, are not unfrequently restored to health within a few days by the use of Hostetter's Bitters. The weak stomach is rapidly invigorated and the appetite restored by this agreeable Tonic and hence it works wonders in cases of Dyspepsia and in less confirmed forms of indigestion. Acting as a gentle and painless apperent, as well as upon the liver, it also invariably relieves the Constipation superinduced by irregular action of the digestive and secretive organs: Persons of feeble habit, liable to Nervous attacks, Lowness of spirits and fits of Languor, find prompt and permanent relief from the Bitters. The testimony on this point is most conclusive, and from both sexes. The agony of billions colic, is immediately assuaged by a single dose of the stimulant, and by occasionally restoring to it, the return of the complaint may be prevented. As a general tonic, Hostetter's Bitters produce effects which must be experienced or witnessed before they can be fully appreciated. In cases of constitutional Weakness, Premature Decay, and debility and decrepitude arising from old age, it exercises the electric influence. In the convalescent stages of all diseases it operates as a delightful invigorant. When the powers of nature are relaxed, it operates to re-inforce and re-establish them. Last but not least. It is the only safe stimulant, being manufactured from sound and innocuous materials, and entirely free from the acid elements, present more or less in all the ordinary tonics and stomachics of the day. No family medicine has been so universally, and it may be truly added, deservedly popular with the intelligent portion of the community, as Hostetter's Bitters. Prepared by Hostetter and Smith, Pittsburgh, Pa. Sold by all Druggists, Grocers and Storekeepers everywhere.

"AMONG THE MISSING."

BY THAYER CHRISTIE.

Among the missing! was there ever
One who felt the meaning drear,
Of those simple words, till uttered,
With the name of one held dear?

O, my God, what bitter anguish,
They have brought to many hearts,
Since our glorious flag was lowered,
On proud Sumpter's torn ramparts!

Passing, like the desert simoon,
Over many happy homes,
Blasting all the bright and joyous
Hopes and dreams, of years to come.

Bringing thoughts of wounded brothers,
Lying on the field alone,
With no comrade's eye to pity,
And only God to hear their moan.

O, it seems a long, long waiting,
Since that noble little band,
Fought so bravely at Fort Sumpter,
For our loved and cherished land.

Darkly then the war clouds hovered,
Like the pall of coming night,
But darker since, for untold numbers,
Ne'er shall see the morning light.

Yet, above the din of battle,
And the groans of dying men,
Comes a voice which seems to whisper
God is just. He will avenge.

The Country Schoolmaam.

BY ANNA

I am a country schoolmaam, but I didn't mean to be. Such a thing never entered into my calculations, and so I will hasten on and tell my readers how and why I attained the position I now occupy.

When I had scarcely entered my sixteenth year I was one day called upon by the Director of the School District in which I lived, who invited me to take charge of the school. Being a modest young woman, I was very much embarrassed by the honor thus conferred, which honor may not seem quite so apparent to unsophistocated city people who do not know the august character of the personage who called upon me.

I hesitated whether or not to accept the offer, but being urged to do so, and having heard much of the dignity of the teachers vocation, much of the great reward bundled up in the folds of such an elevated position, I determined to teach for one term just to see how I would like it. It was with some difficulty, however, that we concluded the bargain. Being somewhat of a mercenary disposition I insisted on having ten dollars a month, but finally, finding that my employer's brain was really not capable of taking in such an exorbitant demand, we compromised the matter at eight dollars, with the additional stipulation of thirty three cents. Being such a young miss I had but a vague idea of what I had undertaken. Therefore the next Monday morning, thinking only of eight dollars, and the dignity of the position which I was about to occupy, I set out in high spirits for my schoolhouse, an edifice which I am sure many of my readers have never seen. It was a log building, eighteen feet square, and bore marks of an intimate acquaintance with several years of Minnesota storms, the door having been broken down in a quarrel at the last election had never been replaced, several panes of glass were wanting in the windows, and there was only one whole bench in the room, and that was scarcely capable of seating half a dozen children The floor was covered with dust and cinders, to the thickness of an inch, for it hadn't been even so much as swept since the winter term was out. I confess frankly I was at loss to know what to do in such a situation, but as I had no one of whom to ask assistance, or even advice, I was obliged to fall back upon my own resources. I swept the floor, put things to rights, and by laying blocks of wood on the floor, and placings boards across them, contrived to make several good benches. So, all things being prepared, I sat down until my pupils assembled.

Were they the pretty, neatly dressed little boys and girls who attend school in some of your towns and cities? No, indeed, quite the contrary. The garments, in which the boys were arrayed were a sort of cross between a countryman's coat and a city boy's jacket, and was in a sort of transitory state from shabiness to rags, blue drilling, and so dextrously put together that no part of it should come in contact with the wearer. Freckles, patched dresses, and red and yellow hair seemed to be the predominant features of the girls, My collection of bare feet would enable me to perfect myself in that branch of anatomy, as they were of all sizes, shapes, and states of purification. No one to this day can say the word 'toe' in my presence without causing me to become suddenly nervous, attendant upon the reccollection of the divers turnings, twistings, lapings and spreadings of that little irregular row of phalanxes. If it were not for the dignity of the position, the eight dollars and the unseen reward, I think I should have given up the task in despair. However, as it was, I commenced operations with a considerable degree of vigor. My best scholars only read in the third reader, and spelled poorer still. Some wished to study arithmetic, but grammar and geography were considered as mere offshoots of an English education for those who could afford to waste time.

I was anxious of course to witness some of the fruits of my first days labor. Accordingly I expended a good deal of time upon one little blockhead, to whom I was endeavoring to teach the letter A. Being of a hopeful turn of mind I entertained no doubt of a successful result, when, imagine my consternation, on calling him up as a sort of triumphant show at the close of the school, and placing the letter before him, to hear him drawl out in the most innocent and unconcerned manner imaginable, "Why, it looks like a picture of dad's old harrar out in the yard."

Nothwithstanding my efforts, I did not succeed in making anybody's voice fall at a period, and the school closed with unshaken faith in the rising inflection. I became aware before three weeks had passed over my head that there were various charges against me. I didn't "spell 'em long enough," and I "read 'em too much." I commenced school too late in the morning, and "didn't keep late enough at night." "I hadn't any business to teach on Saturdays, cause they wanted their children to stay at home to have their clothes washed." and the universal opinion seemed to be that I had better retire from public notice for the rest of my days. Suffice to say that long before the end of the term I was the most unpopular person in the vicinity. "Proud," and "stuck up," were the epithets commonly used to express the public opinion, and after I had taught two months, the people insisted on my dismissing the school for one month, or during harvest, because they could not send their children so regular then as at other times. Fearing the result if I attempted to oppose the wishes of such a powerful community, I resolved to sacrifice my own comfort and convenience for the sake of obliging the people. By the time the four weeks had expired the Indian war was raging, and prevented my school ever being recommenced; and although my wages for three months only amounted to twenty-five dollars, my employers thought it such an exorbitant amount that they utterly refused to pay me according to agreement.

I finally resolved never to teach again, and spent the winter in other employment. But no sooner had spring again returned, than I received several invitations to teach in the surrounding districts, and being assured by my friends that I would meet with better success the second time, I was induced to try, and did succeed very well. To be sure, I had some trials to endure, but who has not? I did not hear any of the petty slanders and fault-findings which had so ruffled my temper the summer before.

Elated with my success I was easily prevailed upon to teach in another district the following winter, and I must say that I have met with better success here than ever before. I don't remember having my feelings pained but once, and then by a German woman, who declared I did not teach her children the right way, her only proof being that I taught them to say t-h-e the, instead of t-h-e de.

Circumstances conspire to render it probable that I shall lead a single life consequently I shall always be a district schoolmaam. I feel constrained, in view of my experience to warn all young ladies who come within the scope of my influence, before they make up their minds to enter the list with me, to carefully weigh the cost, and if they think they are capable of enduring all the crosses and trials that fall to the lot of people in general, and teachers in particular, then go and do likewise.

EDITH MERTON'S OFFERING.

BY THAYER CHRISTIE.

Under the old elm, where the golden rays of the setting sun passed their full flood of radiance over her fair young face, watched Edith Merton, "the last of her race," and the orphan heiress of Merton hall, Very beautiful she looked in her morning dress, as she stood waiting to bid Harvey Winter's "good bye." He had enlisted, and was going away with Capt. Hargrave's Co. on the evening train, taking with him the blessings, of his widowed mother and only sister, and of the orphan girl, whom in the bereavement, which had robbed her first of a tender mother and then in quick succession of a father and an only brother, he had learned to love better than life itself, and to whom had it not been for the knowledge of his love and the tender watchful friendship of his mother, and sister, the world would have looked very dark just then. He was all she had left to love, to her he filled the place of father, brother, lover, all, yet she did not murmur, or try to dissuade him from his purpose as many a frail woman in like circumstances would have done. And when he placed a ruby ring on the first finger of the little hand he held between his own, saying, in a voice tremulous with emotion, "you will think of me as often as you look at this won't you Edith, darling?" There were no tears, in her eyes, only a quiet smile, accompanied with an affirmative answer and a whisper "God bless you Harvey," and he was gone. Just as the last beams of sunlight were fading in the west Edith Merton entered her home little dreaming, that, when autumn leaves should strew the spot where they had parted, the light would go out from her life forever. She only knew that Harvey winters had gone forth, in a noble cause, and strong in the faith that he would return to her, when he had aided in rescuing his country, from the hands of traitors, she rested content.

Weeks passed slowly by bringing with them the news of battles, and still he was unharmed, "until along the wires flashed the tidings," of the engagement at Corinth. Anxiously Edith Merton scanned the list of killed and wounded in the next morning's paper, for she knew that his regiment was there and must have shared in the struggle. The names of the wounded were hurriedly read, and those of the killed almost finished; the dreadful suspense and fear, which, for twelve long hours had been little less then agony, was fading from her heart, and hope again rose buoyant alas! only to be crushed beneath the greatest sorrow her life had ever known, for last on that fatal list stood the name of Harvey Winters. She did not move, or speak, and a low moan of anguish escaped her white lips, but it told more plainly, than words could have done the tale of the broken hearted. A few weeks later, and they closed her "beautiful eyes for their eternal slumber, and laid her down to rest by the side of "her loved ones" in the Oakland Cemetry.

GENTLEMAN, 'My good woman, how much is that goose?'

Market woman. 'Well; you may have two at seven shillen.'

Gentleman. 'But I only want one.'

Market woman. 'Can't help it: ain't a going to sell one without the other. Them ere geese, to my certain knowledge, hev been together for more'n thirteen years, and I ain't a-going to be so unfeelin' as to separate 'em now.'

Many a woman would rather have a tubercle in her lungs than a pimple on her nose.

Female Nurses for the Army.

Mrs. Jane G. Swisshelm is turning her talents and energies to good account in various beneficent missions in behalf of our invalid soldiers. Her last benevolent enterprise is thus explained in a letter to the Surgeon General:

We propose to organize a society, with Mrs. Abraham Lincoln the active, working President; Mrs. F. Seward the Vice-President; Judge Granger of the General Land Office, Treasurer; W. Bourn, Postmaster at Washington, D. C., the Rev. Wm. Channing, H. D. Cook, banker, Washington, and others, trustees; Surgeon Antisell, Medical Director; Surgeon Bliss, Armory-Square Hospital, and others Executive Committee, and managed by eminent surgeons of the Army and ladies whose husbands have a national reputation for honor and patriotism. Our object is to place in our military hospitals a sufficient number of ladies who will give their gratuitous services, aiding surgeons in applying to our sick and wounded soldiers the sanitary stores so liberally supplied by the people, and giving such other attention as surgeons may desire. Will you supply such ladies with transportation, rations, and quarters while on duty?

The Surgeon-General grants as much of this request as the regulations" allow, whereupon Mrs. Swisshelm, as Corresponding Secretary of the Surgeon's Aid Society, makes the following appeal:

Surgeons at the front, or elsewhere, who want the help of "the right kind of women" are requested to address the President of the Society, Mrs. Abraham Lincoln, Executive Mansion Washington, stating how many ladies they need as distributors, cooks or nurses, by special appointment of the Surgeon General. Their communications must be marked plainly on the envelope, 'Surgeon's Business," that they may secure prompt attention. Mrs. Lincoln, in visiting hospitals, will also receive personal applications for aid

Those wishing to send contributions to fit up or sustain the home, will please to direct them to Mr. Bowen, Postmaster, Washington, D. C., Chairman of the Board of Trustees.

Ladies willing to go to our suffering men, as the love of God and their mothers go—'without money and without price'—will address the Hon. Mrs. Secretary Harrington, Rec. Sec., or Mrs. Jane G. Swisshelm, Cor. Sec., Washington, D. C.

Such applications must be accompanied by recommendations from the Sanitary or Christian Commission, State Relief Society of their State, wife of Union Member of Congress, or Ladies' Soldiers' Aid Societies.

Especial attention will be given to the certificates from the officers of the Women's Branch of the Sanitary Commission in Philadelphia, or any similar organization. Female surgeons will not be accepted.

It is simply women of plain good sense, willing to obey physicians as in private practice, who are needed, and no social position is too high, no intellectual culture too broad, no refinement too pure, for the work of wiping the death damp from the brows of men who are dying that Liberty may live. Our country has given the bravest and noblest of her sons to this war for Republican Government. Will she not now offer the most cherished of her daughters?

An application deemed worthy of consideration will be referred to the Executive Committee, of whom Surgeon Antisell is Chairman, and only on their recommendation will the Surgeon-General be asked to furnish transportation or special appointment.

QUESTIONING AN INDIAN.—A correspondnet says that a suit was recently brought before a magistrate in the city of Randolph; during its progress an Indian was brought forward to testify. His blank, expressionless face, and the general uneasiness of his whole demeanor, gave rise to a serious doubt in the mind of the court as to the admissibillity of his testimony. Accordingly, he was asked what the consequences would be if he should tell a falsehood while under oath. The countenance of the Indian brightened a little, as he replied in a solemn tone: 'Well if I tell a lie guess I be put in jail—great while may be. Bimeby I die, and I ketch it again.'

HELPED HER OUT.—A servant girl, during a steamboat trip, lost a certificate of good character giving her by a former employer. Having showed the certificate to the captain when she got on the boat, she applied to him for a recommendation in lieu of the one she had lost. The captain wrote the following:

'This is to certify that Miss ——— had a good character when she got on my boat at B——, but l[illegible] the way down' [illegible] ost it on A Longitudinal River.

A river that runs east or west crosses no parallel of latitude; consequently, as it flows toward the sea, it does not change its climate, and being in the same climate, the crops that are grown at its mouth are grown also at its source; and from one end to the other of it there is no variety of productions—it is all of wheat and corn, or oil, or some other staple. Assorted cargoes, therefore, cannot be made up from the produce which such a river brings down to market. On the other hand, a river that runs north or south, crosses parallels of latitude, changes its climate at every turn, and, as the traveler descends it, he sees new agricultural staples abounding. Such a river bears down to the sea a variety of productions, which one or another of the nations is sure to want, and for which one will send to the market at its mouth or the port whence they are distributed over the world. Its advantages are equally great for trade between the different sections through which it flows, as the staples are un like, and the productions lacking in one part of its course are supplied in another.

These assortments of merchandize afforded by such a river are the life of commerce; they give it energy, activity, and scope. Such a river is the Mississippi, and the Mississippi is the only such river in the world.—Scientific American.

TOUCHY HUSBANDS.—Women have their faults, 'tis true, and very provoking ones they sometimes are; but if we would all learn, men and women, that with certain virtues which we admire are always compiled certain disagreeableness, we might make up our minds more easily to accept the bitter with the sweet. For instance, every husband, we believe, delights in a cleanly, well-ordered house, free from dust, spots, and unseemly stains; the pains-taking machinery necessary to keep it so he wishes never to see, or seeing, too often forgets to praise. If, then, his wife, true to her feminine instincts toward cleanliness, gently reminds him, when he comes home, that he has forgotten to use the door mat before entering the sitting room on a muddy day, let him reflect before he gives her a lordly, impatient, ungracious "pshaw!" how the reverse would suit him, viz: a slatternly, "easy" women, whose apartments are a constant mortification to him in the presence of visitors. It is a poor return, when a wife has made everything fresh and bright, to be unwilling to to take a little pains to keep it so, or to be properly reminded, if forgetful upon these points, upon which many husbands are unreasonably touchy, even while secretly admiring the pleasant results of the vigilance of the good house mother.

WHERE THE LAUGH COMES IN.—Several years ago a countryman came into a lawyer's office in Court Square and said to the lawyer:

'Squire, Nat Streeter shaved me dreadfully yesterday and I want to come up with him.'

'State your case,' said D.

'Waal, I asked him how much he would charge me for a horse to go to Dedham. He said three dollars. I took the horse and went. When I came back, I paid him three dollars, and he said he wanted another three dollars for coming back, and made me pay for it.'

D——— gave him some legal advice, which the client immediately acted upon as follows: He went to Streeter and said;

'How much will you charge me for a horse to go to Salen:

Streeter replied,

'Three dollars.'

'Harness him up.'

Client went to Salem, came back by railroad, and went to Streeter saying:

'Here's your money,' paying him three dollars.

'Where's my horse?' says Streeter.

'He is at Salem.' says the client. 'I only hired him to go to Salem.'

Streeter who was known as a practical joker, acknowledged the grain and paid the penalty.

MARRIED IN HASTE.—A correspondent of the Chicago Tribune gives the following account of a marriage that recently took place in Kenosha, Wisconsin;

Yesterday afternoon a party of young ladies and gentlemen were collected at one of our picture galleries in Kenosha, when the subject of marriage came up as the subject of discussion. Among the gentlemen was a gay young lieutenant, of the 17th Illinois cavalry, and among the ladies was a Miss M. daughter of one of the oldest settlers of our city.

They proposed to get married to see how it would seem. Just then Justice Deming came in. Shoulder straps asked the S[illegible]re if he would marry him [illegible]. He said yes if he could [illegible]nd any one to have him. Miss M. jumped up and said she would have him. The justice instructed them to stand up and take hold of hands. The usual questions were asked and answered, and in five minutes they were man and wife. Then came the serious part of the joke. When the new bride found she was really a bride, her laughter turned to tears. Her lawful husband wished her to go to his hotel with him, but she had fled to her own home. Her parents nearly distracted, appealed to the Justice to undo what he had done; but were informed that the statures of Wisconsin gave him no authority to separate man and wife. Night came on.

The bride was kept at home and the husband forbidden to enter the house. He is determined to have his lawful wife. She and her family are in great distress. Thus matters stand at the present moment.

GET A HOME AND KEEP IT.—A leading object with every young man should be to secure for himself a permanent home. And for its greater stability, it should consist partly in land, and up to a certain limit, the more of it the better, if paid for.

The house should be as comfortable and attractive as one has the means to make it. It should be one that the heart can grow to, and will cling around more and more firmly with every passing year. Its owner should desire and propose to keep possession of it as long as he lives, and his children should grow up feeling that there is one place fixed and stable for them, amid all changes.

Americans are altogether too roving in their habits. We build houses cheaply, and pull them down without regret. Or we sell out and move away a half-dozen times in a life time, in the vain hope of bettering our conditions. How much better to choose a homestead early in life, and then lay plans with reference to abiding there. Even though our gains be less than are promised elsewhere, a certainty should seldom be given up for an uncertainty. 'A bird in the hand is worth two in the bush.'

Only those who have experienced it, know how firmly a family become attached to their long-loved homestead. No children love home so well as those who have known only one. As the young become of marriageable age, they should go out, one by one, from the old homestead, feeling it to be the model after which their own should be established, and knowing that this will remain unchanged as long as the parents live, a place to which they can return, and where they will be ever welcome. A pleasing writer confirms our doctrine thus: 'There is a great gain in being settled down. It is two-fold. Each year accumulates about the farmer the material by which labor is lessened. The rough channels of labor become worn and smooth. A change involves a great loss and rarely is there a corresponding gain. Time is lost, labor expended, money paid out, and wear and tear of removal is no small item; and above all, the breaking up of old associations is often disastrous in the extreme. Parents and children become unsettled in their habits, if not in their morals.

Let the man who has a homestead keep it; let him that has none, get one and labor to render it a treasured remembrance to the absent, and a constant joy to those who abide in it.' To all which every intelligent, thoughtful person must give a hearty approval.

A SINGULAR CASE.—George Sells brother of Hon E. Sells, of Vinton, while standing in his door, several weeks since, was struck by lightning, which seemed to explode over his head: His wife, standing by his side, was also stunned. He stepped into the house and said he was hurt, and spoke no more for ten days, when he recovered again and went into his store and resumed business, but on exerting himself again lost his speech and up to last week could only make known his wants by writing.—Muscatine Journal.

TO PRESERVE MILK.—Milk may be preserved a long time sweet—say several weeks, at least—in the following simple manner: Pour fresh milk into glass bottles, then set the bottles into a kettle of cold water,—placing a board for the bottles to stand on—and gradually bring the water to the boiling point, and then cork and seal tight, as in putting up tomatoes, etc.

MOLASSES COOKIES.—One cup of molasses, one cup of sugar, two thirds cup of butter, two-thirds cup of water, dissolve therein one tablespoonful of saleratus, add ginger and cinnamon, and flour enough to make them roll out nicely.

BUNNS.—Three cups milk, one cup sugar, and flour to make it a sponge; let it rise over night, then add another cup of sugar and one of butter, mould them into small biscuits.

A disgusted client having read that there were eighteen hundred lawyers in New York city, said he could name a place where there were ten times as many.

Union County Convention.

The Union men of Blue Earth County are hereby requested to elect delegates in the several towns to represent them in a County Convention to be held at Mankato on Saturday, July 30th, 1864, at 2 o'clock P. M., for the purpose of electing four delegates to attend the State Convention at St. Paul on the 3rd of August. The ratio of representation will be in accordance with the resolution adopted by the County Convention of last year.

Mankato 9, South Bend 4, Watonwan 4, Judson 3, Sterling 3, Shelby 4, Mapleton, Butternut Valley, Vernon, and Danville 2 each, Le Ray, Jamestown, Lime, Medo, Ceresco and McClellan 1 each.

P. F. ECKSTORM,
Chairman County Committee.

The Call for Five Hundred Thousand.

The President's call for more men is indicative of his determination to close out the war within the year. This last call is for one, two and three years' men. If the quotas are not filled by the 5th of September a draft will be ordered. Under the new enrollment act volunteers for one year receive a bounty of $100; for two years, $200; three years $300. The quota for this county will be about 150. For this sub district including Mankato and Desoto, about fifty five, we are already credited with an excess on former calls of 39, which would leave us but 16 men to raise. We have sent for a list of the quotas of each town in the county, and will publish it as soon as received. There is no exemption from draft except by physical disability, and therefore every citizen is interested in seeing that our quota is filled by enlistments.

Calling of Conventions.

It is about time that the committee in the First Congressional District published the call for the nominating Convention, stating when and where it will be held. The call should have been made simultaneous with that of Second District, and we see no good reason why the committee should delay in the matter.

The calls for conventions in our Judicial, and Legislative districts and for our County nominations should be made at as early a period as possible in order that the entire ticket may be before the people. And again, for this other important reason, Governor Miller has stated that he desires all the Counties in the State to get their nominations made, and tickets printed and sent to the Secretary of State before the 10th of September, so that they can be assorted and properly labeled by the 15th at which time the Commissioners appointed to receive soldiers' votes will start for the army to commence a discharge of their duties.

The call for the Congressional Convention should be made at once.

The Minnesota Branch Sanitary Commission

The Corresponding Secretary of the State Sanitary Commission has issued a circular to the people of the State calling upon them to contribute of their money and products in the noble cause of relieving the necessities of our soldiers in the battle field. Many, who do not now give, would cheerfully aid in swelling these contributions, if they knew their offerings would only reach the soldiers. The object of the Commission is to systematise this work, and render it certain that everything given will find its way to the place where it is intended to go. Senator Porter, of this place, is one of the associate managers, and will see to the shipping of all boxes containing sanitary stores.

The County Convention.

In another column will be found a call for a County Convention to elect delegates to attend the State convention at St. Paul, on Wednesday the 3rd day of August next.

The present is a very busy time with farmers, yet we trust they will not neglect to hold town caucuses, and send down full delegations. The most important business of the State Convention will be to nominate candidates for the supreme Bench, which positions should be filled only by the best legal ability in the State. The County Convention should therefore act wisely in choosing delegates.

Late News Items.

In the Democratic State Convention at Indianapolis an attempt was made to indorse Vallandigham, but it was signally defeated.

State News.

The Anoka Star says that logs to the amount of 4,500,000 feet have come down Rum river to that place, and that the Mississippi is also full of logs.

W. B. Cornell, of Minneapolis has received the appointment of Assistant Paymaster in the Navy.

WE have just received the Dakota Union, a new paper published at Yankton by Messrs. Kingsbury & Armstrong. It has the true Union ring in its columns, and we therefore wish it success.

WE copy the following from the State Atlas, at Minneapolis. Just consider you have our note, DANA, and let it draw interest:—

PERSONAL.—We were much gratified last week, to receive a visit from our friend Slocum, of the Mankato Union. Charley is one of the best of "good fellows," and the Union is one of the best weeklies published in the State. There is no question as to its loyalty, while the ability and zeal with it advocates the interests of that part of the State, should secure it the hearty support of the citizens of the Minnesota Valley. It will be strange indeed, if the Union should lack the support of the people of Blue Earth County.

WHO MADE THE MONEY?—A gentleman went into one of our dry goods stores the other day, and selected a cloak, valued at $15 in payment for which he threw down a twenty dollar gold piece; requesting his change in greenbacks. The merchant handed him the cloak and twenty-five dollars of legal tender, and he departed apparently well satisfied. The question arises who made the most money out of the operation? The purchaser got his cloak and $25 for $20 and the merchant claims to have made 40 per cent. on the trade.—Dem. Press, Fon du Lac, Wis.

WASHINGTON CORRESPONDENCE.

WASHINGTON D. C. July 5 1864.

FRIEND SLOCUM:—As I have an hour or two at my disposal while many of the folks of this "village" are cozily snoozing away the morning hour and nearly all quiet around me save the joyous caroling of canary birds, who, unlike their sleeping prison keepers, are employing the early hour in singing their song of praise to their great Creator, it would perhaps not be amiss to appropriate the time to conversing with a friend far away. Methinks I hear you ask how did the people of the National Metropolis observe the anniversary of the nation's birth. In answer, I say very much as they do in other cities and towns. Pick-nicing here as elsewhere, seems to be the popular plan of conducting parties of pleasure and amusement. I often think the name might very properly be reversed, thus, Nick Picking, for it really appears to to me much of the so-called innocent amusement indulged in upon such occasions are the promptings of vitiated taste, if not of palpable moral wrong—hence "old Nick" will be likely to come in for a good share of the picking.

About noon, in company with my son, I started for Finley Hospital where, we had learned, one or two of our Minnesota boys had been received wounded from the front. And here it might be proper for me to say that our excellent Governor Miller, who is ever careful to make provisions for the comfort of our brave soldiers, has appointed him Commissioner or agent for the State to look after our men in and around Washington. On the way to the hospital my blood was made to tingle as, in passing one of those places of resort, of which I think we have too many here—I refer to lager beer saloons, I saw emerging from a very beautiful grove a number of young men filled to overflowing with the favorite beverage. Soon I discovered there was a drunken row on the tapis and while I stood a moment to look on, I heard one of the champions bawl out at the top of his voice, interlarding his expressions with a profusion of epithets indulged in by minds of a low type, that he could lick any northern man that ever came to Washington in two minutes. I tell you I could have stood to see him pummelled first rate without shedding any tears.

Finley hospital is situated at the edge of what is known as Gale's woods, on a hill commanding a view of the City, Alexandria and the Potomac as far as Fort Washington. As we passed through this beautifully shaded spot I saw a company, a temperance pic nic, the young folks of which it was composed, enjoying themselves as their inclinations prompted. A part of the company had erected a rude platform of rough boards upon which the lads and lasses were hopping up and down and assuming so many shapes and forms that I shall not attempt to set forth on paper—and this is what they call "tripping the light fantastic"—as to the "light" part of the business, I thought the performers were about as nimble and graceful as the bird they call the bear. "Fantastic," yes that is the word which, in my opinion defines the whole thing properly. For to see men and women bobbing up and down and cutting all kinds of senseless capers, are indeed playing the "fantastic."

I think many of the people of this city were really glad to be permitted to join in celebrating the eighty eighth anniversary of the nations's birth, and were sincerely rejoiced to realize that notwithstanding the machinations of red handed treason and its aiders and abettors, for its destruction, we still have a country whose birth it is our high privilege to commemorate. But while this is so I am sorry to say that I have reason to believe that there are also many here, who, if they dared would have shouted for Jeff Davis and his abominable crew, and who sincerely pray (if such ever do pray) that the rebellion may succeed in its internal work.

Congress adjourned sine die, on on the 4th, at half past twelve P. M. Soon after, and agreeably to public notice, the Copperheads held a meeting in the capitol grounds, when Cox of Ohio and Florence of the Constitutional Union, of this city, and others of the same kidney gave vent to sentiments and harangues of the most bitter denunciatory character found in the foul vocabulary of treason. The real "simon pure" of the small audience seemed to drink in their venom with a perfect gusto, and went even so far as to applaud sentiments laudatory and eulogistic of such men as Vallandigham, Fernando Wood and others of the same school of pot riots! Verily they are an "uneasy squad."

The Representatives of the different sections of the country are rapidly disappearing from this, the scene of their arduous labors and are wending their way to their respective homes, to learn from their several constituents whether they have discharged those duties according to their numerous wants and wishes.

Minnesota has reason to feel proud of her delegation, for, although among the youngest of the States, our Senators and Members in point of ability and influence will compare favorably with our elder sister States.

The first Congressional District has been fortunate indeed in having Senator Wilkinson and Representative Windom to represent it in the councils of the nation. The Blue Earth and Minnesota valleys have, through the vigilance and perseverance of Senator Wilkinson, shared largely in such legislation as is well calculated to benefit the people, and in this good work he always found an efficient co-worker in Wm. Windom. Indeed, I think there is a bright day dawning for Southern Minnesota, and if the people will but pursue a wise course they may certainly calculate upon the better time coming. It seems to me there is nothing wanting but the exercise of sober reason to convince the most casual observer that it would be a most suicidal policy at this particular juncture, to change experience for inexperience, the tried for the untried, to further represent them in the Legislative Halls of our nation. Party predelictions, local jealousies and personal bickerings should not be tolerated for one moment, and the only pre-requisite should be fidelity to the whole Union—opposition to treason in any form, and ability and disposition to initiate and successfully prosecute those measures best calculated to promote the early development of Southern Minnesota.

Attack on the American Consul at Bermuda.

The Bermuda Advocate of the 20th ult. has the following:

A brutal and cowardly attack has been made upon the United States Consul here. The news of it did not reach us sufficiently early to furnish our readers with an account of the transaction last week, though it occured before our last issue. It appears that a gang of fellows, representing themselvesas belonging to the Florida, but, we are well assured, having no sort of authority or recognition from the gentlemanly and excellent men who officer that vessel, presented themselves at the American Consul's on Monday week and, after a few preliminary nonsenses, proceeded to what at home we call pitch upon him. He defended himself as best he might; and fortunate it was for him that our boy called on him at the critical moment, as he was not very far off from being throttled. Our boy summoned the police, who were upon the scene of action in double quick time, and a hard fight they had of it securing the prominent malefactor.

Let us ask whether we are living in the British Empire? It is the boast of Englishmen that the persons of ambassadors, consuls, &c., are sacred, and that British powers protects them; but this is certainly an exceptional case. What was our Lieutenant Governor about? Surely the least that the honor of the British nation demanded was a sentry.

Heavy Fire in New York.

Last Friday, the 15th inst. a lot of wool just arrived from Chili in the Hamburg brig Zear and left on the upper end of the pier to be taken into the warehouse occupied by Jackson & Woodruff, at the foot of Jared Lane, Brooklyn, caught fire from some cause.

The flames spreading with unusual rapidity along the pier, they soon reached the warehouse. This building was one hundred feet long by sixty feet deep, and was filled with inflamable goods of every description, and in a short time the building was in flames.

The pier in front was thickly studded with vessels discharging their goods. Their rigging caught fire, enveloping the vessels in vast sheets of flame.

Meanwhile the saltpetre, of which there was upwards of $240,000 worth in the building, kept on exploding hurling pieces of iron, wood, &c., in all directions, giving the neighborhood of the fire the appearance of a battle field.

So strong was the force of these explosion that a number of fireman standing on the pier were hurled into the water. Windows in atlantic, Court and other streets about a mile off were broken to fragments. The windows in the Ferry house in front of Wall street were shivered into atoms, and the windows all along South street. There was a quantity of nitrate of soda in both, valued at $21,000.

The buildings owned by Woodruff [illegible] at $15,000. Large quantities of [illegible] wool and stores lying outside the building were also badly damaged, also the adjoining lumber yard.

The total loss is estimated at seven hundred thousand dollars.

Two Rebel Steamers Said to be Off Cherbourg.

The Phare de la Manche says: 'We have visited the Federal cruiser Kearsarge, Commander A. Winslow, which, after an action with the Alabama, came into our roads, where she now lies at anchor. This vessel has received a shot in the bow, which has done her but little damage—a second shot in the chain mail. (This mail was only about the engine part of the vessel.) The shot went through the mail and buried itself in the sheathing. A shot entered the rudder, where it lodged; another struck the gunnel, which it went through from one side to the other, as well as the Captain's cabin. Another shot hit near the prow, which has also been cut through. Another shot struck the smoke stack, one of the sides of which it has cut through. Lastly, the stern has been damaged by a discharge of grape. We are assured that two Confederate steamers are cruising off the dike. Will the Kearsarge, which is lying in our roads, be in turn defied by the vessels of the South? If it be so, Cherbourg will be called upon to see the combat of the 19th repeated. Capt. Semmes has sworn war to the bitter end with the commander of the Kearsarge. Will he take on the same spot the revenge that he has promised?'—Paris Moniteur June 25.

THE DANO-GERMAN WAR

Capture of Alsen, Loss of the Danes 3,000.

A Flensburg telegram of the 29th of June gives the following in regard to the capture of the Island of Alsen: The construction of the pontoon bridges to Alsen was commenced at 2 A. M. to-day, whereupon the Prussian and Danish batteries opened fire. Within an hour the construction of the pontoon was completed.

At 4 A. M. the first Prussian soldiers landed on the Island. The Prussians immediately advanced, the Dane retreating, after stubbornly contesting each position.

At 2 P. M., the Prussians had already reached Vallerop and Ulkenol.

Eye witnesses state that Prince Frederick Charles crossed at Sonderburg, while the passage of the main body was effected at Sandberg.

The Prussians loss during the passage was 100 men.

Some street fighting took place in Sonderburg in which the Prussian loss was small.

One thousand Danish prisoners, including many officers, were brought into Flensburg this evening.

The Danish correspondent of the Times writes that he has been assured that Denmark takes the field at the outset of this second campaign with 40,000 men; one fourth of which force consists of new levies, which have been hastily drilled within the last month or two.

Two large Danish ships of war had been severely handled by the Prussian batteries at Apenrade.

Within five minutes one of them received ten shots in her broadside, while the other lost her foremast.

The coast was kept in a constant state of alarm by Danish gunboats.

Decisions of Provost Marshal General [illegible] Regarding Changes of Enrollment.

[illegible] July 1, 1864.

[illegible]

CAPTAIN—As many inquiries are made with reference to change of residence and liability to the draft, I deem it proper to invite your attention to the following [illegible] rules, for your government and action in such cases:

1. Every man owing military service should expect to be enrolled and to be liable to draft in some place. Wherever his place of residence may be at the time of enrollment he may expect to be liable to draft.

Should he subsequently change his residence and wish thereby to change his liability to service, he may report himself promptly to the Board of Enrollment of the district into which he moves and claims bona fide residence, and [illegible] satisfactory evidence to said Board of Enrollment that he has made such change in good faith. The Board of Enrollment will then enter his name upon the roll of said district, and furnish him a certificate thereof, and serve one notification on the other Board of Enrollment concerned.

2. It should be fully understood that if a man changes his residence and neglects to report himself, as above expressed, in order to be properly placed upon record, he will be liable to draft in the town or sub-district only where he was first enrolled. This right of change of enrollment and liability to draft is applicable to any bona fide change of residence either from another State to this, or from one town to another within the State.

3. It must be remembered that he who desires such change of enrollment should do it at the first possible date. Should such action be delayed until after the Board has formed and reported the proper draft quotas, the application could not be received, because a man anxious to escape from his liability to duty, could, upon learning the quotas and credits of different towns, change his residence at will into some sub-district which may have furnished so largely in excess on former calls as to render such sub-district free from draft and thus avoid all liability to service.

I am, Captain, very respectfully, your obedient servant, JOHN T. AVERILL,

The City and County.

Official Paper of the County.

FARMERS are now busy cutting hay and getting ready to cut their grain.

MR. FLETCHER has the foundation walls for his building completed, and the frame work ready to raise.

RANDALL is selling goods at less than New York prices. Call and get a new suit.

MEAGHER has three reapers yet unsold. Call and secure one farmers, before they are all gone.

Wickersham & Kilgore will receive a lot of fresh drugs and medicines in a few days.

THE Faribault County Fair will be held at Winnebago City on the 14 and 15th of September.

MR. FREEMAN has some very valuable tracts of land for sale which he advertises in our paper this week.

MEAGHER has been doing a smashing business selling John H. Manny's reapers during the last week. Those machines are very popular.

WHITE & MARKS still offer to the public dry goods at very low rates notwithstanding the high prices in New York.

PROGRESSING.—The new warehouse is progressing finely. It is now nearly enclosed, and in a few weeks will be ready for storing grain.

THANKS.—Miss J. P. will accept our thanks for a basket of delicious red and white currants. May she live a thousand years and do the same annually.

THE Minnesota river is said to be rising at Shakopee, but we fail to see it up this way. All the water has evaporated, and not even baker's yeast could make it rise.

JAYNE'S Panorama of the War exhibited in City Hall to a fair audience Wednesday evening last. It will be in Winnebago this evening, and in Blue Earth City to-morrow evening.

CHANGED HANDS.—The Wilson News has changed hands. H. D. Baldwin is now the proprietor, and James Mowatt, the first publisher of the St. Cloud Visitor is editor and publisher.

SHIPMENT OF GINSENG.—Major Hill shipped to New York, via Hastings, on Wednesday last, thirty-six hundred lbs of dry ginseng root! Other parties here will soon ship large quantities.

ISAAC TWITCHELL, constable of Anoka was recently arrested, tried and fined for failing to execute the dog law. A little correction of the same kind might not be amiss in this vicinity, where dogs are as plenty as greenbacks.

EXCURSIONS.—Several of the Schools in this county propose getting up a pleasure excursion or some kind for the benefit of the scholars. We understand the friends will meet in South Bend to-morrow to talk the matter over.

UNIVERSALIST SERVICES.—We understand that the Rev. Mr. Hathaways, of Shelbyville, will, at the solicitation of his friends, make arrangements to preach in this place from time to time as may be convenient.

A PRIVATE letter from Capt. Dane, of Co. E. to his wife, states that he was lying in the hospital at St. Louis, quite unwell, and that he should come home as soon as he was able to travel. He is expected this week.

FITTED UP.—B. Kohler has fitted up his boot and shoe shop in very handsome style, and now has a salesroom equal in point of convenience and looks to any in town. His increased business will warrant him in making these improvements.

MACHINE SHOP.—The Boegen Bros. are at work putting in a steam engine of twelve horse power in their machine shop on Second street. They have been to considerable expense in preparing for an increase of business in their line.

WM. R. ROBERTS received a letter from his brother Lieut. Roberts, of Co. E. a few days since. He states that the boys were all well. Wesley and George Maxfield were getting along finely, the latter was out of the hospital, and had reported for duty the day he wrote. Lieut. Keyser, Capt. Dane, and all the officers acted nobly in the late battle.

MASONIC.—A stated communication of Mankato Lodge No. 12 F. and A. Masons will be held in their hall to-morrow evening, for the dispatch of business. A full attendance is requested. By order of the W. M.

E. D. B. PORTER,
Secretary.

SAW MILL AT SHELBYVILLE.—Wm. H. Blackmer is building a saw mill on the Blue Earth, near the Nichols farm above Shelbyville. It will be 40 by 60 feet. He has about twenty men at work on it every day. He intends, we understand, to put in a run of stone for milling purposes.

A LANDLORD'S CONVENTION.—We understand the hotel-keepers in this place, and in the towns between here and Blue Earth City and Owatonna, will hold a convention at an early day and agree upon a scale of prices. Notice will be given of the time and place of holding the same.

GOOD.—Capt. Ammi Cutter, of Anoka recently sent twenty dollars to the Methodist Society of this place, to aid them in building a church. The Capt. is a whole-souled man in every sense of the term, and lacks not a whit in generosity. The people of Anoka ought to do well by such of her citizens.

IMPROVE THE SIDEWALKS.—Friend Cannon has been doing a good thing in putting down a new sidewalk in front of his building. There are other places that are sadly out of repair; for instance on Front Street just above Meagher's Store. Its dilapidated appearance is a disgrace to the town, and the lot owners. Fix it up, will you?

WILLIAMS & BRO.—Don't forget to notice the card of Williams & Bros. in another column. They have a good assortment of groceries which were selected with great care. These gentlemen come among us well recommended by business men in Charlotte, Michigan, and we bespeak for them the liberal patronage of the public.

EMIGRATION.—It is cheering indeed, to go on, on the Reservation and observe the improvements going on there. Settlers are pouring in very rapidly, and making claims of some of the best land in Minnesota. Board and log houses dot the prairies in every direction, and cattle, sheep and horses are seen grazing in large numbers. It is but a few months since this Reservation was destitute of a single dwelling house of any kind.

MINNESOTA POETRY.—A gentleman in town informs us that he has received a letter from Governor Miller, in which the Gov. states that a friend of his—probably Mr. Mitchell, of St. Cloud—will soon publish a compilation of Minnesota poetry. We hope the Governor's friend will not forget our Mankato poets, of which we have an astonishingly large number.

A GOOD APPOINTMENT.—We are pleased to hear that Governor Miller has appointed Jeff. Stock, formerly of this place, and now a clerk in the Land department at Washington Commissioner for the State, to look after the interests of our Minnesota soldiers in and around Washington. We regard it as one of the best appointments that could be made, as Mr. Stock has always been very attentive to the wants and wishes of our Minnesota boys.

GILTNER'S IMPROVED FANNING MILL.—Very few of our readers are aware that Messrs. Giltner & Townsend of this place, are manufacturing fanning mills of a superior kind. Those who have used them say they are equal and in some respects, superior to any made. They are preparing for the fall trade, and will soon have a good supply on hand. Our farmers will do well to patronize a home institution especially when the article is cheaper and better than can be purchased elsewhere.

WE understand that an invitation was recently extended by the Ladies' National Covenant, to Mrs. L. W. Barron of Meno, to deliver an address before that Society. Mrs. B. has written to Miss Flower, the Corresponding Secretary, that it will be impossible for her to attend. She spoke very highly of the movement, and urged the members of the Society to persevere in the noble cause in which they have engaged.

We have since learned that H. G. Orton, Esq., of this place, has consented to honor the society with an address. Mr. O. is a gentleman of ability, and we guarantee that his remarks will be creditable to the Society.

NO FAIR.—There is to be no Fair in this County this fall, because there is a lack of interest in the matter at the recent meeting of the Executive Committee, we understand, that the town of Shelby offered to furnish the grounds and build the fence, if it could be held there. Wake up, you agricultural men, and don't let your sister county take the lead in these important matters.

SHOOTING CRANES.—A friend up the Blue Earth sends us the following: "A neighbor of mine, who is something of a wag, and quite unused to seeing ladies dressed in the Bloomer costume, saw one pass along the street the other day. He rushed into the house, much excited, and yelled out: 'Jack! Jack! Give me the double barreled shot gun, quick as you can. Here's the d——dest biggest sand-hill crane out here you ever did see, and I want to shoot it.'"

CAPT. THORNTON has furnished us with the following list of boys in Co. E. that were missing at the time he left Memphis, on the 6th inst.

RELIGIOUS SERVICES IN THE TOWN OF MEDO.—Rev Thomas Day, of Mankato visited the town of Medo last Saturday and Sunday, and held religious service Saturday afternoon in the house of D. C. Weston. On Sunday he preached out doors near the house of Mr. Patterson. After the services he administered the sacrament to thirty five communicants, and received four members by letter—one in full communion, and three on probation. Mr. Day organized a class of nineteen members, under the leadership of Mr. Weston.

We understand that Rev. Mr. Craven will preach at the same place next Sunday and will organize a Society there.

SHOOTING MATCH.—On Tuesday, the 9th of August, a shooting match will come off between a number of our citizens, and we anticipate rare sport. The game is chickens, and the time for hunting from sunrise to sunset, and the party bagging the largest number of chickens is to receive an excellent supper at the expense of the other party,—or the associates of the beaten party, numbering eight. We give below the names of the contestants and associates on each side.

As will be seen from the above we train under Captain Shoemaker, and we are quite positive we shall have a good supper of broiled chickens at the expense of the "heavy dorgs." At any rate, we are not going to eat anything for the next two weeks on the strength of it. Lordy! wouldn't it be a good joke, though, to get beat, and have those "heavy dorgs"—nearly all two hundred pounders,—eating us out of house and home. Jerusha! How the thought pains us! But, no sir-ee! we don't get beat. Bet you two to one, we don't.

And yet, even if our side are the victors, as "little ones" stand a mighty poor show of getting a smell of a chicken, so long as the heavy artillery are against us.

The supper will come off at the Mankato House on the evening of the 10th.

PERSONAL.—J. T. Williams, Esq. arrived in town Thursday of last week. He has been spending the winter in Washington.

E. P. Freeman, Esq., who has been in Connecticut for the past two months, returned home last Friday. His many friends who have business with him will be glad to hear of his return.

Capt. J. J. Thornton, Quartermaster, arrived in town Saturday last. His numerous friends were glad to meet him once more. He has been in feeble health for a long time, and that alone has obliged him to resign his position. He will soon recruit under our invigorating climate.

Rev Henry Reques, of the Wisconsin Conference, called on us a few days since. He is one of the best preachers in the West, and an old acquaintance withal.

F. F. Elmendorf, of the firm of Bass & Elmendorf, of McGregor, Iowa, has been in town for the past few days on business matters. He is a very pleasant business man.

Major Evans, of Garden City, paid us a prolonged visit a day or two since. As he didn't have his uniform on we presume the "technical" part of it is not completed.

We were pleased to meet upon our streets the other day, Capt. J. W. Palmer, of the 65th colored regiment, stationed at Port Hudson. The Captain has a furlough of a few weeks and will visit among his friends.—Captain Durkee and Ira Smith were well when he left.

A. B. Balcombe, U. S. Assistant Assessor for Faribault County is stopping in town. He is also agent for the Madison Insurance Co. of Madison, Wis.

IT is a matter of interest to every one that, in accordance with the new law, receipts for the payment of any sum of money, or for the payment of any debt due, not being for the satisfaction of any mortgage, or judgement, or decree of any court, and a receipt for the delivery of any property, requires the affixture of a two cent stamp.

Our "imp" wished to know "why some damaged type which he was about to dispose of were like the Democratic party?" It being a "poser" was given up, he informed us that it was "because it was a delegate to h—l!"

IT is rumored that the editor of the Blue Earth Advocate has suspended the publication of his paper and gone to speculating in "dried herring."

RELIGIOUS SERVICES.

The Fourth Quarter Conference of the present Conference year, of the M. E Church for Mankato Station, will be held on Saturday, July 23d. Preaching at two o'clock. P. M., by the Rev. J. O. Rich, the Presiding Elder Quarterly Conference will meet directly after the sermon to transact the usual business. It is of consequence that all the members of the Quarterly Conference should be there as it is the last for the year and especial business will have to be brought before them.

Services for the Sabbath will be as follows: Love feast at 9 o'clock A. M. Preaching by the Elder at 10½ o'clock. Directly after the sermon the ordinance of the Lord's Supper will be administered. Sabbath School at 2½ o'clock. P. M. Preaching in the evening at 7½ o'clock by the Elder.

The usual quarterly collection to meet the Presiding Elder's claim will be taken up after the Sabbath morning sermon.

BRANDRETH'S PILLS.—They expel the poisons which threaten life. Every time a sick person is purged by this vegetable remedy, he has less vitiated humors and more life and vigor, as any one can prove by taking a single dose. Persons of spare habits gain flesh and strength while using them. Every time we rest a few days or weeks from the purgation, we make new fluids from our food, which replace the unsound ones that the Pills have caused to be evacuated. Each time we repeat this process, we expel other quantities of impurities, which are again replaced by fluids less and less impure, so that in a short time, by continuing this treatment, we bring the whole mass of fluids or humors to that state of purity which constitutes health, for Brandreth's Pills only take away humors which are unsound. Sold by Wickersham, & Kilgore, Mankato Minn. and by all respectable dealers in medicines. [1-4&.

FINKLE & LYON'S

SEWING MACHINES.

THESE Machines make the lock stitch alike on both sides, and use less than half the thread and silk that the single or double thread loop-stitch Machines do; will Hem, Fell, Gather, Cord, Braid, Bind, &c., and are better adapted than any other Sewing Machine in use to the frequent changes and great variety of sewing required in a family, for they will sew from one to twenty thicknesses of Marseilles without stopping, and make every stitch perfect, or from the finest gauze to the heaviest beaver cloth, or even the stoutest harness leather, without changing the feed, needle or tension, or making any adjustment of Machine whatever!

They are simple in construction, and easily understood; and if any part is broken by accident, it is readily replaced.

SEC. 2. And be it further enacted, That the Executive power and authority in and over said Territory of Montana shall be vested in a Governor, who shall hold his office for four years, and until his successor shall be appointed and qualified unless sooner removed by the President of the United States. The Governor shall reside within said Territory, and shall be commander-in-chief of the militia and superintendent of Indian affairs thereof. He may grant pardons and respites for offenses against the laws of said Territory, and reprieve for offenses against the laws of the United States until the decision of the President of the United States can be made known thereon; he shall commission all officers who shall be appointed to office under the said Territory, and shall take care that the laws be faithfully executed.

SEC. 3. And be it further enacted, That there shall be a Secretary of said Territory, who shall reside therein and hold his office for four years, unless sooner removed by the President of the United States; he shall record and preserve all laws and proceedings of the Legislative Assembly hereinafter constituted, and all the acts and proceedings of the Governor in his executive department, he shall transmit one copy of the laws and journals of the Legislative Assembly within thirty days after the end of each session, and one copy of the executive proceedings and official correspondence and semi-annually, on the first days of January and July in each year, to the President of the United States, and two copies of the laws to the President of the Senate and to the Speaker of the House of Representatives, for the use of Congress. And in case of the death, removal, resignation, or absence of the Governor from the Territory, the Secretary shall be, and he is hereby, authorized and required to execute and perform all the powers and duties of the Governor during such vacancy or absence, until another Governor shall be duly appointed and qualified to fill such vacancy.

SEC. 4. And be it further enacted, That the legislative power and authority of said Territory shall be vested in the Governor and a Legislative Assembly. The Legislative Assembly shall consist of a council and house of representatives. The council shall consist of seven members, having the qualification of voters, as hereinafter prescribed, whose term of service shall continue two years. The house of representatives shall, at its first session, consist of thirteen members, possessing the same qualifications as prescribed for the members of the council, and whose term office shall continue one year. The number of representatives may be increased by the Legislative Assembly, from time to time, to twenty-six, in proportion to the increase of qualified voters; and the council, in like manner, thirteen. An apportionment shall be made, as nearly as practicable, among the several counties or districts for the election of the council and representatives, giving to each section of the Territory representation in the ratio of its qualified voters as nearly as may be. And the members of the council and of the house of representatives shall reside in, and be inhabitants of the district or county or counties for which they may be elected respectively. Previous to the first election the Governor shall cause a census or enumeration of the inhabitants and qualified voters of the several counties and districts of the Territory to be taken by such persons and in such mode as the Governor shall designate and appoint, and the person so appointed shall receive a reasonable compensation therefor. And the first election shall be held at such time and places, and be conducted in such manner, both as to the persons who shall superintend such election and the returns thereof, as the Governor shall appoint and direct; and he shall at the same time declare the number of members of the council and house of representatives to which each of the counties or districts shall be entitled under this act. The persons having the highest number of legal votes in each of said council districts, respectively, for members of the council, shall be declared by the Governor to be duly elected to the council; and the persons having the highest number of legal votes for the house of representatives in each of said representative districts, respectively, shall be declared by the Governor to be duly elected members of said house: Provided, That in case two or more persons voted for shall have an equal number of votes, and in case a vacancy shall otherwise occur in either branch of the Legislative Assembly, the Governor shall order a new election. And the persons thus elected to the Legislative Assembly shall meet at such place and on such day as the Governor shall appoint; but thereafter the time place and manner of holding and conducting all elections by the people, and the apportioning the representation in the several counties or districts to the council and house of representatives, according to the number of qualified voters shall be prescribed by law, as well as the day of the commencement of the regular sessions of the Legislative Assembly: Provided, That no session in any one year shall exceed the term of forty days, except the first session, which may continue sixty days.

SEC. 5. And be it further enacted, That all citizens of the United States, and those who have declared their intentions to become such, and who are otherwise described and qualified under the fifth section of the act of Congress providing for a temporary government for the Territory of Idaho, approved March third, eighteen hundred and sixty-three, shall be entitled to vote at said first election, and shall be eligible to any office within the said Territory, but the qualifications of voters, and of holding office, at all subsequent elections, shall be such as shall be prescribed by the Legislative Assembly.

SEC. 6 And be it further enacted, That the legislative power of the Territory shall extend to all rightful subjects of legislation consistent with the Constitution of United States and the provisions of this act; but no law shall be passed interfering with the primary disposal of the soil; no tax shall be imposed upon the property of the United States, nor shall the lands or other property of non residents be taxed higher than the lands or other property of residents. Every bill which shall have passed the council and house of representatives of the said Territory shall, before it becomes a law, be presented to the Governor of the Territory. If he approve, he shall sign it; but if not he shall return it, with his objections, to the house in which it originated, who shall enter the objections at large upon their journal and proceed to reconsider it. If, after such reconsideration, two-thirds of that house shall agree to pass the bill, it shall be sent, together with the objections, to the other house, by which it shall likewise be reconsidered, and, if approved by two-thirds of that house, it shall become a law. But in all such cases the votes of both houses shall be determined by yeas and nays, to be entered on the journal of each house, respectively. If any bill shall not be returned by the Governor within three days (Sunday excepted) after it shall have been presented to him, the same shall be a law, in like manner as if he had signed it, unless the Assembly by adjournment, prevent its return, in which case it shall not be a law: Provided, That whereas slavery is prohibited in said Territory by act of Congress of June nineteenth, eighteen hundred and sixty-two, nothing herein contained shall be construed to authorize or permit its existence therein.

SEC. 7. And be it further enacted, That all township, district and county officers, not herein otherwise provided for shall be appointed or elected, as the case may be, in such manner as shall be provided by the Governor and Legislative Assembly of the Territory of Montana. The Governor shall nominate, and, by and with the advice and consent of the legislative council, appoint all officers not herein otherwise provided for; and in the first instance the Governor alone may appoint all said officers, who shall hold their offices until the end of the first session of the Legislative Assembly, and shall lay off the necessary districts for members of the council and house of representatives, and all other officers.

SEC. 8. And be it further enacted, That no member of the Legislative Assembly shall hold or be appointed to any office which shall have been created, or the salary or emoluments of which shall have been increased while he was a member, during the term for which he was elected, and for one year after the expiration of such term: but this restriction shall not be applicable to members of the first Legislative Assembly. And no person holding a commission or appointment under the United States, except postmasters, shall be a member of the Legislative Assembly, or shall hold any office under the Government of said Territory.

SEC. 9. And be it further enacted, That the judicial power of said Territory shall be vested in a supreme court, district courts, probate courts, and in justices of the peace. The supreme court shall consist of a chief justice and two associate justices, any two of whom shall constitute a quorum, and who shall hold a term at the seat of government of said Territory annually; and they shall hold their offices during the period of four years, and until successors shall be appointed and qualified. The said Territory shall be divided into three judicial districts, and a district court shall be held in each of said districts by one of the justices of the supreme court at such times and places as may be prescribed by law, and the said judges shall, after their appointments, respectively, reside in the districts which shall be assigned them. The jurisdiction of the several courts herein provided for, both appellate and original, and that of the probate courts and of justices of the peace, shall be limited by law: Provided, That justices of the peace shall not have jurisdiction of any matter in controversy when the title of land may be in dispute, or where the debt or sum claimed shall exceed one hundred dollars; and the said supreme and district courts, respectively, shall possess chancery as well as common law jurisdiction. Each district court, or the judge thereof shall appoint its clerk, who shall also be the register in chancery, and shall keep his office at place where the court may be held. Writs of error, bills of exceptions, and appeals, shall be allowed in all cases from the final decisions of said district courts to the supreme court, under such regulations as may be prescribed by law. The supreme court, or the justices thereof, shall appoint its own clerk; and every clerk shall shall hold his office at the pleasure of the court for which he shall have been appointed. Writs of error and appeals from the final decisions of said supreme court shall be allowed, and may be taken to the Supreme Court of the United States, in the same manner and under the same regulations as from the circuit courts of the United States, where the value of the property, or the amount in controversy, to be ascertained by the oath or affirmation of either party, or other competent witnesses, shall exceed one thousand dollars, except that a writ of error or appeal shall be allowed to the Supreme Court of the United States from the decision of the said supreme court created by this act, or of any judge thereof, or of the district courts created by this act, or any judge thereof, upon any writs of habeas corpus involving the question of personal freedom. And each of the said district courts shall have and exercise the same jurisdiction, in all cases arising under the Constitution and laws of the United States, as is vested in the circuit and district courts of the United States; and the first six days of every term of said courts, or so much thereof as shall be necessary, shall be appropriated to the trial of causes arising under the said Constitution and laws; and writs of error and appeal in all such cases shall be made to the supreme court of said Territory the same as in other cases. The said clerks shall receive, in all such cases, the same fees, which the clerks of the district courts of Washington Territory now receive for similar services.

SEC. 10. And be it further enacted, That there shall be appointed an attorney for said Territory, who shall continue in office four years, and until his successor shall be appointed and qualified, unless sooner removed by the President of the United States, and who shall receive the same fees and salary as the attorney of the United States for the present Territory of Washington. There shall also be a marshal for the Territory appointed, who shall hold his office for four years, and until his successor shall be appointed and qualified, unless sooner removed by the President of the United States, and who shall execute all processes issuing from the said courts when exercising the jurisdiction as Circuit and District Courts of the United States. He shall perform the duties, be subject to the same regulations and penalties, and be entitled to the same fees as the marshal of the District Court of the United States for the present Territory of Washington, and shall, in addition, be paid two hundred dollars annually as a compensation for extra services. There shall also be appointed by the President of the United States, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, a surveyor general for said Territory who shall locate his office at such place as the Secretary of the Interior shall from time to time direct, and whose duties, powers, obligations, responsibilities, compensation, and allowances for clerk hire, office rent, fuel, and incidental expenses, shall be the same as those of the surveyor general of New Mexico, under the direction of the Secretary of the Interior, and such instructions as he may from time to time deem it advisable to give.

SEC. 11. And be it further enacted, That the governor, secretary, chief justice, and associate justices, attorney, and marshal shall be appointed by the President of the United States, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate. The governor and secretary to be appointed as aforesaid shall, before they act as such, respectively, take an oath or affirmation before the district judge, or some justice of the peace in the limits of said Territory, duly authorized to administer oaths and affirmations by the laws now in force therein, or before the Chief Justice or some associate justice of the Supreme Court of the United States, to support the Constitution of the United States, and faithfully to discharge the duties of their respective offices; which said oaths, when so taken, shall be certified by the person by whom the same shall have been taken; and such certificates shall be received and recorded by the said Secretary among the executive proceedings; and the chief justice and associate justices, and all civil officers in said Territory, before they act as such, shall take a like oath or affirmation before the said Governor or secretary, or some judge or justice of the peace of the Territory who may be duly commissioned and qualified, or before the Chief Justice or some associate justice of the Supreme Court of the United States, which said oath or affirmation shall be certified and transmitted by the person taking the same to the secretary, to be by him recorded as aforesaid; and afterwards the like oath or affirmation shall be taken, certified, and recorded in such manner and form as may be prescribed by law. And any person who has heretofore been appointed chief justice or associate justice of the Territory of Idaho, who has not yet taken the oath of office, as prescribed by the act organizing said Territory, may take said oath or affirmation before the Chief Justice or some associate justice of the Supreme Court of the United States. The Governor shall receive annual salary of two thousand five hundred dollars; the chief justice and associate justices shall receive an annual salary of two thousand dollars. The said salaries shall be paid quarterly from the dates of the respective appointments at the Treasury of the United States; but no payment shall be made until said officers shall have entered upon the duties of their respective appointments. The members of the Legislative Assembly shall be entitled to receive four dollars each per day during their attendance at the sessions thereof, and four dollars each for every twenty miles' travel in going to and returning from said sessions, estimated according to the nearest usually travelled routes; and additional allowance of four dollars per day shall be paid to the presiding officer of each house for each day he shall so preside. And a chief clerk, one assistant clerk, one engrossing and one enrolling clerk, a sergeant-at arms and doorkeeper may be chosen for each house; and the chief clerk shall receive four dollars per day, and the said other officers three dollars per day during the session of the Legislative Assembly; but no other officers shall be paid by the United States; Provided, That there shall be but one session of the Legislative Assembly annually, unless, on an extraordinary occasion, the Governor shall think proper to call the Legislative Assembly together. There shall be appropriated annually the usual sum, to be expended by the Governor, to defray the contingent expenses of the Territory, including the salary of the clerk of the executive department. And there shall also be appropriated annually a sufficient sum, to be expended by the Secretary of the Territory and upon an estimate to be made by the Secretary of the Treasury of the United States, to defray the expenses of the Legislative Assembly, the printing of the laws, and other incidental expenses. And the Governor and secretary of the Territory shall, in the disbursement of all moneys intrusted to them, be governed solely by the instructions of the Secretary of the Treasury of the United States, and shall semi-annually account to said Secretary for the manner in which the aforesaid moneys shall have been expended; and no expenditure shall be made by said legislative Assembly for objects not specially authorized by the acts of Congress making the appropriations, nor beyond the sums thus appropriated for such objects.

SEC. 12. And be it further enacted, That the Legislative Assembly of the Territory of Montana shall hold its first session at such time and place in said Territory as the Governor thereof shall appoint and direct; and at said first session, or as soon as they shall deem expedient, the Governor and Legislative Assembly shall proceed to locate and establish the seat of government for said Territory at such place as they may deem eligible: Provided, That the seat of government fixed by the Governor and Legislative Assembly shall not be at any time changed except by an act of the said Assembly duly passed, and which shall be approved, after due notice, at the first general election thereafter, by a majority of the legal votes cast on that question.

SEC. 13 And be it further enacted, That a delegate to the House of Representatives of the United States, to serve for the term of two years, who shall be a citizen of the United States, may be elected by the voter qualified to elect members of the Legislative Assembly, who shall be entitled to the same rights and privileges as are exercised and enjoyed by the delegates from the several other Territories of the United States to the said House of Representatives; but the delegate first elected shall hold his seat only during the term of the Congress to which he shall be elected. The first election shall be held at such time and places, and be conducted in such manner, as the Governor shall appoint and direct and at all subsequent elections the time and places and manner of holding the elections, shall be prescribed by law. The person having the greatest number of legal votes shall be declared by the Governor to be duly elected, and a certificate thereof shall be given accordingly. That the Constitution and all laws of the United States, which are not locally inapplicable, shall have the same force and effect within the said Territory of Montana as elsewhere within the United States.

SEC. 14. And be it further enacted, That when the lands of the said Territory shall be surveyed under the direction of the Government of the United States, preparatory to bringing the same into market, sections numbered sixteen and thirty six in each township in said Territory shall be and the same are hereby reserved for the purpose of being applied to schools in said Territory and in the States and Territories hereafter to be credited out of the same.

SEC. 15. And be it further enacted, That until otherwise provided by law, the Governor of said Territory, may define the judicial districts of said Territory and assign the Judges who may be appointed for said Territory to the several districts, and also appoint the times and places for holding courts in the several counties or subdivisions in each of said judicial districts, by proclamation to be issued by him: but the Legislative Assembly, at their first or any subsequent session, may organize, alter, or modify such judicial districts, and assign the judges, and alter the times and places of holding the courts, as to them shall seem proper and convenient.

SEC 16. And be it further enacted, That all officers to be appointed by the President of the United States, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, for the Territory of Montana, who, by virtue of the provisions of any law now existing, or which may be enacted by Congress, are required to give security for moneys that may be entrusted with them for disbursement, shall give such security at such time and in such manner as the Secretary of the Treasury may prescribe.

SEC. 17. And be it further enacted, That all treaties, laws, and other engagements made by the Government of the United States States with the Indian tribes inhabiting the territory embraced within the provisions of this act, shall be faithfully and rigidly observed, anything contained in this act to the contrary notwithstanding; and that the existing agencies and superintendencies of said Indians be continued, with the same powers and duties which are now prescribed by law, except that the President of the United States may, at his discretion, change the location of the office of said agencies or superintendents.

SEC. 18 And be it further enacted, That until Congress shall otherwise direct all that part of the Territory of Idaho included within the following boundaries to-wit: Commencing at a point formed by the intersection of the thirty-third degree of longitude west from Washington with the forty-first degree of north latitude; thence along said thirty-third degree of longitude to the crest of the Rocky mountains; thence northward along the crest of the Rocky mountains to its intersection with the forty-fourth degree and thirty minutes of north latitude, thence eastward along said forty-fourth degree thirty minutes north latitude to the thirty-fourth degree of longitude west from Washington; thence northward along said thirty-fourth degree of longitude to its intersection with the forty-fifth degree north latitude; thence eastward along said forty-fifth degree of north latitude to its intersection with the twenty-seventh degree of longitude west from Washington; thence south along said twenty-seventh degree of longitude west from Washington to the forty-first degree north latitude; thence west along said forty-first degree of latitude to the place of beginning shall be and is hereby incorporated temporarily into and made part of the Territory of Dakota.

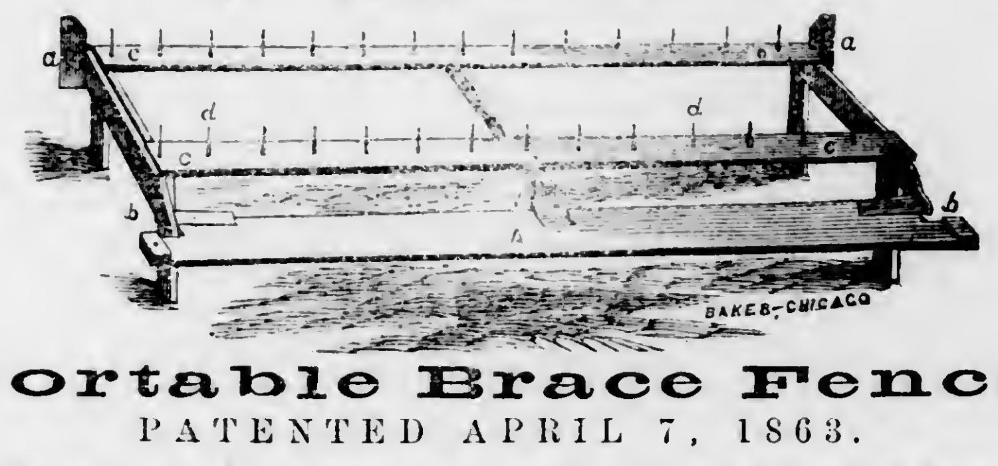
R. HAYNES'



Portable Brace Fence!

PATENTED APRIL 7, 1863.

WE claim for this Fence greater strength and durability with less expense than any ordinary farm fence. No farmer who studies economy and convenience in the management of his farm will be without it. The First Premium was awarded to Mr. Haynes' Portable Fence, at the late State Fairs in Ohio and Michigan, and at several County Fairs. Read the following extract:

"Among the many things we saw on exhibition at the State Fair was Haynes' Portable Brace Fence. This fence seems to be a great improvement over most Fences of the kind. It is very strong, and is so braced that wind can have no more effect upon it, if as much, as upon a common rail fence. It is light, yet heavy enough for all farm purposes. Its cost is but little, and much labor is saved by using this fence, as it is easily put up, and in after years easily repaired. Every farmer ought to see this remarkable fence. We hope Mr. Haynes will be induced to exhibit it at our County Fair.—Medina (Ohio) Gazette.

Mr. H. has also invented a mould or bench upon which this fence is made. By using this bench any farmer can make the fence at a rapid rate. Full directions for making the bench and the fence upon it accompany each deed. For farm or township rights address

CELEBRATED

STOMACH BITTERS.

A pure and powerful tonic, corrective and alterative of wonderful efficacy in disease of the Stomach, Liver and bowels, Cures, Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Headache, General Debility, Nervousness, Depression of Spirits, Constipation Colic, Intermittent Fevers, Cramps and Spasms, and all Complaints of either Sex arising from Bodily Weakness whether inherent in the system or produced by special causes. Nothing that is not wholesome, genial and restorative in its nature enters into the composition of Hostetters Stomach Bitters. This popular preparation contains no mineral of any kind, no deadly botanical element; no fiery excitant; but it is a combination of the extracts of rare balsamic herbs and plants with the purest and mildest of all diffusive stimulants. It is well to be forearmed against disease, and, so far as the human system can be protected by human means against maladies engendered by an unwholesome atmosphere, impure water and other external causes, Hostetters Bitters may be relied on as a safeguard. In districts infested with Fever and Ague, it has been found infallible as a preventive and irresistible as a remedy and thousands who resort to it under apprehensions of an attack, escape the scourge, and thousands who neglect to avail themselves of its protective qualities in advance are cured by a very brief course of this marvelous medicine. Fever and Ague patients, after being plied with quinine for months in vain until fairly saturated with that dangerous alkaloid, are not unfrequently restored to health, within a few days by the use of Hostetter's Bitters. The weak stomach is rapidly invigorated and the appetite restored by this agreeable Tonic and hence it works wonders in cases of Dispepsia and in less confirmed forms of indigestion. Acting as a gentle and painless apperent, as well as upon the liver, it also invariably relieves the Constipation superinduced by irregular action of the digestive and secretive organs. Persons of feeble habit, liable to Nervous attacks, Lowness of spirits and fits of Languor, find prompt and permanent relief from the Bitters. The testimony on this point is most conclusive, and from both sexes. The agony of bilious colic, is immediately assuaged by a single dose of the stimulant, and by occasionally restoring to it, the return of the complaint may be prevented. As a general tonic, Hostetter's Bitters produce effects which must be experienced or witnessed before they can be fully appreciated. In cases of constitutional Weakness, Premature Decay, and debility and decrepitude arising from old age, it exercises the electric influence. In the convalescent stages of all diseases it operates as a delightful invigorant. When the powers of nature are relaxed, it operates to re-inforce and re-establish them. Last but not least, it is the only safe stimulant, being manufactured from sound and innocuous materials, and entirely free from the acid elements, present more or less in all the ordinary tonics and stomachics of the day. No family medicine has been so universally, and it may be truly added, deservedly popular with the intelligent portion of the community, as Hostetter's Bitters. Select Miscellany.

Remarks of Senator Wilkinson in Reply to Garrett Davis, of Kentucky

In the United States Senate, on the 28th of June Senator Davis, of Kentucky made a speech in opposition to the bill to establish a Bureau of Feedmen's Affairs, and a spirited discussion took place between him and Senator Wilkinson, in which he (Davis) came off second best. The following remarks are the closing part of Mr. Wilkinson's reply.

Mr. WILKINSON. Mr. President, if the Senator from Kentucky who has just taken his seat were to go back to the Legislature that elected him, in my humble judgment he would have to wear a label or a card upon his back upon which should be written, "I am Garrett Davis, the Union Senator from Kentucky," in order that those who sent him here might recognize him. When the honorable Senator took his seat here, the first speech that he made was in favor of expelling one Jesse, D Bright, because he had, as I think, treasonably written and acted in support of this rebellion. He next drew up a resolution to expel his own colleague because he had expressed sympathy in favor of the southern rebellion and was not heartily in sympathy with the present Administration, which he was bound to uphold and defend. In the course of the discussion on that resolution the honorable Senator made a very fierce attack on his honorable colleague, I regret to state was responded to in language which went to show that if his colleague was a traitor the honorable Senator who has just taken his seat was a much greater traitor.

But, sir, the Senator from Kentucky did more; he drew up and urged here the most ultra confiscation act that ever was presented to the Senate; and yet, sir, for the last eighteen months he has been traducing and abusing every man who stands on the same platform on which he stood when he entered the Senate. He has been so absorbed with a passion for nullification that he thrusts it upon the Senate whether the occasion be opportune or not, and no one man in the crowded galleries who [illegible] heard the subject announced from the Chair could conceive from his tirade what question was really before the Senate. To-night, again sir, for two hours, the honorable Senator without a moment's interval devoted to any practical topic, has abused the Government of these United States and the constituted authorities. He commenced with a comparison between George III, of England, and the Abraham Lincoln, President of the United States, and between the Cabinet of the President and the ministry of the King. Mr. Presiden, three years ago Judah P. Benjamin, then Senator from Lousiana, now secretary of state in the cabinet of the rebel chief, stood on the other side of this Chamber and drew the same parallel in the [illegible] of the speech with which he closed his senatorial office here to take up arms against the Government which had honored and supported him. But there the parallel ends. Judah P. Benjamin, Robert Toombs, and Jefferson Davis boldly maintained their sentiments; they had the courage to take up arms against the Government, and were willing to abide the issue. The honorable Senator from Kentucky comes into this Chamber this day under the folds and protection of the stars and stripes and utters the same treasonable sentiments, draws the same treasonable parallel, but pursues not the same bold course of responsible daring in treason. He finds it safer garrulously to reiterate forty times uttered speeches, the stable of which is abuse of those in authority and denunciation of those who would serve and preserve the Union.

The honorable Senator is not only the vilifier of his compeer, but he assumes to be the interpreter of the designs of the Deity. This country he oracular proclaims, was made by God Almighty for white men; but he did not find it convenient to explain how the great Creator of world's showed His determination to set this apart as a white man's domain through the red skins with which He peopled this continent. [Laughter.]

The white man came, and the honorable Senator is not satisfied yet; he would amend the immortal Declaration of Independence to read thus: "We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all white men are created equal." [Laughter.] Jefferson falls beneath his censure for the omission of the word "white;" and his exquisite critical acumen discovers defective expression in the commandment and the sacred law. A certain lawyer once approached the Saviour of mankind and asked Him a question, tempting Him, and saying:

"Master, which is the great commandment in the law?

"Jesus said unto him thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind.

"This is the first and great commandment.

"And the second is like unto it, Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself.

"On these two commandments hangs all the law and the prophets.

The honorable Senator from Kentucky perhaps questions the accuracy of the translation or the correctness of the text, for he cannot believe that He who spake as never man spake propounded the law other than.

"Thou shalt love thy white neighbor as thyself

With him all but the white are excluded from human sympathy; but I, Mr. President, am disposed with undoubting faith to take the law and the prophets as I find them. I am disposed to follow them rather than to follow my sympathizing secession friends from Kentucky. Every effort which he has made during this session, with all my private personal regard for him, I am compelled to assert has been to block and retard the wheels of Government. Assuredly he has raised no arm against rebellion he has uttered no war cry against treason, he has not lifted up his voice in defense of the constituted authorities of the country, nor has he given utterance to one single idea calculated to strengthen the power and authority of this Government; not one. All he has done has tended to destruction and ruin, and the long vista of desolation in Kentucky may be traceable in its causes to some extent to the spirit and the influences of the Senator from Kentucky. Every man who joins Morgan in his raid, every sympathizer of that black-hearted robber and traitor, may appeal to that honorable Senator for strength and support and countenance in his work of destruction. Can it be supposed, sir, if the honorable Senator from Kentucky and his colleagues here in the House of Representatives had stood up manfully in support of this Government we should have seen such developments of treason in Kentucky as we have beheld? No, sir.

The honorable Senator has spoken by the hour and by the day against negro troops who are fighting for the suppression of the rebellion, and yet we learn that the Governor from Kentucky was cooped up the other day in Frankfort, and never could have got out if it had not been for the armed negro soldiers of Kentucky who valiantly went from Lexington to Frankfort and by their gallantry and their valor released him from the rebel blockade which surrounded him. It is all well enough for negroes to protect the Governor of Kentucky, it is all very well for them to fight the battles of Kentuckians but they have no interest in this Government and are only fit to be sneered at in every speech which the honorable Senator makes upon this floor!

The Senator has iterated and reiterated a hundred times upon this floor that if we had passed the "Crittenden compromise" we should have had no war. That honorable Senator knows as well as any man knows that at the session of Congress when the Crittenden compromise was introduced to the Senate of the United States there was a majority, a large majority, of Democratic members upon the other side of this Chamber. He knows well that Jefferson Davis could at any time on any single proposition have carried a majority of the Senate; and yet when those men, regardless to their obligations the country, determined upon open rebellion, determined that neither that nor any other proposition should save this Union, lest the Senate Chamber, though they had the control of it, he turns round and charges it upon the minority of this body. Is it fair? Is it manly? Is it statesmanlike? Is it honorable?

Why, Mr. President, the truth is, the honorable Senator is, upon this question at least, wrong at heart. He looks at President Lincoln precisely as Judah P Benjamin looks at him, and he quotes the letters of Lord North just as Judah P. Benjamin quoted them. He has adopted their line of argument, and has exhausted it over and over again.

But, Mr. President, I did not rise to discuss this question; I rose simply to say that if that honorable Senator had adhered to the sentiments which he enunciated when he first came into this Senate, if he had run the race, if he had kept the faith, Kentucky in my humble judgment, would this day have raised up a wall of fire against this rebellion, which would have rolled it back with a power such as you would have seen in no other State. But it has not been so, and there is nobody that regrets it more than I do.

The Escape of Gen. Franklin.

Major-Gen. Franklin arrived safely in Baltimore, on the 14th instant about 3 o'clock as was anticipated from the information received and is now at Barnum's Hotel resting from his fatigue and exposure.

The following is a brief account of his capture and escape: He was seated in a car, at the time of his capture, alongside of a Lieutenant-Colonel, when a rebel Colonel came in the car and addressing himself to the wounded officer said: 'Are you Major-General Franklin?' He replied that he was not, and gave his name and rank. Gen. Franklin was in citizen's dress, but the rebel also put the question to him, and he frankly answered that such was his name and rank.

There was no doubt in the mind of Gen. Franklin, from the rebel interrogation, that he had been pointed out to the rebels by some of the passengers.

The rebel Colonel said, 'General, I am happy to see you.' The General replied, 'I cannot say that I am pleased to see you under the circumstances.'

About ten minutes afterward, Harry Gilmer came into the car and addressing himself to Gen. Franklin, said: 'General you will consider yourself my prisoner.' Gen. Franklin was then put into a carriage and, with other prisoners, driven through the country, stopping a while at Towsontown, and then moved across to Reistertown where they arrived about one o'clock on Tuesday morning and immediately bivouacked for the night.

The General was put into the custody of Capt. Owen and two guards, who were charged with his safe keeping. Expressing himself as sick and weary, he immediately laid down and feigned sleep. Soon after the Captain and his guards laid down, and he listened anxiously for indications of sleep on their part.

He had not to wait long before he heard the guard nearest to him commence to breathe heavily, momentarily increasing in violence and profundity, until it became sufficiently loud to wake any ordinary sleep.

The Captain and the other guard had, in the meantime, also commenced to breathe rather heavy, and the General continued, with his ears open, to feign sleep. He laid in this way for some time, until all three gave unmistakable signs of sleeper.

Fearing that they were playing 'possum,' he got up and walk carelessly around them, moved over to the fence, and still noticed them. He then coughed loudly, and made considerable noise, thinking that they wanted an excuse to shoot at him, as each man was laying with their right hand grasping the muzzles of their rifles.

The indication of profound sleep being so unmistakable on the part of all three of them, he now thought he would test the sincerity of their slumbers by jumping the fence. This he did, and on looking back could see no movements of thes dusky forms of his wards, and off he shot across several fields, jumping the fences, and keeping straight ahead in the direction he thought would take him toward the city.

He ran about three quarters of an hour, when he entered a thick wood and in his weakly state, being really broken down by fatigue, sought a place of concealment.

He remained concealed for the balance of the night and all the next day, frequently seeing from his hiding place the Rebels scouts searching for him, and searching the bushes and the woods.

Finally, about sunset, almost famished for want of food, he ventured out having come to the conclusion that freedom and starvation was nearly as bad as being a prisoner.

He still kept in the woods, however, and soon saw two men moving toward him, carrying large bundles of hay. He walked up to them, and asked what they were doing with hay in the woods, when one of them replied. 'We have hid our horses in the woods to keep them out of the hands of the d——d Rebels, and we are going to feed them.'

This reply was a sufficient indication of their sentiments, and he immediately made known to them the circumstances of his presence in the woods, and who he was. They greeted him most kindly and cordially, dropped their hay, and conducted him by a secluded route to their farm-house, where he was most kindly and hospitable received by the family.

'I never did like the Romans,' said Mrs. Parthington, as she looked upon the spectacle of Caroliands, 'since I mistook some Roman punch for an ice cream and it got into my head; and I came pretty nigh exploding once trying to light one of Isaac's Roman candles, thinking it was wax. I must say that they are a set of fickle minded creatures, taking the gentlemen in the red table-cloth for a counsel, and then going to throw him over the terapin rock

The Care of Teeth.

The decay of the teeth is the result of external agents, corroding and dissolving out the limy portion of their structure. In other words, the decay of teeth is from chemical causes acting from without, and not from any disease form within, as many supposed. With this view what would be the most efficient means of preserving the teeth from decay? Clearly, positive and unqualified cleanliness of the parts, is the rational means to be adopted.

To accomplish this, a thorough and careful use of the tooth-brush and tooth-pick after each meal, or at least once each day, is indispensable. No other agents can be made as efficient. The friction of the brush removes all deleterious matter from under the free edges of the gums, and from the exposed surfaces of the teeth, whilst a tooth-pick (one made from a common goose quill is always the best), can be readily insinuated between the teeth, to remove any particle of food remaining, which if left, will decompose and generate an acid, which unites with the lime of the tooth and breaks down its structure.

'But,' says one, 'I know a person sixty years old who seldom, if ever, brushes his teeth, and yet they are perfectly sound.' Very likly what you say may be true. We have seen similar cases, but whenever they occur they are found in persons who have remarkable firm and well organized teeth, and the secretions of whose months are normal, not only free from destructive agents, but calculated to neutralize what ever acids may be generated by the decomposition of food lodged between and around the teeth.

It is often asked how early an age ought the teeth to be cleansed. You might, with as much propriety, ask the physician now soon the child ought to be cared for in order to secure good health. We answer, as soon as they are exposed to the action of external influeces, which is as soon as they make their appearance. If parents would pay attention to this simple but highly important practice of frequent and thorough cleansing of their children's teeth, and would accustom them to the habit of cleansing them for themselves, as soon as they are old enough, as carefully as they do the habit of keeping their faces and hands clean, much unnecessary suffering would be prevented, and their bills with the dentist would be much smaller.—People's Dential Journal.

An Affecting Scene.

Mr. and Mrs, Bowdish, residents of the State of Michigan, who had two sons, Horace and Coradin, in the Seventh Michigan Regiment, came to this city a day or two ago in search of Horace, who they learned had been wounded in the battle at the Wilderness, and had been brought to this city. Failing to find him in hospital, they yesterday evening visited the Sixth street wharf. A few moments afterward the steamer Jefferson steamed up to the dock, and standing near the bow of the beat was the long looked for son, badly wounded, his right arm having been shot off above the elbow, As soon as the plank was thrown from the boat to the wharf, Mrs. Bowdish sprang on board the steamer, and throwing her arms around her sons neck burst out into a flood of tears, with her head bent upon his shoulder. For a few seconds there was an affecting silence, which the fond mother broke by saying, 'Horace where is your brother Coridan?' Horace, pointing to a rough wooden box by his side, replied, 'There, mother, is Coradin!' The afflicted mother threw herself upon her deceased son's coffin, sobbing aloud in agony of grief, while the father and wounded son stood by with bowed heads. The scene was truly a heart-rending one, and it can be beeter imagined than described. Many of the bystanders were compelled to turn aside, while silent tears could be seen stealing down the cheeks of all.—Washington paper.

Sustain the Treasury.

Whatever scheme Mr. Fessenden selects, it is due to him as well as to the best interests of the nation that he should be promptly and earnestly supported. With a patriotism akin to that which has sent three sons to the war, Mr. Fessenden has accepted the responsibillities of a most arduous office when the state of his health warned him to retire from all public duties. He supposed that his services were required by the country, and he gave them, and this spirit of self-sacrifice should be sustained by the hearty co-operation of every loyal capitalist. But apart from these personal considerations, we need not hardly mention the infinite importance of contributing to the support of the government at this time. The war is drawing to a close, and with a few more sturdy blows must cease: but those blows cannot be [illegible] without the material [illegible] given citizens must [illegible] means. The press [illegible] come forward to express their confidence in the government, to maintain its credit, and enable it to keep the treasury full. If the government fails they fail; their properties deteriorate, their incomes decrease, business stagnates, and society itself becomes a prey to disorder, thievery and arson. There is, however, no unwillingness among our moneyed men to aid the nation, if the nation will only conduct its affairs according to the lights of economical science or the maxims which practical wisdom has demonstrated to be true everywhere and always.—N. Y. Evening Post.

A Heavy Wager.

The San Francisco Alta Californian gives the following account of a strangely constituted wager.

About ten months since, two gentleman of that city agreed to the following conditions:

'If the Federal forces did not capture Richmond within thirty days from that date, he was to give his opponent a single sound eatable apple; if Richmond held out sixty days he was to give him two apples, and doubling the number for each month until Richmond was taken—to the end of time if that event did not occur before. Nine months have passed since the first apple was handed over, and the list of apples delivered at the end of the successive months is as follow: 1, 2, 4, 8, 16, 32, 64, 128, 256,—total 511. Thus far, it is all a good joke, and the loser has paid forfeits regularly, with a good grace, but yesterday it ruined a $10 piece to meet the demand (apples are fifteen to twenty cents per pound, and it took a fifty pound box.) Should Richmond be taken within the present month, he would get back all the apples he has lost and ore more, which, as the price will then be at the very highest notch, would make him more than even; but should it hold out a year longer, and he continue to pay his losses, his last payment would cost him $40,960, and he would be $81,900 out; in three months more he would be out $686,340; and, should the war last from this date as much longer, as it has already lasted since its commencement, no nation on earth could begin to meet the terms of the wager, even allowing it to be reduced to a cash basis, and the payments to be made in greenbacks,'

A Woman's Generosity.

The following interesting anecdote of female generosity is told by Washington Irving in his account of Gen. Greene in North Carolina during the latter part of the War of the Revolution:

"Apprehending the rapid advance of Cornwallis, Gen. Greene hastened to rejoin Morgan, who with his division was pushing forward for the Yadkin. He spurred forward through heavy rain and deep miry roads. It was a dreary ride and a lonely one, for he had detatched his aides-de-camp in different directions to collect the scattered militia.

"At mid-day he allighted, weary and traveled-stained, at the inn at Salisbury, where the army physician, who had charge of the sick and wounded prisoners, received him at the door, and inquired after his well-being.

"Fatigued, hungry, alone and penniless,' was Greene's heavy-hearted reply.

"The landlady, Mrs. Elizabeth Steele, overheard his desponding words.

"While he was seated at the table, she entered the room, closed the door, and drawing from under her apron two bags of money, which she had carefully hoarded in those precarions times.

"Take these,' said the noble hearted woman; you will want them, and I can do without them.'

"This is one of the numberless instances of the devoted patriotism of our women during the Revolution. Their patriotism was apt to be purer and more disinterested than that of the men.

"HERE'S YOUR MULE."—In the battle of Stone river a raw Hoosier recruit in one of Groose's regiments got interested in the fight. It was the first time he had smelled fire, He had been long enough in the army to learn its slang; and he used it zealously. The fellow fought like a tiger. He loaded in a good deal less time than "nine time," and fired whenever he could see a head His whole soul was in it. Every time he leveled and fired, he shouted:

"Here's your mule," snap, bang, "here's your mule!"

About the twentieth round a rebel sharpshooter struck him in the left arm. He looked at the wound with amazement, and with a short spasm, ejaculated:

"They've shot me!"

Then laying down his musket carefully and slipping off his accoutrements, he also laid them down deliberately and ran [illegible] to the rear with frantic energy. It was evident that "here's your mule" had stampeded. The officer who described the affair, said that it was the most ludicrous incident he had ever witnessed on a battle-field "Rosey," laughed at it until tears rolled down his cheeks

Pleasant Paragraphs.

Some time since a man in Maine wanted to exhibit an Egyptian mummy, and went to the Court House for a license. "What is it?" asked the Judge. "An Egyptian mummy, may it please the Court, more than three thousand years old," said the showman. "Three thousand years' old!" exclaimed the Judge, jumping to his feet, "and is the critter alive?"

A celebrated Oxford scholar who professes an indifference to music, was once asked what he thought of an orchestra which had been performing a grand overture? He replied that he only was impressed "by the wonderful coincidence of the fidiers' elbows."

A mother told her little boy to pray that all his old naughty sins might be taken away. He complied, and prayed as follows: "O, Lord, take away all my old sins, and give me some good new ones." His mother didn't see it in that light.

"Do you enjoy going to church' now?" asked a lady caller of Mrs. Partington. "Law me," replied Mrs. P., "Nothing does me so much good as to get up early on Sunday morning fix up and go to church, and hear a real smart minister dispense with the gospel."

A Brow-beating counsel asked a witness how far he had been from a certain place. "Just four yards, two feet and six inches, was the reply. "How came you to be so exact, my friend?" "Because I expected some fool or other would ask me, and so I measured it."

An individual at the races on the Fashion Course, L. 'Why—hic—why, the fact is—hic—a lot of my friends have been betting liquor on the races to-day, and they have got me to hold the stakes.'

A gentleman seventy-five years of age, recently lost his wife. A venerable lady, a neighbor, of nearly four score years, was asked if she had called on her old friend since he had lost his wife, 'Why, no, indeed! she replied, in almost indignant surprise. 'It would not look well for a widow like me to call on him now, as he is a widower.'

A remarkable arrest was recently made in the Tyrol. A man named Gasser had threatened to kill his wife She fled to a neighbor, whose dog was thereupon shot by Gasser. Two gens d' armes were sent to arrest him. These he shot. A person coming up to take away the corpse of the one killed was also shot. This roused the neighborhood and authoritres, who laid regular seige to the culprit in his house. Several of them were also shot and mortally wounded. One hundred balls were fired at his house during the day and night, but Gasser still remained uninjured. The next day two cannon were brought up and discharged, still without results, until a storming party, taking courage from the lull in Gasser's fire, rushed into the house and found their man bleeding and wounded on the floor, entirely exhausted, his veins opened at the wrists, and flowing forth his life-blood. The scene took place at Lanternach.

Charles Gates, a minor son of William K. Gates, of Lee,. Mass. wished to enlist, three years ago, but his parents objected to it. One morning he was sent to drive the cows to pasture, on his way to work, taking his dinner with him. But at night he did not come back, because he had run away and enlisted in the 10th regiment. He remained through the three years without a furlough, and returned with the regiment unharmed by rebel bullets. He arrived in the old pasture at home, one night last week, just at 'cow time,' and leisurely drove up the same old cows, as if he hadn't been away for three years. His 'reception' was a joyful one, none the less so because his coming was a complete surprise.

CURE FOR BLOAT IN CATTLE.—In the December number I noticed a a cure for hoven or bloat in cattle which I think is far better than salatus or tuping, I have used it in several cases of severe bloat, and have known of its being used by others, with perfect success. Take an egg. break a hole in it large enough to empty the contents out, and fill it with far, and put it down the animal's neck, and I will [illegible] warrant that in thirty minutes there will be no bloat.—Michigan Farmer.

Senator Wilkinson and the Sioux Claims.

Below we publish an extract from a letter written by Hon. D. G. Shillock, and published in the New Ulm Post. It re-echoes the sentiment that is felt everywhere in our State where the facts are known, that to our worthy Senator's influence and untiring efforts in behalf of the sufferers by the Sioux outbreak, backed up by the efforts of Representative Windom in the House, they, the sufferers, are chiefly indebted for the successful passage through Congress of the bill for their relief. This letter, coming from one who has been in Washington for months anxiously watching the progress of this bill, is reliable and satisfactory evidence that this matter, as well as all others where Minnesota or any other class of her citizens have had interests involved, has been most faithfully watched over and attended to by Senator Wilkinson. And when our sufferers obtain the money awarded to them by Congress, we hope they will not forget the men, who, in Congress, by their untiring industry were chiefly instrumental in bringing about this cheering result:

WASHINGTON D. C. May 21st 1864,

FRIEND WOLFF:—On the 19th inst., the Committee on Finances of the Senate brought in a report of the House bill, concerning the appropriation of lands for the payment of Sioux Claims, recommending unanimously the passage of said bill. Senator Wilkinson, who has been the most zealous supporter of the bill in the Senate, informs me that in the course of next week, he should call up this bill in the Senate to be finally passed upon. By the time you receive this letter said bill has in all probability become a law.

The success which has so far attended this Sioux Claim matter is due to the energetic activity, the untiring vigilance of our two representatives in Congress, men of which any State might be proud of. I confess openly and freely that were it not for the indefatigable activity of Windom and Wilkinson, both of whom enjoy the confidence and esteem of their fellow members of Congress, we would not have accomplished anything in this matter. It is not proper for me to go into the details of our operations in Washington, I must however, state that Windom and Wilkinson in their actions in the matter were not governed by any but the purest motives of promoting the interest of their constituency.

COL. WILKIN, of the 9th Minnesota, who commanded a brigade in the battle at Tupelo, Miss., was killed. He was a brave officer.

Payment of Sioux Claims.

Our readers will be interested in reading the following letter from Senator Wilkinson to Judge Waite, of this place. It will explain itself, and we give it without further comment:

WASHINGTON, July 18, 1864.

FRANKLIN H. WAITE:

* * * The claimants should be notified at once not to sell their claims at a discount, for they are perfectly good, the money will be paid soon. It is a shame that heartless extortioners should be enabled to rob these poor sufferers of one quarter of the amount awarded them and that too, when the money is certain to be paid in a short time. Let this notice be given and published in all the newspapers at once, so that these parties need not be plundered of what is justly due them.

But you are laboring under a mistake, when you say "We had hoped from the very nature of these claims they would form an exception—as they are to be paid out of the sale of State stocks, we can't see here why they cannot as well be paid soon as at any later period." Now this is an entire mistake. The Sioux Indians never owned any State or other stocks. They were merely entitled to the interest annually upon a certain sum of money which interest was by treaty to be paid them for the period of forty years or thereabouts, and then from that date they were to receive neither principal nor interest as you will see it was a mere annuity which they were entitled to be paid annually. Now, instead of transferring, the interests of these Indians as they were before the war, to the sufferers in Minnesota, we have caused their damages to be adjudicated, and have appropriated more than $1,000,000 directly out of the Treasury to pay these claims. The Government has not been slow in this matter, but on the other hand has been liberal and just. No claim of this nature and extent against the United States was ever so promptly paid. And when you stop to reflect, that the energies of the Government are severely taxed to meet necessary daily expenses of our armies in the field, and that often we are unable for months at a time to pay our brave soldiers, you will not be surprised that these claims have not been sooner paid. Besides this, there are thousands of these claims, all and each of which have to be entered upon the books of the different departments which, of course, must take up much time. I will only state further that I feel it my duty to remain here until the payment of this money is secured, which I trust will not be many weeks, Very truly your friend.

M. S. WILKINSON.

Report of the Northwestern Sanitary Commission for May and June.

A beautifully printed copy of this report, for months of May and June, numbering fifty-two pages, lies on our table. During these months the Commission have received 3,208 packages, or boxes, and shipped 7,036. The excess of the shipments over the receipts is explained by the fact that the Commission have expended $14,254.27 during May and June for hospital supplies, which have been sent to the front. The average value of the boxes of sanitary stores donated to the Commission is estimated at $40, which makes the the value of the 3,208 packages donated them $128,320. The cash receipts for the same time have been $7,085.28.

The report contains a great variety of interesting matter. A very explicit statement of the present needs of the Commission, with definite instructions for the preparation of the desired supplies—an exceedingly interesting chapter from the diary of one of the distributing agents of the Commission, who is with Sherman's army, operating at the front—letters from agents and chaplains, engaged in the work of the Commission in hospitals and on battle-fields—a lucid resume of the legitimate work of the Sanitary and Christian Commissions, by Rev. Dr. Thompson, of New York, former editor of the N. Y. Independent, and present agent of the Christian Commission—a brief history, and a charming "bird's eye view" of the late Iowa Sanitary Fair at Dubuque—and a very satisfactory report of Messrs. McCagg and Blatchford, President and Treasurer of the Northwestern Sanitary Commission, who have made a recent tour of inspection through the field of operations of the U. S. Sanitary Commission in the West—these are some of the readable articles embraced in the report. It ought to have a wide circulation for it contains a great amount of needed information, and will remove any lurking prejudices against the noble and patriotic charity, known as the Sanitary Commission.

The Blue Earth Money Package.

MANKATO, July 27th, 1864.

EDITOR UNION:—Having seen several articles in the Blue Earth City Advocate, in regard to a certain package of money given to me by Ladies' Aid Society of that place, to convey to Mankato, and from there expressed to St. Paul, I deem it proper to make a statement of the facts in the case.

The money, as stated by Rev. Mr. Richardson, and Mr. Constance, was handed to me, when I counted it and gave a receipt for the amount. It was then put in an envelop, and I afterwards handed the package to Mr. Constance, who is my agent, to keep over night. He proposed to seal it, and I told him to do so. The next morning he gave me the package. So much for the Advocate's statement that the package was given to me under seal, and as to its being broken open at Winnebago City that statement also is equally false. When I arrived at Winnebago I was told by some of the ladies of that place that they designed sending their money by me. I inquired how much they had, and when told, I informed them that they were behind Blue Earth City, told them the amount, and offered to help if they would raise enough to make the whole of both packages up to $900. They then went to work, raised the deficiency, and then broke open their package, and put in the sum raised along with the amount already in the envelop, sealed it up and gave it to me. I did not count their money or have it in my hands until I received it under seal.

The editor says he can prove by two respectable ladies that I did open the Blue Earth package and count the money at Winnebago City. Now I call upon him to bring forward his proof. I will give him one hundred dollars in greenbacks when he will produce the affidavits of any two persons who were at that time present at Winnebago City, stating that they saw me open the Blue Earth City or any other package of money, or heard me speak of doing it.

He further says that he knows me to be a "wanton liar." The recent communications in his paper show who has been guilty of lying, and he can either bring forward his evidence, or own that he has lied all the way through.

The cause of his great antipathy towards me is an unsuccessful attempt to whip me, and when that failed he tried to bluff me out of two dollars and eighty cents, at which time he stated that he would give me hell before fall. Hence his windy articles in regard to this money. As far as the charge of my being a liar is concerned, when my reputation for truth and veracity will not compare favorably with his both here and where I have lived before, I will leave for parts unknown.

The License Law

Article twenty-six of the new Revenue law reads as follows:

"Conveyancers shall pay ten dollars for each license. Every person other than one holding a license as a lawyer or claim agent, whose business it is to draw deeds, bonds, mortgages, wills, writs, or other legal papers, or to examine titles to real estate, shall be regarded a conveyancer under this act."

The penalty for non-compliance with the license law is imprisonment not exceeding two years, or a fine not exceeding five hundred dollars, or both. One half of the fine goes to the informer. Persons who have been in the habit of drawing such legal papers will now have to take out a conveyancer's license. In towns whose population is less than 6,000 persons may take out a license for doing the business of a claim agent, real estate agent, or land warrant broker, by paying the highest license fee assessed on either one of the pursuits for which he applies. It is not probable that the above law is violated by an unlicenced man drawing a paper for his friend or neighbor, gratuitously. It only applies to persons who hold themselves out to the public as being ready to do such business, or who actually do it and take pay therefor.

A torpedo boat is constructing at East Haven, (Conn.) She will be bomb proof, covered with iron plates of a greater thickness than those upon the monitors, and provided with powerful machinery.

LOCAL BOUNTIES.

MANKATO, July 27, 1864.

MR. EDITOR:—It is evident to any one who attended the meeting of citizens of this place on Monday evening last, that most had come there willing to go to work and raise our quota but without any settled plan of procedure, by which it could be done I propose the following plan, not because I think it the best that could be devised, but for the purpose of getting others to think of it who are capable of devising a better plan:

1st. Let a town meeting be called in the usual manner by the Clerk to meet as soon as possible, to determine the amount of money to be paid to volunteers as bounties.

2d. Let a liberal bounty be offered—one large enough to get the men. Let this be paid in greenbacks.

3d. To raise this money let orders be drawn on the Treasury drawing a legal rate of interest.

4th. Let a subscription be circulated to ascertain how much of the order can be negotiated. I think but little trouble would be experienced in dispesing of them thus to the public in sufficient quantity.

If every citizen does his duty in taking a small share in a popular loan it will not be felt by any one. It would certainly be preferable to seeing our orders hawked round on the street for fifty or sixty cents on the dollar, and besides, the soldiers would get the money.

They should bear interest because those who do take them will not sacrifice the interest on the money while others who could do it but are wanting in public spirit, do nothing. It would equalize the burden between the public spirited citizen and the citizen who is wanting that virtue.

Yours, &c.

ORDERS have this day been received that no premiums whatever for procuration of recruits will hereafter be paid by the United States.

Neither drafted men nor substitutes furnished either before or after the draft are entitled to bounty from the United States. This does not affect the pending draft.

Colored recruits are entitled to the same bounty as all others.

They will also be received as substitutes for white men, and will be mustered into service in like manner.

The National Intelligencer strongly censures Gov Seymour for his hesitancy in sending on troops under the extraordinary call of the President. It thinks that his proposition to raise the troops by draft was "practically to ignore and defeat the object of the President in making the extraordinary call."

The Intelligencer sharply adds:—

If the Governor was trammelled by the law, it is certain that there is no law which forbids the acceptance of volunteers, and we have reason to believe that the required number of volunteers could have been procured in twenty-four hours, if the Governor had issued an appropriate summons. In a matter involving the safety of the National Capital, it seems impossible to conceive that Gov. Seymour could have allowed any political objection to stand in the way of a cheerful performance of public duty; and yet it will be obvious to all, that the manner in which he had responded to the President's extraordinary call, must subject him to the blame of practically defeating it.

The Inteligencer is a "Conservative of Conservatives;" and its attack upon Gov. Seymour shows very significally how general and deep-seated is suspicion that his heart is not in the war for the Union.

George W. Sturges, Esq., No 64, North Third street, St. Louis, and E. O. Waters, Esq., Superintendent Soldiers' Home, Memphis, Tennessee have been appointed local commissioners in behalf of Minnesota, to attend to the necessities of our sick and wounded soldiers in their respective localities.

TELEGRAPH NEWS.

ANOTHER REBEL RAID.

BALTIMORE, July 26.

The American has the following:—"The city last night was full of exciting rumors of Rebels movements in the Shenandoah valley, with vague accounts of disaster to the force under Averill. Among rumors prevalent were deaths of Generals Kelly and Averill, and Colonel Mulligan.

The facts, so far as ascertained, are that his successful encounter with Early's forces, pursued them to the mountains beyond Winchester, where Early made a stand, and after heavy fighting on Saturday and Sunday—the rebels in the meantime being reinforced—Averill was compelled to fall back to Harper's Ferry, bringing with him the forces at Bunker Hill, causing also the evacuation of Martinsburg. The Rebels pursued. Yesterday P. M. occupied Martinsburg, where they cut the telegraph wires, and commenced the destruction of the track of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad.

Our forces, according to the best advices we could obtain, are now concetrating at Harper's Ferry. It is rumored the rebels are in large force, but this can hardly be possible, beyond the strength of forces under Early and Breckenridge.

The object of the rebels in returning is doubtless to give time for the safety of their trains and plunder, and to secure a portion of the crops of the Shenandoah Valley. It is probably they may again invade Maryland for more plunder.

No authentic accounts have been received to the extent of the disaster to our forces beyond Winchester, and no confirmation of the death of Averill, Kelly and Mulligan.

We learn that orders were sent to remove the army and medical stores from Frederick. Gen. Wallace has convened the Loyal Leaguers.

It is reported that a heavy fight had taken place between Harper's Ferry and Winchester, and that Gen. Hunter was repulsed, also that several pieces of artillery and two brigades had been captured by the rebels.

It is impossible to ascertain the true state of affairs in that region. There is no doubt a serious disaster has occured to the forces under Hunter.

FROM SHERMAN.

CINCINNATI, July 24

The Gazette's correspondent, under date of Atlanta, Ga., July 22d, gives full and interesting details of the movements of Gen. Sherman's army since crossing the Chattahoochie River on the morning of the 18th.

The whole line advanced, McPherson taking position on the extreme left—Scofield the left centre,—Howard the centre—Hooker the right centre, and Palmer the extreme right. On the morning of the 19th our advanced reached Tree Creek stream, running 4 North miles of Atlanta.

After considerable skirmishing, the rebels were dislodged; and portions of Howard's corps crossed—our left in the meantime swinging round to the Atlanta and Augusta Railroad near Decatur, and tearing up several miles of track.

On the evening of the 19th, and morning of the 20th, Howard, Hooker and Palmer crossed with the balance of their corps, forming a line all along the south bank of the Creek. At 3 P. M. the rebels made a desperate and sudden assault on Howard in great force, the attack soon extended to Hooker's corps, the rebels advancing three lines deep. A portion of our lines at first wavered before the terrible onset, but were quickly rallied and stood firm as a rock. Upon this portion of our line was massed over half the rebel army.

Both parties fighting for the first time in the campaign in open field. Before dark the rebels were entirely defeated, having failed to break our lines in any points and retired in disorder, and leaving most of their dead and wounded on the field.

Our loss will reached 2,000, principally from Hooker's corps. The Rebel loss in killed, wounded and missing, exceeds 6,000, including three brigades. On the extreme left, operations were equally successful, McPherson driving the enemy several miles, Blair's division advancing a mile and a half south of the Augusta road.

On the morning of the 21st, the enemy was driven with small loss to the works immediately round Atlanta.

On the 22d they had withdrawn entirely from Hooker's and Palmer's front. At 2 o'clock, P. M., that day portions of our army entered the city.

The correspondent adds 'we may have some fighting for full possession, but the campaign is considered substantially closed.'

The report is believed to be reliable which announces the occupation of Montgomery, Ala., by Gen. Rosseau.

A PROBABLE CASE OF MURDER.—On Friday the 15th inst., a man by the name of Lenartz living in Helena in this county returned home in company with his neighbor, William Gentz about noon. Soon after their arrival Lenartz went to the village of Helena, some three miles distant and upon his return home about five o'clock P. M. informed his neighbors that he found Gentz dead in the house on his return. The indications are that Gentz was killed by choaking, and circumstances point to Lenartz as his murderer. He has his examination, to-day at this place before Judge McDonald.—Shak. Argus.

The Candidate for Congress in the Second District.

The Minneapolis Atlas is out in favor of Col. Aldrich, as its Candidate for Congress from that District.

There are several aspirants to the position among whom are Messrs Donnelly and Washburne. The Atlas says:

In deference to the sentiment of the Republicans of Henepin County, and in vindication of our own judgment, we present to the people of this Congressional District the name of Hon. Cyrus Aldrich, as a candidate for nomination at the Convention to be held at St. Paul on the 2d of August next. A feeling of fixed dissatisfaction prevails in this County, and we believe throughout the District in reference to the two gentlemen whose names are likely to come prominently before the Convention. The reasons for this feeling are multiplied, and we need not be recounted here.

We believe the people of Northern Minnesota can be more ably represented in Congress in the person of Col. Aldrich, than by either Mr. Donnelly or Mr. Washburne, and in this opinion we are sustained by a large circle of intelligent gentleman who have the interests of the State at heart, and who believe that Col. Aldrich has earned their respect and confidence, and is entitled to this nomination at the hands of the people.

In justice to Col. Aldrich, it may be well enough to state, that this movement is spontaneous on the part of his friends, and entirely unsolicited by him. With them rests the responsibility. They propose to "fight it out on this line,' be the issue what it may.

Decisions of Provost Marshal Averill Regarding Change of Enrollment.

ACTING ASS'T PRO.-MAR GEN'S OFFICE,
ST. PAUL, Minn, July 11, 1864.

Capt. H. See, Provost Marshal First District of Minnesota:

CAPTAIN—As many inquiries are made with reference to change of residence and liability to the draft, I deem it proper to invite your attention to the following facts and rules, for your government and action in such cases:

1. Every man owing military service should expect to be enrolled and be liable to draft in some place. Wherever his proper residence may be at the time of enrollment he may expect to be liable to draft.

Should he subsequently change his residence and wish thereby to change his liability to service, he may report himself promptly to the Board of Enrollment of the district into which he moves and claims a bona fide residence, and must produce satisfactory evidence to said Board of Enrollment that he has made such change in good faith. The Board of Enrollment will then enter his name upon the roll of said district, and furnish him a certificate thereof, and serve due notification on the other Board of Enrollment concerned

2. It should be fully understood that if a man changes his residence and neglects to report himself, as above expressed, in order to be properly placed upon record, he will be liable to draft in the town or sub district only where he was first enrolled. This right of change of enrollment and liability to draft is applicable in any bona fide change of residence either from another State to this, or from one town to another within the State.

3. It must be remembered that he who desires such change of enrollment should do it at the first possible date. Should such action be delayed until after the Board has formed and reported the proper draft quotas, the application could not be received, because a man anxious to escape from his liability to duty, could, upon learning the quotas and credits of different towns, change his residence at will into some sub-district which may have furnished so largely in excess on former calls as to render such sub-district free from draft and thus avoid all liability to service.

I am, Captain, very respectfully, your obedient servant,
JOHN T. AVERILL,
Lieut. Col. and A. A. P. M. G.

The City and County.

Official Paper of the County.

TOWN CAUCUS.—The Union electors of the town of Mankato are requested to meet in City Hall this (Friday) evening, at 7 o'clock to elect delegates to attend the County Convention to be held Saturday, the 30th inst.

Per order of the town committee.

JOHN LORIN,
T. T. PIERCE.

July 29, 1864.

MRS. OGLESBY has received another supply of Millinery Goods, to which she invites the attention of her customers.

THE LADIES' AID SOCIETY will meet at the residence of Mrs. Francis T. Waite, to-morrow afternoon. A full attendance is requested.

ARTHUR'S Magazine for August has been received, and contains many articles of interest. This number will interest the ladies.

STRAYED OR STOLEN.—Jenkin Jenkins, of Butternut Valley has lost a valuable horse. See notice in another column.

A TOWN CAUCUS will be held at City Hall this evening to elect delegates to attend the County Convention to-morrow afternoon.

RENOVATING.—J. W. Hoerr, of the American House, is painting his house on the outside, and otherwise improving it. Paint adds to the looks of a house as well as to the looks of a woman.

THE familiar face of Harper for August is on our table, and we find in this number much solid reading of great interest. "The Club man in Africa," and "Military Hospitals in Fortress Monroe," are well written articles that we commend to the careful perusal of every subscriber.

WE are requested to state by the proper Committee, that H. G. Orton, Esq., will deliver an address before the Ladies' National Covenant in City Hall on Friday evening, the 5th of August.

E. P. FREEMAN, Esq., has moved his office from over Lewis & Frisbie's drug store to the building next above, recently occupied by H. G. Thoms, as a barber shop. There will be a different kind of shaving business going on there hereafter.

WANTED.—In a small family a good girl for housework. Such a person can find employment by calling on Mrs. E. P. Freeman, corner of Plumb and Fourth street, Mankato Minn.

THANKS.—Mrs. D. A. Thayer will please accept our thanks for a present of a plate of honey in the comb It is as clear as a crystal, and equal to any we ever tasted. Mr. Thayer has ten or twelve hives and takes great pains with his bees, and the result is that they produce honey of a superior quality.

PERSONAL.—Wesley Maxfield, of Co. G, 9th Regiment, returned home last week. He was in the late battle, where Gen Sturgis was defeated, and was shot in the left hand, the ball carrying away the two middle fingers. He was also struck by a piece of a shell. He was warmly welcomed by his numerous friends.

MANKATO TANNERY.—Joseph A. Church has purchased and fitted up the Tannery in this place, and is prepared for all kinds of business in his line. He pays the highest cash price for hides. We understand that he has on hand a quantity of gelatine which he intends to make into glue. This can be made very cheaply here.

THE LADIES' NATIONAL.—The August number of this monthly posesses many attractive features. Its fashion plates are of the latest patterns, and the "Kiss Waltz," a piece of music which adorns its pages, wi'l please all lovers of music.

GODEY'S LADIES' BOOK for August is on our table. We would not do without this fascinating monthly. It is one of the best published. Its stories are always such as one can read with pleasure and profit, and its engravings and fashion plates suber . The subscription price per annum is only $2.00.

Public Speakers, Military Officers and Singers can use "Brown's Bronchial Troches," or Cough and Voice Lozenges, as freely as requisite,—containing nothing that can injure the system. They are invaluable for allaying the hoarseness and irritation incident to vocal exertion, clearing and strengthening the voice.

VISITING THE SCHOOLS.—The County Superintendent has nearly completed the visitation of the schools in the county. He will next turn his attention to school exhibitions, several of which will be held at such places as will best accommodate the districts. Due notice will be given as soon as the harvesting is completed. We have examined the notes taken on his rounds, and we notice that nearly all the school houses are in a bad condition and need to be repaired with new seats, &c. There are fifty-six school districts in the county. The Superintendent visited twenty-nine, while he was absent. He found but one school in Danville. He visited one place where there was no school, and in three houses found twenty-one children old enough to go to school. They are very much in need of a school house. Mr. Wilcox's plan of giving school exhibitions we deem a good one, and we shall have more to say about it in a future issue.

PURE LIQUORS.—We have been favored with a sample of choice "Star of Reserve," at the hands of Messrs. Lewis & Frisbie, and after a fair trial, we agree with Bro. Wise that it has no "bees in the head," and is excellent for "medicinal purposes" or any other man. They have a large stock of Old Bourbon, Clover Leaf, Star of Reserve, and Old Rye on hand which they offer to the public at old prices. Call and get some and you'll find no bricks in your hat after this.

EARLY VEGETABLES.—Wm. L. Wilson has laid us under obligations to him for a basket of green corn, cucumbers, cabbage and beets, of his own raising. To say that they are good would be telling but half the truth, and if we should tell more than half, our readers might think some one had changed their principles. Suffice it to say Wilson is always on hand with early garden sauce, and knows "what's what" when he remembers the printer

TOWN MEETING.—There will be a meeting of the freeholders of this town at Esq. Moreland's office on Saturday, the 6th of August, to vote a tax to pay a bounty of $200, to recruits, and also to pay the expense of correcting the enlistment roll, and procuring a certified copy of the names and number of enlisted men in the town.

We hardly need urge our citizens how to vote on this question. So many are directly interested in its results, that we doubt not all will vote in favor of a tax. We cannot raise bounties without taxation, and unless we pay liberal bounties we shall not be able to secure a single recruit. We have received no further information as to the quota of this sub-district, and rather than indulge in speculation as to what it may be, we prefer to wait until we receive correct information from headquarters.

PIC NIC EXCURSION.—The meeting at South Bend last Saturday to make arrangements about having a pic-nic in which the day schools in the towns are to join, was well attended. It was decided to have the excursion come off on the 7th of September. Schools from Judson, Butternut Valley, South Bend, Garden City, Vernon and Mankato will take part in the exercises. Singing, declamations, and a few remarks from the Superintendent of each school, giving its rise and progress, will be made. There will also be plenty of amusements for the children. We hope the teachers will take hold of this and help to make it successful.

SAW MILL BURNED.—The saw mill of Aaron Hilton, situated on the bank of the river near Loveland's warehouse, was entirely destroyed by fire last Tuesday morning at one o'clock The origin of the fire is unknown, though it is supposed to have caught from a spark that had fallen in the saw dust during the day. The evening previous the fires under the boiler were extinguished at six o'clock, and one of the men was there at 10 o'clock and found everything all right. Most of the lumber was saved, only about $100 worth being burned. There was no insurance on the building or any of the machinery, and the total loss will be $4,000. The mill had been well repaired and was in good running order. The loss falls heavily on Mr. Hilton, and it is also a great loss to the town, as both mills have heretofore been unable to supply the demand. The Hook and Ladder Company was promptly on the ground, and rendered all the assistance possible.

THE melodious tones issuing from the American Organ, manufactured solely by S. D. & H. W. Smith, is duly appreciated by scholars in music. They have from 1 to 12 stops, and contain an orchestra within themselves. For power and tone of expression it is unequalled. This is a favorite instrument, and every day becomes more popular. Finished in Rosewood, Black Walnut and oak, varying in price from $80 to $450.

W. W. Kimball, 142 Lake St. Chicago, Wholesale Depot for the North-west.

Brown's Bronchial Troches, for Coughs, Colds, Pulmonary and Asthmatic Disorders, have proved their efficacy by a test of many years, and have received testimonials from eminent men who have used them.

SANITARY STORES.—Contents of the box sent to the U. S. Christian Commission from the Mankato Ladies' Soldiers' Aid Society, and prepared by the Society since June 16th.

5 new bed ticks, 6 new sheets, 2 old sheets, 6 pairs drawers, 3 new shirts, 11 old shirts, 10 new towels, 11 old towels, 3 new handkerchiefs, 8 old ones, 64 yards of bandages, 34 rolls bandages, 2 pillows, 5 pads, 6 packages muslin, 1 linen coat, 1 pair linen pants, 1 pair woolen pants, 1 pair socks, 1 vest 1 dressing gown, 2 pairs slippers, 3 comfort bags, 4 pounds lint, 1 pkg. dried corn, 4 cans peaches, 4 do. string beans, 1 do. green peas, 1 do. green currants, 2 of pie plant, 1 of strawberries, 7 of gooseberries, 1 of tomatoes, 1 quire letter paper, 1 pkg. envelops, 1 soldier's pocket bible, 11 Repositorys, 10 Family Magazines, 1 Atlantic Monthly.

WAR MEETING.—Again has commenced the same routine of raising volunteers for our army. No sooner had the call been made than our citizens began agitating the question of "What is to be done?" A meeting was called for Monday evening, and there was a very good attendance, J. N. Hall was called to the Chair, and E. D. B. Porter chosen Secretary. There was no plan presented, and after considerable discussion, a resolution wss offered, expressive of the sense of the meeting, that a bounty of $150 be offered for recruits. The amount was increased by amendment to $200.

A committee to request the Town Board to call a town meeting was was appointed, and also a committee to asertain whether the enlistment roll could not be corrected by striking from it the names of those who are exempt from military duty.

ACCIDENT.—S. S. Higgins, Esq., of this place, while on his way from St. Paul, accidently got his leg broken. When near Jordan, as he was descending a hill, the ring in neck-yoke gave way, and the load commenced running on to the horses. Mr. Higgins jumped off from the wagon, and struck on his left leg. The fall broke his leg above the knee. The services of Dr. Wakefield, of Shakopee were procured as soon as possible, and the injury dressed so as to permit of his being brought home. His leg has been carefully dressed, and the bone set since his return. On a previous trip to St. Paul one of his horses kicked him where the break occurred, and probably half the damage was done at that time.

LIEUT. T. E. POTTER, of Garden City, returned from St. Paul on Wednesday evening. He has received a commission for recruiting purposes. The Lieutenant is one of the best men in the county, and those who wish to do service to their country cannot be led by a better officer.

Our LETTER A FAMILY SEWING MACHINE is fast gaining a world-wide reputation. It is beyond doubt the cheapest and best and most beautiful of all Family Sewing Machines yet offered to the public. No other Family Sewing Machine has so many useful appliances for Hemming, binding, Felling, Tucking, Gathering, Guaging, Braiding, Embroidering, Cording and so forth. No other Family Sewing Machine has so much capacity for a great variety of work. It will sew all kinds of cloth, and with all kinds of thread Great and recent improvements make our Family Sewing Machine most reliable, and most durable, and most certain in action at all rates of speed. It makes the interlocked stitch, which is the best stitch known. Any one, even of the most ordinary capacity, can see at a glance, how to use the letter A Family Sewing Machine. Our Family Sewing Machines are finished in chaste and exquisite style.

The Folding Case of the Family Machine is a piece of cunning workmanship of the most useful kind. It protects the machine when not in use, and when about to be operated may be opened as a spacious and substantial table to sustain the work.—While some of the Cases, made out of the choicest woods, are finished in the simplest and chastest manner possible, others are adorned and embellished in the most costly and superb manner.

It is absolutely necessary to see the Family Machine in operation, so as to judge of its great capacity and beauty.

It is fast becoming as popular for family sewing as our Manufacturing machines are for manufacturing purposes.

The Branch Offices are well supplied with silk, twist, thread, needles, oil, &c., of the very best quality.

BRANDRETH'S PILLS.—They expel the poisons which threaten life. Every time a sick person is purged by this vegetable remedy, he has less vitiated humors and more life and vigor, as any one can prove by taking a single dose. Persons of spare habits gain flesh and strength while using them. Every time we rest a few days or weeks from the purgation, we make new fluids from our food, which replace the unsound ones that the Pills have caused to be evacuated. Each time we repeat this process, we expel further quantities of impurities, which are again replaced by fluids less and less impure, so that in a short time, by continuing this treatment, we bring the whole mass of fluids or humors to that state of purity which constitutes health, for Brandreth's Pills only take away humors which are unsound. SEWING MACHINES.

THESE Machines make the lock stitch alike on both sides, and use less than half the thread and silk that the single or double thread loop-stitch Machines do; will Hem, Fell, Gather, Cord, Braid, Bind, &c., and are better adapted than any other Sewing Machine in use to the frequent changes and great variety of sewing required in a family, for they will sew from one to twenty thicknesses of Marseilles without stopping, and make every stitch perfect, or from the finest gauze to the heaviest beaver cloth, or even the stoutest harness leather without changing the feed, needle or tension, or making any adjustment of the machine whatever!!

They are simple in construction, and easily understood; and if any part is broken by accident, it is readily replaced.

These are PECULIAR FACTS, and will go far to determine the choice of any intelligent buyer.

SEC. 7. And be it further enacted, That instead of travelling pay, all drafted persons reporting at the place of rendezvous shall be allowed transportation from their places of residence; and persons discharged at the place of rendezvous shall be allowed transportation to their places of residence.

SEC. 8. And be it further enacted, That all persons in the naval service of the United States who have entered said service during the present rebellion, who have not been credited to the quota of any town, district, ward, or State, by reason of their being in said service and not enrolled prior to February twenty-four, eighteen hundred and sixty-four, shall be enrolled and credited to the quotas of the town, ward, district or State, in which they respectively reside, upon satisfactory proof of their residence made to the Secretary of War.

SEC. 9. And be it further enacted, That, if any person duly drafted shall be absent from home in prosecution of his usual business, the provost marshal of the district shall cause him to be duly notified as soon as may be, and he shall not be deemed a deserter, nor liable as such, until notice has been given to him, and reasonable time allowed for him to return and report to the provost marshal of his district; but such absence shall not otherwise affect his liability under this act.

SEC. 10. And be it further enacted, That nothing contained in this act shall be construed to alter or in any way affect the provisions of the seventeenth section of an act approved February twenty-fourth, eighteen hundred and sixty-four, entitled an act to amend an act entitled "An act for enrolling and calling out the national forces, and for other purposes," approved March third, eighteen hundred and sixty-three.

Portable Brace Fence!

PATENTED APRIL 7, 1863.

WE claim for this Fence greater strength and durability with less expense than any ordinary farm fence. No farmer who studies economy and convenience in the management of his farm will be without it. The First Premium was awarded to Mr. Haynes' Portable Fence, at the late State Fairs in Ohio and Michigan, and at several County Fairs. Read the following extract:

"Among the many things we saw on exhibition at the State Fair was Haynes' Portable Brace Fence. This fence seems to be a great improvement over most Fences of the kind. It is very strong, and is so braced that wind can have no more effect upon it, if as much, as upon a common rail fence. It is light, yet heavy enough for all farm purposes. Its cost is but little, and much labor is saved by using this fence, as it is easily put up, and in after years easily repaired. Every farmer ought to see this remarkable fence. We hope Mr. Haynes will be induced to exhibit it at our County Fair.—Medina (Ohio) Gazette.

Mr. H has also invented a mould or bench upon which this fence is made. [illegible] this bench any farmer can make the fence at a rapid rate. [illegible] by using the bench and the fence upon it accompany each deed [illegible] directions for making [illegible] or farm or township rights address

CELEBRATED

STOMACH BITTERS.

A pure and powerful tonic, corrective and alterative of wonderful efficacy in disease of the Stomach, Liver and bowels, Cures, Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Headache, General Debility, Nervousness, Depression of Spirits, Constipation Colic, Intermittent Fevers, Cramps and Spasms, and all Complaints of either Sex arising from Bodily Weakness whether inherent in the system or produced by special causes. Nothing that is not wholesome genial and restorative in its nature enters into the composition of Hostetters Stomach Bitters. This popular preparation contains no mineral of any kind, no deadly botanical element; no fiery excitant; but it is a combination of the extracts of rare balsamic herbs and plants with the purest and mildest of all diffusive stimulants. It is well to be forearmed against disease, and, so far as the human system can be protected by human means against maladies engendered by an unwholesome atmosphere, impure water and other external causes, Hostetters Bitters may be relied on as a safeguard. In districts infested with Fever and Ague, it has been found infallible as a preventive and irresistible as a remedy and thousands who resort to it under apprehensions of an attack, escape the scourge, and thousands who neglect to avail themselves of its protective qualities in advance are cured by a very brief course of this marvelous medicine. Fever and Ague patients, after being plied with quinine for months [illegible] until fairly saturated with that [illegible] dangerous [illegible] within a few days [illegible] restored [illegible] ters. The [illegible] use of Hostetter's Bitters [illegible] the stomach is rapidly invigorated [illegible] the appetite restored by this agreeable tonic, and hence it works wonders in cases of Dyspepsia and in less confirmed forms of indigestion. Acting as a gentle and painless aperient, as well as upon the liver, it also invariably relieves the Constipation superinduced by irregular action of the digestive and secretive organs. Persons of feeble habit, liable to Nervous attacks, Lowness of spirits and fits of Languor, find prompt and permanent relief from the Bitters. The testimony on this point is most conclusive, and from both sexes. The agony of bilious colic, is immediately assuaged by a single dose of the stimulant, and by occasionally resorting to it, the return of the complaint may be prevented. As a general tonic, Hostetter's Bitters produce effects which must be experienced or witnessed before they can be fully appreciated. In cases of constitutional Weakness, Premature Decay, and debility and decrepitude arising from old age, it exercises the electric influence. In the convalescent stages of all diseases it operates as a delightful invigorant. When the powers of nature are relaxed, it operates to reinforce and re-establish them. Last but not least, it is the only safe stimulant, being manufactured from sound and innocuous materials, and entirely free from the acid elements, present more or less in all the ordinary tonics and stomachics of the day. No family medicine has been so universally, and it may be truly added, deservedly popular with the intelligent portion of the community, as Hostetter's Bitters. Prepared by Hostetter and Smith, Pittsburgh, Pa. Sold by all druggists, Grocers and Storekeepers everywhere. 23

Decisions of Provost Marshal Averill Regarding Change of Enrollment.

ACTING ASS'T PRO.-MAR. GEN.'S OFFICE,
ST. PAUL, Minn., July 11, 1864.

Capt. H. See, Provost-Marshal First District of Minnesota:

CAPTAIN—As many inquiries are made with reference to change of residence and liability to the draft, I deem it proper to invite your attention to the following facts and rules, for your government and action in such cases:

1. Every man owing military service should expect to be enrolled and be liable to draft in some place. Wherever his proper residence may be at the time of enrollment he may expect to be liable to draft.

Should he subsequently change his residence and wish thereby to change his liability to service, he may report himself promptly to the Board of Enrollment of the district into which he moves and claims a bona fide residence, and must produce satisfactory evidence to said Board of Enrollment that he has made such change in good faith. The Board of Enrollment will then enter his name upon the roll of said district, and furnish him a certificate thereof, and serve due notification on the other Board of Enrollment concerned

2. It should be fully understood that if a man changes his residence and neglects to report himself, as a ove expressed, in order to be properly placed upon record, he will be liable to draft in the town or sub district only where he was first enrolled. This right of change of enrollment and liability to draft is applicable in any bona fide change of residence either from another State to this, or from one town to another within the State.

3. It must be remembered that he who desires such change of enrollment should do it at the first possible date. Should such action be delayed until after the Board has formed and reported the proper draft quotas, the application could not be received, because a man anxious to escape from his liability to duty, could, upon learning the quotas and credits of different towns, change his residence at will into some subdistrict which may have furnished so largely in excess on former calls as to render such subdistrict free from draft and thus avoid all liability to service

I am, Captain, very respectfully, your obedient servant,
JOHN F. AVERILL,
2 3w Lieut. Col. and A. A. P. M. G.

Select Miscellany.

The Troublesome Neighbor.

A HINT TO BORROWERS.

Mrs. Brown and Mrs. Adams were near neighbors. If this had been in the city, they might have lived thus for many years without making each other's acquaintance, As, however, the village in which they lived was but a small one, vicinity naturally led to familliar acquaintance, and thus an interchange of neigborly coutesies. It will not do to cultivate exclusiveness in a country village—'to keep one's self to one's self,' as the saying is. Every one makes it a point to know all about every body else, and feels aggrieved if any impediments are thrown in his way. This, however, is something of a digression.

We have only farther to premise that Mrs. Adams had but lately become a resident of the village, where my story is located, and that her acquaintance with Mrs. Brown was therefore of but recent date.

'Bridget,' said Mrs. Adams to her Irish maid of-all work, entering that lady's precincts one morning, 'how much sugar is there left in the bucket?'

'Shure, ma'am, and there isn't more than enough to last to-day.'

Is it possible!' said Mrs. Adams, in surprise; 'and it was only got last week What makes it go off so fast?'

'I'm thinkin', ma'am, it's because Mrs. Brown has sent to borrow it three times.'

'And hasn't she thought of returning it?'

'Well, first and last, she's borrowed about ten pounds, and a few day ago she sent in two pounds of dirty brown sugar, full of sand and sticks, that wasn't fit for any Christian at all to eat.'

'Has she borrowed any thing else lately?'

'I should like to know what she hasn't borrowed. Yesterday she borrowed a bar of soap, and a quart, of milk, half a dozen pounds of flour and a pint of molasses. Every day she sends in her Jane to borrow something or other.

'And doesn't she return other things better than she has done in the case of the sugar?'

'Faith ma'am, and its lucky you may think yourself if she returns any thing at all.'

'If that is the case, Bridget, matter must be looked into a little. When Jane comes to borrow any thing more, just let me know of it before you let it go.'

'I can't understand,' thought Mrs. Adams, as she walked away, "what a woman can be thinking of to depend so constantly on her neighbors. To my mind, it's just as bad to borrow an article without intending to return it, as it is to pick a person's pocket?'

Mrs. Adams had hardly seated herself to her work, when Bridget popped he her head in the door, and said:

'Please ma'am, Jane is here, and she says Mrs. Brown sends her compliments, and would be much obliged for the loan of a castor.'

'Hasn't she got one of her own?'

'Yes, ma'am, but it's got rusty, and she's going to have some company to dinner.'

'Very well; we can do without ours for one day; but you must tell Jane to return it before dinner to-morrow.'

'Yes, ma'am.'

Bridget disappeared, but returned in the space of a minute. 'Jane forgot to ask the loan of a table cloth, and a dozen knives and forks.'

'What can the woman mean?' said Mrs. Adams in astonishment at this new demand, 'Well, you may give them to her, but tell her strictly that they must be returned by to-morrow.'

'It seems to me,' she continued, when Bridget had left the room, 'that Mrs. Brown must be strangely destitute of household conveniences, or she would never be obliged to borrow by the wholesale, as she has done lately.'

'Bridget,' said Mrs. Adams the next evening, 'has Mrs. Brown returned the articles she borrowed yesterday?'

'Faith! not a bit of it! but hark there's Jane knocking at the door this very minute. Perhaps she's bringing them back.'

'Mrs. Brown sends her compliments, said the young lady in question, on being admitted, 'and would be greatly obliged for the loan of a pair of glass lamps. Tommy broke ours to-day, and she hain't got none to burn.'

'Well,' said Mrs. Adams, not over willingly, 'she can have ours for to-night. I suppose of course, she will provide for to-morrow. But you haven't brought in the castor and other arti[illegible] I lent you yesterday.'

'La, no,' said Jane cooly; 'no more I havn't; Mrs. Brown thought as she expected company to dinner day after to morrow, she would jest keep them, and that would save the trouble of sending again.'

'Very considerate, upon my word,' thought Mrs. Adams, though she did not say it. She couldn', help saying however, with some emphasis:

'Isn't there anything else I could lend Mrs. Brown to-day?'

'There now,' said Jane, with sudden reccollection, 'I came near forgetting one thing, and I should, if you hadn't mentioned it. Mrs. Brown would like to borrow your gridiron.,

'Gridiron?' said Mrs. Adams in some astonishment.

'Yes, ma'am; we've mislaid ours where we can't find it, and so, if you hain't no objections we'd like to borrow yours, as we're going to bile some steak to-morrow morning.'

'Bridget,' said Mrs. Adams, in a tone of despair, 'get the gridiron for Jane, and if'—she continued, turning to the latter, 'you could make it convienent to return it in the course of a fortnight, I should be glad.'

'Oh, yes,' said Jane, simply, not noticing the sarcastic tone in which she spoke I don't think we shall want it above a week.'

'I don't see the castor,' remarked Mr Adams to his wife the next day at the dinner table. 'Bridget ought to remember to place it on the table.'

'So she would, but Mrs. Brown, our next door neighbor, has borrowed it,'

'Borrowed the castor? Rather a strange request, I think. But why didn't Bridget cook the steak I sent home?'

'Because Mrs. Brown has borrowed the gridiron.'

'Mrs. Brown again? You ought not to lend her so freely. By the way, where are all the umbrellas. It rained this morning, but I could find none in place.'

'I don't know, I'm sure. Perhaps Bridget can inform us. Bridget.' said she, when that young lady had answered the summons of the bell, do you know what has become of all the umbrellas?'

'Shure ma'am, and Mrs. Brown has got two of 'em. She borrowed them a week ago.'

'And hasn't returned them yet?'

'No, ma'am, and I don't believed that's the worst of it.'

Just then the bell rang, and Bridget obeyed the summons.

'Mrs. Brown sends her compliments, she, re appearing, 'and would like to borrow our largest wash tub.'

Mr. and Mrs. Adams looked at each other in astonishment.

'Well!' said the former, at length, 'for sublime audacity, the palm must certainly be awarded to Mrs. Brown. It is said that three removes are as bad as a fire, but I should like to know how many removes are as bad as a borrowing neighbor.'

'Am I to tell Jane that, sir?' said Bridget a little mischievously.

'No, no,' said Mr. Adams, laughing. 'You may give her the tub, and you needn't say any thing about returning it—it won't do any good.'

'Seriously,, said Mr. Adams, after Bridget had left the room, 'something must be done, or very soon the house will be empty. You don't know half the extent which Mrs. Brown carries her borrowingpropensity. Within the last week she has borrowed tea, coffee, milk, sugar flour, eggs, frying-pan, knives, table-napkins, a castor gridiron, shovel and tongs, and other articles, as the auctioneers say in their advertisements, to numerous to mention. This is bad enough, but Mrs. Brown, in addition this, seems to regard the act of borrowing as investing her with the right of permanent possession. At least I judge so from th fact that she seldom or never return the articles borrowed.'

'Is it, possible?' said Mr. Adams in amazement, 'Certainly some end must be put to this wholesale robbery. Suppose you begin to borrow of her! It's a bad rule that won't work both ways, and perhaps if you make her feel a little of the annoyance to which she has subjected you, it may be preductive of benefit.'

'A good Idea,' said his wife, laughing, 'and it is better to try this course than to refuse directly lending any further; that would only produce bad feeling.'

'And yet,' said Mr. Adams, 'we must come to that finally, unless the present course succeeds,'

And next morning Bridget was sent to Mrs. Brown's to borrow a dozen tumblers, a nutmeg grater and a couple of sheets.

Mrs. Brown was surprised. She had never before received such an application from Mrs Adams, and could not help wondering besides at the miscellaneous nature of the loan requested. Her surprise was increased on the following day when Bridget brought her mistress, compliments and would like to borrow her clothes-horse.

'Yes, you may take it; but we shall want it early next week. But [illegible] you brought back the tumblers?'

'No, ma'am.' said Bridget, 'mistress expects considerable company in a day or two, and it will save the trouble of borrowing again if she doesn't return them till afterwards.'

'Well!' thought Mrs. Brown, quite unconsious of the beam within her own eye, thought she could readily discover the mote in that of her neighbor, 'I must say that's decidely cool!'

Every New England house keeper knows that Tuesday is ironing-day in all well-regulated families.

'I should like to know,' remarked Mrs. Brown on that morning, 'why Mrs. Adams doesn't return my clothes-horse. She must know that it will be in use to-day. Jane, go over and ask for it.'

Jane did her errand,

'Give my compliments to Mrs. Brown., replied Mrs. Adams, 'and tell her thet since she borrowed our clothes-line we have to dry our clothes in the house, and therefore were obliged to borrow her clothes-horse. We should have been through using it, but as she has our largest tub, it takes more than one day to get through with the washing.'

This message produced a little sensation in the house over the way. The result was the imediate return of the articles mentioned by Mrs. Adams. Mrs. Brown began to open her to the fact that she was not altogether guiltless in respect to the faults which she condemed in others.

She was not yet, cured, however. The next day Jane made her appearance, requesting the loan of the gridiron.

Tell your mistress,' said Mrs. Adams, with suavity, 'that nothing would give me greater pleasure, but it is not in my power, as she horowed it a month ago, and has not yet returned it.'

Mrs. Brown's eyes were opened still wider.

The next day Mrs. Adams was requested by Mrs. Brown, that the latter would return them.

With Bridget's help Mrs. Adams made out a list of thirty seven articles which she sent without comment.

Mrs. Brown was petrified with astonishment. Like all habitual borrowers she had not been aware of the trouble and inconvienence which she must have occasioned her neighbor.

She sent a message to that effect, when after two days dilligent search she conrived to get together all the articles mentioned in Mrs. Adams' list.

She was now thoroughly cured of borrowing, and when this mischievous propensity was once eradicated, she ceased to be a TROUBLESOME NEIGHBOR.

[Reader, have you borrowed the paper from which you read the above, or are you a regular subscriber?]

POVERTY A RELATIVE TERM.—Bulwer says that poverty is only an idea, in nine cases out of ten. Some men with ten thousand dollars a year suffer more from want of means than others with three hundred. The reasoe is, the richer man has artificial wants. His income is ten thousand, and by habit he spends twelve or fifteen thousand, and suffers enough from being dunned for unpaid debts to kill a sensative man. The man who earns a dollar a day, and does not run into debt, is the happiest of the two. Very few people who have never been rich, will believe this, but it is as true as God's word. There are people, of course, who are wealthy and who enjoy wealth, but there are thousands upon thousands, with princely incomes, who never knew a moments peace, because they live above their means. There is really more happiness in the world among working peeple than among those who are called rich.

A Patriotic Avowal.

The Albany Argus says:

"We are glad to see Gen. Dix place himself upon the platform of constitutional law—from which his superiors sought to displace him. On Saturday his case coming up before Judge Russel, Judge Pierrepont said, that "if after hearing all the facts in the case, his Honor came to the conclusion that an offence had been committed against the laws of the state, Gen. Dix would bow to the supremacy of the law. If at his age, so loyal a man as Gen. Dix, had been guilty of kidnapping and inciting to a riot, then it was time he was punished." There is no purpose to prejudge Gen. Dix, but to assert the rights of the courts to inquiry into outrage, no matter by what illegal authority committed."

A LADY in an omnibus at Washington espied the great unfinished dome of the capitol, and said, innocently, 'I suppose those are the gas-works?' 'Yes madam, for the nation,' was the reply of a fellow passenger.

PRESIDENT LINCOLN.

In both France and England, parties are discussing the character of our President, and trying to come to some conclusion as to his rank among men of ability and renown.

The conviction seems to be working its way that there is more of him than he has had credit for. A very considerable number have already reached the conclusion that he is one of the few truly great men of the earth. Others think him 'quite a smart man,' considering his advantages, and his early deficiencies of education; others cannot make much of him any way; while the tory party still charge him with all that is brutal, and wicked, and disgusting.

We easily understand the sources of all these varied opinions. It has been the interest of a great faction to disparage and abuse Mr. Lincoln.

The rebels, as one man, took to hating him the moment he was nominated for the Presidency. They did these both from feeling and policy.

They used their hatred of him to plunge their States into secession. They began by charging him with all the trats of imbecility and villainy for which they knew any epithets. They made him a drunkard, a baboon, and a beast. At home and abroad, they have never ceased to accuse him. And as their emmissaries swarmed in Europe, with the express purpose of manufacturing and shaping opinion there, their accusations have not failed to produce effect. A man so bitterly assailed, it was believed, must be guilty in some degree as charged. So much smoke betokens fire.

At home, Mr. Lincoln has had to bear the dislike which comes of political opposition. He was an old Whig, and the candidate of the Republicans. Of course, the Democrats would not naturally like him.

He had been the especial opponent of Mr. Douglas, in a very exciting campaign. The friends of that chief would naturally be suspicious of him; and though they might fall in to sustain his war policy, the old political jealousy would not at once die out.

Hence, the whole country has been in some doubt, with due exceptions, as in what rank he ought to be placed.

Nor is the matter entirely settled yet. Indeed, no man's character is fully settled until he is dead, and the possibility utterly gone, of his doing anything more to overturn the good name he may have acquired. But some things are as well settled in Mr. Lincoln's case as are usually done while one lives; and are as little likely to be reversed, as in the cases of most men. Is he a great man? What constitutes greatness in men? He does not, of course, fill out every ideal of character. Daniel Webster, the traitor John C. Calhoun, Henry Clay, and General Andrew Jackson, were all great men, and all quite unlike each other.

There are men in public life to-day, who excel Mr. Lincoln in some departments where special abilities are required. Very possibly he has not the financial ability of Mr. Chase, the administrative power of Gen. Butler, or the military talent of Gen. Grant. He certainly has not that breadth of philosophy which characterizes Mr. Seward. But whatever he is, his ability is sui generis; it is his own.

As to its size, color, and quality, Europe, having little to do in these days, may settle it to their liking. But we who have to do with him, are tolerably well satisfied with him in certain particulars. Nevertheless, we are free to say, that we do not desire to set him up as an idol, lest we might spoil him; or lest, as when the nation took to worshipping old General Harrison, Heaven might take him away from us as a punishment for our idolatry.

Among Mr. Lincoln's traits than we name the following. 1. Mental Sagacity. This is a comprehensive term; but in his case, it means, a power to look into the center of things. His mind is of the penetrative cast, and seems to us to stand in the front rank of that class of minds.

He can untie hard knots. He does not bushwhack about a question, but goes to the center of it at once, and deals with those parts of it which give difficulty to common men, as a good physician, who hears a long winded story from a patient, of aches and ails endured, knows how to select at once the few points which really concern the case; as a good lawyer, listening to a long yarn of immaterialities from a client, seizes on the one pivot where it all turns, but which the client never thinks of at all. So Mr. Lincoln's mind instinctively gets at the true question. You may call this a high or a low trait of mind; but it is one of the rarest. Accuracy is talent, and the talent of the fewest minds.

2. His mind is also of the practical cast. It seeks for truths which are te be realized in acts, He is not a theorist. Had he been an educated man in the common acceptation of the term, he might have been spoiled, inasmuch as his tendency is to ideas, rather th[illegible] to action; but his early indigence compelled him to grapple with realities, and to deal with destiny in actual hand-grips; and so forced him to be practical, whether he would or not.

We had a fear when he commenced his administration, that he would fail in administrative ability. But the truth is, the government does not all rest upon one man; and Mr. Lincoln's ideas can be put in practice by men of more activity and aggressive energy than himself

3. He possesses further mental integrity. Not that he possesses all the quota of mental qualities possible to be enumerated, But his mind is sound. It acts harmoniously with itself. It seeks truth; and truth and satisfies it. If a thing be true and right, that is the end of the question; and Mr. Lincoln cannot and don't try to chase it any further.

4. And hence, his mental constitution is in agreement with his moral sentiments, His mind is full of fairness and candor. Probably no man has ever been in public life in this country who excelled him in this particular. Since this war begun, he has courted and received the support of former political opponents.

We do not remember to have seen the charge of any unfairness on his part, toward any man, on account of former political views. Among his strongest friends are former Breckinridge men, Douglas men, Radicals, and Conservatives and all alike trust him, You may count this trait too, as high or low, but it is certainly very rare.

5. As the last of his traits now to be mentioned, is his well known honesty. This is no new or late characteristic. It is his old title at home with his neighbors. It is carried into public life; and now among the brood of gigantic thieves, educated for twenty years, and seizing upon the great opportunities which the war presents, and swarming about the capital and through the land, no man who knows Abraham Lincoln, believes that a scale as thick as foil, sticks to his fingers; or that he knowingly permits, or winks at it, in others.

These qualities are not always the most shinning, and are sometimes slow in getting recognition of the world. And especially, when, as with him, they are associated with, a person, physically ungainly; with a want of that polish which a certain style of education and advantage impart; when they are associated with a broad wit, and with that habit and love of blunt ways, begotten in frontier life, and nurtured with the rough associations of western fields, rivers, and court rooms—in such circumstances, people to whom conventionalism is law, have to look twice, before they see what may still be seen. But good and honest men, who have come near to Mr. Lincoln, have, from the first, come away with favorably impression of him. And thus his reputation has steadily grown, day by day. And already his nominations and election for a second term is an assured thing, and will apparently come about as naturally as the changes of the seasons, or the rising of the sun.

As to what Europe will say of him no trouble need be had by him, or his friends. If the stars shine, somebody will see the light; and they who are a little further off, will see it about as well, in time, as those who enjoy a nearer view.

GENERAL GRANT'S PROGRESS.—The Tribune closes an article upon the recent rebel undertaking in Maryland with the following assurance: Meanwhile, it seems to be supposed that Gen. Grant is lying idle at Petersburg, either stripped of so many troops as to make offensive movements impracticable, or occupied in the monotonons operations which belong to a siege. Not many days will be needed to develop this mistake. No day passes that is not a day of progress, none which does not bring the fail of Richmond nearer, and unless we misinterpret the evidence which lies before us, even the unreasonable impatience of the public for decided movements is likely very soon to be appeased."

A seven year old boy of Buffalo was recently heard to use profane language, and on being reproved by his parents, and directed to ask God's forgiveness, retired to his room and was heard to say, 'O God, I am sorry I said that naughty word, and I won't say so any more; but hurry and make me grow up to be a man, and then I can swear, and chew, and smoke as much as I want, like pa and nobody will notice it.'

UNION PRESIDENTIAL TICKET.

FOR PRESIDENT:
ABRAHAM LINCOLN,
OF ILLINOIS.

FOR VICE PRESIDENT.
ANDREW JOHNSON,
OF TENNESSEE.

The Position

No one in looking over the position of the belligerent armies now, and what it was in the spring and summer of 62 can help but see the great contrast between now and then, Then we had to keep armies in all parts of the country, now the great part of our strength is consentrated at two places, and we have undisputed possession of Missouri, a great part Arkansas, and Lousianna, and all of Kentucky and Tennessee, all the country bordering on the Mississippi river.

The whole of this country seems to be like the fabled forrest in which the trees turns to warriors, all accontred in the panoply ofwar, on the appearance of an enemy; now the rebels have but two armies with every man in the field living in the territory over which they can now exercise military jurisdiction. The number of white inhabitants in the States over any part which the rebel confedracy can now exercise control according to the census of 1860 is as folllows:

Alabamy, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Lonisana, North Carolina, South Carolina, Texas, Virginia, and Mississippi.—4,620,489,

Take from this the population of the parts of these states over which they have no control, as follows:

Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi. Virginna,—50,000. and we have left as the actual strength in 1860 of those parts now in possession of the rebels, 3,970,489 white population The white population of the States, an parts of states over which the Federal Government now exercise control was in 1860, 22,994,451. Of these the inhabitants of those States and parts of States in which the Government recieves no hearty support, may be estimated at about 2,300,000. Making this deduction. we have left of those who support the Government of their fathers, 20,694,451, against 3,770,489 of those who support the bastard confedracy.

When the war began they had control of, in round numbers, of 7,500,000, and the Federal Government of 19,400,000. Now they have 3,,770,489, while we have 20,694,451, white populatoin, and we have driven over two million of their supporters into a state of unarmed nutrality. Their loss in all the resources, for feeding an army has been even greater than in men. It takes no prophet to tell where this must finally end.

* * *

The following was received Thursday morning from the editor, who is attending the Convention in St. Paul, and will be interesting to the Mankato portion of our readers.

"On all calls for men in our subdistrict previous to the last call, we are charged with 142 men and credited 208 and will be credited with six more, making in all, 214. This will give us an excess of 72 men. If our exempts are not stricken from the enrollment list, our quota will be one in three, if they are. it will be one in every five and a-half. Donnelly was unanimously nominated to-day, for Congress. Wilson and McMillan will probably be nominated as two of the Judges of the Supreme Court."

The think that the figures, 142 above, should probably read 172 as our quota for the call before the last was 152.

* * *

The Committee appointed at the recent public meeting in Mankato, to hunt up the exempts from this town have very faithfully attended to their duties, On examination it was ascertained that the names of at least forty persons were on the enrollment list who are laboring under some kind of disability which would exempt them from performing military duty.

This committee have spent considerable time in seeing these men and have induced quite a number to consent to go to Rochester this week to be examined, so that when rejected by the Examining Board, their names will be stricken from the enrollment list, and the number of men to be furnished by us under the present call of the President will thus be proportionably reduced. We hope all in our county whose names are enrolled and who are satisfied that from any cause they would be rejected if drafted, will have a little public spirit and wend their way to Rochester forthwith, so that their respective towns in furnished their quotas will only have to furnish them according to the number of able-bodied men they severally have. St. Paul and the larger towns are waking up in this matter, and squads of their halt and lame and blind are being hurried to the Provost Marshal's office to be examined only to be pronounced unfit for military service.

The Battle of Petersburg.

The late telegrams come to us fraught with the news of another great battle fought before the works of Petersburg. The arrangements seem to have corresponded with the magnitude of the undertaking. Long lines of mines were laid under the works of the enemy. On the 30th ult., at daybreak these mines were fired causing the complete demolition of a part of the first line of the enemy's works, and burying in the terrible explosion most of one regiment of the enemy and their guns. The breach thus made was about 400 feet long. Our troops rushed through the gap and carried the first line. We have not space to detail all the terrible fighting of that morning. After carrying the first line by much severe fighting our forces were compelled to fall back to their old position, with heavy loss. The extent of their loss we are not able to determine with any accuracy from the meager dispatches now at hand. It is probable that we have suffered heavily.

Notwithstanding this defeat, no one need suppose that Grant is so weak as to give up the enterprise that he started out to accomplish. He has an immense army and is not to be drawn off or diverted from his purpose.

* * *

We call attention to the letter in another column written for the Winona Republican by a friend of the Hon. William Windom. It is a complete refutation of the charge that has been made against him by Brown, of the Faribault Republican, and other papers of that ilk, that he has accomplished nothing for the benefit of his constituents in Southern Minnesota. The people of the First Congressional District have never had a more faithful, efficient, and worthy representative in Congress than Mr. Windom has proven himself to be. He has always been found on the right side, and has labored earnestly and devotedly to promote the interests of his constituents, without regard to his own political advancement. We know of no man whom we would be willing to exchange for him, and if we do not mistake the sentiment of the people of this District, he will be re-nominated and triumphantly elebted.

Who are Exempt from the Draft.—As considerable misapprehension exists in the minds of many as to who are exempt, we will give the substance of the Amended Enrollment Law on that point as passed by Congress last February, and which is published in full in our issue of July 1st. All persons are ordered to be enrolled who shall arrive at the age of twenty years before the draft, all who are between that age and forty-five years, all aliens who have declared their intention to become citizens, all persons discharged from the military or naval service of the United States who have not been in such service, two years during the present war. The names of all persons, who between the time of the enrollment and the draft, arrive at the age of forty-five years are ordered to be struck from the enrolled list, No enrolled persons are exempt except such as are rejected as physically or mentally unfit for the service. Such as have served in the military or naval service two years in the war and been honorably discharged, and such as before the draft, or after the draft before they are held for duty furnish an acceptable substitute, "such person so furnishing a substitute shall be exempt from the draft during the time for which such substitute shall not be liable to draft, not exceeding the time for which such substitute shall have been accepted." It will be seen from the above that all exemptions on account of being the support of a widowed mother, having motherless children, &c., are totally abolished.

Judge Advocate Gen. Holt has decided that a provost court has no power to impose or enforce stoppages of pay in the case of enlisted men.

Hon. William Windom.

To the Editor of the Republican:

Having observed that a low, malignant fellow of the Copperhead persuasion has lately used your columns as the medium of an attack upon our Representative in Congress, in which the charge that he "has done nothing" is several times repeated, I respectfully requested permission to say a few words to your readers in reply to that charge. I have been somewhat careful observer of the public services of Mr. Windom since he first entered Congress, and the records will show that no district has been more faithfully, and few more efficiently, represented than ours during the last four years. Mr. Windom has not, it is true, retarded and obstructed the business of that branch of the national legislature, of which he has been a member, by long buncombe speeches intended only for home consumption, and which, by the way, are the bane of all legislative bodies; but he has satisfied himself with earnestly and quietly laboring for the interests of his constituents and his country, and in securing for them substantial benefits of practical legislation. While many other members of Congress have felt at libeoty to absent themselves during its sessions, thus frequently leaving it without a quorum, retarding business for weeks, costing the Government thousands of dollars, Mr. Windom has always been in his place faithfully discharging his duties. The Congressional Globe will prove that no member has voted more constantly, wisely, or honestly than ours, and I think I can say further that during his entire service no records of the votes on any important measure can be found which does not contain his name on the right side.

Among the members of the House of Representatives, none maintain a fairer reputation for integrity and patriotism, and but few exert a greater influence in securing the passage of any measures in which their respective States are interested. This fact I know from conversation with his fellow members. His position as chairman of the committee on Claims, (two or the most important committees,) shows that both his ability and integrity are appreciated there.

In answering this charge "that he has done nothing," (made partly I believe through ignorance and malice,) this must be borne in mind, that no State in the Union has asked as much legislation in the past four years and none has received as much benefit from the General Government during that time, as Minnesota. No one will pretend to say that all we have received is due to the efforts of Mr. Windom, but we challenge any one to show that he is not entitled to his full share of credit therefor.

Permit me now to refer beiefly to some of the benefits our State has received, to some of the things that must have been done.

One of Mr Windom's first acts was the introduction of "a bill granting to Minnesota all the swamp and overflowed lands within her limits." We all remember the history of that bill. It was refered to the committee who voted twice to reject the bill, but Mr. Windom persistently pressed it upon them until he was ordered to report it and reccommend its passage. He did so; it passed and became a law —thus giving to Minnesota a donation of public lands worth at least $3,000,000; some have estimated it at 5 000,000. We know that it can be shown that for this manificent gift from the Government our State is wholly indebted to Mr. Windom, so far as the action of the House of Representatives is concerned.

Another bill introduced by Mr. Windom about that time, and which was passed mainly through his efforts and influence in Congress—appropriated some $27,000 to pay a debt due our State for expenses incurred while in a territorial condition. This sum went into our State treasury, and thus saved the people that amount of taxation. Mr. Windom's predecessor had been in Congress one term after this debt became due, but had made no effort to secure the appropriation.

It will be remembered that one of the chief issues in the campaign, when our Representatives were first elected, and the measure most desired by our people was the "Homestead Bill." Mr. Windom worked and spoke for this bill in the 36th Congress. It passed both houses, and was vetoed by Mr. Buchanan. At he first session after Mr. Lincoln was inaugurated, it became a law At the time of its passage the New York Tribune, National Republican, Chicago Tribune, and other leading journals of the country attributed the passage of that act to the efforts and influence of four men, whom they named. Mr. Windom was one of the four thus credited with this most important measure.

At the same session through the joint efforts of Mr. Windom and Mr. Aldrich, an amendment was adopted to the Union Pacific Railroad Bill, providing that whenever a railroad is built through Minnesota or Iowa to Sioux City, the Union Pacific Company should be compelled to construct a branch to the same point. This amendment secures to our State a direct and easy connection with the Pacific Road, and the future will show that no part of our state is more deeply interested in this connection than the city of Winona. At the commencement of the last session of the 37th Congress, when the national treasury was staggering under the vast burden thrown upon it, when the amount of business growing out of the war was greater than ever before and the session limited to three months, our State appeared before Congress with claims so numerous and of such magnitude that no one thought they could pass before the journment. Among the bills promptly introduced by Mr. Windom were the following:

1st. "A billappropriating $1.500,000 for the relief of sufferers from the Sioux outbreak."

2d. "A bill for removal of Sioux Indians."

3d. "A bill for removal of the Winnebago Indians."

4th. "A bill to indemnify the State of Minnesota for expenses incurred in the suppression of the Indian outbreak."

The first of these bills appropriating $1,500,000 was passed through the House early in January 1863. The Senate reduced the amount to $200,000, and appointed a commission to take proof of damage, etc. It is a matter of history that at the time that our Representative secured the passage of this bill through the House, indemnifying his constituents for their losses, to the amount of $1,500,000, Ohio, Indiana, Pennsylvania and Maryland were asking through their large delegatigns similar indemnity for damage done by the rebels and our own troops to the people of their States. In no case except that of Minnesota was any such indemnity granted. It seems to me there is here evidence of inefficiency in our Representative. The two bills for the removal of the Indian tribes were passed, and so far as legislation could do it, our State forever relieved from the presence of these murderous savages. Good reasons could be urged for the removal of the Sioux, reasons that could not be applied for tae removal of the Winnebagoes. It required no small effort on the part of our member of Congress to induce that body to consent to this measure, but the people of Minnesota demanded it, and it was done.

The other bill above referred to was passed, appropriating $250,000 to indemnify our State for expenses of the Indian outbreak, thus again relieving our tax payers to that extent.

At the last session, upon the report of the Sioux commissioners being returned to Congress, Mr. Windom introduced, and promptly secured the passage of a bill appropriating $1.170,000, being the balance due the sufferers from the Sioux outbreak.

There are scores of other bills, public and private, introduced and passed through Congress mainly by the efforts of Mr. Windom, But my list of what he has done is already long enough, and now, further, I ask, in conclusion, any one who, through ignorance or party malice, complains of his inefficiency, (for we reiterate none others do complain,) to state what duty he has neglected? What has this State or district asked for since he has been in Congress that has not been done? What private individual in the district has written to Mr. Windom on business and notreceived prompt attention? To what honorable request has he failed to res-pond? Come gentlemen out with your charges, let us have the matter,dates, facts and figures

JUSTICE.

The New Loan.

Secretary Fessenden closes his stirring appeal to the people to sustain the national cause, by investing in the new loan offered by the government with the following well put words;

The denomination of the notes proposed to be issued, ranging from fifty to five thousand dollars, places these securities within the reach of all who are disposed to aid their country. For their redemption the faith and honor and property of the country are solemnly pledged. A successful issue to this contest, now believed to be near at hand, will largely enhance their value to the holders; and, peace once more restored, all burdens can be lightly borne. He who selfishly withholds his aid in the hope of turning his available means to greater immediate profit, is speculating upon his country's misfortunes, and may find what seems to be present gain leads to future loss. I appeal, therefore, with confidence to a loyal and patriotic people, and invoke the efforts of all who love their country, and desire for it a glorious future, to aid their Government in sustaining its credit, and place that credit upon a stable foundation.

W. P. FESSENDEN,
Secretary of the Treasury.

Five Men Murdered by Indians.

A letter received yesterday from Hastings, Minnesota, states that H. S. Jennings, Esq., formerly a well-known lawyer in this city, was murdered by Indians in Dakota, near the Montana line, on the 18th of June, while on his way to the Idaho gold mines. He and his family were traveling with a large party, when he, in company with five other men, rode several miles in advance of the train, and came upon a band of Indians, who murdered the whole five.

They were found by the company when it reached the scene of the calamity. Whether Mr. Jennings' family proceeded on its way or not, the letter does not state.

H. S. Jennings was a brother of R. S. Jennings, of this city, and was formerly engaged here in the practice of the law.

Another Glorious Victory over Hood---Sherman Address.

New York, Aug., 1.

A special to the Commercial, dated Washington, 1st, says, official despatepes received here, from before Atlanta, state that the rebels assaulted Sherman's line, vigorously, last Wednesday, and were repulsed disastrously. Sherman's killed and wounded number 600. He burried 660 rebels. Rebel loss 4,000

New York, Aug., 1st

The Chattanooga Gazette of the 27th says, the following dispatch was received there on the day previous. The battle of the 22d was severe; the enemy attacked us seven times, and were as often repulsed. Our total loss 3,500 and 10 guns.

The known loss of the enemy, in killed is more than 3,000, and we captured over 2,000 prisoners, also 18 stands of colors and over 5,000 stand of arms. The total loss of the enemy, in killed, wounded and missing, can't fall short of 10,000 to 12,000. In the battle of the 20th inst., his loss was at least 6,000. Our army is right on Atlanta, in good condition.

A special dispatch from Atlanta says: the Maj. Gen. commanding, in a circular, congratulates his troops upon the brilliant successes attending the Union armies in the late battles.

In the battle of 20th in which the 20th corps, one division of the 4th corps, and part of the 14th corps were engaged. Total loss 330 in front of 20th corps. There were put out of fight 6,000 rebels; fifteen hundred and sixty-three were buried by our troops and the rebels were permitted to bury 2?? themselves. The 4th corps repulsed seven assaults, and captured seven stands of colors.

In battle of the 22d the total Union loss was 3,510, and 19 pieces of artillery. Rebel loss 3,000, and 18 colors, and 5,000 small arms.

Garrard in his raid in Georgia, destroyed a R. R. bridge and depot, at Covington.

From Grant's Army.

New York Aug. 1—The captain of the steamer City of Hudson, who left Fortress Monroe yesterday evening, says Lincoln and Grant were in consultation at that place when he left.

Philadelphia, Aug 1.—A gentleman who spent yesterday with Gen. Grant, represents him as in good spirits and confident of ultimate success.

A special to the Post, Washington 1st, says details of Saturday operations before Petersburg have been received here. They may be summed up thus:

After the mine exploded in front of the 9th corps, a charge was ordered, and the rebels immediately opened a terrific fire from every part of their lines.

It was impossible for our troops to withstand such a galling fire, and they fell back in very good order, bringing with them 3,500 prisoners.

A brigade of colored troops was then ordered to charge.

Six pieces of artillery fell into our hands but it was found impossible to extricate them from the ruins of the explosion.

The loss of the enemy was very severe. One South Carolina regiment was blown into the air and a large number killed.

Gens. Bartlett and Will were captured by the rebels.

Large numbers of wounded are laying between the two lines and cannot yet be removed.

General Butler sent a flag of truce to-day, but it was peremptorily refused by the rebel officers; they also refused to exchange newspapers.

Many believe either that their lines are very weak, or they have some extensive move afoot and are afraid its being known.

The lines of both armies are about the same as before the battle.

Decision of Provost Marshal Averill Regarding Change of Enrollment.

Acting Ass't Pro-Mar Gen's Office,
St. Paul, Minn., July 11, 1864.

Capt. B. See, Provost-Marshal First District of Minnesota:

Captain—As many inquiries are made with reference to change of residence and liability to the draft, I deem it proper to invite your attention to the following facts and rules, for your government and action in such cases:

1. Every man owing military service should expect to be enrolled and be liable to draft in some place. Wherever his proper residence may be at the time of enrollment he may expect to be liable to draft.

Should he subsequently change his residence and wish thereby to change his liability to service, he may report himself promptly to the Board of Enrollment of the district into which he moves and claims a bona fide residence, and must produce satisfactory evidence to said Board of Enrollment that he has made such change in good faith. The Board of Enrollment will then enter his name upon the roll of said district, and furnish him a certificate thereof, and serve due notification on the other Board of Enrollment concerned

2. It should be fully understood that if a man changes his residence and neglects to report himself, as above expressed, in order to be properly placed upon record, he will be liable to draft in the town or sub district only where he was first enrolled. This right of change of enrollment and liability to draft is applicable in any bona fide change of residence either from another State to this, or from one town to another within the State

3. It must be remembered that he who desires such change of enrollment should do it at the first possible date. Should such action be delayed until after the Board has formed and reported the proper draft quotas, the application could not be received, because a man anxious to escape from his liability to duty, could, upon learning the quotas and credits of different towns, change his residence at will into some sub-district which may have furnished so largely in excess on former calls as to render such sub-district free from draft and thus avoid all liability to service

I am, Captain, very respectfully, your obedient servant,
JOHN T. AVERILL.
Lieut. Col. and A. A. P. M. G.

The City and County.

Official Paper of the County.

DWELLING ROOMS for a small family can be secured by calling at this office. Pleasantly located.

A load of persons from South Bend passed through town on Wednesday, en route for Rochester, as applicants for examption from the draft for various causes.

THE Ladies Covenant Society will hold a meeting in the City Hall on this (Friday) evening. H G Orton will address the Society. The public generally are inviten to attend.

THE following are the names of persons who were drafted in Ceresco, in this county, to fill the quota of that township.

John Anderson, Fox Lake.
Miles Porter, "

The County Convention was very thinly attended last Saturday. The people of the country towns were so busy harvesting their crops, that they could not find time to send delegates. Mankato was the only town represented.

Hon. Ignatius Donnelly was unanimously nominated as a representative for Congress from the 2nd Congressional District by the Union Congressional Convention of that District held at St. Paul on Wednesday of this week.

The President's Fast was observed in town yesterday by a small portion of our inhabitants who assembled at the City Hall where they listened to a sermon from Rev. Mr. Day, appropriate to the occasion. The Post Office and the stores of Chrisensen & Bro., and O. Ward, were closed during the day

A LEAD OFF FOR WINDOM.—We understand that Olmsted county has opened the Congressional canvass in this District by electing delegates to the Congressional Convention pledged for Wm. Windom as the Congress nominee.

The delegates elected last Saturday at the County Convention of Nicollet county, are also pledged for Windom.

TOWN MEETING.—We hope there will be a general turn out of our citizens at the Town Meeting to be held tomorrow, to decide favorably upon the matter of voting $200 00 bounty to every one who enlists from this town. We understand that without that, or that if our Mankato citizens will only take hold of the matter, that a sufficient number of men can be induced to fill our quota. Let every influence that can be, be held out to them, and let our citizens by their presence at the town meeting and by voting the $200 00 bounty, show that they are patriotically inclined and are willing to do the handsome thing to those who are willing to go forth in the service of their country. We do not know as there will be any opposition to voting that bounty, but we have a few mean men in town who if they should get a favorable opportunity will kill the bounty if they can PUBLIC SPIRIT.—Our town of Mankato will probably vote this week Saturday, to issue town orders to the amount of $200.00 to each one who enlists from Mankato. So far so good. Let our citizens do their part and agree to each buy as each one has means, to take some amount of these orders, and cash them at their face. If all will take hold and do something the sacrifice will not fall heavily on any one. And we trust that those who are abundantly able to help in a matter of this kind will not hesitate or refuse to advance a more or less amount simply because they are over age or for some other cause are exempt. Let the cashing of these orders be general with our citizens. Let it be no longer said of Mankato that those least able generally have to bear the burden and brunt of every public spirited matter undertaken. And if we have any men in our midst whom the sight of a srbscription paper exposes to epileptic fits, and who although ostensibly the possessors of the good things of this world, yet for taxable purposes, confess that their mortgages, their old clothes and their spending money belongs to fond 'patients" east, if we have any such men let us by all means get rid of them and invite none to settle in our midst who cannot be classified as "white" men.

The weather continues warm and dry with occasional threatenings of rain. We learn the country between this place and Owatonna was favored with a very heavy shower on Wednesday morning.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE TOWN CAUCUS.—Pursuant to notice the Republican-Union town caucus convened in City Hall Friday evening, July, 29, at 7 o'clock. T. T. Pierce, of the Town Committee called the meeting to order, and E. P. Freeman was chosen Chairman, and C. H. Slocum, Secretary.

The Chairman stated the object of the meeting, which was to elect nine delegates to attend the County Convention on the 30th of June. On motion the following persons were elected.

E. P. Freeman, C. H. Slocum, T. T Pierce, Anson Hilton, B D Pay, J N. Hall, J. J. Thornton, H. L Gode, Wm F. Lewis.

There being no further business, the caucus, on motion, adjourned

THE COUNTY CONVENTION.—Pursuant to notice, the County Convention was called to order at 2 o'clock P. M., Saturday the 30th of July, 1864, by Henry Gude one of the County Committee, the Chaiman being absent. The meeting was organized by leecting A. Hilton Chairman and E. P. Freeman Secretary. The call for the County Convention was then read and the credentials of the delegates present were then offered and accepted.

The following delegates were then elected vive voce by the Convention:

JOHN N. HALL,
B. F. SMITH,
O. O. PITCHER,
C. H. SLOCUM.

The Convention then on motion, adjourned.

E. P. FREEMAN,
Secretary.

A WORD TO THE AID SOCIETY.—A few days ago, a woman in town died of congestion on the brain. She had been sick but a few days, and received but very little care She was the wife of a soldier, who is a private in Capt. Slaughter's company of the Second Cavalry. What little care she received from near neighbors, just previous to her death revealed the fact that she was in a destitute condition, and had but very little clothing. Of some things she had none at all—not even a change of under clothing or of sheets or pillow slips. She had no chemise; but during her sickness, in these hot and sultry days, lay with her husband's woolen shirt wrapped around her. The same week the Soldiers Aid Society sent off a box of clothing and delicacies for our sick soldiers, two-thirds of which will never reach the persons for whom it is intended. This is all very well in its way; but it appears to us that charity should begin at home. There is a wide field for labor in this very town, and soldiers would feel as grateful to the Aid Society did they know they were taking care of their families as to know that they themselvs were bein geared for. We know that in many cases very few of the stores sent reach their destination, and if the members of the Aid Society would devote a portion of their time to hunting up the cases of destitution, and supplying the wants of the families of our brave soldiers, the Lord would bless them in so doing. The case we have mentioned is not an isolated one. There are others in this town notwithstanding the warm weather would seem to add to the idea that they could not be suffering just now. It is not so easy for gentlemen, acting as a Committee, to find out these cases of suffering, and to ascertain in what particular they need help. Ladies have a peculiar way of hearing who are needy, and what their wants are. With them, the task, though delicate, is not so difficult. It is a shame to us that we have been so neglectful of the welfare and comfort of their families while we have devoted so much time to supplying the wants of our soldiers, who, in nine cases out of ten are better cared for, we are decidedly in favor of doing all we can to alleviate the sufferings and make happy the hearts of those who are fighting for us, but at the same time we want their families provided for.

SUNDAY SCHOOL CELEBRATION.—Representatives from the different Sabbath Schools in Garden City, Crystal Lake, South Bend, Judson and Butternut Valley meet at South Bend on the 23rd ult. and made the necessary arrangements for a general Sabbath School Celebration, which will be on the 7th day of Sept. next in the grove on the Southern shore of Loon Lake near the residence of H. C. Howard.

President of the day, D. C. Evans, South Bend.

Marshall of the day, E P. Evans, Garden City.

The schools will meet as aforesaid at 10 o'clock A. M. and will at once report to the marshall of the day. The following will be the order of exercises.

Music by the Choir.

Prayer by Rev. A. Case, Garden City.

Introductory address by E. Thomas, South Bend, followed by Elder Chubuck, Shelbyville, after which refreshments will be served.

Upon the reassembling, each school will favor the audience with a piece of music, and will also report through their Superintendant or otherwise the date of their organization, number of scholars, number of classes, name of Superintendant, and Teachers &c., &c. After which addresses will be delivered by the Rev. A. Hathaway of Shelbyville, and the Rev R. W. Jones of Judson. Sabbath Schools from Mankato, Vernon, Shelbyville and Madelia are invited to attend and take part in the exercises.

A Committee of the following named gentleman, H. C. Howard, A. J. Bangs, Hugh Edwards, Wm, Williams, C. P. Cook, and J. K. Mead, were appointed for the purpose of preparing a speakers stand, seats and tables for the occasion, and requested to meet on the first Monday in September at H. C. Howard's for that purpose.

S. C. CLARK,
Chairman Committee of arrangements.

THE LADY'S FRIEND.—A beautiful steel engraving, called "HARVEST TIME," opens the August number of THE LADY'S FRIEND. The steel Fashion Plate, a double one, is also, as usual, of the first quality. The wood engravings are also excellent, especially 'The Bridal Dress,' and the following four pages. The literary contents are varied and excellent, including 'Sicily Wayne,' by Virginia F. Townsend; 'Love's Answer,' by Carrie Myer; 'Unto the Dawn,' by Harris Byrne; 'To My Sister,' by Mattie Dyer Britts; "First and Last,' by M. C. P.; 'Aureole,' by Charles Morris; 'The Transformed Village;' 'Loving Twice and Twice Wedded,' by Mrs. James ———; 'The Mistaken Kindness,' by Mrs Denison; 'Signs and Tokens,' by Aunt Alice; &c. &c. &c. Price $2 a year. Single numbers (post paid) 20 cents. Published by Deacon & Peterson, 319 Walnut Street, Philadelphia.

WE received too late for publication this week, a notice from the County Superintendent Wilcox which will appear in our next, as to the time when School Exhibitions will be held in several towns in our county. According to the notice School Exhibitions are to be held in Judson the 16th; in Garden City on the 17th; in Shelbyville on the 18th; in Sterling on the 23d; and at Mankato on the 25th of this month.

DIED.

In Mankato, July 30th, 1864, GRACE, wife of Dr G. A. STURGES, aged 36 years.

Hark! now tolls the passing bell,
What it sayeth none can tell;
List again, the passing bell
Tolls a lov'd one's last farewell.

"Man that is born of a woman is of few days and full of trouble. He cometh forth like a flower and is cut down; he fleeth also as a shadow and continueth not." Such is life, frail, fleeting, uncertain. How mysterious in its beginning, its progress, its end. Alas, alas, the tolling bell tells of a desolate fireside; mournfully does its echo fall upon the bereaved heart. Sad mourner find comfort in the thought that your loss is her gain, and although overcome with grief, feel that "He doeth all things well." Yes, death had marked its prey, fell disease had loosed the golden cord of life, and after long suffering, the wife is called to her rest No ties so sacred but are broken, and tears from the great fountains of sorrow, sweep like a spring tide over the fairest hopes of humanity. Though One infinitely wise and kind has destined us to painful trials, His watch is over us, and the ever passing events of this world, proclaim that man's abiding place is not here, but ah! in a happier home, for "I know that my Redeemer liveth." This hope points beyond the tomb, and we commit the loved to the ground. Earth to earth, ashes to ashes, dust to dust, looking for the general Resurrection in the last day, and the life of the world to come.

THE

Singer Sewing Machines.

Our LETTER A FAMILY SEWING MACHINE is fast gaining a world-wide reputation. It is beyond doubt the cheapest and best and most beautiful of all Family Sewing Machines yet offered to the public. No other Family Sewing Machine has so many useful appliances for Hemming, binding Felling, Tucking, Gathering, Guaging, Braiding, Embroidering, Cording and so forth. No other Family Sewing Machine has so much capacity for a great variety of work. It will sew all kinds of cloth, and with all kinds of thread Great and recent improvements make our Family Sewing Machine most reliable, and most durable, and most certain in action at all rates of speed. It makes the interlocked stitch, which is the best stich known. Any one, even of the most ordinary capacity, can see at a glance, how to use the letter A Family Sewing Machine, Our Family Sewing Machines are finished in chaste and exquisite style.

The Folding Case of the Family Machine is a piece of cunning workmanship of the most useful kind. It protects the machine when not in use, and when about to be operated may be opened as a spacious and substantial table to sustain the work.—While some of the Cases, made out of the choicest woods, are finished in the simplest and chastest manner possible, others are adorned and embellished in the most costly and superb manner.

It is absolutely necessary to see the Family Machine in operation, so as to judge of its great capacity and beauty.

It is fast becoming as popular for family sewing as our Manufacturing machines are for manufacturing purposes,

The Branch Offices are well supplied with silk, twist, thread, needles, oil, &c., of the very best quality.

☞ A number of years have elapsed since the introduction of HOSTETTER'S CELEBRATED BITTERS to the public. The prejudice existing in the minds of many against what are denominated patent medicines at first greatly retarded its sale; but, as its virtues and merits became known, this barrier of prejudice was overthrown, and the demand increased so rapidly that in a few years scarcely a village existed in the United States in which the afflicted had not experienced the benefits arising from the use of the "Bitters," and at the present day there are to be found IN ALL PARTS OF THE WORLD, vouchers for the great merits of the article. BRANDRETH'S PILLS.—They expel the poisons which threaten life. Every time a sick person is purged by this vegetable remedy, he has less vitiated humors and more life and vigor, as any one can prove by taking a single dose. Persons of spare habits gain flesh and strength while using them. Every time we rest a few days or weeks from the purgation, we make new fluids from our food, which replace the unsound ones that the Pills have caused to be evacuated. Each time we repeat this process, we expel further quantities of impurities, which are again replaced by fluids less and less impure so that in a short time, by continuing this treatment, we bring the whole mass of fluids or humors to that state of purity which constitutes health, for Brandreth's Pills only take away humors which are unsound. Sold by Wickersham, & Kilgore, Mankato Minn. and by all respectable dealers in medicines. [1—4w.

FINKLE & LYON'S

SEWING MACHINES.

THESE Machines make the lock stitch alike on both sides, and use less than half the thread and silk that the single or double-thread loop-stitch Machines do; will Hem, Fell, Gather, Cord, Braid, Bind, &c., and are better adapted than any other Sewing Machine in use to the frequent changes and great variety of sewing required in a family, for they will sew from one to twenty thicknesses of Marseilles without stopping, and make every stitch perfect, or from the finest gauze to the heaviest beaver cloth, or even the stoutest harness leather without changing the feed, needle or tension, or making any adjustment of Machaine whatever!!!

They are simple in construction, and easily understood: and if any part is broken by accident, it is readily replaced.

These are PECULIAR FACTS, and will go far to determine the choice of any intelligent buyer.

[Public Resolution—No. 38]

Joint Resolution authorizing the Secretary of the Navy to amend the contract with John Erricsson for the construction of two impregnable floating batteries, the "Dictator" and the "Puritan."

Whereas the Navy Department on the twenty-eighth day of July, eighteen hundred and sixty-two, entered into contract with Capt. John Errisson, of the City of New York, for the construction of two impregnable floating batteries, the "Dictator" and the "Puritan;" and whereas experience with a similar class of vessels in actual conflict and during a varied service of more than two years has demonstrated that many improvements could be made to render them more complete and efficient as vessels of war; and whereas these improvements have added largely to the cost of construction of each of these vessels, rendering it impossible for the contractor to complete them under existing arrangements; and whereas it is of utmost importance to the honor and interests of the country that they should be finished and ready for service at the earliest moment: Therefore,

Be it resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the Secretary of the Navy be and he is hereby authorized to amend the existing contract for the construction of these velssels so far as it relates to the "Puritan," and to appoint a competent board to ascertain the present value, as far as completed, of that vessel, and of the material on hand deemed actually necessary to her construction, and to pay to Capt John Ericsson, the contractor, the amount of valuation so ascertained, deducting therefrom any sums already advanced towards the completion of said vessel, and that upon said payment being made by the Secretary of the Navy, the rights of the contractor to said vessel and material or any portion thereof shall cease and be vested wholly and absolutely in the United States, which shall thenceforth proceed to complete said vessel under such arrangements as may be deemed most advantageous: Provided, however, That nothing herein contained shall in any manner affect the contract for the construction of the "Dictator," which shall be completed by said contractor upon the same terms and conditions as if this resolution had not been passed; And provided, further, That no action shall be had under this resolution until said contractor shall have signified to the Secretary of the Navy, in writing, his acceptance of its provisions and his willingness to superintend to completion the construction of the "Puritan:" Provided further, That this resolution shall not take effect until the completion and delivery of the "Dictator:" Provided, also, That it shall be the duty of the Secretary of the Navy in carrying this resolutiion into execution to apportion and apply to the "Dictator," in payment for that vessel, only such portion of the gross contract price of the two million three hundred thousand dollars ($2,300,000) for the "Dictator" and "Puritan" as the "Dictator" would justly be entitled to if both vessels had been completed at the price and in the mode of costruction specified in the contract, special reference being had to the difference of cost between the two vessels arising from the difference in their construction provided for in the contract.

Approved, June 25, 1864.

[Public Resolution—No. 39]

Joint Resolution amendatory of "An act to provide for the deficiency in the appropriation for the pay of officers and men actually employed in the western department, or department of Missouri."

Be it resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled That where any person or persons holding power of attorney or assignment executed subsequent to August sixteenth, eighteen hundred and sixty three and prior to January twenty-second, eighteen hundred and sixty-four, for the sum adjudged due to any officer or soldier by the commissioners appointed under joint resolution approved February sixteenth, eighteen hundred and sixty-three, shall have paid any money to any to any officer or soldier on the faith of such power of attorney or assignment, that the paymaster appointed to disburse the funds appropriated by the act approved January twenty-second, eighteen hundred and sixty-four, to provide for the deficiency in the appropriation for the pay of officers and men actually employed in the western department or departments of Missouri, be, and he is hereby authorized and directed to pay to such person or persons the amount thus paid to any officer or soldier, upon such attorney or assignee making and filing an affidavit to the effect that the amount was actually paid to said officer or soldier, and upon the paymaster being satisfied that the amount was actually paid; and the amount paid such attorney or assignee under this resolution shall be deducted from the amount due said officer or soldier, or anything in any previous action of Congress to the contrary notwithstanding.

Portable Brace Fence!

PATENTED APRIL 7, 1863.

WE claim for this Fence greater strength and durability with less expense than any ordinary farm fence No farmer who studies economy and convenience in the management of his farm will be without it The First Premium was awarded to Mr Haynes' Portable Fence, at the late State Fairs in Ohio and Michigan, and at several County Fairs. Read the following extract:

"Among the many things we saw on exhibition at the State Fair was Haynes' Portable Brace Fence. This fence seems to be a great improvement over most Fences of the kind It is very strong, and is so braced that wind can have no more effect upon it, if as much, as upon a common rail fence. It is light, yet heavy enough for all farm purposes Its cost is but little, and much labor is saved by using this fence, as it is easily put up, and in after years easily repaired. Every farmer ought to see this remarkable fence. We hope Mr. Haynes will be induced to exhibit it at our County Fair.—Medina (Ohio) Gazette.

Mr. H. has also invented a mould or bench upon which this fence is made. By using this bench any farmer can make the fence at a rapid rate. Full directions for making the bench and the fence upon it accompany each deed For farm or township rights address

CELEBRATED

BITTERS.

A pure and powerful tonic, corrective and alterative of wonderful efficacy in disease of the Stomach, Liver and bowels. Cures, Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Headache, General Debility, Nervousness, Depression of Spirits, Constipation, Colic, Intermittent Fevers, Cramps and Spasms, and all Complaints of either Sex arising from Bodily Weakness whether inherent in the system or produced by special causes. Nothing that is not wholesome genial and restorative in its nature enters into the composition of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. This popular preparation contains no mineral of any kind, no deadly botanical element; no fiery excitant; but it is a combination of the extracts of rare balsamic herbs and plants with the purest and mildest of all diffusive stimulants. It is well to be forearmed against disease, and, so far as the human system can be protected by human means against maladies engendered by an unwholesome atmosphere, impure water and other external causes, Hostetter's Bitters may be relied on as a safeguard. In districts infested with Fever and Ague, it has been found infallible as a preventive and irresistible as a remedy and thousands who resort to it under apprehensions of an attack, escape the scourge, and thousands who neglect to avail themselves of its protective qualities in advance are cured by a very brief course of this marvelous medicine. Fever and Ague patients, after being plied with quinine for months in vain, until fairly saturated with that dangerous alkaloid, are not unfrequently restored to health within a few days by the use of Hostetter's Bitters. The weak stomach is rapidly invigorated and the appetite restored by this agreeable Tonic and hence it works wonders in cases of Dyspepsia and in less confirmed forms of Indigestion. Acting as a gentle and painless aperient as well as upon the liver, it also invariably relieves the Constipation superinduced by irregular action of the digestive and secretive organs. Persons of feeble habit, liable to Nervous attacks, Lowness of spirits and fits of Languor, find prompt and permanent relief from the Bitters. The testimony on this point is most conclusive, and from both sexes. The agony of bilious colic is immediately assuaged by a single dose of the stimulant, and by occasionally resorting to it, the return of the complaint may be prevented. As a general tonic, Hostetter's Bitters produce effects which must be experienced or witnessed before they can be fully appreciated. In cases of constitutional Weakness, Premature Decay, and debility and decrepitude arising from old age, it exercises the electric influence. In the convalescent stages of all diseases it operates as a delightful invigorant. When the powers of nature are relaxed, it operates to re-enforce and re-establish them. Last but not least, it is the only safe stimulant, being manufactured from sound and innocuous materials, and entirely free from the acid elements present more or less in all the ordinary tonics and stomachics of the day. No family medicine has been so universally, and it may be truly added, deservedly popular with the intelligent portion of the community, as Hostetter's Bitters. Prepared by Hostetter and Smith, Pittsburgh, Pa. Sold by all Druggists, Grocers and Storekeepers everywhere. 32

Poetry.

From the Union Banner.

On the Other Shore.

I sat and dreamed in a soft arm-chair,
'Till twilight lengthened into moonlight fair,
And that far-off Heaven seemed so near,
So frail the fetters that bound me here,
That I seemed approaching the other shore,
And angels seemed whispering
"Evermore—rest evermore."

Many loved ones in that white-robed throng
Smilingly murmured as they floated along;
"Here's rest for the weary, here's peace and good will,
For Earth's tired people, who, suffering still,
Are joining us ever on this blessed shore—
Here's rest for the weary—here's rest
Evermore—rest evermore."

My soul floated on, in the solemn air,
And mingled with the spirits hovering there;
O! bright and beautiful, in love and power,
They passed before me in that dreamy hour;
How sweet it seemed—to my sad heart sore—
To commune with the angels, and rest
Evermore—rest evermore.

But alas! rude feet come—they break the spell
Of that calm, sweet moonlight I love so well;
My friends glide away to their unseen home,
Waiting and watching 'till I can come;
But I've been to the verge of that mystic shore:
And I've faith in the future—I'll rest
Evermore—rest evermore.

The Love I Crave.

There is a love that cannot die,
Though link by link may sever;
Transplanted lives beyond the sky,
And freshly blooms forever.

There is a faith no time can change,
Though rudely tore and shaken;
There is a voice however low,
That cannot be mistaken.

There is a hand whose gentle touch
Alone bespeaks a blessing.
A tender grasp revealing more
Than all the world's caressing.

O! give me, dear, the precious boon,
That knows no change or seeming;
Then no shadows on the heart can rest,
When thy bright star is beaming.

Select Miscellany.

ZENAS CAREY'S REWARD.

Red and sullen like the eye of some baleful demon, the low sun gleamed through the tangled depths of the November woods, casting bloody lines of light across the fallen trees, whose mossy trunks were half hidden in drifts of faded yellow leaves, and evoking faint sweet scenes, like Orient sandal wood and teek, from a thousand forest censors, hidden away, who knows how or where. And through that line of dull smiting fire the sky frowned—a leaden gray concave, freighted, as the weatherwise could tell you, with snow flakes sufficient to turn that broken forest into a fairy grove of pearl and ermine. So the daylight was ebbing away from this Thanksgiving eve. 'Now I wonder where I am?' said John Siddons, pausing abruptly in the scarce visible footpath that wound among the trees. 'I am as completely turned round, as though I stood in the deserts of Egypt! I wish that I had been sensible enough to keep to the right road, these short cuts generally turn out long ones. However, if I keep straight ahead I must inevitably emerge from these woods somewhere.'

He sat down on a mossy stump, leaning his head carelessly on one hand, while he played unconsciously with the brim of his blue soldier's cap—a slender pleasant-faced young man, with gray-blue eyes and dark hair thrown back from a bronzed forehead, which had been touched by the firey arrows of many a Southern sun in lonely swamps, and along the fever-reeking shores of sullen rivers.

'Houseless—homeless!' he murmured to himself. 'I wonder how many others are saying the same thing this thanksgiving eve. To think that I should fight through the campaign unhurt, and return with an honorable discharge in my pocket to a place where no one knows or cares whether I am alive or dead, while so many brave fellows were shot down at my side with bullets that tore through a score of hearts at home, carrying sharper pangs than death has to give? It's a queer thing to have but one relative in the world, and he a total stranger. If I find this second cousin of my father he'll probably kick me out of doors for a shiftless, soldiering vagabond. But hang it, a man can't live alone like a tortoise in its shell. I remember wondering, when I was a boy, why the Madeira vines over the porch stretched out their green tendrils, and seemed to grape through the sunshine for something to cling to. I think I understand it now.'

He rose up and walked on through the russet leaves that rustled ankle-deep beneath his tread, still musing—musing; trying to study out the unknown quantities in life's great equation, while the sun went down behind a band of lurid clouds, and the chill night wind began to sigh sorrowfully in the tree tops. And suddenly the sturdy woods tapered off into a silver stemmed thicket of white birches, and the white birches fringed a lonely country road with a little red house, beyond whose windows were aglow with firelight, and whose door yard was full of the peculiar perfume of white and maroon-blossomed chrysanthemums.

Zenas Carey was leaning over the gate surveying the stormy sunset with critical eyes.

'I told Melinda so!' ejaculated Zenas, apparently addressing himself to the crooked apple by the road. 'I'll bet my best steer we have a good old fashioned fall of snow to keep Thanksgiving with. I smelt in the air this morning, but women don't never believe nothing, until it comes to pass right under their noses, for—'

This rather obscure sentence was nipped in the bud by a footstep at his side. Zenas turned abruptly, to reconnoiter the new arrival.

'Will you be kind enough to give me a glass of water, sir?' asked John Siddons, wearily.

'Sartin, sir!' said Zenas. 'So you're a soldier, hey?'

'A returned soldier,' said Siddon, draining the cool element from the cocoa-nut shell that always lay close to the well curb at the side of the house.

'Goin' home to keep Thanksgivin'?' questioned Zenas.

'Home! Sir, I have no home!'

Siddons had spoken sharply, as if the thought were goading to him. Zenas put out his broad knotted hand and grasped the retreating man's arm.

'My boy!' he said, with kindly abruptness, 'you're a soldier, and to tell by your looks I should guess you were about the age of him that's buried at Gettysburg—my only son! I love that blue uniform for David's sake, and if there's a soldier in the world that hasn't a home to go to on Thanksgivin' eve, there's a corner for him by Zenas Carey's fireside. Come in, sir! come in! Your'e welcome as flowers in May!'

John looked into the wet eyes and working face of the old farmer an instant and accepted his invitation without another word.

What a cheerful change it was from the frosty air and chill twilight of the lonely road to that bright kitchen with its spotless board floor and resinous pine logs! And when Melinda Carey drew a humped-back rocking-chair to the hearth for him, and spoke a word or two of welcome, John Siddons wondered if the eyes of his mother, who died when he was a babe, had not beamed upon him just so!

'I told mother so, this very morning,' said Zenas, with a triumphant flourishing of his hand, as he stirred up the logs to a waving, glorious sheet of flame. Says I, 'Melinda we'll kill the biggest turkey, and I'll pluck out the yallerest pumpking on the barn floor.' And says she, 'what for, Zenas, when there's only us to eat 'em?' and says I, 'Mother, Davie was here with us last Thanksgivin' with his new uniform, as brave and handsome as you'll often see'—now mother don't cry!'

Zenas interrupted himself to stroke his wife's gray hair with a kindly tender touch, and went on:

'Says I, He's gone where it's Thanksgivin' all the year round, now my poor boy—my brave boy! but, says I, we'll make somebody welcome for Davie's sake; won't we mother?' And now, sir, you'll spend to-morrow with us, and tell me about the battle of Gettysburg, where Davie died, crying out with his last breath not to leave the flag he captured!'

Zenas, voice died out into a choking gasping sob. John Siddons laid his hand softly on the rough, toil-hardened hand of the farmer, while a pang of envy shot through his heart. Ah! it was almost worth while being shot down in battle to be missed and mourned like dead David Carey!

'Oh, wife,' said Zenas, when John Siddons had fallen asleep in the little corner room that had been the lost boy's, 'it is almost like having Davie back again! Wife, I fight my great sorrow down every night, but every morning it raises up again more than ever! God help every parent whose home is made desolate by the field of battle!'

Thanksgiving dawned with a white whirlwind of driving snow, that eddied among the gnarled bows of the apple tree in mad frolics, and edged the old stone wall with dazzling ermine. And the fiery sparks careering swiftly up Zenas Carey's wide chimney, met the steadily falling snow half way and gave battle, while the hearth glowed with ruddy brightness, as if it knew all about the Governor's proclamation and approved of it.

'You have a cozy little farm here Mr. Carey,' said John, as they walked through the snow storm to the church, whose spire nestled among the everlasting hills beyond.

'If I was only sure of it, sir,' said Zenas, with a sigh. 'But I've been hard put to it to get along these times. Taxes and such like come heavy on poor men, and I've had a run of ill luck, so that the place is mortgaged to its full value, and to a hard man—one that will sell the home you've been born and brought up in as soon as he eats his breakfast, so he can make money of it. It will be a black day for Melinda and me when we have to leave the Rock Farm; but it must come soon, and I dont much care what becomes of me afterwards. I tell you, sir, when a man has lived to my age under one roof-tree he don't take it very kindly to bein' moved. Men are like forest trees, sir; you can take a young'un and do as you please with it, but if you transplant an old one it dies. Let's talk of something else, Mr. Siddons. I ought'ut to complain Thanksgivin' day.'

John looked with a feeling of actual reverence at the hard featured old man, whose simple soul, borne down as it was by debt and grief, and age, could still find something to be thankful for.

The turkey and pumpkin pies were smoking on the round table when John and Zenas returned from church, and Mrs. Carey had brought out her "flowing blue" plates and her choicest old time silver spoons in honor of her guest. There was no beverage but coffee that never knew the shores of Java, and a pitcher of cold sparkling cider; but champagne could not have been more cordially dealt out by Zenas; and Mrs. Carey's smiling kindness gave a flavor to the chickorized rye that is sometimes lacking in "egg-shell china."

The table was cleared away, and they were sitting round the fire when the door was opened and deacon Evarts entered, bringing a small snow drift on the shoulder of his shaggy overcoat.

'Well I'm beat!' quoth Zenas. 'Take a cheer, Deacon. Let me hang your coat afore the fire to dry.'

'Can't stay,' said the Deacon, giving himself a shake like a black water-dog on his hind legs. 'I thought you'd like to hear the news, so I jest dropped in on my way to my darter's Thanksgivin' dinner.'

'News! what news?' exclaimed Zenas, while his wife dropped her knitting.

'Do tell! then you hain't heard?'

'I hain't heard nothin' but the wind a howlin' down the chimbly, and Elder Smith's sarmon this mornin',' said Zenas a little impatiently.

'The Squire's dead, up to the great house!'

'Dead? You don't tell me so That's the man I was speakin' of as holding my mortgage!' exclaimed Zenas, turning to John Siddons. 'And when did it happen Deacon?'

'Died last night, sir, just about nightfall, as quiet as a lamb. There wasn't nobody with him but the old housekeeper—folks didn't s'pose he was dangerous. And Lawyer Ovid says there's a reg'lar will, and he's left all his property to the only relative he had livin'; a soldierin' feller that he'd never as much as seen—one Sedgewick or Sibley, or what was his name now? Anyhow he's fell heir to all Squire Peter Ailesford's property, and that's a pretty considerable windfall!'

'Was that name Siddons?' asked the soldier, who had hitherto listened to the conversation in silence.

'That's it!' said the Deacon, giving his knee a sounding slap.

'Peter Ailesford was my father's cousin,' said the young man quietly.

'Laud o' Goshen,' ejaculated Dea. Evarts, with growing veneration for the heir to 'the old Squire's' money. 'Now reely! that's kind of providential, ain't it, to think that you should be right here on the spot!'

'I was in search of Mr. Ailesford's house when I met you, sir,' said Siddons, turning to Carey; 'but as I was unaware what sort of reception I might get, your kind invitation decided me to wait a day or two.'

In vain the Deacon tried to 'pump' the young soldier. John Siddons was civilly uncommunicative, and the Deacon finally took leave, burning to unfold his budget of news elsewhere.

'I hope, sir,' said Carey, uneasily, when they were once more alone, 'you won't be hard about that mortgage. I'm a poor man, and'—

'Mr. Carey,' said John quietly, 'you shall burn that mortgage on this hearth the very day I come in possession of my relative's papers. No thanks, sir; I have not forgotten that I was a stranger, and you took me in. Do you suppose that I shall ever cease to remember the welcome Thanksgiving hearth? I never knew either father or mother; but to-day I have fancied what their kindness might have been.'

'It was for Davie's sake!' sobbed Mrs. Carey, fairly overcome.

Then for your dead son's sake will you let me fill his place towards you? Last night death took from me the only one in the world to whom I was allied by ties of blood; do not turn me from your hearts!'

'The Lord bless thee—the Lord make his face to shine on thee, my second son,' said the old man solemnly.

Slowly the dust gathered athwart the hills, with wailing winds and whirling drifts of snow—slowly the darkness wrapped them round; but in Zenas Carey's steadfast soul the light of an eternal Thanksgiving was burning, and his wife, with tearful eyes, mused upon her two soldier boys—one dead at Gettysburg, the other sitting at her side

The Lady Philanthropist

Mrs. Ames was sitting in her front room when she saw approaching Mrs. Armstrong, a very public spirited lady, who took a wonderful interest in all reforms and benevolent enterprises, especially those undertaken for the benefit of people at a distance.

'My dear Mrs. Ames,' she commenced, 'I am the agent of a sewing circle just established, the object of which is to provide suitable clothing for the children in Patagonia. I am told that they are in the habit of going about in a state of nature which you know is dreadful to contemplate.'

'Perhaps they are used to it.'

'But there is no reason why we shouldn't improve their condition. So we have agreed to hold a meeting two evenings in a week, with this object in view. Will you join?'

'Im afraid I can't. I should be obliged to neglect my own children, as I presume will be the case with some of those who attend, look, for example, at that boy in the street.

He has a hole in each elbow, and his clothes are covered with mud. I presume his mother belongs to some of these benevolent associations, and hasn't time to attend to her own children.'

'Mrs. Ames!' asked her visitor, rising with indignation, 'do you mean to insult me!'

'Insult you!' was the astonished reply, 'of course not. What makes you think so?'

'Do you know who that boy is, of whom you speak?'

'No, I don't: but I should like to.'

'You would? Well, ma'm, your curiosity shall be gratified. He is my son—George Washington Jackson Armstrong! What have you to say to that?'

'Say? why, nothing. Only it is unfortunate for the poor boy that he wasn't a Patagonian.'

Mrs. Armstrong without a reply, swept out of the room with the majesty of a queen.

She is still canvassing for the sewing circle in behalf of the youthful Patagonians, while George Washington Jackson is permitted to roam at will through the streets, on condition that he will not venture within sight of Mrs. Ames' window.

MORAL.—Philanthropy like charity should begin at home, though there is no occasion for its ending there.

Careless People.

Only the other day our nerves were worked up to the explosion point, by an account of a perilous surgical operation, by which a woman's trachea was opened to remove a silver dime which had lodged there. And how on earth did a silver dime ever get into a womans windpipe? Simply because she was careless, and laughed with her mouth full of coins. Was there no other place where she could keep her small change?

We do feel sorry for a creeping baby when it gets hold of the grate, or stove by mistake, or cuts its fingers, or bumps its head, but for grown up people who suffer from their own recklessness we have no patience.

What is the use of a woman converting her mouth into a pincushion, and then expecting our sympathy, when a sudden sneeze or an unexpected cough imperils her life?

What is the use of a man balancing himself on an oscillating chair, instead of sitting up straight like a Christian. Are we expected to find vinegar and brown paper for the confusion on the back of his head when finally he comes down with a crash (serves him right)?

What is the use of a woman's picking her ears with a long knitting needle, as half the woman do, when a child running against her would send the instrument three inches into her brain, if she has got any.

What is the use of a man handling a loaded gun as though it were a broom handle, and then accuse providence because the charge goes into his head or foot or some other part of the body, as he might have known it would?

In short, what is the use of careless people?

AN UNBELIEVER.—A reverend master was lately endeavoring to enforce upon his contraband the truth of the miracles of the Bible. The poor darkey submitted with a proper humility to the recitals and explanations of his teacher, making but one answer to all, 'Massa b'lieve 'em, I b'lieve 'em,' though he hesitated a little at the story of Jonah. But when the wondrous escape of Shadrach, Meshach and Abednego was recounted, it was too much for his weak understanding. 'What! not burn he, too?' 'No.' 'Nor singe he wool?' 'No.' 'Den,' says Cuffee, 'I no b'lieve him—nor de fish story neider.'

Sailors who have followed the sea for years say they can tell when they are in the vicinity of Long Island—by the Sound.

Matters of Course

There are certain things in this world which have so uniformly turned out in the same way; that nobody dreams of their resulting in any other. In short, they are set down as matters of course for example.

When a bank suspends specie payment, it is always done for the public good as a matter of course.

If the said bank becomes irretrievably insolvent, and is forced to liquidate its affairs, the directors publish a card stating that the assets are amply sufficient to pay everything as a matter of course

People who put any degree of confidence in such statements are always deceived and disappointed as a matter of course.

When a man commits a murder or a forgery and is detected and tried he is proved insane, as a matter of course.

When a fire occurs whether it proves destructive or not it is the work of an incendiary, as a matter of course,

When two locomotives come in collision on a railroad, destroying each other, knocking half a dozen cars to pieces killing a dozen passengers and wounding twice as many more, the public are promised full information concerning the same, as a matter of course.

When such information comes if at all, it exculpates everybody from blame, as a matter of course.

When quack medicine is invented it is tremendously puffed, as a matter of course.

But everybody who believes one-half that is stated of its wonderful virtues, get egregiously humbugged, as a matter of course.

Every man of intelligence and common sense is a subscriber to a newspaper and if he is honest he pays for it, as a matter of course.

Preaching on Charity.

'WHY can't you do as our fathers used to do? said a good old deacon to the pastor of one of our country churches. The pastor had been preaching for the church through the year, once a month, for which they agreed to give about seventy dollars.

His year was out, and the church was about to call him for another year. 'How do you mean?' said the preacher. 'Why preach on charity; just let nothing be said about salary or money, any way: let each one give what he feels like giving, without letting the right hand know what the left hand doeth. That's what I call preaching on charity; it's the way our fathers did, and the preachers were supported well.' The pastor agreed to it. The year passed on.

At the close he found he had received one dollar and seventy-five cents for his year's labor, to perform which he had to ride five hundred miles. This was what he called preaching on charity; and the member's right hands never knew what their left hands did.

SELLING AT HALF PRICE.—A shopkeeper in a small town one day marked the handkerchiefs in his window with the tempting words 'selling at half price.' Shortly after, a lady who had traded with him before, entered the establishment, and having looked at the handkerchiefs inquired the price.

'Fifty cents apiece,' replied the shopkeeper.

'Very well,' said the lady, you may do me up a dozen.'

The handkerchiefs were cut off and delivered to the lady, who gave the shopkeeper a $3 bill.

'Beg your pardon, madam, But I—ha—told you the handkerchiefs were fifty cents apiece; that is $6 per dozen.'

'To be sure, I understand as much arithmetic as that; $6 is the price: half six is three—that is half price. I think they are cheap enough. Good day sir.'

The lady shut the door. The shopkeeper opened his eyes. For five minutes he stood still as a pump gazing vacantly at the window; biting his lips and looking very red, he quietly removed the card pinned to the handkerchief, and resolved to announce no more goods selling at half price.

AN INCIDENT OF SHILOH.—During the battle of Shiloh, an officer hurriedly rode up to an aid and inquired for Grant.

'That's him with the field glass,' said the aid.

Wheeling his horse about; the officer furiously rode up to the General, and touching his cap, thus addressed him.

'Sheneral' I vants to make von report; Schwart'zs Battery is took.'

'Ah,' said the General, 'how was that?'

'Vell you see, Sheneral, de t—d seceshinest come up in front of us, and de t—d seceshenist flanked us, and de t—d seceshenist come in de rear of us, and Schartz's Battery vas took.'

'Well, sir,' says the General, 'you of course spiked the guns,'

'Vat!' exclaimed the Dutchman in astonishment; 'schpike dem guns—schpike dem new guns! No, it wo'd schpoil dem.'

'Well,' said the General sharply, 'what did you do?'

'Do! vy, we took dem back again.'

Right Sort of Religion.

Some one, whose head is unusually 'level,' has written out his ideas of religion as follows. It will do to read and think about:

We want religion that goes into the family, and keeps the husband from being spiteful when the dinner is late; keeps the husband tracks the newly-washed floor with his muddy boots, and makes the husband mindful of the scraper and door mat; amuses the children as well as instructs them; projects the honeymoon into the harvest-moon, and makes the happy hours like the Eastern fig-tree, bearing in its beauty of the tender blossom and the glory of the ripened fruit. We want a religion that bears fruit not only on the sinfulness of sin, but on the rascality of lying and stealing; a religion that banishes all small measures from the counters, small baskets from the stalls, pebbles from the cotton bags, clay from pepper, sand from sugar, chickory from coffee, beet root from vinegar, alum from bread, lard from butter, strychnine from wine, and water from milk-cans.

The religion that is to advance the world will not put all the big strawberries and peaches at the top, and all the bad ones at the bottom. It will not offer more baskets of wine than the vineyards ever produced bottles.

The religion that is to sanctify the world pays its debts. It does not consider forty cents returned for one hundred given is according to gospel, although it is according to law. It looks on a man who has failed in trade and continues to live in luxury, as a thief. It looks on a man who promises to pay fifty dollars on demand, with interest, and who neglects to pay it on demand, with interest, and who neglects to pay it on demand, with or without interest, as a liar.

Keep A Note Book

To all our readers we say, keep a note-book, and when you visit any gardens where there are collections of choice shurbs, roses, ect., get the true name of any kind which you particularly admire and desire to procure another season, and write it down in your note-book. Write down not only the name as given you, but also the general character of the plant, the color of flower, &c.

Do the same when ever you visit an exhibition of horticultural products; then from your note-book you will be enabled, in the fall or next spring, to make an order of purchase knowingly, for just such plants and fruits as you want. There will be no trusting to books or nurserymen, for you order what you know you desire.—Ohio Farmer.

Poetry.

From the Union Banner.

On the Other Shore.

I sat and dreamed in a soft arm-chair,
'Till twilight lengthened into moonlight fair,
And that far-off Heaven seemed so near,
So frail the fetters that bound me here,
That I seemed approaching the other shore,
And angels seemed whispering
"Evermore—rest evermore."

Many loved ones in that white-robed throng
Smilingly murmured as they floated along;
"Here's rest for the weary, here's peace and good will.
For Earth's tired people, who, suffering still,
Are joining us ever on this blessed shore—
Here's rest for the weary—here's rest
Evermore—rest evermore."

My soul floated on, in the solemn air,
And mingled with the spirits hovering there;
O! bright and beautiful, in love and power,
They passed before me in that dreamy hour;
How sweet it seemed—to my sad heart sore—
To commune with the angels, and rest
Evermore—rest evermore.

But alas! rude feet come—they break the spell
Of that calm, sweet moonlight I love so well;
My friends glide away to their unseen home,
Waiting and watching 'till I can come;
But I've been to the verge of that mystic shore
And I've faith in the future—I'll rest
Evermore—rest evermore.

The Love I Crave.

There is a love that cannot die,
Though link by link may sever;
Transplanted lives beyond the sky,
And freshly blooms forever.

There is a faith no time can change,
Though rudely torn and shaken;
There is a voice however low,
That cannot be mistaken.

There is a hand whose gentle touch
Alone bespeaks a blessing.
A tender grasp revealing more
Than all the world's caressing

O' give me, dear, the precious boon.
That knows no change or seeming;
Then no shadows on the heart can rest,
When thy bright star is beaming.

Select Miscellany.

ZENAS CAREY'S REWARD.

Red and sullen like the eye of some baleful demon, the low sun gleamed through the tangled depths of the November woods, casting bloody lines of light across the fallen trees, whose mossy trunks were half hidden in drifts of faded yellow leaves, and evoking faint sweet scenes, like Orient sandal wood and teck, from a thousand forest censors, hidden away, who knows haw or where. And through that line of dell tainting fire the sky frowned—a leaden gray concave, freighted, as the weatherwise could tell you, with snow flakes sufficient to turn that broken forest into a fairy grove of pearl and ermine. So the daylight was ebbing away from this Thanksgiving eve. 'Now I wonder where I am?' said John Siddons, pausing abruptly in the scarce visible footpath that wound among the trees. 'I am as completely turned round, as though I stood in the deserts of Egypt! I wish that I had been sensible enough to keep to the right road, these short cuts generally turn out long ones. However, if I keep straight ahead I must inevitably emerge from these woods somewhere.'

He sat down on a mossy stump, leaning his head carelessly on one hand, while he played unconsciously with the brim of his blue soldier's cap—a slender pleasant-faced young man, with gray-blue eyes and dark hair thrown back from a bro gate surveying the stormy sunset with critical eyes.

'I told Melinda so!' ejaculated Zenas, apparently addressing himself to the crooked apple by the road. 'I'll bet my best steer we have a good old fashioned fall of snow to keep Thanksgiving with. I smelt in the air this morning, but women don't never believe nothing, until it comes to pass right under their noses, for—'

This rather obscure sentence was nipped in the bud by a footstep at his side. Zenas turned abruptly to reconnoiter the new arrival.

'Will you be kind enough to give me a glass of water, sir?' asked John Siddons, wearily.

'Sartin, sir!' said Zenas. 'So you're a soldier, hey?'

'A returned soldier,' said Siddon, draining the cool element from the cocoa-nut shell that always lay close to the well curb at the side of the house.

'Goin' home to keep Thanksgivin'?' questioned Zenas.

'Home! Sir, I have no home!'

Siddons had spoken sharply, as if the thought were goading to him. Zenas put out his broad knotted hand and grasped the retreating man's arm.

'My boy!' he said, with kindly abruptness, 'you're a soldier, and to tell by your looks I should guess you were about the age of him that's buried at Gettysburg—my only son! I love that blue uniform for David's sake, and if there's a soldier in the world that hasn't a home to go to on Thanksgivin' eve, there's a corner for him by Zenas Carey's fireside. Come in, sir! come in! Your'e welcome as flowers in May!'

John looked into the wet eyes and working face of the old farmer an instant and accepted his invitation without another word.

What a cheerful change it was from the frosty air and chill twilight of the lonely road to that bright kitchen with its spotless board floor and resinous pine logs! And when Melinda Carey drew a humped-back rocking-chair to the hearth for him, and spoke a word or two of welcome, John Siddons wondered if the eyes of his mother, who died when he was a babe, had not beamed upon him just so!

'I told mother so, this very morning,' said Zenas, with a triumphant flourishing of his hand, as he stirred up the logs to a waving, glorious sheet of flame. Says I, 'Melinda we'll kill the biggest turkey, and I'll pluck out the yallerest pumpking on the barn floor.' And says she, 'what for, Zenas, when there's only us to eat 'em?' and says I, 'Mother, Davie was here with us last Thanksgivin' with his new uniform, as brave and handsome as you'll otten see'—now mother don't cry!'

Zenas interrupted hemself to stroke his wife's gray hair with a kindly tender touch, and went on:

'Says I, He's gone where it's Thanksgivin' all the year round, now my poor boy—my brave boy! but, says I, we'll make somebody welcome for Davie's sake; won't we mother?' And now, sir, you'll spend to-morrow with us, and tell me about the battle of Gettysburg, where Davie died, crying out with his last breath not to leave the flag he captured!'

I dont much care what becomes of me afterwards. I tell you, sir, when a man has lived to my age under one roof-tree he don't take it very kindly to bein' moved. Men are like forest trees, sir; you can take a young'un and do as you please with it, but if you transplant an old one it dies. Let's talk of something else, Mr. Siddons. I ought'nt to complain Thanksgivin' day.'

John looked with a feelling of actual reverence at the hard featured old man, whose simple soul, borne down as it was by debt and grief, and age, could still find something to be thankful for.

The turkey and pumpkin pies were smoking on the round table when John and Zenas returned from church, and Mrs. Carey had brought out her "flowing blue" plates and her choicest old time silver spoons in honor of her guest. There was no beverage but coffee that never knew the shores of Java, and a pitcher of cold sparkling cider; but champagne could not have been more cordially dealt out by Zenas; and Mrs. Carey's smiling kindness gave a flavor to the chickorized rye that is sometimes lacking in "egg-shell china"

The table was cleared away, and they were sitting round the fire when the door was opened and deacon Evarts entered, bringing a small snow drift on the shoulder of his shaggy overcoat.

'Well I'm beat!' quoth Zenas. 'Take a cheer, Deacon. Let me hang your coat afore the fire to dry.'

'Can't stay,' said the Deacon, giving himself a shake like a black water-dog on his hind legs. I thought you'd like to hear the news, so I jest dropped in on my way to my darter's Thanksgivin' dinner.'

'News! what news?' exclaimed Zenas, while his wife dropped her knitting.

'Do tell! then you hain't heard?'

'I hain't heard nothin' but the wind a howlin' down the chimbly, and Elder Smith's sarmon this mornin',' said Zenas a little impatiently.

'The Squire's dead, up to the great house!'

'Dead? You don't tell me so That's the man I was speakin' of as holding my mortgage!' exclaimed Zenas, turning to John Siddons. 'And when did it happen Deacon?'

'Died last night, sir, just about nightfall, as quiet as a lamb. There wasn't nobody with him but the old housekeeper—folks didn't s'pose he was dangerous. And Lawyer Ovid says there's a reg'lar will, and he's left all his property to the only relative he had livin'; a soldierin' feller that he'd never as much as seen—one Sedgewick or Sibley, or what was his name now? Anyhow he's fell heir to all Squire Peter Ailesford's property, and that's a pretty considerable windfall!'

'Was that name Siddons?' asked the soldier, who had hitherto listened to the conversation in silence.

'That's it!' said the Deacon, giving his knee a sounding slap.

'Peter Ailesford was my father's cousin,' said the young man quietly.

'Land o' Goshen,' ejaculated Dea. Evarts, with growing veneration for the heir to 'the old Squire's' money. 'Now reely! that's kind of providential, ain't it, to think

The Lady Philanthropist

Mrs. Ames was sitting in her front room when she saw approaching Mrs. Armstrong, a very public spirited lady, who took a wonderful interest in all reforms and benevolent enterprises, especially those undertaken for the benefit of people at a distance.

'My dear Mrs. Ames,' she commenced, 'I am the agent of a sewing circle just established, the object of which is to provide suitable clothing for the children in Patagonia. I am told that they are in the habit of going about in a state of nature which you know is dreadful to contemplate.'

'Perhaps they are used to it.'

'But there is no reason why we shouldn't improve their condition. So we have agreed to hold a meeting two evenings in a week, with this object in view. Will you join?'

'Im afraid I can't. I should be obliged to neglect my own children, as I presume will be the case with some of those who attend, look, for example, at that boy in the street. He has a hole in each elbow, and his clothes are covered with mud. I presume his mother belongs to some of these benevolent associations, and hasn't time to attend to her own children.'

'Mrs. Ames!' asked her visitor, rising with indignation,' do you mean to insult me!'

'Insult you!' was the astonished reply, 'of course not. What makes you think so?'

'Do you know who that boy is, of whom you speak?'

'No, I don't: but I should like to.'

'You would? Well, ma'm, your curiosity shall be gratified. He is my son—George Washington Jackson Armstrong! What have you to say to that?'

'Say? why, nothing. Only it is unfortunate for the poor boy that he wasn't a Patagonian.'

Mrs. Armstrong without a reply, swept out of the room with the majesty of a queen.

She is still canvassing for the sewing circle in behalf of the youthful Patagonians, while George Washington Jackson is permitted to roam at will through the streets, on condition that he will not venture within sight of Mrs. Ames' window.

MORAL.—Philanthropy like charity should begin at home, though there is no occasion for its ending there.

Careless People.

Only the other day our nerves were worked up to the explosion point, by an account of a perilous surgical operation, by which a woman's trachea was opened to remove a silver dime which had lodged there. And how on earth did a silver dime ever get into a womans windpipe? Simply because she was careless, and laughed with her mouth full of coins. Was there no other place where she could keep her small change?

We do feel sorry for a creeping baby when it gets hold of the grate, or stove by mistake, or cuts its fingers, or bumps its head, but for grown up people who suffer from their own recklessness we have no

Poetry.

From the Union Banner

On the Other Shore.

I sat and dreamed in a soft arm-chair,
'Till twilight lengthened into moonlight fair,
And that far-off Heaven seemed so near,
So frail the fetters that bound me here,
That I seemed approaching the other shore,
And angels seemed whispering
'Evermore—rest evermore."

Many loved ones in that white-robed throng
Smilingly murmured as they floated along;
"Here's rest for the weary, here's peace and good will.
For Earth's tired people, who, suffering still,
Are joining us ever on this blessed shore—
Here's rest for the weary—here's rest
Evermore—rest evermore."

My soul floated on, in the solemn air,
And mingled with the spirits hovering there;
Of bright and beautiful, in love and power,
They passed before me in that dreamy hour;
How sweet it seemed—to my sad heart sore—
To commune with the angels, and rest
Evermore—rest evermore.

But alas! rude feet come—they break the spell
Of that calm, sweet moonlight I love so well;
My friends glide away to their unseen home,
Waiting and watching 'till I can come;
But I've been to the verge of that mystic shore;
And I've faith in the future—I'll rest
Evermore—rest evermore.

The Love I Crave.

There is a love that cannot die,
Though link by link may sever;
Transplanted lives beyond the sky,
And freshly blooms forever.

There is a faith no time can change,
Though rudely torn and shaken;
There is a voice however low,
That cannot be mistaken.

There is a hand whose gentle touch
Alone bespeaks a blessing.
A tender grasp revealing more
Than all the world's caressing.

O give me, dear, the precious boon,
That knows no change or seeming;
Then no shadows on the heart can rest,
When thy bright star is beaming.

Select Miscellany.

ZENAS CAREY'S REWARD.

Red and sullen like the eye of some baleful demon, the low sun gleamed through the tangled depths of the November woods, casting bloody lines of light across the fallen trees, whose mossy trunks were half hidden in drifts of faded yellow leaves, and evoking faint sweet scenes, like Orient sandal wood and teak, from a thousand forest censors, hidden away, who knows how or where. And through that line of dull waiting fire the sky frowned—a leaden gray concave, freighted, as the weatherwise could tell you, with snow flakes sufficient to turn that broken forest into a fairy grove of pearl and ermine. So the daylight was ebbing away from this Thanksgiving eve. 'Now I wonder where I am?' said John Siddons, pausing abruptly in the scarce visible footpath that wound among the trees. 'I am as completely turned round, as though I stood in the deserts of Egypt! I wish that I had been sensible enough to keep to the right road, these short cuts generally turn out long ones. However, if I keep straight ahead I must inevitably emerge from these woods somewhere.'

He sat down on a mossy stump, leaning his head carelessly on one hand, while he played unconsciously with the brim of his blue soldier's cap—a slender pleasant-faced young man, with gray-blue eyes and dark hair thrown back from a bronzed forehead, which had been touched by the firey arrows of many a Southern sun in lonely swamps, and along the fever-reeking shores of sullen rivers.

'Houseless—homeless!' he murmured to himself. 'I wonder how many others are saying the same thing this thanksgiving eve. To think that I should fight through the campaign unhurt, and return with an honorable discharge in my pocket to a place where no one knows or cares whether I am alive or dead, while so many brave fellows were shot down at my side with bullets that tore through a score of hearts at home, carrying sharper pangs than death has to give? It's a queer thing to have but one relative in the world, and he a total stranger. If I find this second cousin of my father he'll probably kick me out of doors for a shiftless, soldiering vagabond. But hang it, a man can't live alone like a tortoise in its shell. I remember wondering, when I was a boy, why the Madeira vines over the porch stretched out their green tendrils, and seemed to grape through the sunshine for something to cling to. I think I understand it now.'

He rose up and walked on through the russet leaves that rustled ankle-deep beneath his tread, still musing—musing; trying to study out the unknown quantities in life's great equation, while the sun went down behind a band of lurid clouds, and the chill night wind began to sigh sorrowfully in the tree tops. And suddenly the sturdy woods tapered off into a silver stemmed thicket of white birches, and the white birches fringed a lonely country road with a little red house, beyond whose windows were aglow with firelight, and whose door yard was full of the peculiar perfume of white and maroon-blossomed chrysanthemums.

Zenas Carey was leaning over the gate surveying the stormy sunset with critical eyes.

'I told Melinda so!' ejaculated Zenas, apparently addressing himself to the crooked apple by the road. 'I'll bet my best steer we have a good old fashioned fall of snow to keep Thanksgiving with. I smelt in the air this morning, but women don't never believe nothing, until it comes to pass right under their noses, for—'

This rather obscure sentence was nipped in the bud by a footstep at his side. Zenas turned abruptly to reconnoiter the new arrival.

'Will you be kind enough to give me a glass of water, sir?' asked John Siddons, wearily.

'Sartin, sir!' said Zenas. 'So you're a soldier, hey?'

'A returned soldier,' said Siddon, draining the cool element from the cocoa-nut shell that always lay close to the well curb at the side of the house.

'Goin' home to keep Thanksgivin'?' questioned Zenas.

'Home! Sir, I have no home!'

Siddons had spoken sharply, as if the thought were goading to him. Zenas put out his broad knotted hand and grasped the retreating man's arm.

'My boy!' he said, with kindly abruptness, 'you're a soldier, and to tell by your looks I should guess you were about the age of him that's buried at Gettysburg—my only son! I love that blue uniform for David's sake, and if there's a soldier in the world that hasn't a home to go to on Thanksgivin' eve, there's a corner for him by Zenas Carey's fireside. Come in, sir! come in! Your'e welcome as flowers in May!'

John looked into the wet eyes and working face of the old farmer an instant and accepted his invitation without another word.

What a cheerful change it was from the frosty air and chill twilight of the lonely road to that bright kitchen with its spotless board floor and resinous pine logs! And when Melinda Carey drew a humped-back rocking-chair to the hearth for him, and spoke a word or two of welcome, John Siddons wondered if the eyes of his mother, who died when he was a babe, had not beamed upon him just so!

'I told mother so, this very morning,' said Zenas, with a triumphant flourishing of his hand, as he stirred up the logs to a waving, glorious sheet of flame. Says I, 'Melinda we'll kill the biggest turkey, and I'll pluck out the yallerest pumpking on the barn floor.' And says she, 'what for, Zenas, when there's only us to eat 'em?' and says I, 'Mother, Davie was here with us last Thanksgivin' with his new uniform, as brave and handsome as you'll otten see'—now mother don't cry!'

Zenas interrupted hemself to stroke his wife's gray hair with a kindly tender touch, and went on:

'Says I, He's gone where it's Thanksgivin' all the year round, now my poor boy—my brave boy! but, says I, we'll make somebody welcome for Davie's sake; won't we mother?' And now, sir, you'll spend to-morrow with us, and tell me about the battle of Gettysburg, where Davie died, crying out with his last breath not to leave the flag he captured!'

Zenas, voice died out into a choking gasping sob, John Siddons laid his hand softly on the rough, toil-hardened hand of the farmer, while a pang of envy shot through his heart. Ah! it was almost worth while being shot down in battle to be missed and mourned like dead David Carey!

'Oh, wife,' said Zenas, when John Siddons had fallen asleep in the little corner room that had been the lost boy's, 'it is almost like having Davie back again! Wife, I fight my great sorrow down every night, but every morning it raises up again more than ever! God help every parent whose home is made desolate by the field of battle!'

Thanksgiving dawned with a white whirlwind of driving snow, that eddied among the gnarled bows of the apple tree in mad frolics, and edged the old stone wall with dazzling ermine. And the fiery sparks careering swiftly up Zenas Carey's wide chimney, met the steadily falling snow half way and gave battle, while the hearth glowed with ruddy brightness, as if it knew all about the Governor's proclamation and approved of it.

'You have a cozy little farm here Mr. Carey,' said John, as they walked through the snow storm to the church, whose spire nestled among the everlasting hills beyond.

'If I was only sure of it, sir,' said Zenas, with a sigh. 'But I've been hard put to it to get along these times, Taxes and such like come heavy on poor men, and I've had a run of ill luck, so that the place is mortgaged to its full value, and to a hard man—one that will sell the home you've been born and brought up in as soon as he eats his breakfast, so he can make money of it. It will be a black day for Melinda and me when we have to leave the Rock Farm: but it must come soon, and I dont much care what becomes of me afterwards. I tell you, sir, when a man has lived to my age under one roof-tree he don't take it very kindly to bein' moved. Men are like forest trees, sir; you can take a young'un and do as you please with it, but if you transplant an old one it dies. Let's talk of something else, Mr. Siddons. I ought'nt to complain Thanksgivin' day.'

John looked with a feelling of actual reverence at the hard featured old man, whose simple soul, borne down as it was by debt and grief, and age, could still find something to be thankful for.

The turkey and pumpkin pies were smoking on the round table when John and Zenas returned from church, and Mrs. Carey had brought out her "flowing blue" plates and her choicest old time silver spoons in honor of her guest. There was no beverage but coffee that never knew the shores of Java, and a pitcher of cold sparkling cider; but champagne could not have been more cordially dealt out by Zenas; and Mrs. Carey's smiling kindness gave a flavor to the chickorized rye that is sometimes lacking in "egg-shell china"

The table was cleared away, and they were sitting round the fire when the door was opened and deacon Evarts entered, bringing a small snow drift on the shoulder of his shaggy overcoat.

'Well I'm beat!' quoth Zenas. 'Take a cheer, Deacon. Let me hang your coat afore the fire to dry.'

'Can't stay,' said the Deacon, giving himself a shake like a black water-dog on his hind legs. I thought you'd like to hear the news, so I jest dropped in on my way to my darter's Thanksgivin' dinner.'

'News! what news?' exclaimed Zenas, while his wife dropped her knitting.

'Do tell! then you hain't heard?'

'I hain't heard nothin' but the wind a howlin' down the chimbly, and Elder Smith's sarmon this mornin',' said Zenas a little impatiently.

'The Squire's dead, up to the great house!'

'Dead? You don't tell me so That's the man I was speakin' of as holding my mortgage!' exclaimed Zenas, turning to John Siddons. 'And when did it happen Deacon?'

'Died last night, sir, just about nightfall, as quiet as a lamb. There wasn't nobody with him but the old housekeeper—folks didn't s'pose he was dangerous, And Lawyer Ovid says there's a reg'lar will, and he's left all his property to the only relative he had livin'; a soldierin' feller that he'd never as much as seen—one Sedgewick or Sibley, or what was his name now? Anyhow he's fell heir to all Squire Peter Ailesford's property, and that's a pretty considerable windfall!'

'Was that name Siddons?' asked the soldier, who had hitherto listened to the conversation in silence.

'That's it!' said the Deacon, giving his knee a sounding slap.

'Peter Ailesford was my father's cousin,' said the young man quietly.

'Land o' Goshen,' ejaculated Dea. Evarts, with growing veneration for the heir to 'the old Squire's' money. 'Now reely! that's kind of providential, ain't it, to think that you should be right here on the spot!'

'I was in search of Mr. Ailesford's house when I met you, sir,' said Siddons, turning to Carey; 'but as I was unaware what sort of reception I might get, your kind invitation decided me to wait a day or two.'

In vain the Deacon tried to 'pump' the young soldier. John Siddons was civilly uncommunicative, and the Deacon finally took leave, burning to unfold his budget of news elsewhere.

'I hope, sir,' said Carey, uneasily, when they were once more alone, 'you won't be hard about that mortgage. I'm a poor man, and'—

'Mr. Carey,' said John quietly, 'you shall burn that mortgage on this hearth the very day I come in posession of my relative's papers. No thanks, sir; I have not forgotten that I was a stranger, and you took me in. Do you suppose that I shall ever cease to remember the welcome Thanksgiving hearth? I never knew either father or mother; but to-day I have fancied what their kindness might have been.'

'It was for Davie's sake!' sobbed Mrs. Carey, fairly overcome.

Then for your dead son's sake will you let me fill his place towards you? Last night death took from me the only one in the world to whom I was allied by ties of blood; do not turn me from your hearts!'

'The Lord bless thee—the Lord make his face to shine on thee, my second son,' said the old man solemly.

Slowly the dust gathered athwart the hills, with wailing winds and whirling drifts of snow—slowly the darkness wrapped them round; but in Zenas Carey's steadfast soul the light of an eternal Thanksgiving was burning, and his wife, with tearful eyes, mused upon her two soldier boys—one dead at Gettysburg, the other sitting at her side

The Lady Philanthropist

Mrs. Ames was sitting in her front room when she saw approaching Mrs. Armstrong, a very public spirited lady, who took a wonderful interest in all reforms and benevolent enterprises, especially those undertaken for the benefit of people at a distance.

'My dear Mrs. Ames,' she commenced, 'I am the agent of a sewing circle just established, the object of which is to provide suitable clothing for the children in Patagonia. I am told that they are in the habit of going about in a state of nature which you know is dreadful to contemplate.'

'Perhaps they are used to it.'

'But there is no reason why we shouldn't improve their condition. So we have agreed to hold a meeting two evenings in a week, with this object in view. Will you join?'

'I'm afraid I can't. I should be obliged to neglect my own children, as I presume will be the case with some of those who attend, look, for example, at that boy in the street.

He has a hole in each elbow, and his clothes are covered with mud. I presume his mother belongs to some of these benevolent associations, and hasn't time to attend to her own children.'

'Mrs. Ames!' asked her visitor, rising with indignation,' do you mean to insult me!'

'Insult you!' was the astonished reply, 'of course not. What makes you think so?'

'Do you know who that boy is, of whom you speak?'

'No, I don't: but I should like to.'

'You would? Well, ma'm, your curiosity shall be gratified. He is my son—George Washington Jackson Armstrong! What have you to say to that?'

'Say? why, nothing. Only it is unfortunate for the poor boy that he wasn't a Patagonian.'

Mrs. Armstrong without a reply, swept out of the room with the majesty of a queen.

She is still canvassing for the sewing circle in behalf of the youthful Patagonians, while George Washington Jackson is permitted to roam at will through the streets, on condition that he will not venture within sight of Mrs. Ames' window.

MORAL.—Philanthropy like charity should begin at home, though there is no occasion for its ending there.

Careless People.

Only the other day our nerves were worked up to the explosion point, by an account of a perilous surgical operation, by which a woman's trachea was opened to remove a silver dime which had lodged there. And how on earth did a silver dime ever get into a womans windpipe? Simply because she was careless, and laughed with her mouth full of coins. Was there no other place where she could keep her small change?

We do feel sorry for a creeping baby when it gets hold of the grate, or stove by mistake, or cuts its fingers, or bumps its head, but for grown up people who suffer from their own recklessness we have no patience.

What is the use of a woman converting her mouth into a pincushion, and then expecting our sympathy, when a sudden sneeze or an unexpected cough imperils her life?

What is the use of a man balancing himself on an oscillating chair, instead of sitting up straight like a Christian. Are we expected to find vinegar and brown paper for the confusion on the back of his head when finally he comes down with a crash (serves him right)?

What is the use of a woman's picking her ears with a long knitting needle, as half the woman do, when a child running against her would send the instrument three inches into her brain, if she has got any.

What is the use of a man handling a loaded gun as though it were a broom handle, and then accuse providence because the charge goes into his head or foot or some other part of the body, as he might have known it would?

In short, what is the use of careless people?

AN UNBELIEVER.—A reverend master was lately endeavoring to enforce upon his contraband the truth of the miracles of the Bible. The poor darkey submitted with a proper humility to the recitals and explanations of his teacher, making but one answer to all, 'Massa b'lieve 'em, I b'lieve 'em,' though he hesitated a little at the story of Jonah. But when the wondrous escape of Shadrach, Meshach and Abednego was recounted, it was too much for his weak understanding. 'What! not burn he, too?' 'No.' 'Nor singe he wool?' 'No.' 'Den,' says Cuffee, 'I no b'lieve him—nor de fish story neider.'

Sailors who have followed the sea for years say they can tell when they are in the vicinity of Long Island—by the Sound.

Matters of Course

There are certain things in this world which have so uniformly turned out in the same way; that nobody dreams of their resulting in any other. In short, they are set down as matters of course for example.

When a bank suspends specie payment, it is always done for the public good as a matter of course.

If the said bank becomes irretrievably insolvent, and is forced to liquidate its affairs, the directors publish a card stating that the assets are amply sufficient to pay everything as a matter of course

People who put any degree of confidence in such statements are always deceived and disappointed as a matter of course.

When a man commits a murder or a forgery and is detected and tried he is proved insane, as a matter of course.

When a fire occurs whether it proves destructive or not it is the work of an incendiary, as a matter of course,

When two locomotives come in collision on a railroad, destroying each other, knocking half a dozen cars to pieces killing a dozen passengers and wounding twice as many more, the public are promised full information concerning the same, as a matter of course.

When such information comes if at all, it exculpates everybody from blame, as a matter of course.

When quack medicine is invented it is tremendously puffed, as a matter of course.

But everybody who believes one-half that is stated of its wonderful virtues, get egregiously humbugged, as a matter of course.

Every man of intelligence and common sense is a subscriber to a newspaper and if he is honest he pays for it, as a matter of course.

Preaching on Charity.

'Why can't you do as our fathers used to do? said a good old deacon to the pastor of one of our country churches. The pastor had been preaching for the church through the year, once a month, for which they agreed to give about seventy dollars.

His year was out, and the church was about to call him for another year. 'How do you mean?' said the preacher. 'Why preach on charity; just let nothing be said about salary or money, any way: let each one give what he feels like giving, without letting the right hand know what the left hand doeth. That's what I call preaching on charity; it's the way our fathers did, and the preachers were supported well.' The pastor agreed to it. The year passed on.

At the close he found he had received one dollar and seventy-five cents for his year's labor, to perform which he had to ride five hundred miles. This was what he called preaching on charity; and the member's right hands never knew what their left hands did.

SELLING AT HALF PRICE.—A shopkeeper in a small town one day marked the handkerchiefs in his window with the tempting words 'selling at half price.' Shortly after, a lady who had traded with him before, entered the establishment, and having looked at the handkerchiefs inquired the price.

'Fifty cents apiece,' replied the shopkeeper.

'Very well,' said the lady, you may do me up a dozen.'

The handkerchiefs were cut off and delivered to the lady, who gave the shopkeeper a $3 bill.

'Beg your pardon, madam, But I—ha—told you the handkerchiefs were fifty cents apiece; that is $6 per dozen.'

'To be sure, I understand as much arithmetic as that; $6 is the price: half six is three—that is half price. I think they are cheap enough. Good day sir.'

The lady shut the door. The shopkeeper opened his eyes. For five minutes he stood still as a pump gazing vacantly at the window; biting his lips and looking very red, he quietly removed the card pinned to the handkerchief, and resolved to announce no more goods selling at half price.

AN INCIDENT OF SHILOH.—During the battle of Shiloh, an officer hurriedly rode up to an aid and inquired for Grant.

'That's him with the field glass,' said the aid.

Wheeling his horse about; the officer furiously rode up to the General, and touching his cap, thus addressed him.

'Sheneral' I vants to make von report; Schwart'zs Battery is took.'

'Ah,' said the General, 'how was that?'

'Vell you see, Sheneral, de t—d seceshinest come up in front of us, and de t—d secesheneist flanked us, and de t—d secesheneist come in de rear of us, and Schartz's Battery vas took.'

'Well, sir,' says the General, 'you of course spiked the guns,'

'Vat!' exclaimed the Dutchman in astonishment; 'schpike dem guns—schpike dem new guns! No, it wo'd schpoil dem.'

'Well,' said the General sharply, 'what did you do?'

'Do! vy, we took dem back again.'

Right Sort of Religion.

Some one, whose head is unusually 'level,' has written out his iders of religion as follows. It will do to read and think about:

We want religion that goes into the family, and keeps the husband from being spiteful when the dinner is late; keeps the husband tracks the newly-washed floor with his mudy boots, and makes the husband mindful of the scraper and door mat; amuses the children as well as instructs them; projects the honeymoon into the harvest-moon, and makes the happy hours like the Eastern fig-tree, bearing in its beauty of the tender blossom and the glory of the ripened fruit. We want a religion that bears fruit not only on the sinfulness of sin, but on the rascality of lying and stealing; a religion that banishes all small measures from the counters, small baskets from the stalls, pebbles from the cotton bags, clay from pepper, sand from sugar, chickory from coffee, beet root from vinegar, alum from bread, lard from butter, strychnine from wine, and water from milk-cans.

The religion that is to advance the world will not put all the big strawberries and peaches at the top, and all the bad ones at the bottom. It will not offer more baskets of wine than the vineyards ever produced bottles.

The religion that is to sanctify the world pays its debts. It does not consider forty cents returned for one hundred given is according to gospel, although it is according to law. It looks on a man who has failed in trade and continues to live in luxury, as a thief. It looks on a man who promises to pay fifty dollars on demand, with interest, and who neglects to pay it on demand, with interest, and who neglects to pay it on demand, with or without interest, as a liar.

Keep A Note Book

To all our readers we say, keep a note-book, and when you visit any gardens where there are collections of choice shurbs, roses, ect., get the true name of any kind which you particularly admire and desire to procure another season, and write it down in your note-book. Write down not only the name as given you, but also the general character of the plant, the color of flower, &c.

Do the same when ever you visit an exhibition of horticultural products; then from your note-book you will be enabled, in the fall or next spring, to make an order of purchase knowingly, for just such plants and fruits as you want. There will be no trusting to books or nurserymen, for you order what you know you desire.—Ohio Farmer.

SAFES.—Pat was helping Mr. Blank to get a safe in his office one day and not being acquainted with the article inquired what it was for.

'To prevent papers and other articles which are placed in it from being burned in case of fire said Mr. Blank.

"An' sure, will nothing ever burn that's put in that thing?

"No'

"Well thin yer honor ye'd better be after getting into the same thing when ye die.

Mr. Blank wilted.

A PERSON visiting a neighbor, found him disabled from having a horse step on his foot. Hobbling out to the stable the sufferer explained how it happened. 'I was standing here, and the horse brought his foot down on mine.' The man looked at the injured member, which was of the number fourteen pattern, and said very quietly: 'Well the horse must step somewhere,'

While the enemy were in Maryland a rebel officer was asked if he made no distinction between the peoperty of Union people and that of the friends of the Confederacy? 'Not at all,' he replied, 'we take from our Northern friends and sympathizers even more freely, because we feel that they would specially desire to contribute to the good cause of the South.'

Rather a clincher, that reply.

PARISIAN CRIME.—The Paris police report over ten thousand new-born infants having been found at the grating of the reservoir into which the sewers empty during the past year.

You don't mean nothin' friendly, you don't, as the rat said to the cat when she bit him in the back.

I'm risin' in the world, as the balloon said to the bag of sand; and I must take care I'm not burst in the process, as the bag of sand said to the balloon.

It's pretty, but not pleasant, as the monkey said when they painted his tail sky blue.

Union County Convention.

The Electors of Blue Earth county who endorse the sentiments embraced in the Baltimore platform and in the platform adopted by the State Convention at St. Paul, are requested to meet in delagate convention in the City Hall in Mankato, on WEDNESDAY, the 24th day of August, 1864, at 2 o'clock P. M., for the transaction of the following business:

1. To elect five delegates to represent this County in the 17th Legislative District Convention to nominate three representatives for the State Legislature.

2. To elect four delegates to represent this county in the 6th Judicial District Convention at St Peter on the 27th inst, to nominate a District Judge.

3. To elect four delegates to represent this county in the Congressional Convention at Owatonna, on the 30th inst., to nominate a member of Congress.

4. To nominate a County Auditor.

The several towns in the County are requested to hold their town caucuses at the usual places of holding elections on Saturday, the 20th inst., at four o'clock P. M. They will be entitled to the following number of delegates, in accordance with a resolution adopted by the Convention of last year.

Mankato 11 South Bend 4 Watonwan 4, Judson 3, Sterling 3, Shelby 4. Mapleton, Butternut Valley, Vernon, and Danville, 2 each, LeRay, Jamestown, Lime, Medo, Ceresco, and McClellan, 1 each.

P. F. ECKSTORM,
Chairman County Committe

In the proper place will be found calls for the several conventions to be held during the present month. They are all of importance and we presume will be well attended. We hope that unity and good feeling will prevail in them all, as there is no need at this crisis to foment political discord. The candidates for the several positions are not numerous and it will not be difficult to make a judicious selection. We trust the conventions will have a due regard to honesty, integrity of character, and good judgment in making their selections.

The Legislative Convention will probably be held on the 25th.

State Quotas.

The Hartford Courant says that the quota of Connecticut under the call for five hundred thousand men is 10,121.

We learn from the Cincinnati Gazette that the quota of Ohio under the new call, which is based on the revised enrollment, is 50,792.

The War Department has decided that previous excesses of three years men furnished by any State will count on the present call man for man, and not as one for three, though the draft is for but one year. Now recruits, whether enlisted for one, two, or three years, will count the same, the equalization for the different States to be made hereafter.

The State Convention.

The State Convention to nominate Presidential electors and Judges of the Supreme Court met in St. Paul on the 3d inst Thomas Simpson was chosen President and E. B. Ames of Hennepin, Secretary.

Thomas Wilson, of Winona, S J, R McMillan, of Stillwater, and John M. Berry, of Faribault, were nominated as Judges, the former for Chief Justice.

J. N. Murdock, of Wabasha, C. H. Lindsley, of Rochester, J. G. Betz, of Ramsey and J. W. Morford, of Steele were nominated as Presidential electors.

The following resolutions were then reported and adopted unaminously:

Resolved, That we cordially endorse and adopt as our own, the resolutions passed by the recent Baltimore Union Convention and gladly hail and pledge ourselves heartily to sustain the nomination of Abrahan Lincoln and Andrew Johnson.

Resolved, That it is our firm and unalterable determination to sustain the present administartion in all its efforts to crush the rebellion and perserve the American Union and that we have full and abiding confidence in its complete and ultimate success.

Resolved, that while we shrink from no sacrifice, and will cheerfully assume all the burdens laid upon us by the necessities of the hour, we recognize the paramount importance of the practice of the most rigid economy in every Department of our National and state Governments as the most efficient means of lightening the task of the people in their struggle for the national existence.

Resolved, That we tender to the soldiers and sailors of the Union, our most hearty thanks for their patriotism, bravery and endurance and especially to those from our own State, who have given themselves to fight for our sacred cause. Unsurpassed by any, in all the highest attributes of the soldiers, we recognize in them the brightest jewel of the State, our proudest boast and greatest honor.

Democratic Conventions.

The Democratic Convention for this Congressional District has been called to meet at Faribault on the 5th of September next. Their Judicial Convention will meet at LeSueur on the 3rd proximo.

The only person we have heard spoken of as a candidate for Congress is Col. Tourtelotte, of this place. The Col. is a good man, but we think he will hardly allow his name to run where utter defeat is certain. The compliment would be too much of a risk.

There are a number of candidates for District Judge. Judge Branson, D. Buck, and J. A. Willard are in the field. Mr. Buck appears to be ahead.

Latest News

We have good news from Mobile. Official rebel reports state that Farragut has passed Forts Morgan and Gaines with seventeen of his ships. The capture of the city may soon be looked for. He has destroyed three of the rebel ships of war and taken Admiral Buchanan prisoner. This is the same admiral who commanded the Merrimac.

The rebel force in Western Virginia under McConsland and Johnston have been defeated by General Averill and utterly routed with a loss of 600 prisoners.

Grant has been on the upper Potomac. Sheridan is now there with his cavalry.

The New York Commercial says the advance of Cotton to $1.75 per pound creates some excitement. The dry goods jobbers who have been indisposed to buy Cotton, at the high prices, are now operating at the late figures, and on some kinds of goods at even a slight advance. The commission houses however, are disposed to take advantage of the rise in the raw material, refusing anything beyond small lots at old prices, and others are holding their goods back for an advance.

The St Peter Statesman, is responsible for the following. It is "the unkindest cut of all," and Green ought to be ashamed of him self:

His Hon. Judge Branson, was in town yesterday in search of delegates to attend the Judicial Convention soon to meet. We understand that he manifested unusual interest in our welfare. As an inducement for the Democracy of this County to elect delegates favorable to him, he assured a Democratic friend that he could obtain the entire vote of Brown county, except ten, and those he could also carry! He reminds us very much of an old Dutch brand-basket maker who, being anxious to marry, thought every girl who chanced to smile at him was deeply in love with him. His Honor is just about such a d——n'd fool. He can't let high on the Nicollet county delegation!

Letter from the Sixth Regiment.

CAMP BUFORD, HELENA, ARK.,
July 27, 1864

Editor Mankato Union:

DEAR SIR:—I thought I would intrude just long enough to let you know how the 6th is getting along, which is very well, according to other regiments that have been quartered, with the exception of having more duty to perform, for no other regiment kept up a camp guard. All that are able are on duty every day. Yesterday, about half past three P. M. the long roll was beat and then you ought to have seen things fly, for in less than five minutes all in the quarters that were able were in the ranks, but they had to wait until others came in that were on fatigue duty. The reason of this was, a dispatch had had been received that the guerillas were about eight miles from town—which was true. On the 24th inst., at three o'clock P. M., General Buford received intelligence that there were three hundred rebels just outside of the lines, so he sent two hundred and eighty of the colored troops, two pieces of artillery and one hundred and fourteen cavalry, on a boat thirty-five miles below here. After the cavalry landed they started for Sand Creek, which was fifty miles distant. The colored troops, after marching all night, arrived at the above named creek at half past five the next morning, where they stopped to get breakfast, but while they were building a fire they were attacked by a force five times their number. They fought over an hour before the cavalry came up; if the cavalry had not come at the time they did, our troops would have been compelled to give up. The colored troops fought bravely. The cavalry was surrounded once when the colored troops cut their way through to them. They had the rebels whipped at two different times, if they had had men to guard the flanks while they rallied. The cavalry took five prisoners and they say that their loss is two hundred and fifty, while the colored troops lost forty and a good many wounded. The cavalry lost one killed and one wounded—the one that was killed was acting as guide for the colored troops. The colored troops lost their Colonel, Adjutant, Surgeon, Chaplain, and twelve U. S wagons, and quite a lot of ammunition. The battery lost a Captain. The way the Government wagons came to be left was, the mules were killed. The rebels followed them ten miles. Sand Creek is ten miles from here.

Well, I have wandered from my subject, but will commence again. As soon as they were all in, we started, but did not number three hundred privates. Marching about four miles, we received orders to return; on our way we met quite a number of the wounded and part of the dead officers. When we got back in camp we stacked arms on the color lines where they remained till morning. Three companies were ordered to get their rations for one day and support the batteries in case of an attack in the night, but no attack was made. The Colonel is becoming very unpopular in the regiment, and if he is not more accommodating he will get but very few of the regiment to re enlist. We lost two of our boys yesterday and two to day, which makes nine we have lost since we came here G.

The Rebels Gathering Wheat

It is stated that the rebels, instead of coming into Maryland to be threshed themselves, are threshing out the wheat harvest in the Shenandoah Valley, where they have several threshing machines at work at various points. The Republican says that "officers of Hunter's command, who recently passed through the Valley of the Shenandoah, state that the crops there are very abundant, and that success in harvesting and conveying away even a fair proportion of them would further pay the enemy for all the toil and losses of their present expedition."

THE Congressional Convention for the First District has been called to meet in Owatonna, on Saturday, the 30th inst..

The following are the delegates elected from Mower County, J. S. Lacy, S. Smith and C. J. Shortt.

The following is the State Central Committee, appointed at the recent State Convention at St. Paul.

C. E. Petitt, of Hennepin

No Revolt of Prisoners.

It appears that there has been no serious outbreak among the rebel prisoners confined at Elmira. A few days since, several hundred turbulent and desperate prisoners were forwarded to that place, and the officer in command, finding it difficult to control them, requested Gen. Dix to send forward two or three regiments of militia to serve as a guard, and on Tuesday Gov. Seymour ordered the Forty-sixth, Seventy-seventh, and Ninety-seventh regiments to report to Gen. Dix for this purpose. Later telegrams indicate that the danger was not so great as was at first represented.

D. BLAKELY. Secretary of State, who is now at Fortress Monroe, has written a letter to Gov. Miller, in which he states that nothing can be made by recruiting negroes in the rebellious States. Military commanders are opposed to it, and the field is so full of Eastern agents who have larger bounties to pay than Minnesota can afford, that he believes it to be labor lost.

Grant Must be Defeated.

The Richmond Enquirer sees through all the thin disguises of Copperheadism, blind as it may be as to Southern policy and measures. It cordially accepts the Democracy as a national ally of the Rebellion, and urges them that, if they would win, they "must do their very uttermost to weaken the Federal Army." It tenders them this advice:

> In fact, the Democrats of the North who have waited four years, not too patiently, trusting to regain the power and profit which they but lately held to be a Democratic inheritance, must naturally be provoked beyond endurance at this audacious attempt of Lincoln and Seward to ride rough shod over them four years more. We learn that the Democrats are universally turning their thoughts to Franklin Pierce and the Connecticut Seymour as their nominees for President and Vice President. To give them the best chance for electing one of those two candidates of peace, Grant must be defeated, the invasion must collapse and die out, and the very name of war must become a word of horror, uttered with loathing and execration. Therefore it is the interest of the Democrats to do their very uttermost to weaken the Federal Army, discredit Federal finance, in short to extinguish the party which invented the war and that governs it and lives by it.

This is precisely what they are doing.

The Situation at Petersburg.

"Carleton," the well informed correspondent of the Boston Journal, writes from Grant's headquarters, July 18th:

"It is my firm conviction that the prospects of crushing the rebellion have never been so bright as at the present time. It is my calm, deliberate judgment, based on the following reasons:

1. Position. Grant is close to his base of supplies He is striking at the spinal chord of Lee's communications.

2. Present preparations. I am not at liberty to state what they are, but the army is not idle, although lying still. I can only say that if big guns and mortars and gunpowder are of any value, Lee will have enough to do to keep his lines intact during the month of August.

3. The determination of the men. They mean to take Peterburg. Their elasticity of spirits is wonderful.

4 Gen. Grant's obstinacy and persistence, and expectation. He expects to take it. It is not an expectation without cause. He has weighed the matter He is laying out his work intelligently and deliberately. Those men usually succeed in building towers who count the cost. In this connection I recall the words of Admiral Foote, as we sat in the cabin in his gunboat after the taking of Fort Henry: "I knew I should take it. I weighed every circumstance, thought over all the possibilities, told the men to keep cool, take good aim, fire slow, but to keep firing!"

Capt. Winslow prepared to meet the Alabama—fixed his cables to protect his machinery, kept cool, fired slow, but kept firing! Semmes acted differently, and we have the result. Gen Grant is a man of the same stamp. He has set himself deliberately to break Lee's connections with the South. It has been his object in every movement of this campaign. There is but one great chance for failure—want of men. Now is the time to aid him—now is the time to strike a decisive blow. Let the call of the President for troops meet with a hearty, spontaneous response. Give Grant the troops he needs now, and this gigantic struggle will speedily come to and end."

In response to an inquiry, the Internal Revenue Bureau has replied that wines made of berries and sugars, without the infusion of distilled spirits, are subject to tax as manufactures, viz: five per centum ad valorum. When distilled spirits are used, the tax is fifty cents per gallon.

TELEGRAPH NEWS.

SUMMARY OF WAR NEWS.

SHERMAN.

NEW YORK, August 6—The Richmond Examiner of the 3d has a dispatch from the rebel Gen Iverson, which says that Gen. Stoneman has surrendered to him with 500 men.

A dispatch dated Griffin, Ga., July 30, says that Atlanta has been furiously shelled for two days, and early that morning Cheatham was attacked. The Union force was easily repulsed, with no loss to the rebels.

A Union raiding force captured Fayetteville on the 9th ult., burned wagons, tore up tracks &c.

LOUISVILLE, Aug. 6.—A letter dated one mile from Atlanta, 31st ult., from a prominent officer of the Union army there to another here, says. Fires burning now in Atlanta indicate that Hood is destroying a large amount of property, but whether with a view to evacuation or not, is unknown.

The Herald's special from Nashville, 5th inst. says: Latest from McCook's expedition is highly encouraging, and lessen the extent of the disaster. McCook, with 1,200 men, reached Mariette; 300 reached there before. The missing will not exceed 800. Sherman alluded to this raid as successful.

All quiet in front.

GRANT.

The World's army correspondent of the 5th says the 2d division of our cavalry under Gregg, attacked the rebel cavalry vigorously, inflicting severe loss. Our loss was about 75.

This afternoon Lieut Fox, 2d U. S colored regiment, deliberately murdered a negro soldier, and is under arrest.

FORTRESS MONROE, Aug 4.—Advices from the front report all quiet since the late battle. The extremely hot weather for the past week the thermometer averaging 100 deg in the shade, precludes anything like active movements.

Nearly all the wounded from the battlefield to the hospital at Old Point and many have been sent to different hospitals in the North.

NEW YORK Aug 6.—The Commercial's Washington special says the National Intelligencer in an extended criticism, pronounced General Grant's campaign the most unsuccessful thus far undertaken.

Effectual measure have been taken by Grant to drive the rebels from the Cumberland valley.

FROM THE GULF.

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 30, 1864.—Information was received at the head-quarter of the Gulf, Thursday, that Faragut had passed forts Morgan and Gaines which had been supposed to command the entrance to the Mobile Bay, and is bombarding the upper defences. If the information is correct the Forts must speedily surrender. The Admiral has now six iron clads off Mobile and two more left this city to day. The bombardment has been continued three days, and it is expected that the city will surrender before the close of next week. Gen. Granger will command the land forces which will occupy Mobile, and garrison the forts, it perfect success crown the movements of Admiral Farragut as everybody here expects.

Farragut Past Ft. Morgan with his Fleet.

The Richmond papers contains the following in regard to the fight at Mobile;

Seventeen of the enemy's vessels—fourteen ships and three iron clads, passed Fort Morgan this morning.

The Tecumseh was sunk by Fort Morgan.

The Tennessee surrendered after a desperate engagement with the enemy's fleet

Admiral Buchanan lost a leg, and is a prisoner.

The Selma was captured. The Gaines was beached near the hospital.

The Morgan is safe, and will try to run up to night. The enemy's fleet have approched the city. A monitor has been engaging Fort Powell all day.

NEW YORK, August 9

Commercial's Washington special says there is great excitement at the Navy Department over the news from Mobile Blockade running at Mobile will be broken up, and several of our best gunboats relieved from duty there. The Tennessee was supposed to be the most powerful ram in the world. The sinking of the Tecumseh is discredited Buchanan is the only Admiral in the rebel Navy.

From the Upper Potomac.

BALTIMORE, Aug. 8, 9 45 P. M.

It is reported here that a force of rebels were crossing the Potomac yesterday beyond Hancock, and were going in the direction of Wheeling

Some authorities say that Early is being re-inforced by Longstreet's corps and that Wheeling is the point to be attacked. We have no means of ascertaining the reliability of this report, but think it rather unreliable.

A letter from the Army of the Potomac dated Saturday morning says the rebels exploded a mine yesterday evening before dark in front of the 5th corps, but they did not dig within 15 yards of our works. No damage was done. They also attempted to make a charge, cheering loudly, but they must have been chagrined at finding themselves so far from our lines. Considerable firing was kept up for an hour. The enemy's loss was heavy; ours very light. All quiet this morning.

Questions of Exemption.

The National Intelligencer says the inquiry is naturally raised at this juncture, in prospect of the impending draft, whether those who under previous drafts have paid the commutation price of three hundred dollars, as prescribed by law, will be liable to the approaching draft, or whether that payment, made "for the procuration of a substitute," will exempt for the term of three years as effectually as if such substitute had been actually furnished by the drafted man. It is known that there was much question on this point when the enrollment law was first carried into effect, but we had supposed that all doubt or controversy in the matter was removed by the following official statement of Provost Marshal General Fry, made on the 1st of Nove during the last year, when, imm ately in prospect of the New election, and in answer to ce representations made by Mr. Richmond and Mr. Peter Ca ge. wrote as follows:

WASHINGTON, November, 1, 1

Ro C l. Robt Nugent, A A. P. M. Gen

The representations made by Richmond and Peter Cagger, printed circular dated Septembe in respect to the action of the Pr Marshal General, are untrue.

It is not true that the State of York is charged as with a defici of every citizen who has paid $300 commutation money recei no credit therefor. On the contr the State receives credit for a who has paid commutation the sa as if the drafted man had gone in person or furnished a substitute. In like manner, towns which have raised money to pay commutation receive the same credit as if actual substitutes had been furnished; and the President has ordered that every citizen who has paid the $300 shall receive the same credit as if he had furnished a substitute and is exonerated from military service for the time for which he was drafted viz: three years.

As the misrepresentations of Dean Richmond and Peter Cagger have been circulated and published for electioneering purposes, it is proper that you give them immediate correction.

JAMES B. FRY,
P. M General.

As it is impossible to conceive that Provost Marshal General Fry could have made such a statement without authority from the President, or without knowing the truth of what he affirmed, it follows that "every citizen who has paid the $390 will receive the same credit as if he had furnished a substitute, and is exonerated from military service for the time for which he was drafted, viz. three years." We believe he is entitled to this under the terms of the law, but the ruling of the President adds the weight of Executive authority to the natural interpretation of the statute.

The Indian Campaign.

The St. Paul Press' correspondent has written a long letter to that paper for publication, from which we extract the following items of interest:

The Second brigade is still commanded by Col. Thomas, and consists of the Minnesota troops with which he started from Fort Ridgley. Gen. Sully's whole force, therefore, makes up an aggregate of more than four thousand men, not including any of the mule drivers, teamsters, and other attaches.

The erection of Fort Rice will be started at once, on a high and beautiful plateau on the west side, and sufficient force left to finish and protect it. Gen. Sulley selected the site of the fortification, and it certainly seems to be located in a very advantageous position, both as regards its topographical strength and its proximity to timber.

Several of the steamers here in the employ of the government, are to proceed to the Yellow Stone river, and a fort will also, no doubt, be erected on that stream, as such a report is current, and this upward movement of the vessels, with supplies, gives it plausibility

It is perhaps well to mention here, that it is believed in some quarters that the pursuit of Indians is a secondary consideration of the Expedition. If they are encountered they will be punished, or treated with, of course; but a road to the gold mines will be opened at all events No escort will be furnished to the Idaho party now here, because the Expedition itself will go as far towards the mines as the mouth of Big Horn river; from which point onward, there is said to be no danger from Indians.

'Lay me Down and Save the Flag.'

Details have been received of the fate of Col Mulligan During a charge on the rebel lines at the battle of Winchester he was shot in the shoulder and thigh A squad of his men attempted to carry him off the field, when the rebels, who were pressing our lines, came charging on and colors of Mulligan's (Irish) brigade were endangered. Mulligan said to the squad which was carrying him, "Lay me down and save the flag."

The men refused, when he again commanded them to lay him down, this time more peremptorily. He was laid down and fell into the hands of the rebels. A flag of truce was sent to endeavor to learn of his condition, and if dead, to secure his body. His wife accompanied the flag of truce; I have not yet learned with what success.

O. S. RATHBUN, late county treasurer of Waukesha county, who removed to Northern Missouri, it is rumored was murdered near his residence, having his throat cut from ear to ear. Supposed to be the work of guerrillas.

Gen. Hood's supersedure of Johnston may be regarded as highly opportune to our cause at Atlanta. Sherman's trouble, from the very start, has been to get the rebels to stand up to an open fight. Johnston's policy was to avoid fighting, unless he could have the advantage of fortifications, so as to make a sure thing of . And it has been true, as a general thing, in the campaign, that the army which has attacked the other has been the one to be beaten. As Sherman could not afford to sacrifice men in butting them against WONDERFUL TRAVELING.—Col. Moore, Superintendent of the Terre Haute Railroad, lately accomplished one of the most extraordinary feats of railroad traveling on record. THE cheerful sounds from the American Organ, manufactured by S. D. & H W. Smith, lights up vividly that which is divine in sacred or other music. It is a Multum in parvo and should be supported as a commercial enterprise of great value. For Churches, Sunday Schools, and Lodges, they are cased in oak. For Parlor, Boudoir or Drawing-room, in Rosewood and Black Walnut. The prices range from $80 to $450. W. W. Kimball, 142 Lake street, Chicago, Wholesale Depot for the North-west.

OUR QUOTA.—We learn from enrolling officer Keene, who has just returned from Rochester, that the quota of this sub-district, including Medo, was sixty eight. He succeeded in getting Medo detached from this district which leaves our quota only sixty two. On Marshal See's books we are credited with sixty seven men, which leave us five ahead over all calls. We are yet, we understand, to receive credit for six officers appointed from civil life, which would increase our excess to 11.

A list of 22 exempts together with the number that Mr. Williams succeeded in getting struck from the list, will greatly increase our excess. To be safe from future calls we advise the draft Committee not to relax their efforts to get exempts stricken from the enrollment lists.

Capt. See requests us to state that the quotas of towns will not be made out until after the 15th inst. We shall then receive a list of the quota of every town in the county.

THE SHOOTING MATCH.—Well, the much talked of shooting match is over. "We've met the enemy and we're theirn." "Owing to the inclemency of the weather," as our Captain hath said, we permitted them to beat us. The match came off on Tuesday, one of our hottest days, and resulted in Capt. Finch's party bagging 248 chickens, and Capt Shoemaker's party 173, showing that we were beat out and out. (Jerusha! Who'd a thought it?)

The hunters claim that it was the hottest day for hunting they ever experienced. Before the day was half over their dogs were tired out and one of the party was sun struck.

We were unable to be present at the supper which came off at the Mankato House on Wednesday evening, but understand that it was a "high old time," greatly to be coveted. Since the supper, we learn that all the participants claim exemption from the draft, on the plea of gibosity.

School Exhibitions.

The district Schools of Butternut Valley, Judson, and all of South Bend except the village, will meet in the grove near the dwelling house of John Francis, in the town of Judson, on the 16th day of August, 1864; those in Watonwan, Vernon and Cerresco will meet at Garden City on the 17th; those in Shelbyville will meet in the grove near the residence of James Miller, on the 18th; those in Sterling Mapleton and Danville, will meet in Conrad's Grove, near Lake Lura, on the 23d; and those in Lime Jamestown, LeRay, McClellan, Mankato, and the Village of South Bend, will meet at Mankato, on the 25th of August The exercises will commence at 9 o'clock A M and will be confined to the examination of scholars in the studies which they have pursued, reading essays, declamations, singing, &c. Speakers will be in attendance to address the schools and patrons. The Committee will attend and award three grades of premiums based upon the thriving condition of the school.

It is hoped the ladies will provide repast for the occasion, and interest the meetings with their presence

Decisions of Provost Marshal Averill Regarding Change of Enrollment.

ACTING ASS'T PRO.-MAR. GEN.'S OFFICE,}
ST. PAUL, MINN., July 1, 1864.}

Capt. H. See, Provost-Marshal First District of Minnesota:

CAPTAIN—As many inquiries are made with reference to change of residence and liability to the draft, I deem it proper to invite your attention to the following facts and rules, for your government and action in such cases:

1. Every man owing military service should expect to be enrolled and be liable to draft in some place Wherever his proper residence may be at the time of enrollment he may expect to be liable to draft.

Should he subsequently change his residence and wish thereby to change his liability to service, he may report himself promptly to the Board of Enrollment of the district into which he moves and claims a bona fide residence, and must produce satisfactory evidence to said Board of Enrollment that he has made such change in good faith. The Board of Enrollment will then enter his name upon the roll of said district, and furnish him a certificate thereof, and serve due notification on the other Board of Enrollment concerned

2. It should be fully understood that if a man changes his residence and neglects to report himself, as above expressed, in order to be properly placed upon record, he will be liable to draft in the town or sub-district only where he was first enrolled. This right of change of enrollment and liability to draft is applicable in any bona fide change of residence either from another State to this, or from one town to another within the State

3. It must be remembered that he who desires such change of enrollment should do it at the first possible date Should such action be delayed until after the Board has formed and reported the proper draft quotas, the application could not be received, because a man anxious to escape from his liability to duty, could, upon learning the quotas and credits of different towns, change his residence at will into some sub-district which may have furnished so largely in excess on former calls as to render such sub-district free from draft and thus avoid all liability to service.

I am, Captain, very respectfully, your obedient servant,
JOHN T. AVERILL.

BRANDRETH'S PILLS—They expel the poisons which threaten life Every time a sick person is purged by this vegetable remedy, he has less vitiated humors and more life and vigor, as any one can prove by taking a single dose. Persons of spare habits gain flesh and strength while using them. Every time we rest a few days or weeks from the purgation, we make new fluids from our food, which replace the unsound ones that the Pills have caused to be evacuated. Each time we repeat this process, we expel further quantities of impurities, which are again replaced by fluids less and less impure so that in a short time, by continuing this treatment, we bring the whole mass of fluids or humors to that state of purity which constitutes health, for Brandreth's Pills only take away humors which are unsound. Sold by Wickersham, & Kilgore Mankato Minn and by all respectable dealers in medicines. [1-4w.

R. HAYNES'

Portable Brace Fence!

PATENTED APRIL 7, 1863.

WE claim for this Fence greater strength and durability with less expense than any ordinary farm fence. No farmer who studies economy and convenience in the management of his farm will be without it. The First Premium was awarded to Mr. Haynes' Portable Fence, at the late State Fairs in Ohio and Michigan, and at several County Fairs. Read the following extract:

"Among the many things we saw on exhibition at the State Fair was Haynes' Portable Brace Fence. This fence seems to be a great improvement over most Fences of the kind. It is very strong, and is so braced that wind can have no more effect upon it, if as much, as upon a common rail fence. It is light, yet heavy enough for all farm purposes. Its cost is but little, and much labor is saved by using this fence, as it is easily put up, and in after years easily repaired. Every farmer ought to see this remarkable fence. We hope Mr. Haynes will be induced to exhibit it at our County Fair.—Medina (Ohio) Gazette.

Mr. H has also invented a mould or bench upon which this fence is made. By using this bench any farmer can make the fence at a rapid rate. Full directions for making the bench and the fence upon it accompany each deed. For farm or township rights address

CELEBRATED

STOMACH BITTERS.

A pure and powerful tonic, corective and alterative of wonderful efficacy in disease of the Stomach, Liver and bowels, Cures, Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Headache, General Debility, Nervousness, Depression of Spirits, Constipation Colic, Intermittent Fevers, Cramps and Spasms, and all Complaints of either Sex arising from Boodily Weakness whether inherent in the system or produced by special causes. Nothing that is not wholesome genial and restorative in its nature enters into the composition of Hostetters Stomach Bitters. This popular preparations contains no mineral of any kind, no deadly botanical element; no fiery excitant; but it is a combination of the extracts of rare balsamic herbs and plants with the purest and mildest of all diffusive stimulants. It is well to be forearmed against disease, and, so far as the human system can be protected by human means against maladies engendered by an unwholesome atmosphere, impure water and other external causes, Hostetters Bitters may be relied on as a safeguard. In districts infested with Fever and Ague, it has been found infallible as a preventive and irresistible as a remedy and thousands who resort to it under apprehensions of an attack, escape the scourge, and thousands who neglect to avail themselves of its protective qualities in advance are cured by a very brief course of this marvelous medicine. Fever and Ague patients, after being plied with quinine for months in vain until fairly saturated with that dangerous alkaloid, are not unfrequently restored to health, within a few days by the use of Hostetter's Bitters. The weak stomach is rapidly invigorated and the appetite restored by this agreeable Tonic and hence it works wonders in cases of Dyspepsia and in less confirmed forms of Indigestion. Acting as a gentle and painless apperent, as well as upon the liver, it also invariably relieves the Constipation superinduced by irregular action of the digestive and secretive organs. Persons of feeble habit, liable to Nervous attacks, Lowness of spirits and fits of Languor, find prompt and permanent relief from the Bitters. The testimony on this point is most conclusive, and from both sexes. The agony of billious colic, is immediately assuaged by a single dose of the stimulant, and by occasionally restoring to it, the return of the complaint may be prevented. As a general tonic, Hostetter's Bitters produce effects which must be experienced or witnessed before they can be fully appreciated. In cases of constitutional Weakness, Premature Decay, and debility and decrepitude arising from old age, it exercises the electric influence. In the convalescent stages of all diseases it operates as a delightful invigorant. When the powers of nature are relaxed, it operates to re-inforce and re-establish them. Last but not least, it is the only safe stimulant, being manufactured from sound and innocuous materials, and entirely free from the acid elements, present more or less in all the ordinary tonics and stomachics of the day. No family medicine has been so universally, and it may be truly added, deservedly popular with the intelligent portion of the community, as Hostetter's Bitters. Prepared by Hostetter and Smith, Pittsburgh, Pa. Sold by all Druggists, Grocers and Storekeepers everywhere. 23

Poetry.

The New-Laid Egg.

Be gentle to the new-laid egg,
For eggs are brittle things;
They cannot fly until they're hatched,
And have a pair of wings.
If once you break the tender shell,
The wrong you can't redress;
The "yolk and white" will all run out,
And make a dreadful mess.

'Tis but a little while, at best,
That hens have power to lay;
To-morrow eggs may addled be
That were quite fresh to-day.
Oh! let the touch be very light
That takes thee from the keg!
There is no hand whose cunning skill
Can mend a broken egg.

Oh! touch it with a tender touch,
For, till the egg is boiled,
Who knows but that unwittingly
It may be smashed and spoiled.
The summer winds that 'gainst it blow,
Ought to be stilled and hushed;
For eggs, like youthful purity,
Are "orful when they're squashed."

A Pig in the Fence.

Did you never observe, when a pig in the fence,
Sends forth his most pitiful shout,
How all of his neighbors betake themselves hence
To push him ere he gets out?
What a hubbub they raise, so that others far
May know his condition, and hence
Come running to join them in adding a scar
To the pig that is fast in the fence.

Well, swine are not all the creatures there be,
Who find themselves sticking between
The rails of the fence, and who strive to get free,
While the world is still shoving him in;
Who find that the favor they meet with depends
Not on worth, but on dollars and cents;
And 'tis few that will prove themselves friends
To the pig that is fast in the fence.

Official Examination of the Grand Secretary.

Full Admissions as to the Strength, Intent and Designs of the Order of American Knights.

INTERESTING REVELATIONS.

[From the St Louis Democrat Aug 5.]

The busy tongue of rumor has been wagging freely within the last week past, as to the motives which influenced, or causes which produced the release from the military prison on Gratiot street, of certain gentlemen who were generally understood to have been arrested and confined there for the active part they have taken in the secret conspiracy which has recently been brought to the light of day.

Among those so relieved were Charles L. Hunt, on a bond for $10,000, with surety to appear for trial; Charles E. Dunn, on a bond for $5,000, and Green B. Smith, on a bond for the same amount,

All of these gentlemen, it was announced, on being released, taken the oath of allegiance.

These singular proceedings unexplained from any source, gave rise to various surmises as to what could have induced the military authorities to release these men under such circumstances, or what could have induced the latter to take the oath of allegiance when arraigned for trial. It now turns out that these men were the highest officers of the order in the State, Hunt being the grand Commander, Dunn the Deputy Commander, and Green the Grand Secretary; and that on discovering that Col. Sanderson, the Provost Marshal General, was in full possession of all the secrets of the order, and that there was, therefore no use in them any longer to attempt to conceal its secrets by persisting in perjured statements with regard to themselves, they resolved to ask for a re examination, which was given them, in which each acknowledged his former statement to be untrue, and acknowledged the existence of such an order, his membership of it, and truly answered all questions put to him in regard to it.

The following is the examination of the Grand Secretary, with the exception of such portions as the interests of the military service and the ends of public justice require to be withheld from the public at the present time:

Green B. Smith, of lawful age being duly sworn, deposes and says:

That he was born and raised in St. Louis county, State of Missouri, and is by occupation a clerk; has been clerking for Messrs. Grimsley and Company since 1850.

Q. When were you arrested? A. The 28th day of may 1864.

Q. Have you been examined under oath since your arrest and incarceration? A. I have.

Q. Were the answers by you given under that examination in reference to a secret political organization, correct? A No, sir, they were not.

Q, What induced you to withhold the facts under that examination? A. A solemn oath and the influence of other parties implicated with me.

Q. What is the nature of that oath, and what the influence of other parties? A. I took an oath not to reveal facts connected with a certain secret organization, under penalty of death, and the influence of members of said organization has thus far prevented me from revealing the truth.

Q. State in what manner that influence has been exercised? A. Religiously and morally, I have been instructed to believe that the oath spoken of was binding, and paramount to any other consideration.

Q. Who has led you to that belief? A. My superior officers in the organization to which I am about to speak.

Q. What is said organization called? A. "Order of American Knights," recently changed to "Sons of Liberty."

Q. Where was you initiated? A. Corner of Fifth and Market, over Leitch's drug store, in the city of St. Louis,

Q. Have you been a member in good standing ever since? A. Yes, sir, I think I have.

Q. What is the number of the Council to which you have and do now belong? A. It never had a number but was called "The George Washington Temple.'

Q. How frequently have you attended said Temple since you were initiated? A. On an average about three times a month.

Q. Were these meetings held in the day-time or at night? A. Exclusively at night, with but two exceptions,

Q. Were those two exceptions special meetings? A. Yes, sir. The one I attended in the day-time was a meeting of the Grand Council, the other was an informal meeting.

Q. State when that Grand Council met? A. The 20th of January 1864.

Q. Was that a meeting of the officers of Missouri Temple exclusively? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What was the result of the deliberations of that Council in January last? A. An election of officers for the Grand Council of the State of Missouri, or an installation of such officers.

Q. How long was said Council in session at that time? A. Some three or four days.

Q. Was you a regularly delegated member of that Council. A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who presided at and over the deliberations of that Council? A. The Commander of the Third Degree of the State of Missouri.

Q Was the Deputy Grand Commander present on that occasion? A. No, sir, there is no such officer within my knowledge in the Missouri Temple. The Commander of the Third Degree of the East was there and presided.

Q. Is there a Commander of Third Degree, West? A. Yes, sir, He is second in command, and the Commander of the Third Degre, East, is first in command,

Q. Did you before you arrest, or do you now, hold any official position in this secret organization? A Yes sir.

Q. What is that position? A. Secretary of both second and third degrees.

Q. Under whose immediate instruction as secretary of the second and third degrees did you act in council? A. Under the respective commanders of those degrees, each degree having a commander.

Q State the number and names of the degrees of this order? A. There are five—1st, 2d, 3d, and 4th, or Grand, as it is called, and 5th, or Supreme.

Q. What is meant by Grand, and what by Supreme degrees? A. The Grand, or 4th degree, is the Council or highest degree of the State. The Supreme, or 5th degree, is the highest in the United States.

Q. How many of the degrees have you taken? A. 1st, 2d, 3d, and 4th, or Grand Council,

Q. What Temple did you represent in the Grand Council which convened in St. Louis in January last? A. The George Washington Temple of St. Louis.

Q. What are the initiatory steps taken upon entering this order? A. The first thing to be done is to ascertain his sentiments, and if in accordance with those entained by a member, he is immediately solicited to join, and taken to the ante-room of the Temple, or to a member's room, where the Neophyte is duly instructed according to the formulas laid down in that portion of the rituals to be found in pamphlet marked W. to V, to order of business 'inclusive.'

Q. What is requisite in taking the second degree? A Simply the recommendation of any member of the second degree, with two members to vouch for him. The same formula is observed in taking the third degree.

To enable him to take the fourth it is necessary that he should be elected to the Grand Council or fourth degree by the members of the first degree.

Q. What is requisite in taking the fifth or supreme degree? A. Members of the fourth degree are elected by the members of that degree, are then sent to the Supreme Council, where they are duly initiated and credited to the Grand Council or fourth degree.

Q. What is the grip sign of recognition and password to the fifth degree? A. The grip is giving by clasping the right hand with the index or fore-finger resting upon the pulse of each; the sign (the only genuine one) is made by shading the eyes with the right and the left hand placed upon the right breast, and the password I am unable to give, because each county has a distinct one, and is changed monthly.

Q. What words are used when the sign of distress cannot be seen? A. Aok-boun.

Q. What is the origin of the order of American Knghts? A. I have heard that it originated in the State of Louisiana, in 1863; also, that it extends back to the Revolution of 1776, having had a precarious existence to the present rebellion.

Q. What is the relation between this order and the so called Confederate Government? A. At the time I joined I understood that its object was to aid and assist the Confederate Government, and endeavor to restore the Union as it was prior to this rebellion.

Q. In what particular was aid and assistance to be given to the Confederate Government? A. In any and all ways, and at any and all times

Q. Do you know of any aid and assistance having been rendered by this order during your connection with it in the manner above spoken of? A. I know that arms and amunition have been purchased by members of the order to send to other members in the country where they could not be had.

Q. What kinds of arms are mostly furnished to parties in the country, by members of this order? A. Revolvers.

Q. Are they purchased or obtained in St. Louis? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is the ammunition also? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you know anything about advices in reference to the order having been sent to the rebel army? A. Of my own knowledge I do not, but have through members heard that constant communication was kept up between St. Louis and the rebel army.

Q. When was the revolutionary movement contemplated by this order, to have taken place? A. The advent of Mr. Vallandigham into the United States from exile.

Q. When were the members of this order first instructed to arm and prepare for this movement? A. In the summer or fall of 1863.

Q. In what manner was the Confederate army to co operate with this order? A. This order was to hold itself in readiness to act with the Confederate army upon its advent into the State.

Q. Who was to have command of men composing this order in Missouri, in that event? A. The Grand Commander of the State of Missouri.

Q. What disposition was to have been made of the officers commanding this department in that event? A. Treated as a common enemy.

Q This order is exclusively made up of disloyal persons, is it not? A. Yes, sir, all Democrats who are desirous of securing the independence of the Confederate States.

Q. Have you ever purchased any arms and ammunitions to supply this order? A. I have.

Q. What amount of each? A. Very little ammunition, perhaps two hundred revolvers in all.

Q. In what manner were they sent away? A. Some were delivered to the parties themselves, and some were shipped.

Q. Were not those so shipped nearly all sent to Northern Missouri? A. Yes, sir, nearly all of them.

Q. Were they purchased on regular permits, or clandestinely? A. Clandestinely.

Q. Were such arms shipped to fictitious parties, and the packages and parcels purporting to be anything else than arms? Sometimes to real parties, and sometimes to fictitious parties, and usually purporting to be merchandise.

Q. What is the number of this order in St. Louis? A. From 3,000 to 15,000 men.

Q. What is the number in the State of Missouri? A. From 40,000 to 60,000 men.

The address of Supreme Commander marked 'S.' being shown witness, is recognized as the production of P. C. Wright, copies of which he has seen in the office of Charles L. Hunt. There can be no doubt of Wright's being the author, from the fact that it was issued before Vallandigham was elected Supreme Commander of the order! The signature, P. Calas Urbanas, S. C., has a meaning that witness has never heard explained.

Q. Are any of the officers of this order salaried officers? A. I don't know; my impression is that the Supreme Commander receives a salary.

Q. Who first organized the order of American Knights in the State of Missouri? A. P. C. Wright of New York.

Q. Have you any knowledge of one Wm. M. Douglass? A. I know the man; have met him four or five times.

Q. Do you know if he has ever been legally authorized by said order to established temples in Missouri? A. Of my own knowledge I don't know, but my impression formed by remarks of members led me to believe he was.

Q. Is it not generally known that Wm. M. Douglass is an emissary from Price's army? A. I don't know; he became very unpopular with the order even before his arrest.

Q. Was Douglass active in organizing Temples in Missouri? A. I think he was, very.

Q. Was he not on very intimate and confidential terms with Charles L. Hunt, of St. Louis? A. Yes, sir; more so than with any other person in this city.

Q. Was there a secret police made up of members of said order, whose duty it was to ascertain the names of United States detectives, and if possible to baffle their efforts in apprehending rebels and members of said order? A. Of my own knowledge I can't say; but I heard through members that there was such police to be organized, but to be known only to the officers of said order, That would properly be the business of the excommander.

Q. Was the secret assassination of any United States officers, soldiers or Government employees proposed by any member or members of said order? A. I have heard it discussed in council and recommended.

Q. State what this order contemplated in the event of Price's invading Missouri this summer? A. The, or rather it, intended to unite with Price, drive out the U. S. forces and Union citizens, and appropriate everything belonging to the United States Government.

Has this order been arming and making preparations for that purpose? A. Yes, sir!

Q. Under whose immediate direction has this been done? A. The Grand Commander of the State of Missouri.

Q. Was this order to co operate with that of other States in the event of an invasion by Price? A. Until recently, yes, but latterly, independent and distinct of other States.

Q. What was the intention of this order in reference to the ferries here on the river? A. To initiate captains, pilots and engineers, and in the event of a movement, to take possession of them, and cross members of the order from Illinois and other States into Missouri.

Q. Did you ever have any conversation with Chas. Dunn. or Chas. L. Hunt, in reference to making public, under oath, your connection with the order of American Knights? A. Yes, sir. With both of them.

Q. State when, where and what that conversation was. A. In June last, at Gratiot Military Prison. I remarked to Mr. Hunt that I had concluded to acknowledge my complicity in this matter, and was willing to be tried upon the merits of the case. Mr. Hunt, said that would not do; I asked him why; he said, "you have taken a solemn oath never to reveal these matters; besides, there is," says he, "no necessity for such a step; there are no specific charges against you, but merely suspicion;" I informed Mr. Hunt that I should take care of myself—that the order had failed to protect me, and I had no one but myself to rely upon. Mr. Dunn agreed with me in adopting this plan.

Q. Have you withdrawn from said order? A. I have not.

Q. Was not Charles L. Hunt's office the headquarters of this order in Missouri? A. To all intents and purposes, yes, sir.

Q. Did you, while a member of said order, give aid and assistance to rebel spies, mail carriers and emissaries from the rebel States? A. In only one instance, I gave Newcomer, alias Thompson, a small sum of money, knowing him to be a rebel mail carrier. Rebel spies, mail carriers and emissaries have been carefully protected by this order ever since I have been a member. Previous to my arrest I heard, by and through this order, that the mail to and from the rebel army was very regular, with semi-monthly dispatches to the Grand Commander. A man by the name of Dorris, formerly of Jefferson City—a son of the Doctor—is used by this order in carrying mails. He was here when I was arrested, the 20th day of May last. One of the sepecial objects of this order was to place members on steamboats, ferry boats, telegraph offices, and in fact in every position where they could render valuable service.

Q. Is there any members in any or either of the positions above enumerated? A. In the express offices and one in the telegraph office, over the American Express office: There are plenty of them on the river.

Q. Have you ever heard any threats made by members of said order against any member who should divulge the secrets of said order? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What were these threats? A. That they would upon proof of the fact kill the man.

Q. What are the duties of the Grand Commander? A. Presiding officer over the lower degrees, and the ranking officer of the State.

Q. What, if any, knowledge have you of a meeting of the Supreme Council in the City of New York last winter? A. I know that the Supreme Council met in New York city last February, on the 22d, I believe, to elect a Supreme Commander.

Q. Was Missouri represented in that Council? A. Yes, sir.

Q. By how many delegates? A. Positively three and I think five.

Q. Who was elected Supreme Commander by that Council? A. Mr. Vallandigham.

Q. Was the order in this State satisfied with that election? A. No, sir.

Q. Who was the choice of Missouri? A. I am unable to state.

Q. Do you know whether or not a special meeting was held at Windsor, Canada, and if so when and by whom? A. Yes, such a meeting took place in the vicinity of Detroit,

Q What business was transacted at that meeting? A. A conference with Vallandigham, changing the name of the order and signs and grips.

Q Was Missouri represented at that meeting? A. Yes, sir,

Q. By whom? By the Grand Commander of the State of Missouri.

Q. Is not the order of American Knights hostile in every respect to the general government, and friendly to the so-called confederate government? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Has any contributions been made or proposed by this order with the design of assisting the confederate army in any way?

A. Yes, Sir, just before my arrest a proposition to raise money to purchase gun caps for the Confederate army was made and talked of among the members, but whether carried out or not I am not advised.

[List of members of the order is here given by the witness. This list of names is, for wise and prudential considerations, withheld from the public at the present time by the Provost Marshal General, and we are unable, therefore to publish it.]

Q. State what the prominent members of the order of American Knights have universally said in reference to the objects and purposes of said order in your presence? A When I first joined in the spring of 1863, S. L. Moses, then instructor of the order, informed me that it was a Democratic organization, gotten up for the benefit of those engaged in rebellion, and to unite the Democratic party proper, with the view of co-operation with the rebel army.

Q. When and where was said organization expected to co operate with the so-called Confederate army? A. In the event of invasion by the rebel army in Missouri.

Q. Were you not led to believe, after joining said order, by conversation with members thereof, that its objects and purposes were directly opposite of those of the General Government, and in direct hostility to said Government? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Were not the members of this order secretly plotting and conniving at the destruction of the General Government, and assisting through the agents of said order, with the view of establishing the independence of the so-called Confederate States? A. Yes sir.

Q. From the knowledge you have of said organization, do you not believe it to be thoroughly disloyal, and inaugurated for the purpose of defeating the objects of the present Administration in suppressing the present rebellion? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was it not generally understood by members of said order, that steps had been taken to inform the Confederate authorities that this order was friendly to the interests and policy of the so-called Confederate States, and ready and willing at any time to render any and all assistance in its power in the overthrow of the General Government? A. That was believed to be the object of those who gave direction to said order.

Q. Did not the members of this order secretly exult over the reverse of the Federal army, and at the succession of the so-called Confederates? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Were you ever present at any Temple or Council in this city where congratulatory speeches were made by members of the order at the success of the so-called Confederate army? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Please state when, where, and by whom such speeches were made. A. At all times in all councils and temples, and principally by——, of St. Louis.

Q. How were such speeches usually received by members of such councils and temples? A. With general satisfaction.

Q. Was it not a universal custom of those meeting at the councils and temples of this order to propose and take up a subscription for the purpose of buying arms and munitions of war with which to arm and equip the members thereof, with the design of placing it upon a war footing? A. Propositions of this kind have frequently been made, but whether successful or not I am unable to state.

Q. Was there not a project set on foot by members of this order to arm and equip all they could of the members thereof, at Government expense, to be used when occasion required against the General Government, and for the benefit of its enemies? A. Yes sir.

Q. When and by whom were said projects set afloat? A. At various, times, by members generally, during the past year. I would also state that the Grand Commander, Charles L. Hunt, and others, recommended that all members of said order enroll in the militia instead of paying their commutation, thereby obtaining arms and equipments and the benefit of militia service, which would enhance the interests of said order and materially injure those of the General Government.

Q. By what authority were you constituted an agent to purchase arms, ammunition, &c., &c., for the members of said order? A. There were no regularly constituted ones; every member became a self-constituted agent.

Q. Have the councils and temples been generally established throughout the State of Missouri? A. North of the Missouri river generally; know of none in Southwest or Central Missouri.

Q. What is the number of the organization in the State of Illinois? A. From report, from one hundred to one hundred and twenty thousand.

Q. What in the State of Indiana? A. About eighty thousand.

Q. What in the State of Ohio? A. About sixty thousand.

Q. Do you now recollect any names of members omitted by you yesterday in the list given by you? A. Yes, sir.

Q State them.

* * * * * * *

Q, What other prominent political men belong to said order whose names have not yet been given? A. I know of none. That class of men have been admitted privately and there are but one or two members of said order who do know them.

Q. Who of said order represented the Grand Council of the State of Missouri at the Supreme Council held in the city of New York last winter? A. Charles L. Hunt of St. Louis and Jefferson Jones of Northern Missouri, and three others whose names I do not know.

Q. Who of said order attended the special conference held at Vallandigham's hotel, in Canada, this last spring? A. Charles L. Hunt.

Q. You have spoken of your knowledge of a man by the name of Newcomer, alias Thompson, who was carrier of a rebel mail to this city—did he become known to you as an officer in the rebel service? A. No, sir.

Q. Did he become known to you as a member of the order? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You have stated that there was a general expectation that an attempt would be made to arrest Vallandigham on his reaching Chicago on the 4th of July, and to prevent him from making a speech there. Was the government to be resisted in the effort by the members of the order there assembled. A. There was a general understanding among the members of the order, that in case Vallandigham should return within the Federal lines, and an effort was made by the Government to seize or arrest him, such effort was to be resisted by the united action of the order.

Q. Is it the general conviction and belief of the members of the order that the penalty announced in the oaths which they take will be certainly executed on any member violating it? A. That is the general belief.

Q. Is it considered to be the duty of each member to execute this penalty upon the violator of the oath, or is there some particular person of said order, or officer, whose duty it is to enforce the penalty in such case? A. It is considered the duty of each member.

Q. The oath announces a shameful death; is there by that meant any particular form of death? A. None that I ever heard of.

Q. It being the general understanding of each member of the order, that it is the duty of each member thereof to enforce the penalty, what is the understanding as to the mode of doing it.? Is it to be done boldly and publicly and by force, or secretly by stealth? A. There was no particular mode or manner understood by he members; it was to be done at any time and at all hazards.

Q. Has there any case of the kind here or elsewhere come within your knowledge? A. There has not.

Q. Do you know of any instance in which a member supposed to have violated his obligation has been searched for or followed for the purpose of inflicting the penalty and taking his life. A. No, sir, I do not,

Q. What is the general view entertained by members as to the extent of the binding obligation of the oaths they take as members? Are such oaths regarded as paramount in their obligations upon them to those taken upon a witness stand before a civil or military tribunal? A. The general view among them is that the oaths they take as members are paramount in their obligation to any which they may be called upon to take, whether it be in courts of justice, before military tribunals, or in any other proceedings.

Q. With the knowledge you have, then, of the character of the order, how would you regard, if placed as a juror in the jury box on a trial for murder, the testimony of a witness who was a member of the order, if the prisoner arraigned was also known to you to be a member of it? A. It would have no influence at all.

Q. Can you state to me the number of temples in the city of St. Louis? A. I cannot. I believe there are only two of the 1st degree and two of the 2nd and 3d degree and a Grand Council.

Q. Have you any knowledge of the withdrawal of Mr. Hunt from the order before his arrest? A. Of my own knowledge; no. I have heard while in prison that he resigned in expectation of being arrested.

Q. Have you any knowledge on that subject in regard to Mr. Dunn? A. While in prison, Charles E. Dunn and myself were in consultation as to what course it would be best to pursue. He suggested resignation, if it could be managed. I told him to let the resignations go to the devil, and come right down on the ritual before the Provost Marshall. By this I meant a full acknowledgement of our relations to the order.

Q. Have you any recollection of ever having heard among the members of the order that there was any particular steamboat upon the river which it would be safe to ship contraband goods or to travel on. A. Yes sir.

Q. Is or is it not the universally accepted theory of the members of the order in substance this: that the chosen officers of the Federal Government have usurped authority, and that it is not only an inherent right, but an imperative duty for all who think as the members do, to resist those Federal functionaries, and if need be to oust them from power by force? A. That is my understanding.

Q. Is it not distinctly claimed by the members of this order, and so announced in the ritual, that such resistance is not revolution, but solely the assertion of right? A. Yes, sir I believe it is.

Q. I then understand that the principles of this order, as held by the members thereof, are such that if one of its members should assassinate Mr. Lincoln because of his alleged usurpation of power, such member's conduct would be justified by the entire order, and that it would be the sworn duty of all to keep secret the act and save him from being brought to trial and punishment for it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is the same principle recognized by them as applicable to officers acting under the authority of the President and obeying his order—such as commanders of departments, army, &c.? A. I think it is. It includes all military officers of the General Government.

Q. Mr. Smith have you of your own free will and accord, from your own sense of duty as a citizen, and without the solicitation or influence of any one, answered the foregoing questions, which have been propounded to you, in the manner you have? A. I have.

Q. Has this explanation at this time taken place in consequence of a letter addressed by you to the Postmaster General, requesting it to be made, and stating that it was your desire to answer all questions without equivocation or mental reservation? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You have done so with a view of placing yourself as far as possible in the position of a law-abiding citizen, and as I understand you now propose taking the oath of allegiance? A. Yes, sir.

Q. In so doing you understand yourself and mean to be understood, to renounce any and all obligations which you assumed as a member of the Order of American Knights, and to assume and perform all the duties enjoined by that oath? A. Yes, sir.

G. B. SMITH.

Subscribed and sworn to before me, this 2nd day of of August, 1864.

I. C. DODGE.

Lt. and Ass't Provost Marshall Gen.

FREEMAN TALBOT,.
M. T. C FLOWER,

The Judgeship.

The present incumbent of the Judgeship of this District is very sanguine of a re-nomination, and of the endorsement of his course by the people, The manner of his toadying around his "dear" German friends reminds us of a certain individual in a neighboring State who had Congressional aspirations. Before he received the nomination he did not know his poor friends. It so happened that he had two grindstones, and a neighbor desired to purchase one. But he would neither give, sell nor cause to be removed. After he was nominated he called on neighbor P. and told him he believed that he had spoken to him about a grindstone. He was perfectly welcome to it now, and could take it right along without any charge. Neighbor P. replied, "Mr. H, I don't want your grindstone; you can keep it, for you have more axes to grind than I have.' His Honor should learn a lesson and not be so lavish of his grindstones. He has more axes to grind than his dear German friends, and will need them.

Organize for Victory.

The fall campaign will soon be upon us, and the time to organize for victory is now. Put not off for to morrow that which should be done to-day. We are just entering a Presidential campaign that is fraught with great results. The life of the nation depends upon it. We are sure of an overwhelming victory if the lovers of the Union work with strong and willing hands. But it will not and cannot be won without hard labor. Every town should be thoroughly canvassed, and organizations should be perfected and kept up, A great deal can be done in this way to roll up votes for the Union. Do not, then, neglect to organize in your town and county.

"Minute Men."

Col. Smith has received orders from Gov. Miller to raise a company of minute men at this place, and one at New Ulm, and squads of 30 men each at Garden City, Vernon, Shelby, and Winnebago City. to assist in driving out the savages, and restoring quiet to our settlers. They are to furnish their own horses, and will receive $2.50 per day while in the service. The State furnish guns and ammunition. Major Evans went to St. Paul this week to endeavor to obtain saddles and some other equipments for their use.

Henry Ward Beecher for Lincoln.

Henry Ward Beecher has written a letter to a distinguished Indiana politician in Washington, in which he says:

"In the present exigency, in view of Mr. Lincoln's past Administration, the evidence he has shown, the moral purity of the man, the great and just confidence which the people put in him, the danger which there would be if he were set aside, of having it regarded as a popular rebuke of his policy, and the confidence that I feel that, through long learning, he has learned to govern, I am full and strong in my conviction that he should be our next President."

THE LEGACY OF A DEMOCRATIC ADMINISTRATION.—When Mr. Lincoln was inaugurated he received from his predecessor a country which was rapidly falling to pieces. Democracy sat in high places, and approved the disintegration then going on, and which it alone had the power to stop.

It however, put forth no effort to stay its progress. How far it had progressed, is thus stated by Edward A. Pollard, until lately one of the editors of the Richmond Examiner, in the following, which we quote from his "Southern History of the War:"—

"On the incoming of the administration of Abraham Lincoln, on the 4th of March, the rival Government of the south had perfected its organization; the separation had been widened and envenomed by the ami-dexterity and perfidy of President Buchanan. The Southern people, however, still hoped for the peaceful accomplishment of their independence, and deplored war between the two sections, as a policy detrimental to the civilized world.' The revolution, in the meantime, had rapidly gathered strength, not only in moral power, but in the means of war and muniments of defence. Fort Moultrie and Castle Pinckney had been captured by the South Carolina troops; Fort Pulaski, the defence of Savannah, had been taken; the arsenal at Mount Vernon, Alabama with twenty thousand stand of arms, had been seized by the Alabama troops; Fort Morgan, in Mobile Bay, had been taken; Forts Jackson, St. Philip, and Pike, near New Orleans, had been captured by the Louisiana troops; the New Orleans Mint and custom House had been taken; the Little Rock Arsenal had been seized by the Arkansas troops, though Arkansas had refused to secede; and on the 16th of February, Gen. Twiggs had transferred the public property in Texas to the State authorities."

If the party that complacently viewed the Union thus dissolving should come again into power, may we not reasonably expect it to permit that dissolution to be quietly completed?

The Court of Inquiry which assembled at the headquarters of the Army of the Potomac, to investigate the cause of the disaster, decided that on the account of the illegality of its appointment it had no power to examine witnesses or go into the merits of the question. The matter has, therefore, been referred back to Gen. Meade, and it is stated that he intends preferring cheages against Gen. Burnside, who, in that event, will have to be tried by court martial,—American,

The returns of the National Banks have been promptly made to the Treasury, and it is gratifying to hear that nearly all of them have an amount of lawful currency on hand in excess of the per centage required by law. This is something practical and it argues well for the success of the system instituted by Mr. Chase.

Indian Outbreak!

Two Men Killed and a Boy Wounded.

SETTLERS MISSING.

On Thursday last the community of Vernon Center was startled with the cry of "Indians," and as our readers have heard all sorts of rumors about this sad affair, we will give the facts, as they were related to us. About four o'clock on Thursday Mr. Noble G. Root, who lives two miles from Vernon, on the South side of the Blue Earth, and his two boys were in the field, very near the timber. loading oats, The boys were loading, and Mr. Root was pitching on, when one of the boys saw two Indians, and gave the alarm. So stealthily had been their approach that they were within two or three rods of the load before they were discovered. When Mr. Root first saw them he started towards them with his fork, or at least showed a disposition to fight, when the savages immediately shot him, inflicting a wound from which he died in about an hour. One of the boys escaped unhurt, and reached the house and alarmed the family, who made all haste for the place. The oldest boy, a lad of fourteen, received a very serious wound in the shoulder as he was running, but reached the brush unpursued, and as soon as the Indians left, started for the stockade.

The Indians unharnessed the horses, and with them started off, taking a due west course across the river to the Willow Creek settlement about a mile and a half distant. Here the rest of the party, seven in all were waiting, when they proceeded in their work of plunder, but did not seem disposed to commit any more murders, except where resistance was offered.

Their object seemed to be to obtain horses, and before leaving the settlements they succeeded in getting twenty-one, and started South-west from the creek.

They then went into the field of Mr. Hindman where Squire Mack was mowing hay with a machine, What transpired here is not fully known, but from the statement of some children who were not far off, it is supposed that Mr. Mack, who was a fearless resolute man, tried to prevent their taking his team. His reaper was broken to pieces, and scattered all over the field and the horses could not be found. His body was found Friday by Major E. P. Evans, with his face to the ground. In his breast were five gun shot wounds, either of which would probably have proved fatal.

The settlers in that region were greatly alarmed, and sought safety by collecting at the stockade at Vernon to the number of several hundred,

As soon as the intelligence reached Garden City Major Evans organized a small party and started in pursuit, He went into several of the houses in the vicinity of where the depredations were committed, and found them deserted, and some of the furniture broken up.

Soon after finding Squire Mack's body he noticed the grass moving in a swamp close at hand. His party surrounded the swamp, and the men marched boldly up, though some of them had no arms. It was thought the Indians were concealed there, but it proved to be a woman and five children.

Messengers were sent to the towns of Shelby, Ceresco, Winnebago City and Fairmount, and to Col. Pfaender at Fort Ridgley.

Friday evening a company of militia left this place for the scene of action, and Col. Smith dispatched a messenger to Gov. Miller, who at once interested himself in our behalf, and waited upon Gen. Sibley to see what forces were at his disposal to send to our assistance. Twenty men of Co. K. 2nd Cavalry, and twenty of Brackett's Batallion, were ordered here and arrived Tuesday noon and reported to Col. Smith, who immediately started them out on the trail of the Indians.

In the meantime, a small force started from the Fort and followed another trail. The Press says of it:

A small detachment of the Second cavalry under Captain Smith, eight men in all, also started from Fort Ridgely that morning, and striking a third trail made by the retreating Indians, between the other two, pursued it all day, and finally came up with the Indians late in the afternoon.

The Indians who were mounted at once fled, pursued by our men. There were about eight of the Indians—just equal to Capt. Smith's squad. The Indians finally hid under the bank of the lake, and protected by this earthwork fired several shots at our men, which were returned.

Capt. Smith, not having force enough to storm their position, sent a messenger back to Fort Ridgely for help, and placed his men around the spot in a circle, about 200 yards apart, so as to watch and enclose the Indians.

An hour or two after nightfall, the Indians broke through our line in a body, near where an orderly sergeant sat hid in some weeds. He fired at them, and in doing so, his horse broke from him, and followed the Indians. Our men pursued them two or three miles and recovered the sergeant's horse, and a colt, rode by an Indian, with a bed coverlet for a saddle. It is supposed that the Indian that rode this colt was wounded.

The squad then retraced their steps, and returned to the post. The squad in command of Col. Pfænder had not been heard from. The Mankato company returned home on Sunday night, having found only some camp fires of the Indians, and a horse of Mr. Root, who was killed on Thursday. They also discovered some articles of female clothing, which may have belonged to prisoners.

Late Tuesday evening Col. Pfeander arrived in town with intelligence that his scouts had discovered the presence of a considerable force of Indians in the vicinity of Lake Shetek, about 100 miles west of here. It was thought there were about one hundred savages.

Ample preparations are being made to drive them off. A company of minute men has been organized here which will be ready to march at a moments notice to aid the settlers whenever needed.

The presence of two Indians seen in the vicinity of Shelbyville Tuesday morning, threw the settlers into a panic of excitement. Soldiers have been dispatched there to hunt them up and just "nicely kill" them.

There were vague rumors Wednesday that Indians had been seen in the neighborhood of Butternut Valley, but we do not credit them.

Col. Smith called out a portion of the militia under Capt. Collins, and with them started Wednesday for the frontier.

Up to this Thursday morning, we have no later intelligence of Indians than that contained in the above.

The New York World states that all the new lines of telegraph working between Washington, New York, Boston, Chicago and other Western cities, have been consolidated in one company, under the name of the United States Telegraph Company.

This includes the several corporations known as "Independent," "United States" and others, with a capital stock for the new corporation of about $2,000,000. James McKay is President of the new corporation.

Rumors and Views from Washington

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.

The Commercial's Washington special says, I hear that Gen. Grant has some important movement in view, not proper to indicate now. A large number of transports have been sent down the river, and it is surmise that they are to assist in removign Gen. Grant's troops. A large body of cavalry has been brought here. A heavy movement up the Shenandoah Valley is looked for soon. Gen. Hood is supposed to have been largely reinforced, and the capture of Atlanta may be prolonged.

The Richmond Examiner says Chambersburgh was ordered by Gen. Early to be burned in case $100,000 was not paid as remuneration for damages done by Hunter and Butler.

Gleason's New Publishing House—No. 22 Summer Street.

A few days since we visited this spacious and magnificent new publishing house. For extent and convenience, we think this establisment unrivalled. All apartments, offices and operating rooms are admirably arranged, well lighted and ventilated, and warmed by steam; in a word, there is nothing wanting to render the entire building just what it is intended to be—a model publishing house. On the basement, or first floor, are several large, powerful steam presses, boiler and engine, engineer and fireman's department; and there the heavy mechanical part of the work is done. The cost of the machinery on this floor alone, must have been over $50,000. Four large presses are constantly running on the immense edition of "Gleason's Literary Companion," a paper universally acknowledged to be the best literary journal of the present age. On the second, or street floor, is situated the cashier and head bookkeeper's department, and the grand business hall, where the packing, directing &c., is done. On the third floor, one flight up, is the editorial sanctum, proof reading room, publisher's office, &c, all furnished with elegant rose wood furniture, velvet carpets, &c. On the fourth, or next floor, are a suite of rooms devoted to the artists, designers and engravers. On the fifth floor are the composition rooms, where the papers and books are put in type. On the next and upper floor is the book bindery;—altogether forming the most extensive thorough and complete establishment of the kind in New England.—Saturday Evening Gazette.

It is understood at the Treasury that a six twenty loan is about to be issued, the interest to be paid in gold. This cannot fail to be a favorite source of investment for all persons who have money in a large or a small way to put at interest.

NEW STOCK YARDS.—The new stock yards of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy R. R. Co., in Chicago, are being fitted up in the most extensive and convenient manner, and will add greatly to the facilities for receiving and shipping stock of all kinds. Four of Fairbank's stock Scales, forty-two feet long, and wide enough to weigh an entire car load at once, are being built in the yards, so that all stock received or delivered can be promptly and correctly weighed.

An account of the rebel ravages at Chambersburg says the immense paper mills the flouring mills, the ax factory, the chair factory, the carriage factory, the distillery and brewery, and all the places of business that gave employment to the poor, are swept away: The court house, the printing offices, the city hall, the bank, and all the hotels are gone.

The finest private residences, two churches, and all the stores are destroyed. Reckoned at present prices, the loss was not less than four millions of dollars.

The first sitting of the Peace Conference of Vienna took place on the 26th of July. Herr Von Bismark was in Vienna, and was to take part in the peace negotiations. The Chambers of the Kingdom of Wurtemberg have unanimously resolved to protest against the occupation of the city of Rendsburg, in Holstein, by Prussian troops, and to request the Government to oppose, in conjunction with other States, this violence with the necessary means.

TELEGRAPH NEWS.

FROM GRANT'S ARMY.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—The mail boat from City Point to-dad reports that on Saturday afternoon a body of our troops embarked on transports at City Point and moved up the river.

During the night, under cover of the fire of the transports, they effected a landing near Dutch Gap. The object of this movement is stated to be the dislodgment of a considerable force of the enemy, who had entrenched themselves on the river, and possibly, also, as a reconnoissance to ascertain what troops Lee has before Richmond and if he is sending any considerable reinforcements to Early.

Heavy firing was going on when the Vanderbilt left, both cannonading and musketry.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—[World's special.]—Plenty of rumors are in circulation here to-day in regard to the movements of the different armies in Virginia, most of which are undoubtedly without foundation. There seems to be little doubt however, that important changes are going on in the disposition of the rebel forces, which, of course, must cause corresponding movements on the part of the Union armies, which will take some time yet to be developed.

The Herald's City Point correspondence of the 14th says but little fighting occurred for a week past, until yesterday morning. About 6 A. M. heavy guns were heard in the direction of the deep bottom, and some time furious cannonading was kept up all day. The attack was commenced by the enemy and proved to be an attempt to dislodge, with their artillery, certain working parties of ours that seemed to have just discovered.

Later—Important Movement.

BALTIMORE, Aug. 16.—The following news is published in the afternoon edition of the American:

BERMUDA HUNDRED, Aug. 15.—The 2s corps of Hancock's division were going on board transports at City Point all day, apparently for Washington, and started down the river with bands playing gaily.

Of course the rebels were watching from the shore and no doubt felt much interest in the movements.

The transports did certainly go down the river for ten miles or more when, however, they put about, and under cover of darkness returned, coming up by this place, under full speed at 10 P. M. and proceeding up the river.

At the same time the 10th corps with the artillery of the 2d corps were crossing to the north side of the James River and were all landed within twelve miles of Richmond before 3 o'clock this morning.

Thus far all works well. Musketry firing was heard in the direction of this movement this morning.

There was but little hard fighting done.

Gen. Hancock accomplished his end by skillful maneuvering and a surprise, and consequently our loss was small—it being considerably less than one hundred.

Our troops have now gained an important position within two miles of Fort Darling.

The Commercial's Washington special, says Hancock was to move to Ball's Bluff yesterday, on the north side of James River and to the left of the rebel lines.

If successful, this movement will necessitate either the evacuation of Richmond or Petersburg, as Grant will then in a position to bring his forces to bear upon either. It is said some rebel mortars were also captured.

NO MAN, says the St. Louis Democrat, ever yet saw an American who hated slavery yet upheld the rebellion: and no one ever saw an American who justified and wished to perpetuate slavery, who had not at least a sneaking tenderness for the Rebel cause. For all practical purposes, the rebellion and slavery are related as mother and child.

ESCAPE OF GEN. FRANKLIN.

A Remarkable and Thrilling Adventure.

A Masterly Flank Movement on His Captors.

BALTIMORE July 14, 1864.—Maj-Gen. Franklin arrived safely in this city about 3 o'clock this morning, as was anticipated from the information received yesterday, and is now at Barnum's Hotel resting from his fatigue and exposure.

The following is a brief account of his capture and escape: He was seated in a car, at the time of his capture, along side of a Lieutenant-Colonel, when a rebel Colonel came in the car and addressing himself to the wounded officer said: "Are you Major-General Franklin?" He replied that he was not, and gave his name and rank. Gen. Franklin was in citizen's dress, but the rebel also put the question to him, and he frankly answered that such was his name and rank.

There was no doubt in the mind of Gen. Franklin, from the rebel interrogation, that he had been pointed out to the rebels by some of the passengers.

The rebel Colonel said, "General, I am happy to see you." The General replied, "I cannot say that I am pleased to see you under the circumstances."

About ten minutes afterward, Harry Gilmer came into the car and addressing himself to Gen. Franklin, said: "General you will consider yourself my prisoner."

Gen. Franklin was then put into a carriage, and, with other prisoners, driven through the country, stopping a while at Towsontown, and then moved across to Reistertown, where they arrived about one o'clock on Tuesday morning and immediately bivouacked for the night.

The General was put into the custody of Capt. Owen and two guards, who were charged with his safe keeping. Expressing himself as sick and weary, he immediately laid down and feigned sleep. Soon after the Captain and his guards laid down, and he listened anxiously for indications of sleep on their part.

He had not to wait long before he heard the guard nearest to him commence to breathe heavily, momentarily increasing in violence and profundity, until it became sufficiently loud to wake any ordinary sleep.

The Captain and the other guard had, in the meantime, also commenced to breathe rather heavy, and the General continued, with his ears open, to feign sleep. He laid in this way for some time, until all three gave unmistakable signs of sleep.

Fearing that they were playing "possum," he got up and walked carelessly around them, moved over to the fence, and still noticed them. He then coughed loudly, and made considerable noise, thinking that they wanted an excuse to shoot at him, as each man was laying with their right hand grasping the muzzles of their rifles.

The indications of profound sleep being so unmistakable on the part of all three of them, he now thought he would test the sincerity of their slumbers by jumping the fence. This he did, and on looking back could see no movement of this dusky forms of his wards, and off he shot across several fields, jumping the fences, and keeping straight ahead in the direction he thought would take him toward the city.

He ran about three quarters of an hour, when he entered a thick wood, and in his weakly state, being really broken down by fatigue, sought a place of concealment.

He remained concealed for the balance of the night and all the next day, frequently seeing from his hiding place the rebel scouts searching for him, and searching the bushes and the woods.

Finally, about sun set, almost famished for want of food, he ventured out, having come to the conclusion that freedom and starvation was nearly as bad as being a prisoner.

He still kept in the woods, howewer, and soon saw two men moving toward him, carrying large bundles of hay. He walked up to them, and asked what they were doing with hay in the woods, when one of them replied: "We have hid our horses in the woods, to keep them out of the hands of the d——d rebels, and we are going to feed them."

This reply was a sufficient indication of their sentiments, and he immediately made known to them the circumstances of his presence in the woods, and who he was. They greeted him most kindly and cordially, dropped their hay and conducted him by a secluded route to their farmhouse, where he was most kindly and hospitably received by the family.

SHERMAN.

Crossing of the Chattahoochie—Destruction of Important Mills.

IN THE FIELD NEAR THE CHATTAHOOCHIE, July 10, 1864—5 A. M.—Yesterday the 23d corps, Gen. Schofield, effected a crossing of the Chattahoochie and secured a lodgment on the high grounds beyond the river. In the affair they met with no serious opposition and were reported last evening as having captured a rebel general. To properly understand the importance of this success it will be necessary to explain.

Below the railroad bridge, the Chattahoochie makes a sharp bend to the southward and almost in a northerly direction forming a point of land called by the natives "the peninsula." In the rear of this peninsula is the crossing—Turner's Ferry—which the rebels have been using since their evacuation of the Kenesaw line. This ferry is covered by the high grounds about Dan Turner's house and the Nicojack Creek. By the fault or failure of some one the rebels secured this position and fortified it without opposition. Yesterday Hardee's corps held this position—"the peninsula." His left and left center was covered by the Nicojack, a stream not fordable, and his whole line thoroughly entrenched. Across the the Chattahoochie the bank of the river at this point rises quite suddenly to a bluff which follows the course of the stream from the railroad as far down as Campbelltown. The divisions of Hood and Loring having crossed the river, occupied and fortified this high ground. In fact it is believed that the works had been previously constructed in anticipation of this retreat. So much of these works as are contiguous to the Peninsula cover the ground held by Hardee. Leggett's division of the 17th corps, which moved on the 8th down the Sandtown road, and up the left bank of the river to Nicojack, and thus obtained an enfilading fire upon the redoubt and riflepits at Turner's house, found themselves under the fire of no less than fourteen guns from the works on the opposite bank of the river. It will thus be seen that the tete du pont held by Hardee, with the entrenched position of Hood and Loring's corps covering it and extending to its right and left, constituted a very strong defensive position. It is immaterial now whether any one is to blame for its occupation by the rebels. The fact is sufficient, and military men will one day settle the exact amount of responsibility which attaches to it.

The rebel lines across the river seem to have been selected upon the theory that Sherman would attempt his passage of the river at Turner's Ferry, and on the Sandtown road. Schofield having effected his crossing, threatens the rebel right, and it would seem that unless Johnston chooses to accept battle in his present position, Hardee must be withdrawn to the left bank of the river. In that event it will be optional with Sherman whether to cross his army at the pontoons of the 23d corps and pursue his own course by the left hand road toward the right of Atlanta, or threaten the right of Johnston's present line, forcing him out of his works and compelling a battle north of Atlanta. In either view it is quite obvious that Sherman's strategy has been quite as successful as at any previous position during the present campaign. Before this reaches you, the telegraph may probably announce important results. In anticipating success by an explanation of our present position, your readers may more readily understand the process by which it shall have been achieved.

The destruction of the mills at Roswell proves to have been a very severe blow to the Confederacy. In addition to the flouring mills, which were very complete and extensive, there were large and well-appointed mills for the manufacture of cloths. The regular monthly product of these establishments was 30,000 yards of cotton and 15,000 yards of woolen goods, principally such goods as were used by the army. The machinery, which was of the best and most approved patterns and inventions, was made at Patterson, New Jersey. The mills were thoroughly destroyed. The operatives, some three hundred women, are thus thrown out of employment, and will be sent North, if they wish. It is understood that nearly all of them will avail themselves of this opportunity.

Secretary Fessenden and the Bankers of New York.

Secretary Fessenden has retured from New York without money, or the promise of money from the associated banks. His negotiations with them fell through, whatever the ostensible reason, because of their absolute inability to furnish the twenty millions required, there being but fifteen millions in greenbacks in New York city, the balance having been sent West to purchase produce. The banks being unable to lend money, offered to lend their credit, but the Secretary considered that he had no power to negotiate such a loan, and felt unwilling even if he had the power to use it. He was urged, from some quarters, to take measures to make the money market easier, but replied to the contrary, that he would endeavor to make it tighter, so as to reduce the price of gold, and the necessaries of life, and those articles which the Government must purchase for the army. He will have recourse to a popular loan, probably at six per cent, preferring to sell long bonds at or even below par, to a further inflation of the currency. The advertisement for this loan may be expected to appear before many days. In the meantime, thanks in a great measure to the new tax, we are fully able to supply present needs. Fifteen millions of dollars were disbursed yesterday, and, we are assured, that the next weekly statement of the public debt will show a reduction instead of an increase of the amount of unpaid requisition, and a decrease, also, of the amount of notes in circulation, more 5 per cent coupon paper having been withdrawn than compound interest paper issued.

The Schleswig-Holstein War.

The armistice between Denmark and the German Powers expired on the 25th of June. On the following day, the 26th, at 6 o'clock in the morning, hostilities were recommenced, the Prussians opening fire upon the Island of Aslen. On the 29th, at 2 o'clock in the morning, they commenced the construction of pontoon bridges to Alsen. One hour later they were completed, and at 4 o'clock the first Prussian soldiers landed on the opposite side. The iron-clad Ralf Krake, which was to prevent the crossing of the sound was twice repulsed, and slightly injured. The Danish troops which bravely disputed the landing were beaten back, and the Prussians soon found themselves in possession of the entire Island. Two small Danish vessels were blown up to prevent capture, while one ship of war and three gunboats escaped. The Danish loss in killed, wounded and prisoners was very heavy, the number of the latter class alone amounting to 2,400. The Prussian loss is reported to have been 300 in killed and wounded.

The next operation of the Prussians will be an attack upon Fuhnen, the second largest of the islands that constitute Denmark proper. The sound which separates this island from Jutland is as narrow as that between Alsen and Schleswig; and, as there are no longer any fortifications like Duppel, on the opposite side, in the possession of the Danes, we shall probably ere long hear of the occupation of the island by the Prussians.

—Late Mexican advices say that Maximillian had invited President Juatez and other liberal chiefs to come to the City of Mexico and consult together on a plan of restoring peace and the firm establishment of the Empire, guaranteeing them full protection and safety. It is said they all refuse to hold any communication except by arms with the agent of Napoleon.

The Emperor has taken up his residence at Chapulte, twenty-five miles from the Capital. No Minister is as yet appointed to the United States.

Proclamation by the Governor.

To the People of Minnesota.

By his proclamation of July 18th, 1864, the President of the United States calls for Five Hundred Thousand (500,000) volunteers, to strengthen the armies in the field, now engaged in suppressing the rebellion, and in restoring the authority of the United States Government in the insurgent States.

And "immediately after the 5th day of September next, a draft for troops to serve for one year, will be held in the town, township, ward of city, precinct, election district, or county not so subdivided, to fill such quota which shall be assigned under said call, for any part thereof which may be unfilled by volunteers, on the said fifth day of September, 1864.

Such volunteers will be received for one, two, or three years, and will be paid a Government bounty of $100, for each year for which they may be respectively mustered into the service; and they will doubtless be permitted to attach themselves to such of the old Minnesota regiments, as they may severally prefer.

By the act of Congress of July 4th, 1864, it is provided, "That it shall be lawful for the Executive of any of the States to send recruiting agents into any of the States declared to be in rebellion, except the States of Arkansas, Tennessee and Louisiana, to recruit volunteers under any call under the provisions of this act, who shall be credited to the State, and to the respective subdivisions thereof, which may procure the enlistment."

The Hon. David Blakely, Secretary of State, will immediately repair to the City of Washington, to secure and protect the rights of the State, under the said act of Congress, and to promptly communicate to the people of Minnesota through this Department, all such information as may pertain to their duty and interest in the premises. And upon application of the proper authorities, I will confirm the appointment of all such agents as they may indicate, on behalf of any county, town, ward or precinct within the State, to recruit on behalf of such sub-division, within the said States declared to be in rebellion.

I earnestly invoke from the patriotic people of the State, a renewed and united effort to place her proportion of these five hundred thousand men, beside the gallant Minnesota veterans now in the field.

STEPHEN MILLER.

EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT,
St. Paul, July 19, 1864.

The City and County.

Official Paper of the County.

WM. S. KING, of the State Atlas, has purchased the paper mill at St. Anthony.

The Legislative District Convention has been called to meet at Mankato on the 29th inst., at 3 P. M.

THE Democratic County Convention meets in Mankato on the 25th of August, and the Legislative Convention on the 29th.

OLD PAPERS FOR SALE.—We have on hand a large quantity of old papers for sale cheap.

WE have prepared an article on our "Frontier Defences, and Mode of Indian Warfare," but have no time to put it in type for this issue.

THE LADIES' NATIONAL.—One of best remedies for driving away the blues that we know of is to peruse Peterson's Magazine. The September number is very interesting, and those who have not subscribed for it should lose no time in doing so.

HARPER FOR SEPTEMBER.—We have had the satisfaction of reading this sterling monthly again. The present number is unusually interesting, and we commend it to all who love good reading.

PROCURED BAIL.—James Burns, of the Mail robbery notoriety, has procured bail in the sum of one thousand dollars, and has been discharged from custody. His trial will take place at the October term of the District Court in St. Paul.

A MELON-CHOLY SUBJECT.—We understand that watermelons have made their appearance in our market, If somebody don't wish to get severely paid for some they had better keep away from our office. It makes us feel melon choly.

NURSES FOR THE ARMY.—We understand that eight or ten ladies in and about Shelbyville and Winnebago, have offered their services as nurses in the army. The mission in which they propose to engage is a noble one and we wish them God speed.

GRASSHOPPERS.—We learn from Mr. Owens of [illegible] that the grasshoppers have [illegible] that place, and are making fearful havoc in the potatoes, beans and onions. The ground is literally covered, and the air is filled with them. They are traveling in a right direction to visit Mankato.

BOUNTIES.—Vernon Center has voted a bounty of two hundred and twenty-five dollars to volunteers to fill her quota.

At a special meeting held in Sterling township last Saturday, a bounty of two hundred and twenty-five dollars was also voted to each volunteer.

Alfred Turner, of Tivoli, will accept our thanks for a nice mess of potatoes.

Also Mr. Crosby, for a bunch of the flowering cactus, a plant brought by him from the Missouri river, and which grows along its banks in endless quantities. The color of the flower is a bright vermillion red.

TOWN CAUCUSES.—To-morrow afternoon the several towns in the county elect delegates to the County Convention. We hope our Union friends will not underrate the importance of our County Convention and send down full delegations of true men. The Convention meets next Wednesday in this place.

CAST CAST STEEL PLOWS.—Our friend John, of the hardware store has received a supply of Collin's Cast Cast Steel Plows. They are just the thing our farmers want, as they are warranted to scour in any kind of land. Call on Meagher and get one.

ARTHUR'S MAGAZINE FOR SEPTEMBER.—This fascinating Monthly opens with a beautiful steel engraving entitled "The Love Letter," which is followed by six pages of patterns for the ladies. The interesting story "Out of Nothing," in two chapters, is very good. Arthur gets up an attractive Magazine, and should be well patronized.

INFORMATION CONCERNING THE DRAFT.—By reading a notice elsewhere published it will be seen that persons seeking information on matters pertaining to the draft, exemptions, liabilities to draft, credits and accounts of men furnished, are directed to address their letters of inquiry to Provost Marshal See at Rochester, if they reside in the first District.

BROWN'S BRONCHIAL TROCHES.—A depot is opened in London for the sale of these Lozenges, which have been so long in use in America for relieving Asthma, Bronchitis, Coughs Throat Disorder and Affections of the Lungs.—Liverpool Post.

GARDEN CITY NURSERY.—Mr. C. P. Cook, the proprietor of this Nursery, intends to remove all his trees, plants and shrubbery to Rapidan, the new town site recently laid out by him, this fall, and desires to dispose of as many as possible now, so as to save re-setting. He has a large number of varieties, of a hardy growth, and offers them at very low rates. He is making arrangements to have a first class nursery, and is bound to succeed.

CURE FOR A FELON.—As soon as the part begins to swell, get the tincture of lobelia and wrap the part affected, with cloth; saturate it thoroughly with tincture, and the felon is dead. An old physician says he has known this to cure in scores of cases, and it never fails if applied in season.

IN the American Organ, manufactured solely by S. D. & H. W. Smith, you will discern a stupendous sound, and then again when desired, so plaintive and yet so grand. It is truly unsurpassable. The Keys are detailed to do their duty with a fullness quite refreshing. They can be had in Rosewood, Black Walnut, or Oak, finished, from $80 to $450. W. W. Kimball, 142 Lake street, Chicago, Wholesale Depot, for the North-west.

BROWN'S BRONCHIAL TROCHES are offered with the fullest confidence in their efficacy; they have been thoroughly tested, and maintain the good reputation they have justly acquired.

For Military Officers and those who often over-tax the voice, they are useful in relieving an Irritated Throat, and will render articulation easy. To the soldier exposed to sudden changes in the weather they will give prompt relief in Coughs and Colds, and can be carried in the packet to be taken as occasion requires.

PORTABLE BRACE FENCE.—We call attention to the advertisement of Hayne's Brace Fence. This fence, which we have heretofore spoken of, is fast working its way into public favor. Every farmer who has seen it, and understands the manner of making it has expressed himself highly pleased with it. It is stronger, more durable, and can be made cheaper than any fence ever in use.

A GOOD BOARD.—Nearly every person who has been to Rochester and appeared before the Examining Board unite in speaking in terms of the highest praise of the entire Board. The gentlemanly treatment they received made warm friends for Captain See, and Messrs. Cole and Mayo. We venture the assertion that there is not a more honest, capable and popular Board in the West.

CORRECTING THE ENROLLMENT LIST.—The enrolling officer who made out the list in Sterling, from some cause, failed to put down all the able-bodied men; who were, in consequence disfranchised from participating in the draft. Suspecting something wrong, Mr. Russell procured a copy of the enrollment list, and submitted a correct list to the recent town meeting. The result was that fourteen names were added to the list. This will increase the quota of Sterling, but will make it easier for her to bear her burdens provided she is overtaken with the draft.

AUCTION SALE.—Capt. Davies sold at auction on Wednesday, the condemned commissary stores at this place. There were 30 bbls flour at $2; 19,500 lbs hard tack at $1, per 100 lbs; 18 bbls pork at $7,50; 6 bbls beans at $1 per bbl; parts of four bbls coffee, total amount $10,50; 1 bbl dried apples for 25 cents; 31 hams for $3,50. The sale of the lumber is not yet advertised.

STORIES THAT GROW.—We heard a rumor on the street yesterday that two Indians had been seen near town. Shortly after we again heard it, with the addition that some one had talked with them, and that they had stated that they were not going to kill the settlers, but wanted their horses, and that they should remember Mankato. Two or three additions were made shortly after, that four children had been killed near town, that the citizens were sending their families away, and that the town would soon be attacked, because the big gun had been taken out and got ready. Pshaw! how foolishly frightened people will get when there is no cause for it.

GETTING READY.—Our citizens are determined to be ready for any emergency which this part of the State may have to meet. Every one is engaged in cleaning his "shooting iron. Wednesday afternoon several citizens, by order of Col. Smith, dragged out the old six pound cannon, and gave it a good cleaning. There is an abundance of ammunition with which to use it. The report of the rifle has been frequent all day. Fortunately, we are better supplied than when the outbreak occured two years ago.

SALE OF A WATER POWER.—Mr. C. P. Cook has sold his water power at Rapidan, on the Blue Earth river. to Messrs. Bullis & Sloan, for $800. This includes forty acres of timber land on the east side of the river. This is a very low figure for such a valuable power, but Mr. C. says his object is to have the place improved, and not hold it for a big price. The purchasers intend to put up a stone grist mill with four run of stone, and we understand have agreed to have it completed one year from this fall. A new impetus will thus be given to this town-site, and the mill will prove a great convenience to farmers.

SALES OF REAL ESTATE.—There has been considerable activity in real estate the past week, and a number of sales have been made.

Ray & Potter sold the north-west half of section 9, town 107, to a Mr. Just, and the west half of the same section to a Mr. Jones, for $1,833.

They also sold the south-east quarter of section thirty-two, town 107, to Mr. Bloom, of Wisconsin, for $800.

J. H. Ray sold half a section in town 107 to L. Dyer for $2,000.

Mr. Dyer has disposed of his interest at the Agency to a gentleman from Washington.

T. E. Potter sold the south-west quarter of section 11, town 107, to F. Stratton for $1,200. This is the old Andrews' claim about which there has been so much lawing.

Isaac Marks sold two lots and a half on Mrs. Van Brunt's estate to J. H. Ray, for $325.

CELERITY OF MOVEMENT.—The small party of mounted militia, that left here last Friday evening in pursuit of the Indians, returned Sunday noon, having traveled over one hundred and fifty miles. Mr, B. D. Pay, the special messenger sent by Col. Smith with dispatches to Gov, Miller, left here the same evening, and returned Sunday evening having traveled one hundred and eighty miles. He was detained in St. Paul over six hours, But the fastest traveling we have yet to record. The company of cavalry under command of Lieut. Darrow, sent here by Brigadier General Henry H. Sibley, to pursue, capture, and "neatly scalp" the Indians, left the Fort Saturday evening, and arrived at Mankato the next Tuesday noon, having made the distance of ninety miles in two days and a half. If this isn't fast traveling, then tell us what is. That Lieut. ought to have a leather medal "neatly sculped." He'll catch Indians! Oh yes, he'll catch 'em.

PERSONAL.—J. H. Ray, of the firm of Ray & Williams, of Garden City, starts for Michigan, next Monday, on a visit to his friends, and will be absent four or five weeks. Keep out of mischief John.

A. T. C. Pierson, of St. Paul, has been stopping in town for the past few days. We believe he is the Grand Master of the Masonic order in the State, and reports the order in a flourishing condition.

We were pleased this week, to receive a call from our old friend, Sheldon C. Carey, who has recently become associated with the Winona Republican. He is visiting this section of the State with a view to establishing agencies for the circulation of the daily Republican. That paper now publishes a morning edition, containing all the latest telegrams, and gives us news twelve hours in advance of the St. Paul dailies. So soon as the railroad is finished to Rochester it will give us still later news. It should be well patronized by our citizens, who wish to take a good daily. The subscription price per quarter is only $1,75, twenty-five cents cheaper than the St. Paul dailies. Subscriptions will be received at this office.

THE

Singer Sewing Machines.

Our LETTER A FAMILY SEWING MACHINE is fast gaining a world-wide reputation. It is beyond doubt the cheapest and best and most beautiful of all Family Sewing Machines yet offered to the public. No other Family Sewing Machine has so many useful appliances for Hemming, binding, Felling, Tucking, Gathering, Guaging, Braiding, Embroidering, Cording and so forth. No other Family Sewing Machine has so much capacity for a great variety of work. It will sew all kinds of cloth, and with all kinds of thread. Great and recent improvements make our Family Sewing Machine most reliable, and most durable, and most certain in action at all rates of speed. It makes the interlocked stitch, which is the best stitch known. Any one, even of the most ordinary capacity, can see at a glance, how to use the letter A Family Sewing Machine. Our Family Sewing Machines are finished in chaste and exquisite style.

The Folding Case of the Family Machine is a piece of cunning workmanship of the most useful kind. It protects the machine when not in use, and when about to be operated may be opened as a spacious and substantial table to sustain the work.—While some of the Cases, made out of the choicest woods, are finished in the simplest and chastest manner possible, others are adorned and embellished in the most costly and superb manner.

It is absolutely necessary to see the Family Machine in operation, so as to judge of its great capacity and beauty.

It is fast becoming as popular for family sewing as our Manufacturing machines are for manufacturing purposes.

The Branch Offices are well supplied with silk, twist, thread, needles, oil, &c., of the very best quality.

BRANDRETH'S PILLS.—They expel the poisons which threaten life. Every time a sick person is purged by this vegetable remedy, he has less vitiated humors and more life and vigor, as any one can prove by taking a single dose. Persons of spare habits gain flesh and strength while using them. Every time we rest a few days or weeks from the purgation, we make new fluids from our food, which replace the unsound ones that the Pills have caused to be evacuated. Each time we repeat this process, we expel further quantities of impurities, which are again replaced by fluids less and less impure, so that in a short time, by continuing this treatment, we bring the whole mass of fluids or humors to that state of purity which constitutes health, for Brandreth's Pills only take away humors which are unsound. Sold by Wickersham, & Kilgore, Mankato Minn. and by all respectable dealers in medicines. [1-4w.

SEC. 4. And be it further enacted, That the mail steamships employed in the service authorized by this act shall be exempt from all port charges and custom-house dues at the port of departure and arrival in the United States; Provided, That a similar immunity from port charges and custom-house dues is granted by the government of Brazil.

HOSTETTER'S

CELEBRATED

STOMACH BITTERS.

A pure and powerful tonic, corrective and alterative of wonderful efficacy in disease of the Stomach, Liver and bowels, Cures, Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Headache, General Debility, Nervousness, Depression of Spirits, Constipation Colic, Intermittent Fevers, Cramps and Spasms, and all Complaints of either Sex arising from Boodily Weakness whether inherent in the system or produced by special causes. Nothing that is not wholesome, genial and restorative in its nature enters into the composition of Hostetters Stomach Bitters. This popular preparation contains no mineral of any kind, no deadly botanical element; no fiery excitant; but it is a combination of the extracts of rare balsamic herbs and plants with the purest and mildest of all diffusive stimulants. It is well to be forearmed against disease, and, so far as the human system can be protected by human means against maladies engendered by an unwholesome atmosphere, impure water and other external causes, Hostetters Bitters may be relied on as a safeguard. In districts infested with Fever and Ague, it has been found infallible as a preventive and irresistible as a remedy and thousands who resort to it under apprehension of an attack, escape the scourge, and thousands who neglect to avail themselves of its protective qualities in advance are cured by a very brief course of this marvelous medicine. Fever and Ague patients, after being plied with quinine for months in vain, until fairly saturated with that dangerous alkaloid, are not unfrequently restored to health, within a few days by the use of Hostetter's Bitters. The weak stomach is rapidly invigorated and the appetite restored by this agreeable Tonic and hence it works wonders in cases of Dyspepsia and in less confirmed forms of indigestion. Acting as a gentle and painless aperient, as well as upon the liver, it also invariably relieves the Constipation superinduced by irregular action of the digestive and secretive organs: Persons of feeble habit, liable to Nervous attacks, Lowness of spirits and fits of languor, find prompt and permanent relief from the Bitters. The testimony on this point is most conclusive, and from both sexes. The agony of bilious colic, is immediately assuaged by a single dose of the stimulant, and by occasionally resorting to it, the return of the complaint may be prevented. As a general Tonic, Hostetter's Bitters produce effects which must be experienced or witnessed before they can be fully appreciated. In cases of constitutional weakness, Premature Decay, and debility and decrepitude arising from old age, it exercises the electric influence. In the convalescent stages of all diseases it operates as a delightful invigorant. When the powers of nature are relaxed, it operates to re-inforce and re-establish them. Last but not least, It is the only safe stimulant, being manufactured from sound and innocuous materials, and entirely free from the acid elements, present more or less in all the ordinary tonics and stomachics of the day. No family medicine has been so universally, and it may be truly added, deservedly popular with the intelligent portion of the community, as Hostetter's Bitters. Prepared by Hostetter and Smith, Pittsburgh, Pa. Sold by all Druggists, Grocers and Storekeepers everywhere. 23

Mob in Ottumwa, Iowa—A Murderer Taken Out of the Jail to be Hanged.

[From the Ottumwa Courier]

Yesterday was an exciting day in Ottumwa. It was the day on which B. A. McComb was sentenced to be hung, and on which he would have been hung had not an appeal to the Supreme Court stayed the proceedings and postponed the execution.

During the forenoon it was noticed, that people in unusual numbers were coming into town, until by noon the streets were crowded. The people did not seem excited, no threats were made, and in fact up to this time nothing transpired to indicate any unlawful purpose on the part of the assembled multitude, estimated to amount to 2,000 men, women and children. The citizens generally supposed that the crowd, unapprised of the postponement of the execution, had come in impelled by curiosity to see McComb hung.

About twelve o'clock, however, impelled seemingly by a common purpose, the crowd gathered about the jail, and the leaders, confined to some dozen persons, avowed their purpose to get hold of the prisoner, McComb, and hang him. Sheriff Derby was at his post and resisted the execution of their purpose to the best of his ability, knocking down some two or three of the ringleaders. He also called for assistance, and was assisted by a few. Senator Dixon, Judge Hendershott, Hon. E. H. Stiles, and Capt A. A. Stuart addressed the crowd, urging them to desist, and let the law take its course.

All however, had no apparent restraining effect. A woman mounted the fence, and made an exciting harangue, urging on the mob; and saying if they would leave it to the women they would attend to it themselves. A vote was taken, which was decided to be in favor of the hanging. A rush was now made for the front door of the jail, one fellow brandishing a sledge hammer. But Sheriff Derby and the few assisting him made such effectual resistance that it is probable the attempt might might have been foiled had not part of the crowd gone round to the back side of the building, and knocking off two or three boards of the fence surrounding the yard, effected an entrance, after which, with sledge hammer, the outer door was broken open and then the locks in the ceil in which McComb was confined were broken, and the prisoner dragged out. He asked for an hour, which was given him, to prepare for death.

A clergyman was sought, and he was finally taken into the Catholic Church and baptized by Father Kreckle, the crowd following. After this he was led down town by way of Court and Front streets to the corner of Market and was then placed in a wagon and started, accompanied by an immense multitude, it was given out, for the other side of the river near where the remains of the girl were found, but if such was the purpose, it was changed after half the crowd had forded the river, and they finally moved off down Front street. They went out about a mile on the Agency road, where preparations were commenced for the execution. A rope was tied around the neck of the prisoner. Some speaking and some fighting among the crowd followed. After a short halt, facilities for an execution were not deemed satisfactory, and they crossed over the ridge and halted under a bent tree, but the ground was so uneven that it was difficult to keep the wagon stationary. They finally, however, got the rope adjusted. McComb assisting, and were about throwing it over a limb. Before this was done, however, McComb requested permission to make a few remarks. He said: "I have the rope around my neck as you see, and have only a few moments to live, but I am an innocent man. If you will give me until the next court I will prove that George Lawrence is living, and that I did not murder Laura Harvey." At this point a cry was raised all through the crowd, "take him back," "take him back," , accompanied by the cry of "hang him," "hang him." The leaders fearing that the tide was turning, said that it was getting late and they could wait no longer. An attempt was made to throw the rope over the limb, but while this was being done several resolute men, some of them from Ottumwa, jumped into the wagon, and seizing the rope attempted to wrest it from the executioners. A short struggle for the possession of the rope followed, when some one called out "cut it." No sooner said than done. The rope was cut, McComb hustled out of that wagon into another and driven rapidly to town, where they arrived a little after six o'clock, and lodged McComb safely in his old quarters again.

During the evening, the Sheriff, assisted by a detachment of the "Guards," arrested six or eight persons, recognized as leaders of the mob, lodging some in jail and releasing others on bail.

Neat Premises.

A great difference may be observed in good farmers, so far as keeping their premises in neat and finished order is concerned. With some, no weeds, briars or bushes, are seen along fences, no gates off their hinges, and no tools out of place or exposed to the weather. Others, successful in most particulars, are careless in these and similar respects.—This is doubtless owing to the force of habit, partly from a slovenly mind, and partly by undertaking more than they can well accomplish. As a general rule, the neat farmer is the most successful one—this we have observed in a large numbers of instances, and the exception is probably not one in twenty. The reason of this is that the man of order and energy, qualities required for the best success, carries out his ideas of order in all their details, and does not do a smart thing in one place and a stupid thing in another.

It, however, sometimes happens that order and neatness are neglected because everything is not thought of at the right time. To obviate this diffiulty, every owner or manager of a farm should carry a small memorandum book in his left pantaloons pocket, where it will always be at hand whether he throws his coat off or not. Wherever he passes he will, of course, have both eyes open, and everything which he sees out of order or requiring attention which he cannot instantly rectify, he should at once enter in his book—such for instance, as a broken gate, latch, a board knocked off the fence, a harrow left in the field, a patch of thistles left uncut, a burdock and a bunch of elders growing in a corner of the fence, a wagon with a defective linchpin, a weakened strap in his harness, and a hundred others matters of a similar character. The first day that can be spared either by himself or one of his best workmen, should be devoted to putting these things all in order with the memorandum book or a copy of it before him, where everything is crossed out as fast as they are completed.

By adopting this course as a regular system, the whole premises would soon be found to have assumed a neat and satisfactory appearance, and, as a matter of economy, no labor will probably be so well expended.—Country Gentleman,

Pass Him Around.

A man who will wantonly violate a moral obligation is a ripe subject for 'treason, strategem and spoils,' Lazarus was a man of sores in his day, but not of that leprous nastiness that daily exudes from that open sepulcher of filth known as the La Crosse Democrat. The following from the LaCrosse Republican is direct and to the point. Read it:

WIDOW MAKERS.—President Lincoln is daily denounced in the columns of the Democrat as a 'murderous widow maker.' The vulnerable Editor of that paper whose moral vagrancy is too loathsome for discussion in a public newspaper has had a good deal to say about 'widow-makers.' What does this impious and base wretch mean by thus casting his insolence upon his betters? Does he not know that he has outraged public decency in this community to a degree that has taxed the tolerance of his fellow citizens? Is he not aware that the sores of Lazarus were cleaner than the mouth of the dog who thus endeavors day by day to infuse his poisonous virus into the body politic, while barking and yelping at men whose good names ought never to be called in question by such an outlaw?

Who is a 'widow maker' of such infamous and intolerable wickedness as the faithless and black-hearted wretch, who abandons to the cold hospitality of the world, the wife whom he has sworn to cherish, and the child who issued from his loins? By the God that made us, we will not permit such a vile creature to defame the unsullied character of the Chief Magistrate of the country of which we are an humble citizen, without stripping from his loathsome carcass every rag that conceals his moral leprosy from public execration. Let us hear no more from that source about 'widow makers.'

A Drafted Editor.

The local of the Cleveland Herald has been drafted, and discourses thus humorously over his misfortunes.

We can't imagine what made Provost Marshal Nash do it. We have requested him repeatedly not to put our name in the box. But he did, and yesterday "grafted us into the army." We never thought he would go back on a feller he knew. He is perfectly aware that we have not courage enough for a brigadier, much less for a common soldier. And then we are a peace man—have always been a peace man—are more of a peace man now than ever. Wouldn't care if the rebels would laydown their arms to-morrow and give up. In fact would be rather glad of it. But we suppose Uncle Sam wants us just as bad as we don't want to go, and that's pretty bad. The army needs men, must have men, and our advice is that all should volunteer. We always advocated that way of raising men. It's decidedly more agreeable to those who don't want to go, and does away with the draft. We are more in favor of that system than ever before. Wouldn't even object to have an able bodied alien volunteer to go as our substitute We'll consent to stay at home and look after the busines—if it's profitable

However, we must say that we have felt a sprinkling of patriotic pride since we have been in the service of our country. It is a glorious thing to die for one's native land in defense of its hearthstones and its homes.

Whether on the scaffold high,
Or in the battle's van,
The fittest place for man to die
Is where he dies for man.

We would respectfully request our friends, if they respect our feelings, not to continually remind us of our misfortune by saluting our ears with "How are you conscript?" We haven't heard it over five hundred times within the last twelve hours.

We are not to blame for being a conscrip. If we could have our way we'd have the drawing over again. There are a large number in the ward we would rather see go than ourselves, and would not quarrel with them about making better soldiers. We have in our mind several who would make better marks for rebel bullets than we would. But it seems Uncle Sam wants us, and as we haven't $300 right handy, suppose we shall have to go.

N. B.—A suit of second-hand clothes for sale cheap. Possession given in ten days. In the mean time our friends will more agreeably consult our feelings and wishes by refraining from calling us "conscript" and quietly placing within our reach illuminated portraits of our beloved President and Secretary Chase. None of less value than five dolllars accepted.

LIGHTNING RODS—THEIR USES AND THEIR DEFECTS.—This great invention of Dr. Benjamin Franklin was not designed to draw the lightning from a great distance. The blot when discharged takes its direction, which is changed somewhat by good conductors. A house in its path is saved if it has upon it a good metalic conductor of electricty, because the fluid so called, takes the route which will allow it to reach the earth in the shortest possible time, and thus restore the equilibrium. That portion of a roof which is regarded as absolutely protected, is a circle whose radius is equal to the height to which the rod extends above the roof; hence it is a common practice to have several terminations or branches of the main rod projecting from the highest part of the roof, and from the corners of the building.

A defective lightning rod is dangerous, because it draws toward the house a force which it cannot conduct away from it. A death occured at Renssalaer, Indiana, by lightning, in a house two and a half stories high, situated in a grove of tall timber. The lightning-rod designed to protect the building was made of two kinds of metal—the first three upper sections were of copper, the remainder was an iron rod. Copper is a much better conductor of electricity than iron. The copper rod received more than the iron rod could instantly carry away. The consequence was that a portion sought its path to the ground through the house.—A human body was the bridge by which it crossed a bed, and a life was swept off in its passage. Most of the accidents from lightning in cases of houses provided with rod are the result of imperfect insulation. The rods are not properly fastened with non conductors, and do not always enter into the ground, far enough to reach the moisture. Metalic roofs with gutters and leaders running to the ground, when wet, are perfect conductors.

Hardware stores, although filled by metal, are seldom, if ever, injured by ligtning. The current does not always descend from the sky to the earth. The earth is generally negative and the cloud positive; but if the earth was positive and the cloud negative, the direction of the electric force would be reversed.

How to Cure a Kicking Cow.

We have a cow, that a few weeks ago surpassed anything in the way of kicking that we had ever seen; and while we were yearning for some Rarifier to conquer her, we were told that John Cusham, on the town line road, was just the man for the job. We saw John and asked him if he thought he could do anything with her; he said he would try, and if he did not cure her, she would be the first he ever saw that could master him, We stood and watched the performance, which was conducted in this way: John put a rope round the horns and then took a halter hitch round her nose; he then placed her with her nigh side against the wall of the stable, and tied her head as high as he could; then took some salt and rubbed his hands, letting the cow lick them. He then placed his head against the off hip of the cow and caught hold of a hind teat with his left hand—the cow kicked with with all her might, but John held on to the teat, which was not difficult to do, for her head being hoisted up as high as it could be got, made it pretty easy work to keep her pressed against the wall with the head; and holding the hand that grasped the teat pretty high and standing with the legs well out, there was no need of being kicked, and all that was left for the cow to do was just to kick till she got tired; after which time John commenced milking with the right hand on the ground, never leaving hold with the left hand, and never from the begining to the end of the struggle speaking a word, and when waiting a moment to rest giving her salt to lick. He pursued this course for four successive milkings, and then sat down along side the cow, and milked into a pail, keeping her head still tied high, and then turned her over to us, cured. Since then she has been milked by a young girl, who gradually lowered her head, and now meets her on the road by the gate and milks her without tieing. We now consider her as gentle and quiet as any cow in the country. Mr. Cushman never scolds nor whips, but simply gives them to understand, kick or no kick, they are going to be milked, and treats them with the greatest kindness.

We are confident this plan will cure any cow that ever lifted leg; and that being so, we give the public the benefit of Mr. Cushman's system, which will be found valuable to any having occasion to try it.—Wisconsin Exchange.

'WE NEVER DRINK.'—On the stage were seven or eight soldiers from the 8th Maine regiment—civil, well-behaved, intelligent men, as was apparent from their conversation. While at the stage house in Lincoln, there came into the office a poor old blind man—stone blind, slowly feeling his way with his cane. He approached the soldiers and said in gentle tones:

'Boys, I hear you belong to the 8th regiment. I have a son in that regiment.'

'What is his name?'

'John ——.'

'Oh, yes, we know him well. He was a sergeant in our company; we always liked him.'

'Where is he now?'

'He is now a lieutenant in a colored regiment and a prisoner in Charleston.

For a moment the old man ventured not to reply; but at last slowly and sadly he said:

'I feared as much. I have not heard from him for a long time.'

They did not wait for another word, but these soldiers took from their wallets a sum of money amounting to twenty dollars, and offered it to the old man saying at the same time:

'If our whole company were here we would give you a hundred dollars.'

The old man replied:

'Boys, you must put it into my wallet, for me, for I am blind.'

But mark what followed. Another individual in the room, who had looked on this scene with feelings of pride in our citizen soldiers, immediately advanced and said:

'Boys, this is a handsome thing, and I want you to drink with me. I stand treat for the company.'

I waited with intsrest for the reply. It came:

'No, sir, we thank you kindly; we appreciate your offer—but we never drink!'

The scene was perfect—the first act was noble, was generous; the last was grand!

A Righteous Retribution.

On Thursday morning, says the Peoria (Ill.) Transcript, as a returned soldier named Thompson, residing in Washington, was engaged in conversation with some parties in the saloon of the Peoria House an individual entered, and as he passed the soldier shouted 'Hurrah for Jeff. Davis!' In an instant the soldier turned and asked, 'Did you shout for Jeff. Davis?' Copperhead surveyed Thompson for a moment, and saw that he meant mischief, replied that it was not him. 'Well,' said the soldier, 'I believe that you did, and if I was sure of it, I would give you cause to remember it.' Secesh again declared that he had not, when at this juncture one of the men Thompson had been conversing with, and who has always acted with the Democratic party, stepped up, saying to the soldier, 'I am a Democrat, but I can't stand that; he did hurrah for Jeff. Davis, and now pitch into him.' The veteran hesitated not a moment, and though by far the smallest, he went at the Jeff. Davis sympathizer and administered a most awful drubbing, concluding by compelling him to shout twice, as loud as he was able, for Abe Lincoln.

Then allowing the fellow to get on his feet, he cautioned him never to repeat that operation again in his presence, saying, 'I have fought rebels three years, and had a brother killed by just such men as you are, and whenever a traitor shouts for Jeff. Davis in my hearing, I will whip him or kill him.' Copperhead said not a word but took himself off as fast as his legs would carry him.

THE DEAD PICKET.—On the field yesterday, on the left near Tilton, where our cavalry engaged the enemy a beautiful garden, clothed in all the loveliness that rare plants and Southern flowers give it, attracted my attention, and I was drawn to it. The house had been deserted by its owners, and the smiling magnolias and roses seemed to stand guard over the deserted premises. I entered through an open gate, stopped to pluck a rose from a bush, when I discovered one of the enemy's pickets lying partially covered by the grass and bushes—dead. He was a noble-looking man, and upon his countenance there seemed to rest the remnant of a smile, The right hand clasped a rose, which he was in the act of severing from its stem when he received the messenger of death. In the afternoon the cavalry dug a narrow grave, and with Federal soldiers for pall bearers, he was laid to rest, the rose still clasped in his stiffened hand. Nothing was found to identify him.

Old Judge———, who resides not far from Cincinnatti, is known as one who never pays a debt if it can be avoided. He has plenty of money, however, is a jolly, rollicking old chap, and gets drunk occasionally, when of course, some friend takes care of him. Not long ago, he fell into the hands of a man who had his note for a sum of money, and as it was his last chance, the man dived into the Judge's wallet, took out the amount and put the note where the money had been. When the Judge awoke to conciousness, as was his wont he took out his wallet to count how much he was out. 'How did I spend all my money?' 'You paid off that note I held,' answered the friend. 'Well,' muttered the Judge, quietly disposing of his wallet, 'I must have been VERY drunk.'

DIN'T KNOW HIM—In the Lake Shore Depot at Cleveland the other day, we noticed some Indians 'squatted' upon their posteriors, with their trinkets spread out. Admiring a kind of pouch glittering with many colored beads, we accosted its tawny female owner and asked the price.

'One Doll,' said the poor untutored, and we handed over a plaster on a New York Bank. Giving the note a glance the squaw quickly, returned it to us with sparkling eyes remarking, 'me no know him, me want greenback.' We reached the greenback and went away, satisfied that at least one 'copperhead' had confidence in our Government.—Conneaut Reporter.

'Don't write there,' said one to a lad, who was writing with a diamond pin on a pane of glass in the window of a hotel. 'Why?' said he. 'Because you can't rub it out.' There are other things which men should not do, because they cannot rub them out. A heart is aching for sympathy, and a cold perhaps a heartless word is spoken. The impresion may be more durable than that of the diamond upon glass. The inscription may be destroyed by the fracture of the glass, but the impression on the heart may last forever.

A Cheap Paint.

We think that the following will be found profitable for house or fence paint:

Skim milk, two quarts; fresh slacked lime, 8 ounces; white burgundy pitch, 2 ounces; Spanish white, 3 pounds. The lime is to be slacked in water, exposed to the air and then mix about one-fourth of the milk; the oil in which the pitch is dissolved to be added a little at a time, then the rest of the milk, and afterwards the Spanish white. This is sufficient for 27 square yards, two coats.

This is a white paint. If desirable any other color may be produced. Thus, if a cream color is desired, in place of part of the Spanish white use yellow ochre, or if yellow, use the ochre alone.

A WORD TO UNION MEN.—We must remember that it is not so much our work to labor for Mr. Lincoln's re-election in the manner customary to politicians—by speeches, and tracts, and clubs—as to see that he is sustained in his efforts to put down the rebellion and restore the Union. Our present concern is with General Grant and the great army now before Petersburg. Has he men enough to carry on his great campaign? Have we given Mr. Stanton troops for his armies; and Mr. Fessenden money to pay them?—Phila. Press.

BILL S———, is a good accountant but, like all men, will sometimes make mistakes, and in one of his bills, figured up that "8 times 8 are 88.'
The doctor was not slow in discovering the mistake, and demanded an explanation. Bill examined the account and saw that he was down, but did not like to admit it; so putting on a bold face he said: 'That's all right.' 'How so?' was the inquiry 'It's all owing to the inflation of the currency,' said Bill; 'the multiplication table, like everything else, has gone up!'

CROWDING A BACHELOR:—"What did you come here after?" inquired Miss Susan Diaper of a bachelor friend who made her a call when the rest of the people were gone out.

'I came to borrow some matches,' he meekly replied.

'Matches! that's a likely story. Why don't you make a match? I know what you came for,' exclaimed the delighted miss, as she crowded the old bachelor into a corner, 'you came to kiss and hug me almost to death, but you shan't unless you are the strongest, and the LORD KNOWS YOU ARE!'

A good one is told of General Grant. As he was in the cars on his way to the front, a newsboy came in crying out, 'Life of Gen. Grant.' One of the General's Aids pointing, to the General, told the boy he guessed that man would buy a copy. The boy approached the General, who asked him carelessly, 'Who is General Grant?' The boy, giving him a look of indignation and disgust, replied, 'You must be a d——d old greeney not to know Gen. Grant!' It is needless to say the Gen. bought his life!

'I was married,' signed a blooming dame, 'but alas I know not of my husband be he dead or alive. I heard that he was accidentally killed a few weeks ago, and I am going to ascertain whether the report be true or false.' 'Well, I've got a dead sure thing on my husband,' remarked another lady, 'for I saw him burried six weeks ago.'

BED COMFORTERS.—An old lady requests us to urge the ladies to save all their newspapers and make comforts of them to put on their beds in cold weather. They should be made up in layers of ten or more tacked in between muslin or calico and she assures us they will be found to answer the purpose better than cotton batting.

'Ah, Sam so you've been in trouble hab you?' 'Yes, Jim, yes.' 'Well, well, cheer up man; adversity tries us and shows up our better qualities.' 'Ah' but adversity didn't try me; it was an old wagabond of a Judge, and he showed up my worst qualities.'

'Ma, why is a postage stamp like a bad scholar?' 'I can't tell, my son; why is it?' 'Because it gets licked and put up in the corner.' 'Susan, put that boy to bed.'

WHY are ladies the biggest thieves in existence? Because they steel their petticoats, bone their stays, crib their babies and hook their dresses.

AT a fair down East, under the head of 'domestic arrangements,' the reporter gives the following item: 'Best bed comforter—Miss Susan Thompson.'

Illinois farmers are offering three dollars per day for farm hands and can find no takers.

FREEMAN TALBOT,
M. T. C FLOWER.

The Republican Convention and its Nominees.

The Convention held on Wednesday last was very well attended, although several towns, owing to its being a busy season with the farming community, were not represented. Everything passed off very harmoniously, all the delegates present seeming to be actuated in their proceedings, and in their nominations by a desire to harmonize, and to act for the good of the whole party. The feeling was apparent that our whole energies should be directed towards fighting the common enemy, and that our effort should not be jeopardized by wranglings among ourselves.

The nominations made are good. Of Mr. Chapman, the choice of the Convention for Auditor, his four years of faithful attention to the duties of his office, and the unanimity with which he was nominated, is the best evidence of his fitness for that position.

Mr. Freeman, the nominee for County Attorney, is well known, as a good lawyer, and a citizen of strict integrity and is much respected.

The nominees for Commissioners are both men of good business qualifications, and will prove themselves capable county officers.

Mr. L. C. Harrington was the choice of the Convention for Representative. He is one of our best citizens. He has never been mixed up in political matters, and is a gentleman of strict business integrity. He is a public spirited man, and has large interests at stake in this place.

But we forbear to speak of our ticket further, until the nominations are all made.

INDIAN NEWS.

We have no reliable Indian news to give our readers this week. There are various rumors of Indians having been seen at different places in the county, but no one can tell positively that they have seen any. The mail carrier at Madelia says he saw the tracks of Indians above Madelia and about Crystal Lake. Ten soldiers have been sent in pursuit of them.

A Mrs Ross, living near Shelbyville, says that two indians came to her house last Friday. She was standing with her back to the door and was much frightened when she first discovered them They asked her if she had any horses, and on being told no, then asked if she had any money. Mrs. Ross told them she had neither horses nor money. The Indians stood by the door a moment or so, laughed, and then went into the bushes. Mrs. Ross, as soon as the Indians had disappeared started with her children for town.

A young man named Stevens, came into town one night last week from Walnut Lake, for Dr. McMahan to attend a boy who had been accidentaly shot. Stevens says he saw two Indians near Walnut Lake. They were standing in the road, and as he came up stepped aside to let him pass. On inquiry the next day, the two Indians proved to be a couple of women who had got up in the night to drive away some cattle from the cornfield. Not supposing any one to be near they went out in their night dresses, and had a shawl thrown over their heads. This, young Stevens mistook for an Indian blanket, He says they were armed, for he saw something black, a weapon of some kind, and is sure it must have been a gun, or a stick. The neighbors teased him so much about it, that he swore he wouldn't live there, and so enlisted.

This is about the sum total of our Indian news. We shall give to our readers all the news in regard to our frontier troubles that is reliable, but we do not propose to needlessly alarm them.

The settlers are already frightened to a fearful extent, and many are disposing of their property at a great sacrifice and going back East Some parties with about $20 000 capital have thus been prevented from investing in land in and about Shelbyville.

The towns along the river are promptly organizing for defence, and some are erecting stockades. These preparations will greatly tend to allay the fears of the settlers, and make them feel secure.

To Sioux Indemnity Claimants.

MINNEAPOLIS, Aug 19, 1864,

To the Editor of the Pioneer:

I would strongly urge all Sioux Indemnity Claimants who have no attorneys, and all attorneys for Sioux Indemnity Claimants who do not purpose going to Washington to collect the amount due, to forward at once to the Secretary of the Interior a list of their claims, with the numbers thereof, the amount due on each, &c., &c.; and also a request that the same may be paid in St. Paul at as early a day as possible.

Newspapers throughout our State will confer a great favor on the poor sufferers by giving this recommendation an insertion in their columns.

CYRUS ALDRICH

Congressional Candidates

Had we been asked a few weeks ago who were likely to be candidates for nomination for Congress in the coming Convention, we should have included in our answer the names of several worthy individuals, besides that of our present honored representative. From present indications, however, we judge that Mr. Windom will be nominated without any serious opposition, and that probably no other name will be presented to the Convention. This fact, if our conjecture proves true, will constitute the strongest evidence of the high estimation in which our representative is held by the people at large. It is an emphatic endorsement of his course and a tribute of thanks for his fidelity and industry.

We do not claim for Mr. Windom that in his Congressional course he has established a reputation for great brilliancy as an orator, or that he has taken the position of a leader in national affairs. There are but a few who do. But we do claim that he has labored faithfully and successfully for the interests of our State, that in matters of important legislation his vote has been always on the right side, and that he has uniformly exhibited a fixed moral principle, sound, discriminating judgment and a practical ability of which his constituents may well be proud. In his hands we know that the intrests of the State and Nation are entirely safe, so far as his vote and influence can effect them. In the present critical condition of national affairs, too, Mr. Windom's experience in Congress is a consideration of great importance. On the whole, we think the people of this district have reason to be thankful that there is likely to be no change in this matter at present.—Dodge Co. Register.

Proceedings of the Republican County Convention.

The Republicans of Blue Earth County, met, pursuant to call, in delegate convention, in Marks' Hall, in Mankato, on Wednesday, the 24th inst., at 2 o'clock P. M.

The convention was called to order by P. F. Eckstorm, chairman of the County Committee.

Wm. Russell, and George Conrad, delegates from Sterling, arrived in town about half an hour after the Convention adjourned. The following resolutions were passed at their town caucus, and we here give them place.

WHEREAS, This meeting was convened in response to a call from the Union County Committee, to appoint delegates to a County Convention to be held at Mankato, on the 24th inst., for the purpose of taking steps to secure the nomination of suitable persons as candidates for certain important State, District and County Officers, and

WHEREAS, This meeting has not the means of knowing who are candidates, or who would be willing to accept a nomination if made and

WHEREAS, We consider the people should be allowed a voice in the nomination of candidates as well as in their election,

RESOLVED, That we desire to express our disapprobation of a system that keeps the County voters in entire ignorance of who are to be the candidates until after their nomination, thus leaving them only the choice of voting for persons they do not approve or of bolting the ticket

RESOLVED, That our Delegates read these resolutions to the County Convention and that they be handed to the Union paper for publication

Senator Wade Repudiated.

The Toledo Blade states that a meeting of Union men held on Monday evening last, at Ravenna, Ohio, to choose delegates to the Congressional Convention, two resolutions were passed. 1st. Instructing the delegates to support Gen. Garfield for Congress, provided he is a supporter of the Administration, and not in sympathy with the Wade Davis protest against the Administration and the Union party.

2d. Instructing the delegates to procure the passage of a resolution by the District Convention censuring Senator Wade and requesting him to vacate the seat he holds and defiles in the U. S. Senate.

A correspondent of the Cleveland Herald says he has the best authority for saying that Gen. Garfield is unconditionally for Mr. Lincoln, believing the country and its cause demands from Union men the earnest and undivided support of the Baltimore nominees, and that the Protest of Messrs. Wade and Davis was received by him with great surprise, regret and disapprobation.

THE Council Bluffs Nonpareil announces that having been deserted by the printer boys, who have "gone to the wars," it has "enlisted" about a half a dozen of the best looking girls in town, and is now "training up" a crop of compositors not subject to the draft. The jubilant editor adds.

"Come on, with your "calls" and your "conscription," Father Abraham, we are ready for you; take al the soldiers you want, only leave us our pressman. And ye, peregrinating printers, of the masculine persuasion, don't come this way; we want none of you; every case is taken; we have all the force we need. Blessed be crinoline! Verily was the head of the great showman level when he uttered, as by inspiration, his immortal toast. "Femail woman, you are a good egg!" Multum in hoops!"

BROOM CORN.—We notice a field of immensely heavy growth of broom corn just back from up the Excelsior road. The field contains about three acres, and looks as if it must yeild at least, ten hundred lbs to the acre. The field belongs to Messrs. Quance & Noble. They will manufacture the brush into brooms this winter, they having satisfied themselves by former experiment that the business is profitable. Why it is not more extensively carried on here we cannot see for it not only pays the manufacturer, but it would be of advantage to the town.—Chaska Herald.

THE Secretary of the Woman's National Covenant says: "In Connecticut we have excellent silks made for dresses and ribbons for bonnets. In Econ my, Pennsylvania, beautiful velvets, both cut and uncut. In Philadelphia the best of kid gloves. There are several excellent linnen factories this side the water. Fine berages are made in Massachusetts, the best sewing silk, good thread hose, and cambric muslin. Ladies have but to demand American goods and their wants will soon be supplied,

THERE is an excess of females over males in five States in the Union. Connecticut has 8,000, Massachusetts 37,000, New Hampshire 7,000, New York, 11,000, Rhode Island 6,000. In Pennsylvania the numbers are nearly equal.

THE Adjutant General states that the present strength of the 9th Regiment Minnesota Volunteers is 859, and that 164 men are needed to fill it to the maximum.

STRANGE PROCEEDINGS.—We learn from a very reliable source that in one of the Wisconsin counties north of LaCrosse, a society has been formed by the Germans who have sworn not to go to war even if drafted. The organization already numbers near one hundred men, who are making huts and cellars for provisions on one of the islands in the Mississippi, where they intend to rally if drafted and defend themselves from arrest at the hands of military authorities.—La Crosse Democrat.

A Reverend Rascal.

The Taylor's Falls Reporter gives an account of a case of crim. con. in which a Methodist preacher, whom we judge to be Rev. James H. Crofut, of the Minnesota Conference figures conspicously:

Our usual quiet community was thrown into considerable excitement on learning that the Rev. Mr. C. who has been pastor in charge of the M E. church at this place for the past two years, and apparently a most exemplary christian, had decamped for parts unknown leaving a wife and four children the former in a state nearly bordering on insanity. Curiosity was at once rife to ascertain the reason of his sudden departure. We deduce the following which is doubtless not far from the truth. The Rev. C. has some years ago formed a criminal intimacy with the wife of a Mr. Beach living in or near Stillwater, this had been kept remarkably secret until recently, when the husband returning from a protracted visit, found his wife enciente, he accused her of crime and she saw fit to divulge the whole affair, and Mr. Beach posted up here and had a long interview with Mr. C. which resulted in nothing further than a slight knock down Beach departing with threats of direst vengeance on the unfortunate C, who fearing these demonstrations immediately and incontinently left. These appear to be the main facts in this most unfortunate case. The sympathies of the whole community were radily enlisted in favor of the family, and a purse was raised and presented to the wife, Willing hands were found to aid them, and on the day following the denouement, this once happy family had left town and are probably on their way to meet the one that caused this unhappiness, and in whom the wife still has confidence.

Eighty-Seven and a Half Cents and a Brigadier Generalship.

[Correspondence Cincinnati Commercial]

I must tell a good story of Colonel Samuel Ross, of the 20th Connecticut Volunteers:

In 1862 he was a captain in the 14th Infantry, and mustering and disbursing officer for the State of Connecticut, with headquarters at Hartford and New Haven. After disbursing one and a half millions in one year, he settled his official accounts at Washington, the United States saving he owed them eighty seven and a half cents. He had paid that sum for an official telegram, charged it to the Government, appended the dispatch to a voucher, and sent both, with other papers to Washington. It being lost there by one of the clerks, Captain Ross was promptly charged with eighty-seven and a half cents.

A little later he was Colonel of the 20th Connecticut, and at the battle of Chancellorsville, in May, 1863, he commanded the 2nd brigade in the 1st division of the 12th corps. Gen Joseph Hooker, in his official report, reccommended that he be commissioned as Brigadier General by the President. From that moment the United States owed him "a star."

Now for the sequel. Col. Ross received "a dun" for eighty seven and a half cents, due the Government. Immediately the friends of Col. Ross "dunned" the Government for a Brigadier General's commission, due the Colonel. Both debts stood fast

Again the Colonel received a letter asking him to deposit eighty-seven and a half cents in the U. S. Treasury, whereupon a delegation waited on the President, demanding "the star" on account of their friend.

One debt will probably be paid as soon as the other.

FATAL ACCIDENT.—A terrible accident occurred last Thursday at Red Wing resulting in the death of Henry H. Allen.

Rather more than a week ago a company of sportsmen, of whom Mr. Allen was one, went out for a chicken hunt They carried a tent and provisions and went to have a good time. On Thursday while Mr. Allen and a friend were riding in a buggy from one grain field to another about a mile distant, for the purpose of continuing the hunt for chickens which they had been pursuing, he was shot, and almost instantly killed He was sitting in the buggy with the muzzle of the gun resting against his left breast just below and front of the arm pit, when the dog, which they had taken into the buggy with them, in his impatience struck the hammer of the gun with his paw, causing it to go off, the whole contents entering Mr. Allen at the place indicated, causing a most frightful wound and almost instant death. When he was shot he rose up and exclaimed, "my arm is shot off!" His friend, not supposing him to be fatally wounded, tried to staunch the blood with his pocket handkerchief, the whole of which he put inside of the wound, without effecting that result. The horse continued to go along at a walk. Mr. Allen told his friend to stop him and he would get out. He did so, and Mr. Allen sprang out of the buggy as sprightly as he ever did in his life, but as he touched the ground he threw up his arms, and turning partly around fell upon his back, dead. He died without a murmur, groan or struggle. His friend had no idea even that he was dead, but supposing he had fainted from loss of blood, stepped back to the buggy and got some water to bathe his face and head, but soon found that he was past resuscitation.

The Coming Draft.

The Rochester City Post of the 20th publishes the quota of this district as established by the board of enrollment upon the basis of the enrollment list as modified by the exemptions made up to the 15th of August. Of the applicants for exemption during the last two weeks, the Post says that 1,888 have been granted and their names stricken from the list; while 208 new names have been added, making the entire enrollment list of the district foot up 14,621 names, instead of 18,300 as before.

Patents will be issued and transmitted to purchasers as soon after the payment as the same can be prepared Payments may be made either in cash or in the certificates of indebtedness of the Winnebago Indians issued by the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, for the debt of said Indians, and secured to be paid out of the proceeds of the sale of said lands by the third article of the treaty above mentioned The right to reject any and all bids is expressly reserved. All bids must be sealed and addressed to the undersigned, Washington City D. C., and endorsed "Bid for Winnebago Tract Land."

FALL STOCK OF BOOTS AND SHOES ON HAND —See Leo Lamm's Advertisement of good cheap boots and shoes in another colum.

CLOTHING AT COST.—Notwithstanding the very high prices, at Randall's Emporium clothing can be purchased at a trifle above cost.

NEW HAY SCALES —Meagher has put up one of Howe's Platform Hay Scales, in front of his store. Their capacity is six tons. This will be a great convenience to farmers.

PROMOTED.—Capt. Stephen C. Miller, C. S., now at Little Rock, Ark., has been promoted to the rank of Major.

AUCTION SALE.—The Government buildings were sold at public auction Wednesday afternoon last, and were sold in lots to two or three parties. S. D. Brown bought the gallows for $33 50, and the Indian prison for $22 50

THE St. Paul Dailies have advanced the subscription rates of their daily and tri-weekly to eleven dollars per year for the daily and seven for the tri week y. The daily per quarter will be $2.75. This is an advance of about 35 per cent.

INTERNAL REVENUE.—We call attention to the notice of Collector Hall, which will be found in our advertising columns this week.

ICE CREAM FESTIVAL.—The Ice Cream Festival given in City Hall by the Ladies' Aid Society, was a very pleasant and successful gathering. The proceeds, above expenses, were $54. It is to be applied to the relief of soldiers and soldier's families.

A man went to Rochester from this vicinity a short time since to get exempted and succeeded in so doing When he returned, he said if he had known they wouldn't have taken him he would have enlisted a long while ago, and shown his patriotism

ACCIDENTALLY SHOT.—A young man at Walnut Lake was out shooting Chickens the other day, and accidentally shot a boy, two large buckshot passing into his bowels. Dr McMahan was sent for and we believe the boy is now doing well.

COMPANY C. 11TH REGIMENT.—We are gratified to learn that Lieut. Potter's Company is now full to overflowing. It has been recruited principally in this and Faribault Counties, and is made up of some of our best men. Lieut. Potter and James Cannon were the recruiting officers, and the short time in which the Company has been filled speaks well for their popularity. The election of officers will take place in Mankato on Monday next, when the company will proceed to Fort Snelling.

THE Democratic Convention of Faribault County has instructed its delegates to the Judicial District Convention to cast their vote for Daniel Buck, of South Bend, for Judge. The prospects are now good that Mr. Buck will carry this County. Should he succeed in doing so he will undoubtedly receive the nomination.

THE American Organ is familiar and attractive in every town or city of the loyal States. The Public Schools, the Concert Room, the Boudoir and Parlor you will find them in. This scientific production meets with its just praise. The language of music pours forth and enchants the ear and infuses delightful sounds seldom or ever met with. Address, W. W. Kimball, 142 Lake street, Chicago, Wholesale Depot, for the North-west.

KNOCKED HIMSELF DOWN.—A well known County officer, who lives not a thousand miles from here, was out in the yard cutting wood the other day. As he raised the axe it caught in the clothes line over his head, and falling, struck him on the head, and knocked him to the ground, where he lay bleeding. His wife, seeing him on the ground, came running out and asked him if he "was killed," "No" said he, in a hurried tone, "I am not killed, but I am d——d mad!"

PROCEEDINGS OF THE REPUBLICAN TOWN CAUCUS.—The Mankato Republican caucus was held pursuant to notice at the City Hall, on last Saturday the 20th of Aug. at 4 o'clock, P. M and was organized by the election of A. D. Seward as Chairman, and E. P. Freeman as Secretary of the meeting. The following persons were then elected by ballot, as delegates to attend the County Convention of the 24th inst.: J. J. Thornton, T. T. Peirce, B. D. Pay, H L. Gude, H. Hartman, C. Heilborn, O. O Pitcher, W. F. Lewis, B. F. Smith, J. N. Hall, J. Loring.

The Republican Town Committee for the ensuing year was then appointed, consisting of C. H. Slocum Chairman, G. Lulsdorf and W. F. Lewis.

The meeting then, on motion, adjourned.

DEMOCRATIC TOWN CAUCUS.—The democratic electors met in Caucus last Saturday afternoon to elect delegates to the County Convention. It was a very stormy season, and reminded us of the "by gone days" when "democratic pow wows" were much in vogue. There were two sets of delegates before the Caucus, one representing the interest of Judge Branson, and the other that of Daniel Buck, candidates for the Judgeship. The Buck faction succeeded in electing their ticket by nine majority. The Judge bore his defeat with commendable grace, and took it very good-naturedly.

MINUTE MEN.—The organization of minute men for frontier defence has been quite lively during the week past. A Company has been raised at this place, and the officers were elected Tuesday evening. A. M. Collins, was chosen Captain, J. C. Haupt, First, and Wm. J. Duley, Second Lieutenants.

At Garden City ten or fifteen men have been raised, but not a sufficient number to entitle them to an officer.

At Vernon Center twenty-two men have been raised, and A. D. Mason has been elected 2nd Lieutenant. Mr. Mason and Mr. Haynes were in town the other day and drew their guns and revolvers.

Organizations have also been perfected in Shelbyville, Winnebago City and Blue Earth. We have not learned who the officers are.

The arms sent to Col Smith are all of a superior quality, and are the best in the service.

THE DEMOCRATIC COUNTY CONVENTION.—The Democratic Convention met in Mack's Hall yesterday. There was a good attendance of delegates, and quite a stormy time on the Judicial question. Mr. Buck succeeded in securing delegates favorable to his nomination, by two to one.

Delegates were elected to attend the State and Legislative and Congressional Conventions.

Wesley Maxfield was nominated for County Auditor, but declined the nomination.

J. A. Wiswell was recommended for Member of Congress.

The nomination of County Commissioners Auditor and Attorney was left with the committee if they saw fit to place any one on the ticket.

It was proposed to fire the cannon at the close of the convention, but Mr. Buck's friends were deterred from a fear that the Judge might "charge" on them while in the act.

BROWN'S BRONCHIAL TROCHES.—The beneficial effects resulting from the use of this Remedy and its extensive use for Colds, Coughs, and Throat Affections, has brought out many imitations, most of which contain injurious ingredients. The Troches have proved their efficacy.

An opposition line of stages is shortly to commence running between this City and Mankato, Messrs. Burbank, of St. Paul are to be the new proprietors. The well known enterprise of these gentlemen will ensure a prompt and convenient communication with Mankato, connecting with the Burbank stages of St. Paul and Winona.—Blue Earth City Advocate.

No, sir! Burbank & Co. are not going to do anything of the kind. Before they put stages on that route they will first buy out the present proprietor. Try some other dodge, if you wish to frighten friend Mason.

The Rebel Peace Agents.

A correspondent of the New York Herald writing from Niagara Falls, says:

The rebel agents whom Greeley attempted to negotiate peace with are still dodging about between Toronto, St. Catharines and the Clifton House, and are in constant communication with prominent men in the Democratic party. The developments during the last few days indicated that a deep and important game is being played. Not only does this apply to the Chicago Convention, but also to the action of European Powers. The rebel agents in Canada are apparently working in an opposite direction to that of Mason, Slidell and other ambassadors in Europe. The latter are toadying around Napoleon and Palmerston to bring about a recognition of the South, whilst the representatives of Rebeldom in Canada are endeavoring to bring about an adjustment through Americans and American influence only. This fact explains the apparent difference between the position of rebel agents here and the report which Peace Commissioner Jaques brought back from Richmond. The people of the South are divided between the policy of recognition by European Powers and a settlement of our national troubles through their intervention on one side, or the adjustment by American influence only, with the expulsion of the French from Mexico on the other side. Mason and Slidell represent the former class; Clay and Holcombe the latter.

TELEGRAPH NEWS.

FROM GRANT'S ARMY.

FORTRESS MONROE, Aug. 26, }
VIA BALTIMORE, Aug 21, }

We have intelligence that the 5th army corps had a severe fight with the enemy yesterday on the Weldon Railroad, but succeeded in routing the rebels and finally advanced and occupied a position on the line of the Petersburg and Weldon Railroad, and at last accounts we still held the position on the north side of the James River.

Our lines, up to the latest intelligence, continued unchanged.

Notwithstanding the repeated efforts of the enemy to dislodge us, the canal is progressing favorably.

LATER, 4 P. M —The steamer John Brooks, from City Point, has arrived and confirms the success of our movement on the Weldon Railroad.

The 5th army corps still hold their position.

Our position on the north side of the James River is not materially changed, but the 3d corps is making an important move.

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.

The Sunday Herald's dispatch states that the recent movement leaves the Danville road, the only one over which the rebels can obtain supplies for their army at Richmond.

HEADQUARTERS, ARMY POTOMAC }
Aug. 21st }

Our losses on the Weldon Railroad on Friday P. M. were greater than heretofore reported. The number of prisoners taken by the rebels is now put down at 1700 It seems that our troops were surprised, many of the men being in shelter tents at the time trying to escape the rain which had been falling for several hours previous. The rebels first appeared on our right, about noon, and in front of the Third division of the Fifth corps, but this was evidently a feint for the purpose of feeling our lines. About 2 P. M. they charged in heavy force between the Fifth and Sixth corps, succeeding in turning the flank of the former and capturing a large number of prisoners.

This part of our line was forced back some distance.

When the Ninth corps, which had been relieved the night previous by a part of the Second corps, came on to the field and opened fire, checking the advance of the rebels and taking a few prisoners. At the same time a heavy column of rebels charged on the left of our line, west of the Railroad, held by the 2d Division of Gen. Ayers, which they broke, and here they captured a good many prisoners of the Regular Brigade, which was commanded by Gen. Hayes, who is believed to be a prisoner, as he cannot be found. Our whole line was thus forced back with heavy loss in killed and wounded. The enemy, however, suffered worse than we in this particular, his men lying thick all over the field.

Before dark our men were reformed, which was successfully accomplished, so that we held at night the line which had been taken from us in the afternoon.

Col. ——— is reported prisoner, also Colonel Harborne.

Gen. Crawford was shot through the neck and shoulder and narrowly escaped capture.

HEADQUARTERS ARMY OF THE POTOMAC, Aug. 21.—Before dark our men were reformed and a desperate attempt was made to recover our lost ground, which was successfully accomplished. Of that we held at night the line which had been taken from us in the afternoon.

Gen. Crawford was shot through the vest and shirt and narrowly escaped capture. Lieut. Clark of his staff was shot through the arm.

Lieutenants Mow and Merritt and Captain Smith of Gen. Crawford's staff had their horses shot while carrying their orders and rallying the men of the various commands. The last named was a prisoner, but seeing a favorite chance made his escape.

Capt. Doolittle, of Col. Wheeler's staff, was ordered to surrender, when getting furious at an epithet applied to him, he seized a musket and bayoneted the rebel against a tree.

Col Wheeler's brigade, of the third division, was flanked, when they faced to the rear, charged on the rebels, and took a number of prisoners.

The entire number of prisoners captured by us is about 230, together with some stands of colors, while our loss is estimated at over 3,000.

Nothing but skirmishing took place along the lines to day, working parties being busy intrenching themselves. A battle is looked for at any moment, as the enemy seems determined to regain possession of the road, while we are as fully determined to hold it.

The prisoners taken belong principally to Beauregard's and Hill's corps. Considerable artillery firing has been going on our left, and is still so brisk that no musketry firing can be heard, the distance from headquarters being too great.

The Draft---Letter from Captain See.

We stop the press to give place to the following letter received this evening from Capt. See:

ROCHESTER, Minn , Aug. 23, 1864.

C H. SLOCUM,

DEAR SIR:—Yours of the 22d inst. is before me In reply I have to state that the quotas as published in the Rochester Post, were made in a very hurried manner on Friday night, to enable the Post to publish by 3 o'clock A. Enclosed please find list of quotas as established and forwarded to Col Averill yesterday, and in which you will find Medo set off as proposed, and which we had not the time to do in season for the issue of the Post.

BRANDRETH'S PILLS —They expel the poisons which threaten life Every time a sick person is purged by this vegetable remedy, he has less vitiated humors and more life and vigor, as any one can prove by taking a single dose. Persons of spare habits gain flesh and strength while using them. Every time we rest a few days or weeks from the purgation, we make new fluids from our food, which replace the unsound ones that the Pills have caused to be evacuated. Each time we repeat this process, we expel in their quantities of impurities, which are again replaced by fluids less and less impure so that in a short time, by continuing this treatment, we bring the whole mass of fluids or humors to that state of purity which constitutes health. For Brandreth's Pills only take away humors which are unsound. Sold by Wickersham, & Kilgore, Mankato Minn. and by all respectable dealers in medicines [1-4w.

HOSTETTER'S
CELEBRATED
STOMACH BITTERS.

A pure and powerful tonic, corective and alterative of wonderful efficacy in disease of the Stomach, Liver and bowels, Cures Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Headache, General Debility, Nervousness, Depression of Spirits, Constipation Colic, Intermittent Fevers, Cramps and Spasms, and all Complaints of either Sex arising from Boodily Weakness whether inherent in the system or produced by special causes. Nothing that is not wholesome genial and restorative in its nature enters into the composition of Hostetters Stomach Bitters. This popular preparation contains no mineral of any kind, no deadly botanical element: no fiery excitant; but it is a combination of the extracts of rare balsamic herbs and plants with the purest and mildest of all diffusive stimulants. It is well to be forearmed against disease, and, so far as the human system can be protected by human means against maladies engendered by an unwholesome atmosphere, impure water and other external causes, Hostetters Bitters may be relied on as a safeguard. In districts infested with Fever and Ague, it has been found infallible as a preventive and irresistible as a remedy and thousands who resort to it under apprehensions of an attack, escape the scourge, and thousands who neglect to avail themselves of its protective qualities in advance are cured by a very brief course of this marvelous medicine. Fever and Ague patients, after being plied with quinine for months in vain until fairly saturated with that dangerous alkaloid, are not unfrequently restored to health within a few days by the use of Hostetter's Bitters. The weak stomach is rapidly invigorated and the appetite restored by this agreeable Tonic and hence it works wonders in cases of dyspepsia and in less confirmed forms of indigestion. Acting as a gentle and painless apperient, as well as upon the liver, it also invariably relieves the Constipation superinduced by irregular action of the digestive and secretive organs: Persons of feeble habit, liable to Nervous attacks, lowness of spirits and fits of Languor, find prompt and permanent relief from the Bitters. The testimony on this point is most conclusive, and from both sexes. The agony of bilious colic, is immediately assuaged by a single dose of the stimulant, and by occasionally resorting to it, the return of the complaint may be prevented. As a general tonic, Hostetter's Bitters produce effects which must be experienced or witnessed before they can be fully appreciated. In cases of constitutional Weakness, Premature Decay, and debility and decrepitude arising from old age, it exercises the electric influence. In the convalescent stages of all diseases it operates as a delightful invigorant. When the powers of nature are relaxed, it operates to re-inforce and re-establish them. last but not least, it is the only safe stimulant, being manufactured from sound and innocuous materials, and entirely free from the acid elements, present more or less to all the ordinary tonics and stomachics of the day. No family medicine has been so universally, and it may be truly added, deservedly popular with the intelligent portion of the community, as Hostetter's Bitters. Prepared by Hostetter and Smith, Pittsburgh, Pa. Sold by all Druggists, Grocers and Storekeepers everywhere. 23

Poetry.

Departure of Summer.

Farewell! thy moon is on the wane,
  Thy last bright day is near its close,
On rosy lips that thirst for rain,
  Heaven not a drop bestows;
The cricket, Summer! sounds thy knell—
Queen of the Seasons! fare thee well!

The flowers that wreathed thy beauteous head
  Droop, pale and withered, on thy brow,
The light that made thy morning red
  Is chill and misty now;
Sad voices pipe in wood and dell
To Summer, and her joys, farewell!

The warm south winds among the pines
  Give out a wild and fitful moan,
And Beauty, pale with grief, reclines
  By Summer's faded throne;
Her wailing, like a funeral bell,
Chimes in with Summer's faint farewell!

Gone is thy belt of rainbow sheen,
  Starred with the bead-drops of the showers
And Kirtle of enchanted green
  Embroidered o'er with flowers;
Thy golden wand of wondrous spell
Is dim and broken now—farewell!

There is a Summer of the heart
  That hath its mournful ending here;
Delights that warmed its chords depart,
  While life grows dull and drear;
And sadder than a funeral bell
Hope whispers to the Soul, farewell!

Select Miscellany.

The Chances of Peace in America.

[From the London Spectator, July 23.]

The public mind is swinging round again. After believing for nearly two months that the South would be ultimately defeated, that the dauntless persistency of the North would wear out the fiery courage of its opponents, that numbers and will would prevail alike over skill and 'patriotism,' it has suddenly arrived at the conviction that the cause of the North is lost. Immediately after Gen. Grant's first battle even the Times wrote respectfully of the chances of invasion, but the check suffered in the direct advance on Richmond, the long pause before Petersburg, the excessive rise in gold, the dismissal or resignation of Mr. Chase, the rumors of an "invasion of Maryland," and the natural recoil of over-excited anticipation, have once more depressed the ballance; the Confederate loan has gone up to seventy-six, the conservative papers once more speak of the virtuous South,' and the wildest rumors, if only they tell to the disadvantage of the North, are received with instant credit. All this while the facts of the case either remain exactly where they were a year ago, or when they have altered, with one conspicuous exception, to the advantage of the Federals.— The military change has been conspicuously in their favor.

Last year they were contending in the West for the Mississippi, apprehended the loss of New Orleans, were doubtful of the fidelity of Missouri, and wavered in policy for fear least they should affront irretrievably the "neutral" policy of the State of Kentucky. This year the Army of the Mississippi has quitted the banks of that river, and fought its way steadily and surely to the very heart of the Confederacy, has traversed such a section of Georgia that military critics already discuss the possibility of Gen. Sherman intervening with decisive effect in the Virginia contest. This great result has, moreover, been accomplished in the teeth of the strongest resistance, of battles so severe that Southerners estimated Gen. Sherman's losses at 20,000 men, of efforts so great that the South is obliged to explain defeat by the Northern device of calling every fresh retreat a new strategical movement.

Missouri is either repentant or so completely controlled that the Government can rely upon the action of the State Legislature, and Lousiana has established a government which, however little it represents opinion, still prohibits the State from exerting any organized force on the Confederate side. Kentucky, which ruled the situation, has just been placed under martial law, and even Southerners have ceased to speak of the campaign in the far west, In Virginia, where the case seems so much worse for the Federals, it is in reality even better. Those seventy miles between Washington and Richmond which were pronounced so impassable, have been traversed—traversed in spite of the resistance rising into the heroic— traversed with such loss to the defenders that Gen. Lee, boldest of all Southern Generals, is reduced to a policy of comparative inaction, suffers Gen Grant to march past him without attacking his exposed line, and leaves his adversary south of Richmond rather than risk another general action.

That this advantage has been obtained at an immense sacrifice of life is true, but the very first datum of the struggle is that the North can afford this loss, and the South cannot. The supply of men in the North is almost inexhaustible, owing to immigration; that of men in the South a strictly limited quantity.

Then the Southerners, we are told, are invading Maryland and going to capture Baltimore. So they were last year, only they did not leave a vast army in sight of their own capital, they had 120,000 men instead of 20,000, and they were commanded by Lee instead of Ewell. That was a true invasion, this is only a raid; that army might have captured Baltimore, this could not take Fort McHenry, which commands the city, or the gunboats which could lay the port in ashes; that required the sudden return of the whole Army of the Potomac, this can be met and defeated by calling out the local and neighboring militia. The struggle is hot enough, no doubt, for these Southerners are good soldiers, they are fighting from the inside, and they have most audacious and able leaders, but, taking the campaign as a whole, which is as yet the victor?

Then take the political situation. In what is it worse than it was last year? Three more States have been reduced, if not into a hearty obedience to Washington, at least into a sullen acquiescence, which is comparatively almost as favorable. Two more have altered their constitutions, so as to abolish slavery forever, and so established a community of interests between themselves and the Free States which allows of immigration.

The President has given up his last lingering hope of compromise, and accepts a platform which, as regards slavery, is in effect, tho' not in theory, abolitionist. His new Congress, which was to have been so Democratic, and to have controlled him in the direction of peace, turns out on all questions connected with war or slavery, an ultra-republican body. The coalition of governors which tried year to dictate terms to the President has disappeared, and if Ohio is violent now, Illinois last year openly resisted the troops sent to enforce the draft. The Times has a story that Governor Seymour has refused to send the militia to Washington. (this is one of the inventions of the Times corespondent)

But the rise in the value of gold? Is no doubt the very worst symytom in the whole aspect of Northern politics, for it signifies that the war is become crushingly expensive. Prices rise with the fall in the currency, until, if the process continues, soldier ration may cost next year as much as turtle soup and champagne cost last. But what is the premium on gold throughout the great cities of the South? There is no fact better ascertained in modern politics than that when a people is once determined finance will not stop war. The Convention had 1,200,000 men in the field when assignats were at 1,000 per cent, and Russia drove out Napoleon and raised a new army to traverse Germany when they were almost valueless. The only effect of the rise on thewar is to compel the government to take the taxes in kind, and in the end to substitute requisitions for taxation. For the few articles required from abroad, such, for instance, as saltpetre, the North can always pay, just as the South can pay, for it can use its store of corn as the South uses its store of cotton. The rise in wages may derange labor, or even suspend it, but then the effect of suspension may be, as in France, to hurl the laboring class into the ranks, where alone they are secure of food.

The North, if reduced to a state of batter, with its industry suspended and its commerce paralysed, its finances non existent, and its private fortunes disappearing—can, if it will while seed produces harvest, fight on to the end. The single question for politicians is now, as it was a year ago, the willingness of the northern people to endure all rather than see the South depart.'

If they are unwilling the question ends, but where are the signs of unwillingness?

* * But for the hundredth time we repeated the one fact of American politics which our countrymen will never perceive, that substantial power in the United States rests with the country freeholders; that they are, when combined and excited, more absolutely masters of the policy of their country than the middle classes are of the policy of ours. The electors in England could not defy the non-electors in arms, the northern freeholders have a complete supremacy in physical force, and could if so inclined reduce the great cities to ashes, and send all friends of compromise to serve against their will in the ranks. There is no power which can control this class, and it is the one of all others on which the currency difficulty falls with least visible weight. Whatever is wanting, corn will not be done without. Whatever can be given by the rich will be given to these men first and last of all. If gold be at one thousand premium, bread will still support farmers, and the land ploughed by father and sons does not obey Mr. Fessenden; woolen will still warm them, and sheep yield their fleeces without asking leave of Wall street; meat will still fatten them, and pigs can be fed on peaches, though gold be buried out of men's sight. As a matter of fact, these men look on specie only as a means of accumulating their small savings, and the suspension of saving for one year or ten, no more means ruin to them than it does to the non-slaveholding whites of the South. Till they give up, nothing is given up, and what motive for giving up has as yet been suggested to them? Nothing that has occurred this year tends to smooth away the original difficulties of partition, to make it assist to fix a boundary or more honorable to surrender the valley of the Mississippi, pleasanter to abandon an enormous trade, or more possible to surrender the one dream which makes these men's lives bright—the dream of the mighty continent united under one empire, in which the exiles of earth may find a home, before which all governments must bend, and in which misery and oppression have no place, and toil at last has ceased to involve the curse of poverty. Englishmen do not believe in the realization of that dream; thinking men may doubt whether it is well that it should ever be realized; but it is the dream of these independent and griping honest and obstinate Anglo-Saxons, and the French Jacobines went to the grave by thousands for a dream which seemed even to themselves very much further off.

A Scene Near Rossvell, Georgia.

The Cincinnati Times correspondent says:

An old lady of the Partington school was found the other day, in a terrible state of consternation on the approach of our forces to this point. Johnston's racers had passed through the neighborhood, and everything, even the poultry, pork and cattle, had been taken with the malaria of 'falling back.' The old woman was left entirely alone—deplorably wringing her hands, with poverty as her only companion, and it was strongly apparent even in her speech. She viewed first one hearty, jolly, fat sided 'Yank,' then another, as much surprised at their gift of gab as their lack of horns. when one an enormonsly huge Buckeye, stepped into the yard to quench his thirst and fill his canteen at a dilapidated specimen of a well. Says he:

'How are you, Aunty?'

'Tolable ailin' jis now.'

'We've got here at last.'

'Where did you come from? Er yer hookers, or flinkers, or is yer shermines?'

'There are some boys about who might I reckon, hook a chicken or two, but we're all Buckeyes, in the pot.'

'Lord! you don't say so. I've hearn tell of trees what bore them ar nuts, but never seed any afore. How'd you git here?'

'Well, if Uncle Abe wants any help, he just sings out to our Governor up in Ohio, and when Johny Brough shakes the trees, just as many as he want's let go all holds, and roll right down here on the hard-tack line.'

'Fore God, no. Nother new line? How many lines has you'ns all got? We'uns almos' tax t' death—'nother new line 'll hang us all sure.'

'Hain't you folks got about how much of this you want? says Buckeye.

'Got? We isn't got nothin' Done less all we ever have got. I don't see what you'uns all want, way down here to Georgy?'

'We come down here to stop this muss. When we get through with old Johnson, his army will all have a chance to get home and see their relations'

'But the General says you'uns dont fight fair. Your sharmines keep a troublen' of him, and shovin' of him, in front, and your hookers keep a runnin' on to his eends with your flinkers.'

'Good evening flinkers,' says Buckeye, and away he went, giving room for some others more quizzical and mischievous than himself.'

Put a Good Face Upon It.

If you wish to succeed in life, if you wish to find friends, if you wish your relatives or associates to enjoy your company, wear a cheerful face; everybody dislikes and shuns a sad one, if it is habitual sad. Everybody but God grows weary of being reminded of sorrow, and the heart is always full of bitter waters will be left alone. Pretend to be happy, if you can do no more. Coax sunbeams to your eyes, smiles to your lips. Speak hopeful words as often as you can; make fun, if you never feel it. Get the name of being cheerful, and it will be as incense to you, Wherever the glad face goes it is welcome; whatever the laughing lips ask is apt to be granted. If you are starving for want of food for body or spirit, it is better to laugh than to cry as you tell the tale.

There was one once who, with a face like a tombstone, told and told her want, and met with repulse after repulse from those whose faces fell at sight of her; but at last laughing in strange mirth at her own misery she told it once again. Tears started, into the eyes of her hearers, and instant relief was given. Men are impatient of tears and women weary of them. Don't give way to them no matter what the case may be get back the smiles as quickly as you can. Let them be cut 'hollow smiles,' if that's the best you can do. Keep at that. By and by you will do better. Laugh to keep from crying. Never give up to gloom; it is a wrong to those about you. Sad faces add to the weight of trouble that life lays upon every heart. Wo to us if we cannot look about us and see bravely cheerful faces to encourage our hearts! Let us be careful that each one of us has one of these faces.

A man who carries a glad face does an amount of good in the world impossible to compute, even if he be too poor to give one cent in charity; and a man whose face is generally sad, does, every day of his life, more harm than can be reckoned. This is a hard world, full of all manner of troubles; but every one of them one, for much of the time be wrested out of sight, and every living man and woman, as soon as the first distress is a little past, can, at the very least, assume cheerfulness. This is decent. More then this, 'tis piety, 'tis duty. Nobody has any right to go about a perpetual dampener of enjoyment. And no one has just reason for habitual sadenss till he has lost his soul.

"Wanted, Correspondence"---Letter from Lieut. Wilson to Eight Young Ladies.

Correspondence of the Chicago Tribune.

MEMPHIS, TENN., July 28 1864.

To Eight Young Ladies, residing in Ilinois, Indiana and Michigan.

Ladies, permit me to address a few lines to you through the Tribune in regard to "correspondence" with soldiers and officers serving in the army of our country. We, the officers and soldiers of the army, need and deserve the sympathy and council of our mothers, wives, sisters and lady acquaintances from the dear homes we have left behind. From these, letters are always acceptable, and read with a deep interest, and there is always a deep feeling of respect for the writers, and the dear old homes whence they come. There is no levity, or expression of vulgar thought, or lewd allusion to the writers of them—holy home thoughts of the dear ones we love so well; and often have I seen the bronzed face of the veteran, as well as the fair cheek of the young recruit, flushed with manly pride, or over them flowing tears that spoke louder than words of true hearts and brave men. Not so when your cold insipid and stale letters are received. There is generally a shout of derision from many voices as your carefully written nonsense is retailed out to a corporal, sergeant, private, or may be a negro servant; and could you hear the vulgar wit and coarse expressions over your letters, and at your expense, I think ladies, you would answer no more 'Wanted correspondence, for mutual cultivation.' I trust ladies, that this article may be of service to you, inasmuch as it will urge you to write only to those whom you know, and you may put it down for a fact that any soldier or officer advertising for a lady correspondence, does so for no honorable or noble purpose. Ninety nine out of every hundred letters by officers or soldiers are treated with contempt and derision. Thus you see that your tender effusions, gushing out flowery and sentimental plattitudes, are used to your disadvantage and injury. In many cases the officer or soldier takes pains to ascertain your true name, and then your letters not only reflect to your disadvantage, but bring disgrace to your friends. I know of one young lady who is the laughing stock for the whole regiment, and many of them are or were friends and neighbors of hers, not two years ago, Her fair name and character age blighted and one who has counted on her being something more than a friend to him in the future, has cast her aside, and her letters of truth to him are unanswered, or returned unopened. Ladies, good bye. Learn from this to do better. Write to your known and tried soldier friends and relatives and none other. I am, ladies, your friend and well-wisher,

E. V. WILSON,
1st Lieut. Co. H, 39th Reg't Wis. Vols.

WHY THE REBELS ARE CALLED "JOHNIES."—In 1861 the federal soldiers called the rebels 'Secesh;' in 1862, 'Confeds;' 1863, Greybacks;' and in 1864 'Johnies.' A correspondent gives the following information about the origin of the last named sobriquet: The name of Johnny originated in a quarrel between a couple of pickets, which began by the federal telling the rebel that they (the rebels) depended on England to get out of this scrape, which the rebel denied emphaticaly, saying they were able to scrape themselves out. One word brought on another, until the federal said his opponent was no better than a Johny Bull anyhow; the rebel swore that he would shoo Yank if he called him a Johny Bull again. The quarrel was stopped by another picket, and they soon cooled down, but the rebel kept muttering: 'I'd as soon be called a nigger as Johnny Bull.'—Boston Transcript.

Gen. Sherman on Recruiting in the Rebel States.

Gen. Sherman writes with the directness of an honest and frank soldier in the following letter.

HEADQUARTERS MILITARY DIVISION OF THE MISSISSIPPI, IN THE FIELD, NEAR ATLANTA, GA., JULY 30, 1864.

John A. Spooner, Esq., Agent for the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, Nashville, Tenn.:

SIR:—Yours from Chattanooga, July 28, is received notifying me of your appointment by your State as Lieutenant-Colonel and Provost-Marshal of Georgia, Alabama and Mississippi, under the act of Congress approved July 4, 1864, to recruit volunteers to be credited to the State respectively.

On applying to Gen. Webster, at Nashville, he will grant you a pass through our lines to those States, and as I have considerable experience in those States, would suggest recruiting depots to be established at Macon and Columbus, Miss., Salem, Montgomery and Mobile, Ala., and Columbus, Milledgeville and Savannah, Ga.

I do not see that the law restricts you to black recruits, but you are at liberty to collect white recruits, also.

It is waste of time and money to open rendezvous in Northwest Georgia, for I assure you I have not seen an able-bodied man, black or white, there, fit for a soldier, who was not in this army or the one opposite to it.

You speak of the impression going abroad that I am opposed to the organization of colored regiments.

My opinions are usually very positive, and there in no reason why you should not know them

Though entertaining profound reverence for our Congress, I do doubt their wisdom in the passage of this law,

1. Because civilian agents about an army are a nuisance.

2 The duty of citizens to fight for their country is too sacred a one to be peddled off by buying up the refuse of other States.

3. It is unjust to the brave soldiers and volunteers who are fighting, as those who compose this army do, to place them on a par with the class of recruits you are after.

4 The negro is in a transition state, and is not the equal of the white man.

5. He is liberated from his bondage by act of war; and the armies in the field are entitled to all his assistance in labor and fighting, in addition to the proper quotas of the States.

6. This bidding and bartering for recruits, white and black, has delayed the reinforcement of our armies at the time when such reinforcements would have enabled us to make our successes permanent.

7. The law is an experiment which, pending war, is unwise and unsafe, and has delayed the universal draft which I firmly believe will become necessary to overcome the wide-spread resistance offered us; and I also believe the universal draft will be wise and beneficial; for under the Providence of God it will seperate the sheep from the goats, and demonstrate what citizens will fight for their country, and what will only talk.

No one will infer from this that I am not a friend of the negro as well as the white race; I contend that the treason and rebellion of the master freed the slave, and the armies I have conducted to safe points more negroes than those of any General officer in the army; but I prefer negroes for pioneers, teamsters, cooks and servants, others gradually to experiment in the art of the soldier, beginning with Memphis, Vicksburg, Natchez, Nashville and Chattanooga; but I would not draw on the poor race for too large a proportion of its active, athletic young men, for some must remain to seek new homes and provide for the old and young—the feeble and helpless.

These are some of my peculiar notions, but I assure you they are shared by a large proportion of our fighting men.

You may show this to the agents of the other States in the same business as yourself. I am &c.,

A WOMAN IN A HORRIBLE SITUATION.— Mrs. William Evans, Mercer county, C. W., a woman of 36, has had a difficulty in her stomach for several year. Lately physician have decided that the trouble is occasioned by a live and growing snake in her stomache. It has now grown so large that it distends the stomach so as to produce a bunch upon the outside as large as a quart bowl.

Upon pressing this bunch with the hand the reptile recoils and produces great distress in the stomach. When fish or meat is being cooked in the room, if the snake is not satisfied with food, it rises up in the throat producing strangulation. When desiring food, it manifests it by rising up in the throat. Physicians see no way in which the snake can be removed without certain death to the woman,

Remember Fort Pillow.

Doctor Hunt, formerly of the Buffalo press, now in the service, writes from Memphis to the Buffalo Express. He says:

'A corespondence is going on here, under flag of truce, between General Washburne (in command here) and General Forrest, of Fort Pillow massacre memory. The negro regiments of the late unlucky Sturgis expedition, took a solemn oath, before starting, that they would neither give nor take quarter, if they met Forrest.

They kept the oath took no prisoners, lost none, came back in excellent order, without losing their arms, and fought with such tenacity and unheard-of-fatality, that Forrest is now anxious to come to some terms as to future interviews that he may have with the "inferior race." General Washburne, in reply, is said to have informed Forrest that he believed such an oath to have been taken, without his knowledge or order, and that he had no doubt that it had been kept, as General Forrest alleged. That such consequences were inevitable upon the Fort Pillow crime, and that had he the power to control the colored troops in that matter, he could not ask these good soldiers of the Union to practise all, while they receive none, of the amenities of civilized warfare.

So stands the negotiation, except that Forrest has already begun to back down. Prisoners from colored regiments in his hands, he thinks, should not be killed (as they were by his order and in fulfillment of his threat six weeks ago) but should be returned to their "normal condition—slavery. He must come down from that. The treatment given at Libby and Belle Isle, to the best and bravest sons of our Northern hillsides, was "bad enough for any nigger," and the negro has already made his choice of alternatives—"Give me Liberty or give me Death.'

Said a cesesh to me a day or two since: "It is hard for a gentleman to be shot down by his own slave." He gritted his teeth and looked unutterably when I replied that "we did not propose to allow our enemy to dictate our weapons or to choose by whom only they, in their dignity are to be shot down." That ended the discussion, but true to the policy of all resident rebels here, he came around ten minutes later to ask me to take a drink,—Did I?

The Congressional Convention.

We have not received any report of the proceedings of the Convention that met at Owatonna, last Tuesday. We are informed, however, that Hon. William Windom, was unanimously nominated for member of Congress, and that the Convention was very harmonious. We therefore place at our mast-head the name of the honorable gentleman who has so ably represented this District in Congress for the last two years, and shall labor most cheerfully and heartily to secure his re-election for another term, Mr. Windom is so well known to our people by reputation, by personal acquaintance, and by his business correspondence, in which he has always been prompt and attentive, that it is not necessary for us to introduce him to our readers. He is the choice of nine tenths of the people of the District, and there is no doubt whatever but that he will be triumphantly elected.

Judge of the Sixth District.

By a perusal of the proceedings of the Sixth Judicial Convention held at St. Peter last week, and published elsewhere, it will be seen that the Convention nominated Horace Austin, of St. Peter as the Union candidate for the office of Judge of this District. While we, of this section, would have preferred Judge Finch as the nominee of our party for that important and responsible position, yet we cheerfully acquiesce in the decision of the majority, and think that the selection is a good one. Mr. Austin has the reputation in his own County—sustained in this and other counties by those who have had business relations with him, of being a keen, clear-headed and able lawyer, and one who, by his long legal experience is well qualified to fill the position of Judge. If he is elected our people need not fear of having the Judicial mantle fall on one incompetent or unworthy of it.

Proceedings of the Seventeenth Legislative District Convention.

The delegates to the Legislative District Convention composed of the counties of Blue Earth and LeSueur met in Mankato, August 29th, and organized by electing C. P, Cook, of Garden City, Chairman, and O. O. Pitcher Secretary.

The delegates from LeSueur County were A. Stewart, H. Adams, R. B Laird, P, Wilson, and A. Cheadle, and those from Blue Earth were O. O, Pitcher, C. P. Cook, P. F. Eckstorm, J. J. Thornton, and J. S. Ferguson.

On motion, L, Z. Rogers, of Waterville, Wm. H. Patten, of LeSueur from Le Sueur County, and L. C. Harrington, of Mankato, from Blue Earth County, were nominated as candidates for the Legislature.

On motion, a District Committee was appointed, consisting of O. O. Pitcher Chairman, and E. R. Smith. The Convention then adjourned.

Gold has fallen to 234 and 235, the result of the capture of Fort Morgan, and the brilliant moves of General Grant. The Pioneer would have its readers believe that the fall has been occasioned by the rise of McClellan Stock at the Chiago Convention, and prophecies that if he is nominated it will go down to 200, and if elected to 100. Indeed! how wise the Pioneer is. We shouldn't be at all surprised to see it come down to 75 or even 50.

The Democratic Convention.

In another column we give dispatches from Chicago as to the action of this convention, where confusion reigns. The prospects are that McClellan will be nominated on a peace platform, in favor of an armistice, Convention of States and revolution.

The Legislative Candidates.

We take pleasure in presenting the names of Messrs. Harrington, Patten and Rogers, as candidates for the Legislature. The action of the Convention in selecting these men to represent this District indicates that it was mindful of the public interest. They are popular and able men, and much respected in their several communities. They are men of marked talent and ability, and will ably represent us in the Legislature. We bespeak for them a full vote and a triumphant election.

Proceedings of the Sixth Judicial Convention.

The Union Judicial Convention for the Sixth Judicial District, met at St. Peter, last Saturday, Aug. 27th, and was called to order by J. T. Williams, chairman of the District Committee.

The meeting was organized by the election of Hon. J, B. Wakefield as Chairman, and E. P. Freeman as Secretary.

Wm. G. Hayden, J. C. Rudolph and Andrew C. Dunn, were appointed a committee on Credentials, and reported the following persons entitled to seats in the Convention:

Sibley County—M. Bridenthal, J. C. Stoever, F. Schimmel,

LeSueur County—Asa Cheadle, Peter Cheadle, C. Gray, A. F. De La Vergne.

Watonwan—James Wilson.

McLeod—Henry Hill,

Martin—Wm. W. Carrington,

Blue Earth—B. F. Smith, O. C. Pitcher, E. P. Freeman, Thomas Pugh.

Nicollet—Geo. Heslep, Wm. G. Hayden, H. L. Warner.

Brown—Henry Back, J. C. Rudolph.

Faribault—J. B. Wakefield, A. C. Dunn.

On motion, the report was accepted.

On motion of Geo. Heslep, an informal ballot was then taken for candidate for Judge of this district.

B. F. Smith placed in nomination the name of Hon. Sherman Finch, of Mankato, and Wm. G. Hayden the name of Horace Austin of St. Peter.

O. O. Pitcher and J. C. Stoever were appointed tellers,

The result of the ballot was as follows: Sherman Finch received ten votes, and Horace Austin eleven votes,

A formal ballot for Judge was then taken, resulting as follows:

For Sherman Finch—Blue Earth County, 4; Faribault, 2; Martin, 1; Brown, 1; Watonwan, 1; Sibley, 1—Total 10.

For Horace Austin—Sibley County, 2; McLeod, 1; LeSueur, 4; Nicollet, 3; Brown, 1—Total 11.

Horace Austin, was then declared to be the nominee for Judge of the Sixth Judicial District, and on motion the nomination was made unanimous.

The Convention then adjourned.

Jeff. Davis' Official Organ on the Proposed Armistice.

We call the attention of our 'Democratic' peace friends to the following article from the Richmond Examiner, of August 17. It covers the armistic question very neatly:

[From the Richmond Examiner, Aug. 17.]

It seems to be nearly certain that a proposal will soon be made to us from some quarter, either from Mr. Lincoln or the Chicago Democratic Convention, to assent to an armistice, or simple cessation of hostilities to allow of negotiations "for peace and reunion," and for that alone. A New York paper most urgently advises Lincoln himself to take the initiative in this, in order "to disarm and silence the demoralizing peace faction at the North;" because it shrewdly guesses that such armistice and negotiations would be refused. This is merely a move to take the wind out of the Democratic sail.

Whether Lincoln is to make such a proposal now, or whether, the Democrats are to carry in their candidate expressly that he may make it—from whomsoever it may come, it is wholly inadmissible, If the North desires to have negotiations for reunion entered upon at all, let all troops and blockading fleets be withdrawn, and the right of secession formally acknowledged.

Gentlemen, "Peace Democrats," do you want peace on these terms? You can get no other, peaceably.

CORRESPONDENCE.

STERLING, Aug 39, 1864.

MR. EDITOR:—You published, last week, a preamble and resolution, as passed by the Republican caucus here. Will you allow me, as one of the delegates, to do through your columns what we were instructed to do at the County Convention; and should have done but for circumstances beyond our control, That is, explain what we intended by that resolution and what we did not intend.

We did not intend to cast censure in particular upon any person or persons in Mankato or elsewhere. Nor were we actuated by any feeling of jealousy as to the influence Mankato has had or may have in our county affairs. The active Union men of Mankato have it in their power to aid the cause of our party and to assist materially in securing the services of good and true men, both for County and State. And in the legitimate exercise of that power we shall at all times cheerfully acquiesce.

We hope we are fully alive to the importance at this crisis of our national affairs, of a cordial union of all truly loyal men. And we do not intend to allow any local or personal feeling to create discord or divison in our party. But the more firmly we are attached to a republican form of government the greater will be our desire to reform abuse, and to make our government to conform fully in practice to its theory. That is, to make it truly a government of the people.

We want for that reason to use proper means to induce our citizens to take part in our town proceedings, and one way, we think, to aid in bringing this about is to give every person who is willing to be a candidate, to understand that the people expect that previous to our town meetings the names of such persons should be made public, that the delegates may be instructed as to the preferences of those who they represent and not that they should be left, as is now generally the case, to act entirely on their own judgment.

But some may say, "What! do you expect candidates for nomination to stump the county?" I answer, no. On the contrary, I wish to make it unnecessary for candidates or their friends to go round soliciting votes. It is only necessary that the name of any one wishing to be put in nomination should be published in the county paper either by himself or his friends, a week or two before our town meeting, And as every well-wisher to the county—every intelligent voter reads or should read a county paper, the people can decide.

And if our nominations were always made in this open popular way, very few persons would be found to bolt the ticket. As every right minded man would feel it his duty to yield his preferences to the wish of the party thus fully and fairly expressed.

W. RUSSELL.

MR. EDITOR:

With our farmers generally busy closing up harvesting, or in haying, and in view of the excitement consequent upon the efforts making in each town to fill its quota, remembering also the absorbing interest that every loyal man feels in the war news, it may seem too much to ask the attention of our citizens to what may appear a mere local matter. Still, while attending in a proper manner to our own personal affairs, or doing for our common country what patriotism demands, we surely ought not to neglect our duties, as citizens, to our county. We have before us an encouraging prospect. The whole of the Winnebago reservation open to settlement, and much of it already occupied by industrious, intelligent settlers, with a reputation as a farming district inferior to none in the State, with good railroads fast approaching to carry off our surplus produce. with an abundant supply of coal near by, with our county orders at par, and ample means to provide for our future wants, what is to prevent our steady, not to say rapid increase in wealth, in population, in intelligence and morality, and everything necessary to constitute us a prosperous, happy people. But to secure these blessings for ourselves and our posterity we must be willing to do our duty now and by a judicious expenditure of labor and money make such public improvements as may be needed to prove to those seeking to locate that we, as a community, are a thrifty, intelligent and respectable class of people.

If we wish to create that impression on the minds of those who may visit us from older settled parts, we should certainly take means to bridge our streams, No place can be properly called civilized where the people cannot move from town to town but at the risk of breaking their necks or being drowned. That this is the case at least at certain seasons no one who has traveled much in these parts will deny.

But some may say it is not worth while to say anything more about it, as the people decided last spring that they did not wish to have the bridges built by the county. I did not so understand it. I find that many who are in favor of building the bridges where needed, voted against the bridges as proposed, believing that some of them were sought more to promote private interest than for the good of the public.

A proposal now to build bridges over streams on the great lines of travel would I doubt not meet with approval by the people. But it may be asked how shall we have a fair and impartial selection of suitable sites. I answer, by referring the whole matter to the County Commissioners. They represent not a party, but the whole county, and are supposed to be acquainted with the wants and wishes of their respective districts.

I write the more freely upon this subject because our section of the county has no direct interest in this matter. We do not ask for any aid for roads or bridges in our township, but like every other resident or property owner, we have a common interest in the prosperity of our county.

The Draft

The Chicago Tribune, of the 25th ult. has the following sensible remarks about the draft:

The draft is not a very pleasant thing per se. But there is no use in making one's self a fool about it. It is idle to charge the draft upon this Administration, and to resolve to vote for Fremont, or McClellan, or Tom Tother, because it has come. The draft is a necessity of the war. It comes because the war wants soldiers and must have them, or stop. Lincoln didn't get up the war, if some Copperhead did say so. The rebels, with Jeff. Davis at their head, got up the war, and Lincoln is trying to put them down and restore the nation; and he is slowly doing it, And he is slowly doing it because it is so large, and determined, and diabolical. Now do you want the war to stop by giving up to the rebels and dividing the nation? If you do. resolve to vote for Peter Funk or his brother for President, and to decry the draft. Go in with the Copperheads and cry peace, while peace means "Confederate Independence," with "original boundaries." War means fighting; and in fighting somebody has it to do. Will you defend your country, or let it go? The draft is not Lincoln's measure more than of other good men. It was proposed by McClellan; was advocated by Archbishop Hughes, and is now declared to be the right thing by Gen. Sherman. Keep cool, then; and if the draft comes, as it will, act the philosopher and the man of sense.

IT is estimated that Holland and Germany have taken $150,000,000 of our debt, The New York Post regards this as an over-estimate, but the amount is very large and is constantly increasing. The bankers and capitalists of the nations are among the shrewdest in the world, and among the last to be tempted by high interest into bad security. The London Times warns and scolds, but the Dutchmen keep on investing, The continual subscription to the loan by our own citizens afford the best evidence of their faith in the Government.

A Cold Winter Coming.

Mr. C. L. Flint, Secretary of the Massachusetts Board of Agriculture, prophecies that next winter will be one of unusual severity. Mr. Flint remarks:

"The cold winter of 1864, preceded a summer marked by a sore and long continued drought in July and August. In 1848 the drought was intense in New England, and this summer was followed by so hard a winter that the suffering was intense. In 1849 there was another "melancholy time;" the winter following "long and dreary;" and the summer of 1862 accompanied by a drought of terrible severity."

He also cites the drought of 1854 and 1856, and the winters succeeding as conclusive evidence on this point.

WE learn that Messrs, Cyrus Aldrich and F. R. E Cornell were nominated for the House of Representatives by the Legislative Union Convention of Hennepin County, which was held last Saturday.

THE LAST ACT IN THE TRAGEDY OF THE POLISH REBELLION:—The Czar of Russia, having crushed out the Polish rebellion and the Revolutionary Government about a year ago, is now engaged in the work of hanging the leaders of the revolt. It will be remembered that while that great rebellion was in actual progress, it maintained profound secrecy as to who were its leaders, and as to its means and agencies of operation.

The "Revolutionary Committee," or "National Government," was a secret affair—secret as to its members and as to its plans, while its edicts were issued in secret and executed secretly by mysterious agents. It issued orders for the assassination of obnoxious persons, and vast numbers were suddenly and unexpectedly slain by they knew not whom. Some of its active military chiefs were of course known; but both in field and cabinet, it tried to wrap itself in mystery. It assumed for a time very formidable proportions, and had it got the assistance that was promised from England and France, it might have achieved success. But the immense armies of Russia, when fairly set in motion, soon broke it down, and reduced it to a mere guerilla war, which also in turn was crushed out; and all the notice we now find of the late Polish "revolution" is such as is conveyed in the following telegram from Warsaw, under date of the 5th inst:

"M. Traugott, the head of the Polish National Government, together with Keajewski, Focyski, Zalinski, and Jezloranski, the chiefs of the different departments, were hanged this morning on the glacis of the citadel. The sentence of death passed upon eleven officials of the National Government have been commuted in some cases to hard labor, and in the others to imprisonment in a Siberian fortress."

And so closes the latest bloody tragedy of Polish Revolution.

AID FOR SOLDIERS FAMILIES.

A New and Noble Movement.

To the officers and friends of the Minnesota Branch Sanitary Commission.

The Executive Committee have recently had their attention called to a new class of needs in connection with the soldiers. These are found to be very imperative home wants. Those patriotic men who have gone to the front, very many of them, have families, wives and children to be provided for in their absence. Our State is young. Manufacturies are not yet developed. Agriculture is the main resource. This limits the sphere of employment and virtually excludes from self-dependence a large class which in the older States might readily support themselves. Besides in consequence of our remoteness from the seat of war our people reap but very little of the financial benefits of the war. There are no foundries, no arsenals, no dockyards, no machine shops, no cartridge manufactories, stimulating trade and invoking and remunerating all sorts of industries Wages are good, Men, and especly able-bodied men have abundant resources in themselves. But those mothers who have to keep households together and supply all their little ones feel only the pressure of the high prices without being able to avail themselves of any of the corresponding advantages. Winter is fast approaching and at the current rates of all the necessaries of life, clothing, food and fuel, there must be great suffering among us unless timely aid is rendered.

We have no sympathy with that refined spirit of selfishness which for the sake of getting rid of doing anything anywhere, is always quoting the adage "charity begins at home," but it is a fact nevertheless. Our first service is to the needy ones right about us. Each man is to work over against his own household. And surely there is no way in which we can show sympathy for and encourage our brave men in the field so well as by taking care of the loved ones they have left behind. Moreover it needs to be impressed upon us over and over again that the men who are fighting our battles are under no obligations of service which are not equally binding on us, The least we can do is to make ample provisions for their wives and children.

The ex Committee, therefore, deem it not merely a matter of generosity but of simple justice to devote a portion of their sanitary receipts to this channel of needs. Though they have not determined the precise amount which ought to be appropriated for this purpose and cannot well do it without more specific information, it is thought that one-half at least of all future contributions, should be bestowed upon needy soldiers' families within our State.

And the Committee recommend that Associate managers, and all others who feel an interest in this matter, residing in the same counties pursue the same course.

Take measures at once to ascertain the condition of every soldier's family in your county, and then minister according to the necessities of each.

If money is raised among you for sanitary purposes, first see to it that there are at home no soldier's families destitute and suffering, and then if you have money left, forward it to our treasury for general purposes. When you have ascertained what is the condition of those made poor by the war in your respective towns and counties, we desire you immediately to make up a statement for us.

Do not wait one for another, but in each town let the work be undertaken immediately, sending the facts as soon as possible, to the Associate Manager of your county, if you know of one, and if not, mail directly to us.

In this holy service may we not justly appropriate the words 'inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these, ye have done it unto me.'

In conclusion, permit us to recommend this organization once more to the considerate regard of the community. Are the friends of the soldiers doing all they can for them? Now is the time. While they are sacrificing so much for us, let us not withhold our most generous benefactions from them and theirs.

For the Ex-Committee.

The Traitor's Convention at Chicago

Special Dispatches to the St. Paul Press,

The proceedings were opened by Bishop Whitehouse, who first read from the Psalm of David, following with an impressive prayer, the delegates and audience standing.

The Committee on Credentials reported against the admission of delegates from the Territories or District of Columbia, also to admit both delegations from Kentucky, each delegate to cast half a vote. Report adopted.

On motion of Mr. Cox, Hon Amos Kendall had leave to present a communication giving the proceedings and action of the Conservative Union National Convention held in this city on the 27th.

When the Secretary read the resolutions recommending the nomination of McClellan, the wildest applause went up, many delegates standing and cheering.

Cox moved that the communication be referred to the Committee on Resolutions.

Mr. Miller moved to amend that the communication be made a part of the minutes of the Convention.

The Chair stated that the communication would be entered on the minutes of course.

Mr. Olds said that another body, the Sons of Liberty, now in session here might have a communication to make to the Convention, and if this is to go on the minutes theirs ought to be received.

Mr. Olds said he would not press the motion.

The communiction was accepted.

CHICAGO, 4:30 P. M.

The committee have just reported a platform consisting of six planks, and declares in favor of an armistice and a convention of states, to restore the Union; denounces the administration for usurpation, and declares in favor of revolution if there is any more interference with elections in the border States.

Pending the adoption of the Platform, Aleck Long introduced a resolution, acknowledging the Right of Secession. A stormy debate is going on.

CHICAGO, Aug. 30—5:15, P. M.

Seymour has choked Long off by deciding that his resolution must be referred to the committee on resolutions. The platform is adopted in full. The nominations will now be made.

In Convention, 5:20, P. M.—New Jersey has just nominated McClellan amid great cheers. Pennsylvania declares for him also.

CHICAGO Aug. 30—5:30 P. M.

Powell has just been nominated, and has just withdrawn in a speech.

Stuart of Ohio, nominates Thomas Seymour.

Wickliffe nominated Pierce.

Harris of Maryland, seconded the nomination of Seymour, and then proceeded to denounce McClellan in unmeasured terms, as a tyrant. He has just read McClellan's letter, ordering the arrest of the Maryland legislature. He is constantly interrupted The greatest confusion prevails.

Seymour has appealed to the audience several times, promising that the charges will be answered. The greatest excitement prevails and a free fight is imminent.

CHICAGO, Aug. 30—5:40 P. M.

Harris has just declared he would not support the nominee.

Seymour decides that a man who will not support the nominee is out of order, and Harris descended from the platform. As he reached the floor a delegate called him a traitor, and Harris knocked him down. Three or four policemen rushed to the rescue, and further fighting is momentarily suspended. The excitement is running very high.

H. P. H.

A private dispatch says that McClellan was finally nominated.

The vote of North Carolina for Governor, shows 54,323 for Vance, Jeff. Davis war candidate, and 20,488 for Holden, whom the rebels call a submissionist—making a total vote of 74, 771. In 1860 the vote for President was, Breckinridge 48,539; Bell, 44,990; Douglas, 2,701—total vote, 96,230, showing a majority of only 648 for the secession side.

Fort Morgan in Our Possession.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.

To Major General Dix:

A dispatch from Gen. Grant just received states that the Richmond papers of yesterday, the 27th, announce that Fort Morgan is in our possession. It is not stated whether the fort was surrendered or whether it was blown up. Another dispatch gives the following extract from the Richmond Examiner of yesterday:

"Fort Morgan is in the enemy's possession—whether blown up or evacuated is not known."

Gen. Sheridan, in a dispatch dated yesterday 2:30 P. M., reports—"The enemy left my front last night, falling back to Middleburg. We captured 105 prisoners yesterday, and inflicted a loss of 100 killed and wounded. There have been a few feints along the river by the enemy, but there has been no strength shown. Indications to day are that they will fall back out of the valley."

Other reports state the enemy is leaving the Shenandoah Valley.

Nothing has been received from the army of General Sherman for two days.

(Signed) E. M. STANTON, Secretary of War.

TO PREVENT CATTLE FROM JUMPING.—At the last meeting of the Am. Inst. Farmers club, the following novel way of preventing cattle from jumping fences was promulgated. Its parentage is good.

"We lately learned a curious remedy to prevent steers from jumping fences, which is so easy of application, and appears so effectual that we give it to the public. It is simply to clip off the eye-lashes of the upper lids with a pair of scissors, and the ability or disposition to jump is as effectually destroyed as Sampson's power was by the loss of his locks. The animal will not attempt a fence until the eyelashes are grown again.

Of this we are informed by Samuel Thorne, the great breeder of Duchess County, who assured us that he had tested it upon a pair of very breachy oxen. As it was of great value to him he hopes it will be tried by others.'

A Cool Soldier.

A soldier belonging to an Iowa regiment, at the battle of Lookout Mountain, coolly sat down on a during the thickest of the engagement, to wait for his gun to cool off, as he had fired it very often and efectually. The boys who were fighting around him deliberately ceased their firing and waited until he sung for them an old-fashioned and familiar song, 'Root Hog or Die,' which he is said to have sung with such humor as to make all merry and forgetful of the fearful scenes around them. When the song was finished, they reloaded their guns and entered the fight again doing damage to the rebels.

The City and County.

Official Paper of the County.

Workmen are engaged in tearing down the government buildings that were sold at auction last week.

CAMPAIGN PAPER.—We will furnish the UNION to those who wish to take it during the fall campaign, for three months, for 40 cents.

Lars Lee, of South Bend, has resigned the office of Postmaster at that place, and P. F. Eckstorm has been appointed in his stead. It is a good selection.

Capt. Davidson's large warehouse has been greatly enlarged by putting on an addition, and raising the roof of the main building. Its capacity is now about 95,000 bushels. At present it contains nearly 50,000 bushels of last year's crop.

FANNING MILLS.—We direct attention to the card of Messrs. Giltner & Townsend in this issue. They are engaged in the manufacture of a very superior fanning mill, and having had experience in the business, guarantee to give satisfaction. Farmers should patronize home industry.

CLOSED.—The public schools of the town closed last Friday. In the Broadway school, taught by Miss Maine, an exhibition took place, that was very creditable. Prizes were awarded to Misses Mary Wilson, Ada Milton, and Josie Wampler.

DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION.—The Democrats of this Legislative District held their Convention at this place last Monday, and placed in nomination as candidates for the Legislature, Col. N. Dane and Asa Waite of LeSueur County, and Miles Porter, of Blue Earth County.

PROGRESSING.—The mason work on the Presbyterian Church is progressing rapidly. Important changes have been made in the foundation work of this building, and when completed, the church will be an ornament to the town.

MEETING OF THE COUNTY BOARD.—Next Tuesday, the 6th inst., the annual meeting of the County Commissioners will be held at the Register's office. The Board of Equalization will also be in session, and persons feeling aggrieved at assessments made on their property, will then be heard.

POSTPONED.—The Union Sabbath School celebration is postponed from September 7th, until Sept. 21st by reason of the unsettled state of affairs. By order of the Committee of Arrangements,

S. C. CLARK,
Chairman.

IN these times of high prices, it is well to remember that children can be supplied with shoes for less than half the usual annual cost, by wearing Metal-Tipped Shoes, to say nothing of stockings destroyed and health endangered by wet feet, arising from the childlike habit of wearing out their shoes at the toes first.—Boston Journal.

THE Republicans of LeSueur county have nominated Perry Wilson, of Cordova, for County Auditor. He is a very competent man, and is highly respected by all who know him. He will poll a heavy vote. We are informed that the entire ticket is an excellent one, and that it will receive a full party vote, as there are no local issues pending there this fall.

FARIBAULT COUNTY NOMINATIONS.—The Republicans of Faribault County have placed in nomination the following excellent ticket:

Register of Deeds—A. Bronwell.
County Auditor—J. W. Cady
Clerk of Court—J. K. Pratt
Probate Judge—G. Hart.
Court Com.—G. Hart.

A Company of forty "Minute Men" has been raised at Blue Earth City, and Dr. Foster elected Lieutenant.

A company has also been raised at Garden City, and E. P. Evans elected Lieutenant. The Major made application some time since for a position as scout, and being successful, was ordered to report to Col. Pfaender. Verily, the Major is receiving honors thick and fast. We hardly know what title to give you. However, thus, we salute you "Lieutenant Major Scout Evans."

SOUTHERN HOUNDS FOR HUNTING INDIANS.—Major Evans of Garden City has conceived the idea of securing the services of twenty-five Southern negro dogs with which to hunt down the few prowling savages now lurking on our borders. He believes that in no other way can we be successful in catching these red-headed devils. A large sum of money has already been raised for that purpose, and the project will be effectually carried out,

CURE FOR COUGH OR COLD.—As soon as there is the slightest uneasiness of the Chest with difficulty of breathing, or indications of Cough take during the day a few "Brown's Bronchial Troches," Containing demulcent ingredients that allay Pulmonary Irritation. Military Officers and Soldiers should have them in readiness upon the first appearance of a Cold or Cough.

To instill into the mind—whether music or otherwise—the beauty of sacred or other music, it is only necessary to hear what plaintive or joyful notes emanate from the American Organs, manufactured by S. D. & H. W. Smith. To Homes, Schools, Churches, Lodges and other Institutions, these Instruments will prove invaluable. Professors of Music are in favor of their use—simply because they call out the intelligence of Children and grown up people. They are sold from $80 to $450. W. W. Kimball, 142 Lake street, Chicago, Wholesale Depot, for the Northwest.

COLDS AND COUGHS.—Sudden changes of climate are sources of Pulmonary and Bronchial affections. Experience having proved that simple remedies act speedily and certainly when taken in the early stage of disease, recourse should at once be had to "Brown's Bronchial Troches." or Lozenges, let the Cold, Cough or Irritation of the Throat be it ever so slight, as by this precaution a more serious attack may be effectually warded off. Soldiers should have them, as they can be carried in the pocket and taken as occasion requires.

CAPT POTTER'S COMPANY.—Co. C of the Eleventh Regiment, rendezvoused at this place on Sunday evening last, preparatory to starting for Fort Snelling on Monday. The Captain had the enlistment papers of one hundred and six men, all recruited in Blue Earth, Faribault, Martin and Watonwan counties. The material of this company is equal to any that has ever been raised during the war, and is composed of our hard working, intelligent farmers who have left their families and farms for the purpose of fighting the battles of our country. Every man in the company enlisted for one year. The best of feeling prevailed among them during their stay in town, and they were very quiet and orderly.

Monday morning the Company met in the City Hall for the purpose of electing officers, and the meeting was organized by the selection of A. J. Smith as Chairman, and Chas. D. Robertson as Secretary. Lieut. T. E. Potter was unanimously elected Captain amid rousing cheers of the entire company. It was decided to postpone the election of the other officers until their arrival at Fort Snelling. Mr. Flower of the Clifton, succeeded admirably in providing comfortable quarters for the boys, and the company assured us that his efforts should not go unappreciated.

The Company was conveyed to the Fort in eleven two horse wagons, and as we accompanied them as far as LeSueur, we can testify to their gentlemanly deportment and good conduct all along the road. Daniel Haire had dinner ready for them at 2 o'clock, and the Company left that place in the best of spirits. We can afford to be proud of Co. C, for they will acquit themselves well.

No other Family Sewing Machine has so much capacity for a great variety of work. It will sew all kinds of cloth, and with all kinds of thread Great and recent improvements make our Family Sewing Machine most reliable, and most durable, and most certain in action at all rates of speed. It makes the interlocked stitch, which is the best stich known. Any one, even of the most ordinary capacity, can see at a glance, how to use the letter A Family Sewing Machine. Our Family Sewing Machines are finished in chaste and exquisite style.

The Folding Case of the Family Machine is a piece of cunning workmanship of the most useful kind. Valuable Lands for Sale.

BY DIRECTION OF THE HONORABLE Secretary of Interior, the undersigned will receive sealed bids for the purchase of any or all of the lands hereinafter described, they being among the choicest and best farming lands in Minnesota.

These lands comprise what are known as the Winnebago Trust lands in the State of Minnesota, and will be sold to the highest and best bidder in tracts not exceeding one hundred and sixty acres each, under the provisions of a treaty concluded with the Winnebago Indians, April 15th, 1859, and an act of Congress, approved February 21st 1863, entitled "An act for the removal of the Winnebago Indians, and for the sale of their Reservation in Minnesota, for their benefit."

No bid will be entertained at a rate less than two dollars and fifty cents per acre.

In case a bid is accepted, the party making the same will be notified as soon thereafter as practicable. If within thirty days after such notice the party shall fail to make payment to the undersigned, the land for which such bid was made will be subject to sale to any other person.

Patents will be issued and transmitted to purchasers as soon after the payment as the same can be prepared. Payments may be made either in cash or in the certificates of indebtedness of the Winnebago Indians issued by the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, for the debt of said Indians, and secured to be paid out of the proceeds of the sale of said lands by the third article of the treaty above mentioned. The right to reject any and all bids is expressly reserved. All bids must be sealed and addressed to the undersigned, Washington City D. C., and endorsed "Bid for Winnebago Tract Land."

As heretofore many persons have bid upon these lands and after the awards have been made to them have failed to respond, the Secretary of the Interior hereby directs that all bids hereafter submitted must be accompanied by a deposit of a sum equal to ten per cent on the amount of each bid, which, in case the land is awarded and the balance not paid will be forfeited by the bidder; should the bid be rejected the sum deposited will be returned to the unsuccessful didder.
